Twelve High Schools Clash for East Tennessee Basketball Championship

Tournament Directed By College "Y"

T. M. I. and Chilhowee Institute Awarded First and Second Places. The Knoxville High Schools Forfeit Championship Through Disagreement.

One of the greatest events in the history of the athletic affairs on College Hill took place on January 30th and 31st. For the first time in history, an East Tennessee Basket Ball Tournament was held, and Maryville claims the unique honor of planning, arranging and holding this initial tournament. The twelve secondary schools which were represented are as follows: Polytechnic High and Maryville High of Maryville; Knoxville High and Central High of Knoxville; Harrison Chilhowee Institute of Seymour; Tennessee Military Institute of Sweetwater; Porter High of Wildwood; Wheat High of Wheat; Newport High of Newport; Madisonville High of Madisonville; Lenoir City High of Lenoir City and Louisville High of Louisville.

Much time and considerable efforts were spent in the planning and management of the tournament, and special credit is due to Harry Wagner and Porter Turner for its success. These two men were the institutors of the original plan for the tournament, which they themselves carried out to a successful fulfillment. It is hoped that the tournament can be made an annual event at Maryville College as it would be certainly a great step forward in the promotion of better athletics on the Hill. Some of the visitors suggested that the tournament be held at different places over East Tennessee each year, but since there is no organization known as the East Tennessee Athletic Association we intend to make it strictly a Maryville event if possible, for the purpose of promoting good sportsmanship and clean athletics among the High Schools of East Tennessee, and for the stimulating of interest in our own school.

On the afternoon of Friday, January 30., the six preliminary contests were staged which resulted as follows: Polytechnic 10, Chilhowee 20; T. M. I. 27, Porter High 14; Wheat 11, Newport 22; Central 16, Madisonville 10; Knoxville High 22, Maryville High 1; Lenoir City 34, Louisville 9.

On Saturday morning the six winning teams in the preliminaries met in the semi-finals which came out as follows: T. M. I. 20, Chilhowee 14; Central 17, Newport 12; Knoxville High 24, Lenoir City 18. This left only three teams in the running —T. M. I., Central and Knoxville High. In the finals, Central defeated T. M. I. 19 to 10, and Knoxville High defeated Chilhowee (who were already eliminated) 23 to 16, so this left Central and Knoxville High as the two champions. It was the original plan to play the final championship game at 1:30 p. m., but owing to a previous agreement between the two winning teams the final contest was called off. For financial reasons the two winning teams elected to play off the tie for the championship honors at the Knoxville Y. M. C. A. on March 4th and hence they withdrew from the tournament, thus forfeiting first honors to T. M. I. and second to Chilhowee Institute.

T. M. I. refused to accept the trophies because they had lost their semi-final game, and thought they did not deserve the first prize. On account of this refusal the trophies were not given, but will be given if K. H. S. and C. H. S. play or they will be held till next year.

The games were witnessed by a large body of spectators and owing to the holiday which was given on Saturday, the gym was thronged on Saturday morning. The games were practically all close, and intensely interesting, and especially did excitement run high during the semi-finals. The teams all showed the mark of experience and training but the four teams which participated in the finals considerably outshone their competitors. Also several stars scintillated brightly thruout the tournament. Demarcus of Central scored more points than any other player, making 28 points, all on field goals, whole Wroten of Chilhowee ran him a close second with 27 points to his credit. E. Spraker of Lenoir City won the unique distinction of having scored 20 points in a single contest, which record was not equalled by any other player.

A committee composed of representatives from several of the High Schools represented in the tournament met on Saturday afternoon and formulated the following rules to regulate the next tournament.

1. All participating in these tournaments shall be carrying at least fifteen hours of high school work per week as prescribed by the State.

2. All participants in these tournaments shall be required to make an average of at least 75 per cent during the portion of the term preceding the tournament.

3. All participants in any of these tournaments shall have been students in the schools they represent from the first week of the term in which the tournament is held.

4. No one shall represent his school in the tournament who is over twenty-one years of age.

5. No one shall participate as an official in any tournament who has been a student or in any way connected with any school represented in the tournament.

THE PRELIMINARIES

Maryville Polytechnic vs. Chilhowee

This game was certainly an auspicious beginning for the tournament The first half was especially close, but Chilhowee won a slight lead which increased steadily as the game progressed. Chilhowee showed both fight and form while Polytechnic showed excellent form but without the fight. Polytechnic had many opportunities at the goal but could not shoot. R. Ownby and Wroten of Chilhowee and Hinton of Polytechnic starred. Wroten scored 16 of their total of 26 points.

T. M. I. vs. Porter

The play was about equal for the first few minutes, then T. M. I. got the range and shot accurately. Both teams bunched up considerably thus causing a rough game. T. M. I. showed a decided superiority over their opponents in both teamwork and shooting. Towards the last of the game T. M. I. had things their way, making 13 points in the last few minutes of the game. Butts of T. M. I. and C. Marshall of Porter showed up to advantage.

Wheat vs. Newport

The two teams were composed of larger men than the four teams which had just previously played, but they failed to show good form until the second half. Wheat showed a marked deficiency at shooting field goals. Rich and Gardner of Newport played especially well.

Central vs. Madisonville

Rough play was noticable throughout the whole game and many fouls were called. Madisonville kept in the lead during almost the whole of the first half but Central started a rush and captured the lead in the last minute of the first half. Madisonville became excited and shot wild and often. Neither side could succeed in caging many goals in the second half, but displayed good team work. Demarcus of Central and Keithe of Madisonville outshone their team-mates.

K. H. S. vs. M. H. S.

The spectators were treated to better basketball than they had been witnessing. K. H. S. passed quickly and accurately, and showed excellent team-work all the way around. M. H. S. was strong on the defensive but weak on the offensive. Shanton and Dean had no difficulty in shooting goals.

Lenoir City vs. Louisville

The last game of the preliminaries was a walk-away for Lenoir City. It was the most spectacular game of the afternoon, due to the brilliant shooting of J. Spraker and E. Spraker. E. Spraker shot from all angles and distances until he had 20 points to his credit.

SEMI-FINALS

T. M. I. vs. Chilhowee Institute

The first game of the semi-finals was the best game of the whole tournament. Both sides displayed excellent team-work and both sides were determined to win. Chilhowee had a 6 lead before T.M.I. was able to score. T.M.I. then showed a slight reverse and evened the score 6-6, and at the end of the first period the score stood 8-8. In the second half the two contending teams swapped the lead time after time, until when the timekeeper's whistle blew for the end of the game, the score was again even 14-14. An additional five minutes was given in which to play off the tie. White cinched the game for T.M.I. by caging three field goals in that five minutes. The game was the closest and most exciting of the whole tournament. Wroten and Pitner of Chilhowee and White and Brunner starred.

White 8	f.	Wroten 9
Brunner 4	f.	Qitner
Butts 2	c.	Davis
Betts	g.	R. Ownby 2
Rowland 6	g.	S. Ownby

Central vs. Newport

Although not to be compared with the preceding game, this game was not lacking in interest. Central showed up to advantage from the very first. Both teams bunched up to a certain extent and lacked the ability to shoot goals. Each team put up a hard fight and it was due to Newport's inability to take advantage of their chances at the goal that they were defeated. Although Central won the game, they also were apparently weak on the offensive. Demarcus of Central and Rich of Newport played stellar.

Central 17		Newport 12
Parker	f.	Sisk and Parrot 6
Snodderly 7	f.	Gardner 4
Demarcus 10	c.	Driscold
Sterling	g.	McSween
Brooks	g.	Rich 2

K. H. S. vs. Lenoir City

From the time K.H.S. pitched a foul goal, winning a lead of 1 to 0, on to the end of the game she retained a lead which vocillated between two and six points. In the second period the passing of K.H.S. became wild and it looked as if Lenoir City would even up the score, but, try as they might, they could never get nearer than within two points of their opponents' score. The playing of Keister and Shanton of K. H. S. and Jarvis of Lenoir City featured.

K.H.S. 24		Lenoir City 18
Shanton 5	f.	J. Spraker 14
Dean 2	f.	Jarvis 12
Donahue 10	c.	Letsinger 2

FINALS

Central vs. T. M. I.

Both teams started off by attempting long shots, very few of which were successful. T. M. I. outplayed their opponents in the first half and the score was 9 to 4 in their favor at the end of the first half. Central showed a complete reversal of form in the second half and scored 15 to T.M.I.'s 1. T.M.I. fought desperately throughout the whole game but were unable to check the sudden onslaught of Central in the second half. Both sides played rough and fouls were numerous. T.M.I. failed at many attempts at tossing field goals in the second period.

Central 19		T.M.I. 10
Johnson 2	f.	White 2
Snodderly 5	f.	Bruner 6
Demarcus 12	c.	Butts
Sterling	g.	Betts 2
Hill	g.	Rowland

K.H.S. vs. Chilhowee

It was apparent at the outset that K.H.S. was over-confident of victory, which in the long run almost caused her defeat. Both teams shot and passed well in the first half which ended with the score 10 to 8 in Chilhowee's favor. In the second period the playing of Shanton was in a large way responsible for the success of his team. Crittendon also played fine basketball for K.H.S.

Dean 6	f.	Pitner 6

Summary of Texts of February Meetings

gives. He pleads that you leave the chair of condemnation and take the chair of righteousness provided by Him.

February 8th., evening service, the text was taken from Luke 19:24. The Theme, "Strive ye to enter the straight gate". Man can do nothing to be saved, yet men are anxious to be saved. There is no struggle in the gospel. Men alone set up the barriers and obstacles then struggle against them.

What are the barriers that men set up? First, there is pride, and God hates pride. Unblessed are the proud in spirit. Second, there is false-confidence. Men have confidence in a gospel of temperance. Women during the war thought the way to save and be saved was by working for the Red Cross—there is but one cross—the cross of salvation. Third, many believe in church membership. This will not save. Fourth, there is confidence in new-fangled ideas. But they would not associate with the church because of hypocrites in the church. Fifth, there is confidence in self by getting even with the other fellow. It is a struggle to overcome these, but all must strive to enter the gate, for the way is narrow.

February 9th., evening service, the text was from Proverbs 11:19. Theme, "He that pursueth evil pursueth it to his own death." The righteous man lives and lives longer than the man that is burning the candle at both ends. The man who pursueth evil only finds death. He reaps just what he has sown. Pursue evil and it will rise up to curse you; pursue evil and your conscience will die; the sense of sensibility will also perish and you will go through the world with a deadened soul.

February 10th., farewell message, the text was Psalms 119:59. Theme, "I turned from my ways and thought on the testimony of God." Heaven and Hell are inviting you. Turn from your ways to the testimony of God. God is an addition not a subtraction. Without God there is no peace. With God there is an anchor that holds. It costs the hope of eternal life not to turn to God. With God, it means joy, for joy is within and happiness is on the outside. The righteous are never without this joy, nor are they forsaken.

PROPOSITION FOUR RECEIVES PLURALITY

A compromise whereby the Peace Treaty may have immediate ratification is favored in American colleges according to the returns from the treaty referendum vote recently taken in the colleges and universities of the United States.

The compromise won by only a narrow margin over ratification without reservation. According to the revised figures the referendum was voted upon in four hundred and ten colleges and universities and 139,788 votes were cast. For the compromise there were 49,653 votes and for ratification without reservation 48,232 votes; in opposition to ratification only with the Lodge reservations 27,970 votes.

Among prominent colleges whose vote was for compromise were: Harvard, Princeton, Yale and Western Reserve, while Amherst, Cornell, Davidson and South Carolina voted for ratification without reservations. Buffalo favored the Lodge program.

MISS FANSON ENTERTAINS CHEMISTRY ASSISTANTS AT MARY BLOUNT

Emerson was right about compensation, for there is a good side even to being a chemistry assistant. Miss Fanson, the head of the chemistry department, invited her six assistants to take supper with her at the Mary Blount, the night of January 30th., but when they arrived they found a private dining room and a four course dinner awaiting them, place cards and all. For once the chemistry department absolutely tabooed note books, equations, re-actions, and all things—pertaining to inorganic chemistry and gave themselves up to four courses in the chemistry of foods. When the last wafer was eaten and the ice cream was gone, they were all convinced that they had never before had so pleasant a meeting, so gracious a hostess, or so admirable a head of the chemistry department. Now, don't you wish you were a chemistry assistant? Study hard, and you may be one when the present ones get fired or graduated.

Tom—You don't mean to tell me that your memory is absolutely perfect?

Jim—Well, I can truthfully say that I can't remember a thing I've forgotten.

STUDENT CONFERENCE FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS

see College Hill won for Christ and forget the town of Maryville or the Nation or the vast untouched places of the earth? If we are going to obey the commands of Christ, dare we excuse ourselves from foreign work on the grounds that there are enough places at home for us to consider? Listen! If the highest hopes of the Churches for their foreign work are to be met this year, they will require one person from every 25,000 in the United States to go to foreign countries. That is, IF their highest hopes are realized. That will leave 24,999 people to carry on the work at home. Isn't that a sufficient number? Will the United States answer this need? Will New York City, with a population of nearly 5,000,000 respond to her quota? Will Tennessee with her 3,000,000 supply her 120 foreign workers this year? Since only trained workers are sent, the number for Tennessee must come from her Normal School, College and Industrial School graduates. That means US. Are WE going to respond with any less enthusiasm to the call of Christ for foreign workers than we did to the call of Uncle Sam?

The conference to be held at Maryville on Saturday and Sunday, March 26 and 27 will be an endeavor to unite the students of the State in a State-wide understanding of the part Tennessee can play in evangelizing the World, emphasis being laid on foreign work, as being the most needy. Will the Maryville students respond to the requests which will soon be made of them as freely as they have ever done when Christ's work needed to be done?

A NEW INSTITUTION

Tuesday evening sixty young men, most of whom were converted in the February Meetings, met in the Theta Hall. The meeting was the first of a series of meetings which are being conducted by our College Pastor, Dr. Stevenson for the boys and girls who are trying to lead a better life.

The address of the evening was, "Means for developing and strengthening our Christian Life". The four means of developing and strengthening our Christian life are given below. We must continue to Believe in Christ and His teachings. We must tell others of Christ and what he has done for us. Confess that you are on the Lord's side. The best way to make your decision known is to join the church of your choice. Another important means is to Watch as a Sentinel. The devil, as the serpent, is very subtile and will ever tempt you. Let this be the watchword of each new convert:

My soul be on thy Guard,
Ten thousand foes assail.

As every living being must breathe the breath of life so every Christian must PRAY. Pray earnestly, Pray fervently concerning everything. Tell God of your troubles.

All those who have decided to live for Christ have entered a race, so, just as a racer lays aside all weights so that he will not be encumbered, in the same way it is necessary for the Christian to lay aside evil companions or selfish ambitions or perhaps one's career must be changed. It is necessary for a Christian to sacrifice, pleasure or what may be considered pleasure. Remember that Christ said:

"I gave my life for thee,
"What hast thou done for me?"

Each evening as the lights flash, each student is to go to the room designated in their respective hall for a short prayer meeting. This is a new institution and is to be carried on every evening throughout the year unless an extraordinary event takes place to prevent the meeting.

TEN THOUSAND DOLLAR CONTEST

Through the Republican National Committee, Mr. Truptun Beale, former United States Minister to Persia, offers cash prizes aggregating $10,000 for the best suggestion for the Republican platform by young voters, both men and women in the country.

His offer has been formally accepted by Chairman Will H. Hayes, of the National Committee. The contest has been open for several weeks and will close March 31, 1920.

A first prize of $6,000 will be given for the best manuscript received; $3,000 for the second best; and $1,000 for the third best.

Manuscripts are limited to 6,000 words and must be addressed to Walker Blaine Beale Contest, Division of Young Voters, Republican National Committee, 923 Woodward Building, Washington, D. C. Four typewritten copies must be submitted, only one of the number being signed.

There are times when questions of vital importance must be disposed of so that the best interests of the nation are supported. In our land we have several political parties each striving for supremacy. Should these parties each contain good and bad qualities just to be different from each other or should each party strive to present the best platform that can be arranged.

In order to forward the ideas of the majority of the people, and in order to know the will of the thinking people of America, The Republican Party has presented to the American voter the above contest. Next fall perhaps you will vote. What is the platform to consist of for which you will cast your ballot? Here is a chance to prepare for the future and perhaps render your party an invaluable service.

The rules of the contest are as follows:

1. The contest is open to all men and women not over twenty-five years of age. Attach a signed statement with your manuscript that you are a qualified contestant.

2. Submit four typewritten copies of your manuscript. Sign only one. Write on one side of the paper.

3. Manuscripts must not exceed over six thousand words.

4. Send all manuscripts to the Walker Blaine Beale Contest, Division of Young Voters, Republican National Committee, 923 Woodward Bldg., Washington, D. C.

5. All manuscripts must be in the judges hands not later than March 31, 1920.

6. Announcement of prize winners will be made prior to the opening of the Republican Convention in 1920.

Light is something we cannot see, and cannot see without.

Mr. Hope has purchased property at Winona Lake, Indiana, and will settle there this summer. Mrs. Hope and the children will remain in this country when Mr. Hope returns to Africa at the conclusion of his furlough. Many old friends greeted Mr. Hope Monday night when he was present at the evangelistic services. He is sure of a rousing welcome from the students when he returns about February 28th to tell us of his work.

Oglethorpe has adopted boxing as a regular gymnasium exercise. It is a commendable advance in the college athletic world to take such a step. This sport can be as clean and as helpful as any other college activity as has been shown in the army during the past year.

Discovered! A new way to write French sentences! Saves time, ink, paper, brains, of pupils and teacher alike. For information apply to Mary Mason and Helen Ott.

In order that athletic and forensic contests may not militate against excellence of classroom work, but that they may become, in a measure, a direct aid in maintaining high standards of scholarship, your committee would recommend the adoption of the following regulations:

These regulations are to apply to all athletic and forensic contests, except those that are intra-mural.

To be eligible to membership on any college team during the fall term a student must enroll not later than October first. To be eligible during the winter and spring terms a student must enroll not later than February first.

No person who is not a regularly enrolled student, carrying a minimum of fifteen hours of classroom work a week, shall represent the college in any athletic or forensic contest.

Whenever a student becomes a candidate for a place on any college team the coach shall hand in his name to the Registrar, who will fill out the candidate's eligibility card for the instructor's certification. On this card shall appear the name of the student, a list of all the classes for which he is scheduled, with blank spaces after each subject for the signature of the instructor in that subject. Every two weeks during the time that the student is a candidate for a position on any of these teams, the Registrar shall present the candidate's card to his instructors for endorsement. The instructor will attach his name to the card, provided that during the preceding two weeks the student has maintained a passing grade. The third Wednesday of the term and every second Wednesday following shall be the dates for the presentation of the cards. Only those students whose cards have been duly endorsed by their instructors on any Wednesday designated for the presentation of the cards shall be eligible to participate in any athletic or forensic contest.

The Dean of the college will give a copy of these regulations to the coach and to the captain of each team and they will be responsible to him for the enforcement of the rules.

Any instructor who knows that a candidate for membership on these teams has failed to have his card signed will report the case to the Dean.

Adopted by Faculty, February 5, 1919.

Secretary.

TUSCULUM DEFEATED MARYVILLE IN HEATED CONTEST 30-24

Carter and Cotton for Maryville and Campbell for Tusculum Played Stellar Game.

Leaving on a very hasty notice, The Highlanders journeyed to Tusculum College on the 16th. After considerable delay on account of late trains they arrived at their destination. The game began about 11:00 p. m. and ended some time the next morning. Harry Wagner, the famous Portsmouth Star, was absent from the game—and by the way—it is said that the reason the train was so late was because the Conductor was holding it until Wag told his girl goodbye. The game was a hard and close fought battle from the beginning to the finish. The first half ended with the score 14-15 in Tusculum's favor. The Highlanders took the lead in the second and held until the last two minutes of play. The fatigue of waiting around for late trains began to tell on our boys. When Tusculum made a sweeping dash making three field goals. Carter and Cotton starred for Maryville while Campbell twinkled for Tusculum.

Line-up:

Maryville		Tusculum
Cotton, 8	f.	Duggan 2
Hendricks, 4	f.	Doak 10
Carter 8	c.	Campbell 16
Cullis, 4	g.	Strum 2
Montgomery	g.	Doak

Tusculum will return the game Thursday on Maryville's floor. And, be careful Tusculum or the Highlanders will get you.

ANNALS OF SENIORS

Vol. 101. No. 8

On Friday evening the Seniors were royally entertained by Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Holmes, Jr. Boys and girls in Japanese costumes met them at the door and Mrs. Buchanan pinned on each Senior the name of some famous person. The first game was a Valentine acrostic and it seems that Senior thoughts run to love and eats.

Then came a game of pinning on the donkey's tail, blind-folded and of course Fred won first prize. A sport new to the Seniors was Japanese ball and kept them busy for quite awhile. Mrs. Buchanan and the other members of her family demonstrated Japanese customs and showed all kinds of curios from Japan. The newest member of the Senior class, Sylvia Bryan Holmes, was the honor guest and showed herself a perfect Senior by her excellent behavior and willingness to be petted. Ruth was also present and furnished music at various times during the evening.

At ten a delicious ice course was served and at ten-thirty the president took Miss Mollie's place and flashed the lights so the Seniors reluctantly went home.

TUSCULUM—

Revival services at Tusculum were started on the 8th of February. They are being led by Rev. A. P. Higley, pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian Church of Cleveland, Ohio. The Orange and Black states that the meetings are looked forward to by faculty and students of the college. We are with you on these kind of meetings, Tusculum for they will leave something which you may look back to in days to come.

Altruism is the greatest factor in social evolution.

The cause for which you shall give your powers can only be revealed to you through some presence that teaches you the unity of the spiritual life. You must find it in human shape.

HOMER HAMMONTREE SENDS MESSAGE TO ALL

"Pray Without Ceasing", "Let God Direct Your Life"

Pardon my delay in sending you this message which I promised to send. I would have written it sooner but this is the first time I have had time to sit down and collect my thoughts since the February Meetings closed. Our party had a good meeting in Knoxville Tuesday night at the Second Pres. Church and left the same night for the North. All we hear these days is Maryville, Maryville, Maryville!! The quartet and Dick are showing their twenty-dollar-gold pieces to everybody they meet; Mr. Trotter sits around and waits for folks to ask him the time of day; my trunk landed in Chicago with many scars and bumps and is all packed ready for the trip to California. We do thank the students and faculty of Maryville College for these presents and for their many kindnesses shown us while in your midst. I feel sure with a little coaxing the whole party would enter college with Dick next Fall!

And now will you give me space in The Highland Echo to say a word right out of my heart to the student body?

First, to those of you who have been "born again" by faith in the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ: You are what the Scripture calls "babes in Christ" and must grow by taking spiritual food. I Peter 2:2 says: "As new born babes desire the sincere milk of the word that ye may grow thereby", and I Thes. 5:17 says: "Pray without ceasing". No soul ever backslides until he leaves off prayer and Bible study, have some time set apart each day (preferably early in the morning), when you get alone with God. When you read your Bible, remember that's God talking to you and when you pray, remember that's you talking to God; in this way you will learn to have sweet fellowship with Him and the peace of God which passeth all understanding will flood your soul. Don't let a day go by without prayer and Bible study. Then a babe needs exercise and as a spiritual babe, your exercise is to go out and tell others about this wonderful Saviour, confessing Him every opportunity you have. Nothing will bring you more joy than to win a soul for Christ. Just live your Christian life day at a time trusting God to keep you and lead you. If you make a mistake and sin claim 1 John 1:9 and go on realizing that you have been cleansed.

Let me say a word to those who were already Christians before the meetings started who have taken the step of re-dedication of their lives to Christ: Many of you asked the question during our stay with you, "How am I to know what God wants me to do?" Psalms 32:8 says "I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go, I will guide thee with mine eye." God promises in this verse that He will definitely lead us. Be sure that you bring yourself in prayer to the place where you are willing to be led, then follow, step at a time, doing daily "what your hands find to do" and doing it with your might! I believe nine-tenths of our difficulty is overcome when we come to the place where we are willing to do the Lord's will, no matter what it may be. One trick of the Devil is to get us to look away ahead and wonder what we are going to do three or four years from now, and forget the things at hand thus missing God's leading for today. He

FLU CAUSED DEATH OF MISS ALYCE ANDES

Worthy Member of Freshman Class Passed Away Tuesday Morning.

The entire school was shocked Tuesday morning at the sad news that Alyce Andes had died during the night, at about 2 a. m., and even now we find ourselves including her in plans for various things, for we cannot realize that she is no longer with us. She was sick with the flu last week, but felt so much better Saturday afternoon that she got up and even took supper and Sunday's meals in the dining room. When on Monday she had to be taken to the hospital on a stretcher and it was whispered that she had pneumonia, everyone was anxious and troubled, but with her splendid physique and her eager love of life we thought surely she would rally. No one was prepared for the sad news which greeted us Tuesday morning.

Alyce lived in Sanford, Florida. She did her third prep work here in 1918 and came back again this year to become a member of the large Freshman Class. She was active in all that pertains to college life. She was a splendid student, one who held the unique record of having missed only two questions in Bible in the whole term. She had just taken up the study of expression this term and was making rapid progress in it—her keen mind, her lively enthusiasm, and her stick-to-itiveness made her succeed at anything. She was a loyal and esteemed member of Bainonian literary society and had a leading part in the Midwinter, "Peter Pan", which was given this year. She was also on the Highland Echo Staff, being editor for both the Freshman Class and the Junior Y. W. C. A. Not only did she write interesting accounts of Y. W. Meetings, but she took a lively part in them and helped make them worthwhile to others.

She joined New Providence Church on confession of faith two years ago, and since that time has striven to do what Christ would have her do. During the recent February Meetings she not only reconsecrated herself to Him, but was very active in bringing others to a realization of their need of a Saviour.

As a girl she was pleasant, attractive, interesting, full of life and fun, kind and sympathetic—the kind of girl that all admire. She will be sorely missed on College Hill, not only in the Freshman Class, in Bainonian, on the Echo Staff, in Junior Y. W., but in our hearts as well, for all of us, teachers and pupils alike had learned to love her dearly. Loving her as we did though we had not known her many years, we can realize in a measure, how her family must feel, bereft of its only daughter and sister. Her mother and father, being

ANOTHER LYCEUM NUMBER COMING

Sir John Foster Fraser Famous Traveler to Lecture Feb. 26.

Sir John Foster Fraser, England's foremost special newspaper correspondent, will appear in Lyceum, February 26th.

Sir John has journeyed more extensively than any living man. He was the first man to cross China, entering it from the Burmese side, a hazardous expedition which occupied five months. He is familiar with the interior of the Turkish Empire, of Siberia, of the Sahara, of India.

In June 1917, he was Knighted by King George at Buckingham Palace for services rendered to the Empire. At the outbreak of the war, Sir John was appointed Chairman of the National War Lectures Committee of Great Britain, a post which frequently took him to the fighting fronts.

In 1918, Sir John Foster Fraser first visited the United States as a speaker. In a short time he was acclaimed the most brilliant and popular speaker that ever visited our country from Great Britain. He is the author of "Russia Today", "Pictures from the Balkans", "The Real Siberia", "The Red Passport", and "Round the World on a Wheel", as well as other books dealing with world problems.

STATE STUDENT CONFERENCE FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS

To Be Held at Maryville, March 27 and 28.

In this age when, in order to accomplish big ends, men must band together, it is necessary that if Tennessee shall in the near future be fully represented in Christ's work, an organization of students willing to give themselves to that work shall be completed.

In order to be an all-round Christian, it is necessary that the student in choosing a life-work, shall consider the World in his decision, not merely one corner of it called the United States. Christ's field is the World and to His disciples He said, "Go ye into ALL the World", not one corner of it. We cannot play the Christian game squarely until we believe that Christ meant us just as surely when He said "Go ye" as He did, when He said "Come unto Me and I will give you rest". We cannot, as Christians, accept the Promises of Christ about which we have heard so much during the past meetings and reject His Commands. We accept or reject the whole Bible, not one part of it.

What can Christ mean in Matt. 22:38-39? Does He mean the man living next door or also the nation living next door? If God wants us, as Mr. Trotter said, to have a passion for winning souls, does God mean that we shall be content to see College Hill won for Christ and forget the town of Maryville or the Nation or the vast untouched places of the earth? If we are going to obey the commands of Christ, dare we excuse ourselves from foreign work on the grounds that there are enough places at home for us to consider? Listen! If the highest hopes of the Churches for their foreign work are to be met this year, they will require one person from every 25,000 in the United States to go to foreign countries. That is, IF their highest hopes are realized. That will leave 24,999 people to carry on the work at home. Isn't that a sufficient number? Will the United States answer this need? Will New York City, with a population of nearly 5,000,000 respond to her quota? Will Tennessee with her 3,000,000 supply her 120 foreign workers this year? Since only trained workers are sent, the number for Tennessee must come from her Normal School, College and Industrial School graduates. That means US. Are WE going to respond with any less enthusiasm to the call of Christ for foreign workers than we did to the call of Uncle Sam?

The conference to be held at Maryville on Saturday and Sunday, March 26 and 27 will be an endeavor to unite the students of the State in a State-wide understanding of the part Tennessee can play in evangelizing the World, emphasis being laid on foreign work, as being the most needy. Will the Maryville students respond to the requests which will soon be made of them as freely as they have ever done when Christ's work needed to be done?

KNOXVILLE "Y" OVERWHELMED IN BRILLIANT GAME

Polytechnic Girls Overcome by M. C. Subs.

Fighting in the same fierce, unrivalled form that has characterized them thus far this season, the Highlanders, on Friday evening, captured, subdued, and tamed the Knoxville Y. M. C. A. Tigers, and fettered them with a score of 37 to 19.

The game was called for eight o'clock, but a portion of the Tiger clan was stranded three miles out of Knoxville and failed to arrive until nine o'clock. The crowd awaited with patience (especially the moonshiners) the coming of the stragglers and, despite the lateness of their arrival, the game was at last begun at 9:15.

From the first, the contest resolved itself into a rough and tumble fray which took on more the resemblance of a football game than a basketball classic. Maryville started out by scoring a field goal one minute after play was called, and from then on to the end of the game was always in the lead. In fact, it was very apparent after the first few minutes of play what the final result would be.

While the Highlanders surpassed their opponents at the passing game, the brilliancy of their teamwork was not as noticeable a feature as in some previous contests. The shooting of the Highlanders showed a marked improvement over that demonstrated in the game with U. T., while the Y. M. C. A. men seemed very uncertain on attempts at the goal.

The first half ended with a 21 to 8 score favoring Maryville, but the Tigers came back stronger in the second half and held the M. C. five to a 11 to 16 count. Carter lacked one field goal of scoring more points than the Y. M. C. A.'s sum total of 19 points. As it was he scored 18 of Maryville's 37 points. Montgomery was there with the goods Friday evening as usual. Cotton also merits special mention for his excellent floorwork.

The line-up and score was as follows:

Maryville 37		Y. M. C. A. 19
Cotton 6	f.	Dew 6
McCullough	f.	Marby 9
Carter 18	c.	Tillery 2
Cullis	g.	Montgomery
Montgomery 2	g.	Sandberg 2

Substitutions: Hicks for Cullis.

Referee: Prof. E. R. Walker.

The girls' second team defeated the team from Polytechnic on Friday evening, 9 to 6.

The line-up and score was:

Maryville Scrubs		Polytechnic
Hedrick 5	f.	Butler 6
Hamilton 4	f.	Tedford
Smith	c.	Cowan
Nuchols	g.	Cochran
Ridgeway	g.	Ford

PLAN FOR THE ELECTION OF THE EDITOR-IN-CHIEF AND BUSINESS MANAGER OF THE ECHO

1.—The editor-in-chief of the Highland Echo for the following year shall be elected during the first two weeks of the spring term.

2.—All the professors in the English department shall recommend to the Faculty members of the incoming Junior and Senior classes whom they consider capable of satisfactorily filling the position of editor-in-chief. Public notice shall be given at least one week before these lists are submitted so that any aspirants for the position may hand their names to some one of the professors in the English department for their consideration. These lists shall be submitted to the Faculty before the close of the winter term.

3.—The Faculty shall pass upon these lists not later than the last week of the winter term and shall place in nomination candidates for editor-in-chief. The names of these candidates shall be posted for one week in order that the students may become familiar with them.

4.—The President of the Senior class shall call a meeting of all the college students in the chapel not less than one week after the names of the candidates are posted and shall give at least a week's notice of the time of this meeting. At this meeting the election of editor-in-chief shall take place. All college students shall be entitled to vote. The voting shall be by ballot, and a majority of the votes cast shall be necessary for an election. If no candidate receives a majority on the first ballot the name of the candidate receiving the lowest number of votes shall be dropped. If on the second ballot no one receives a majority of the votes then cast, the name of the candidate receiving the lowest number of votes on this ballot shall be dropped and this system shall be followed until some candidate is elected. The President of the Senior class shall preside at this meeting and the Secretaries of the four college classes shall act as tellers. It shall be the duty of the Secretaries of the Junior and Senior classes to act as a committee to prepare blank ballots of uniform size and color for use in the election, and the cost of these ballots shall be met from the funds of the Echo.

5.—In the choice of a business manager the following system shall be followed:—The Presidents of the four college classes shall select two representatives, one from the outgoing Senior class and one from the Junior class to meet with two representatives appointed by the Faculty to judge the merits of the material submitted and the recommendations offered by candidates for business manager, and to examine the candidates in any way they may desire. They shall then select a business manager for the following school year, subject to the approval of the Faculty. This committee shall be appointed not later than the last week of the winter term. The representative of the Senior class shall act as chairman and shall give public notice of the time when the business manager is to be selected at least one week before such selection, so that candidates may have opportunity to make formal application and to secure proper recommendations. As in the case of the election of editor, the business manager shall be chosen during the first two weeks of the spring term.

6.—In case of a vacancy occuring in either of these offices during the school year, the vacancy shall immediately be filled in accordance with the system above outlined.

Approved by the Faculty,
April 14, 1919.
H. J. Bassett,
Secretary.

CONCERNING THE Y. M. C. A. STORE

I wonder if the Y. M. C. A. store has been in operation long enough to prove its worth; or in other words is it safe for the "Y" to build upon this nucleus a canteen that would be worthy of the Y, the College, and the student body?

There is a large, vacant apartment adjoining the reading room of Bartlett Hall in which could be installed counters, soda fountains and other fixtures necessary for a first-class confectionary and ice cream parlor. The installation could be done by the Manual Training Department at a nominal cost. There are any number of worthy and competent boys who would be glad to operate this canteen, working a few hours each day to help meet their college expenses.

There are no available statistics to show the amount of money spent by the student body in the drug and confection stores, but I feel sure that one dollar a week for each of the eight hundred students would be a very conservative estimate. The application of a little mathematics shows that quite a large sum of money could be retained on the Hill by this proposed establishment.

This Y store or canteen could be operated on one of two principles, or a compromise of the two. It could be run on a self-supporting basis charging only enough for the products to cover the cost of same plus the running expenses; or the goods could be sold at the prevailing prices and the profits used for Y. M. C. A. extension work. The former plan would be distinctly a saving and consequently a service to the students at large, while the latter would be rather a convenience to the students and at the same time put the Y in a position where it could be a more potent force for serving humanity. A compromise of the two systems would undoubtedly win popular favor and prove successful, for I am sure that this store could sell at a fair profit and still undersell all competitors.

There is one large barrier and perhaps a few small ones confronting this proposed plan. Whoever heard of a good thing that didn't have its obstacles? But I believe that Maryville College and the Y. M. C. A. are composed of the sort of fellows that can and like to overcome difficulties. Immediate solution can be found for the problems involved in organizing, equipping and operating this canteen. The one big problem is that of obtaining the necessary funds for such an undertaking. Can this be done? How?

This fund can be raised, and I shall submit only two out of many ways in which it can be done. First, a campaign could be launched among the student body and friends of the association setting forth the needs of the Y and its excellent opportunity for service made possible by a small donation from each friend. The second and perhaps more plausible plan is for those having sufficient faith in the Y and this project to act as creditors or give security to the Y.M.C.A. so it can borrow the necessary funds. It is to be remembered that no large amount of money is necessary and that this amount can soon be paid back from the profits that one can reasonably expect.

I do not submit this as a mature plan or a complete survey of the situation. It is merely to point out to the reader an excellent field of service for the Y.M.C.A., a great convenience to the student body, and a step forward in the growth and progress of the College.

F. A. Greene.

Y. M. C. A. TESTIMONY MEETING

The Y.M.C.A. meeting Sunday was an open testimony meeting. Dr. Stevnson had charge of the meeting. After a short song service and a short introduction by Dr. Stevenson the testimony meeting began. The usual season of sentence prayers was omitted in order to save time and give everybody a chance to speak a few words for Christ. So many had something of interest to tell and really wanted to say something about what Christ had already done for them or what he had promised to do for them that the usual time plus another hour were consumed.

Those who had recently accepted Christ as their personal Saviour were first given a chance to make a public confession and say a few words for Christ. Then those who had reconsecrated themselves and those who were older and stronger in the Christian faith were given an opportunity to express a few thoughts as to how they had been helped in the recent February Meetings. There were only a very very few who had nothing to say during the service or rather said nothing, because they were surely deeply touched by that meeting itself if nothing else but for some reason or other they did not have the feeling—perhaps they had a feeling but it was one of timidity.

We had many good and interesting Sunday afternoon meetings during the past year, but everyone believes that this was the best meeting of the entire year and probably for many years.

FRESHMAN LEAD Y. W. C. A.

The Junior and Senior Y. W. C. A. held a joint meeting in the chapel Sunday afternoon. The meeting was led by the Freshman Class, the subject being "The True Art of Living". Miss Elizabeth Bassel the vice-president of the class was in charge. The subject had been divided into sub-topics and different members of the class took part. "Time" and what it is was discussed by Ethel Sharp. Miss Esther spoke of "Friendship" "Ability or Talents" was given by Bernice Kimble. The part "Laughter" has in art of living was given by Mary Broady. Ethel Swindler spoke on "Obedience". It was a very interesting and helpful meeting, and the class deserves much credit. Florence Leanord played a piano solo.

FLU CAUSED DEATH OF MISS ANDES

Maryville students themselves, are part of the great Maryville family and our hearts go out to them in loving sympathy. We cannot comfort them, save to commend them to the One whom Alyce so loved and who was with her in her last hours—the One who has gone to prepare a place for us all, and to whom we will all go sooner or later. He is the resurrection and the Life, he that cometh unto Him, He will in no wise cast out. He has said, "All things work together for good to them that love God. Let not your hearts be troubled."

And so, though it is especially sad to see a life cut off just when it was most promising, yet we realize that though not old in years, Alyce did not live in vain. Her success has often spurred us on to greater achievement, her earnestness and devotion has made us ashamed of our littleness and we cannot but feel that we are better for having known her. And her sudden death has made us stop and consider life seriously, for but a few days ago she seemed destined for this world as long as any of us. Not a few have already asked themselves the question, "Can such things be truthfully said of me, when I, too shall pass away?" And so, even in her death she has helped us. Some one has said, "It is not how long we live, but how". Some live a long time so far as years are concerned and yet they do not accomplish nearly so much as Alyce did in her short years. And now her life has become even more abundant for she now drinks of the water of Life, freely.

Hammontree Sends Greetings

only leads step at a time—do the thing at hand! Today! You have great opportunities these days right here in Maryville College, why wait until some future time that we may never live to see? Why wait until you finish school? Last let me say if you want to be "fruit bearing", Christians, let me give you the secret as found in John 15:5: "He that abideth in Me and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit". Would you be led? Abide in Him; would you make your life all that God intends it to be? Abide in Him; would you win others? Abide in Him; would you live a victorious life? Abide in Him.

May God bless every student in dear old Maryville, we are praying for you every day. Mr. Trotter and the boys join me in Christian love.

VESPERS

"What kind of Christians are we? What kind of Christians ought we to be?" These questions are facing everyone who has experienced the February Meetings. School adds or subtracts from our moral character. For a useful christian life a strong moral character is necessary. The qualities of this character are just; Christian courage. In this day of uncertainty with unrest and turmoil make it a quality much desired. The second quality is the feeling of responsibility—the Christian people —"Ye are a holy priesthood"—all are privileged to work for Him. The third quality is personality. It is not a time to mourn for the age, but to incarnate and regenerate some soul to Christ. It is necessary to place life in contact with other life, to win that life you must give of yourself to gain. Christ gave of Himself and quickened a deadened world. Charity is not a method of evangelism— it takes personality. The fourth quality is the spirit of hopefulness. The great lesson of the old Testament heroes is the death defying faith in the purpose in which they were engaged.

A RESOLUTION

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father in His Infinite wisdom has seen fit to call to His Heavenly home our beloved brother and fellow student, Robert Hite; and

Whereas, The sister of the departed friend is an esteemed member of the Senior Class of Maryville College; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the Class of 1920, express our most sincere and heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family commending them in their sorrow to Him who is able to keep that which is committed unto Him; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the bereaved family, and that a copy be spread on the minutes of our class, and that a copy be sent to Dr. Wilson, the President of Maryville College, to be read in Chapel, and that a copy be published in the college weekly, The Highland Echo.

ALPHA SIGMA

After a long vacation the Alpha Siginas started back to work in earnest on Saturday night, February 14th. The society opened by prayer led by Chester Osborne.

An extemporaneous program was rendered in a very interesting manner.

Little Bennie's Notebook - Osborne

Debate: Resolved, That the dishrag is more beneficial than the broom. Affirmative, Husky; Negative, Peters.

After a hard fought debate and open discussion, the decision of the judges was read in favor of the affirmative.

After a short business meeting the society closed with prayer by Husky.

VALENTINE'S DAY IN BAINONIAN

To Bainonian it seemed fitting and proper to celebrate the day of St. Valentine especially because she, remembering the nature of the day, connected it with the fact that this year is one which has been set aside for action on the part of Women.

The program was opened with a Vocal Duet, Grace Sydenstricker and Mildred Hoffman

Two life sized Valentines were presented to the society. First, To My Valentine, showed a young lady (Mary McKenzie) receiving a heart from cupid.

The second one, Mother's Valentine, which like the first was framed green, presented Ruth Newton, as Mother, and Mary Louise Hayes, as her daughter and Valentine.

GIRLS' BIBLE STUDY CLASS

"Say, my friend have you seen 2 Timothy 2:15? 1 Thesalonians 5:22 tells you exactly what to do." This was a Junior Christian Endeavor yell when we were mere children, but it might well have been the yell of the girls' mission study class Friday night. The little books that are to be studied this term haven't yet come, but Dr. Stevenson's talk on practical christianity was better than any book—as was attested by the throng of eager girls who sat on the floor, in windows, anywhere that they might hear what was being said. The purpose of the class may be summed up in 2 Timothy 2:15. "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed rightly dividing the word of truth." Dr. Stevenson said, "Get a good start on your christian life. Two drops may fall within ten feet of each other at a certain place in Yellowstone Park, and yet one of these will ultimately reach the Pacific ocean, the other the Atlantic. So two children brought up in the same home may drift ever so far apart—as far as heaven is from hell—if they start in different directions.

If you missed the last meeting, don't cheat yourself again. Be in Theta Hall at 6:20 Friday evening You spend 8 hours sleeping, 1 eating, several exercising that your physical self may be strong; you spend at least four and often eight or ten hours a day studying and reciting that your mental self may be strong, can't you spare forty minutes a week that your spiritual self may be strong?

Rev. Joseph Broady who led the February Meetings three years ago, visited the Hill and conducted the chapel exercises last Thursday.

Dr. Poteat, president of Wake Forest, was elected president of the Southern Baptist Education Association which met at Nashville, Tennessee, recently.

TUSCULUM COHORTS OUTPLAYED IN A SLOW BUT DECISIVE GAME, 38-15

EACH TEAM ANXIOUS TO DEFEAT RIVALS. COTTON AND WAGNER PLAY STELLAR GAME.

In a contest of a rather non-descript character the Highlanders on Thursday evening quelled the sudden fury of the Tusculum cohorts due to the rapturous effect of their victory of the previous Monday, and sent them back to Greeneville with the small end of a 38 to 15 score.

Anyone unacquainted with the strong rivalry existing between the two schools might have attributed the slowness and dullness of the game to nonchalance on the part of those playing, but the real explanation is, that each man on each team was so animated and so inflamed with the desire to aid in bringing victory to his Alma Mater, that the contest resulted in an almost complete deadlock. Each player on the floor seemed to be thinking in terms of defense, which caused real team-work to be a scarce article. Although the blocking and tackling tactics were not brought into as free use as in the Tiger game, three players were injured during the game to the extent of requiring several minutes respite each.

The memory of last Thursday's game will always bring to the minds of those who witnessed it, two memorable and brilliant features. First, the prodigiousness of Cotton's all-around playing, and second, the super-excellence of Captain Wagner's goal shooting. Cotton was there on the job in matchless form, revealing to the awe-struck but admiring crowd, a brand of basket-ball rarely seen on the local court. Wagner scored seven field goals during the game, two of which were the most spectacular shots seen here this season. These two men did much toward preventing the total deadlock which seemed to be impending during the whole game.

The game started off slow and ended slow. Fouls were numerous, each side being charged with making almost the same number. In the second half especially the game was marred by the tendency of both teams to bunched playing which detracted considerably from the interest of the game.

Tusculum drew first blood by scoring a free foul toss in the second minute of play. Carter soon afterwards evened it 1-1. Dugger again scored one point and Carter followed suite. Maryville then scored three field goals in rapid succession and from then on to the end of the game Tusculum was left far in the rear. The Highlanders were so heartless and so cruel as to deny their opponents to so much as have the pleasure of feeling the ball but very few times during the first period. Campbell scored two out of only three attempts at the goal in the first half. The score was 18 to 9 favoring Maryville.

The second half was a continuation and a duplication of the first only, with a slightly larger advantage for Maryville. Hendrick replaced Cotton towards the middle of the second period and rendered a glowing account of himself during his few minutes of action.

These same five Tusculum men locked horns wtih us on the gridiron last Thanksgiving and we are expecting them to present themselves again in the Spring as members of the Orange and Black nine. We have done it in basket ball, and we can repeat in baseball!

The line-up and results were as follows:

Maryville (38)		Tusculum (15)
Cotton (6)	f.	Dugger (7) (captain)
Wagner (14) (captain)	f.	M. S. Doak (2)
Carter (14)	c.	Campbell (4)
Cullis (2)	g.	A. Doak
Montgomery	g.	Sturm (2) Sturm (2)

Substitution: Hendrick (2) for Cotton. Umpire, E. R. Walke .

BASEBALL NOTICE

When do we start to practice base-ball, has been asked many times in the last week or so? Well, the answer is at about the middle of next month. There will undoubtedly be many out for the practice. This has been Maryville's greatest all-around sport year, and there is no question but that base-ball will be no exception to this.

Coach Feeman is going to have one hard task before him when the fellows line-up for practice. Many fellows will be out. Nevertheless, every fellow should go into it in full array, because one thing is sure—if you are a good base-ball player you are sure of a place—that is if you are one of the nine best.

Every fellow who can play ball should be ready when the first call is given. Maryville expects every man to do his base-ball duty. So be ready when the call is given. Have some old uniforms and spike shoes ready so that you will be able to make a creditable showing when the time comes. Send home for your shoes so that you will have them on hand until the base-ball season starts and then have them on your feet. Every one should have these things ready. Remember that a hint to the wise is sufficient. after you make the team you will be supplied with the necessary regalia, but until then be prepared.

The Carson-Newman Annual, which is to be published before school closes this year costs dollars.

GIRLS BASKET BALL TEAM AT WORK

Room 49 was a scene of a real banquet last Saturday night when Miss Belle Hedrick entertained the Girls' Basket Ball Team. The room was charmingly decorated and the cleanest that the girls had ever seen. Some of the most gorgeous evening dresses and jewels appeared that evening. Salad, chicken, ham, sandwiches, pickles, cake, cocoa and fruits, were enjoyed by Misses Marjorie Lloyd, Elsie Dawson, Ann Samsel, Blanche Bailey, Cora Ingle, Catherine Ridgway, Vivian Rochester and Mary Ridgway.

Dear Friends of the Senior Class:

Somewhere in the vast plan of things, God must have seen fit to omit a means by which man might express his deepest thoughts and appreciations. Perhaps it was wise, for once expressed they would prove too full of deep vibrations, too full of meaning to be really understood.

But he has left us, in the friendly hand clasp and shining of the eye, an expression for thoughts out of the scope of words.

Then it is not with words that I would try to express to you what your thoughtful remembrance meant. May my daily life among you bear out the thoughts that are really in my heart, toward all of you.

Maude C. Hite.

WHO IS YOUR FAVORITE BEATY

Every College Boy to be Given Opportunity to Vote Tuesday

It is a well known and a very apparent fact that the beauty of Maryville College girls is extraordinary. Since the beauty of our co-ed population is such a noticeable feature of our school, and since it is the aim of the Chilhowean to record every phase of college life, we desire to run as one of the main features of the 1920 Chilhowean a four-page beauty section.

On Tuesday evening, immediately after supper a mass meeting of all the boys of the college will be held in the chapel for the purpose of electing the four prettiest, sweetest, and most beautiful girls in school. Each boy will have the privilege of voting for the four girls which in his honest opinion are the best looking girls in the school. Each of the four winners will be given a full page in the Chilhowean on which her enchanting beauty will be marvelously and artistically displayed for the admiration of all those who are proud possessors of the book.

During the days between the time you read this article and Tuesday evening, think hard and decide what four girls you will vote for and on Tuesday evening come to the chapel and cast your ballot.

FOOT-BALL MEN HONORED WITH SWEATERS

Forty and four years ago Maryville's first base-ball team was organized. In those days, there was no other athletic game played by college students, and as a result, baseball was played throughout the school year.

The first "uniform" possesed by a Maryville team was one that the player could carry in his pocket, until the time for the game to begin; when, suddenly a bright red cap and a shield with the letter R attached to it, were flashed before the amazed spectators. An attempt was made to obtain trousers and stockings for the team, but when the report was given that they would cost one dollar a set, the committee in charge was discharged.

One of the most interesting remembrances of a baseball game in those days was the score. The kame was considered no good if thirty-nine tallies were not made.

Kin Takahashi organized the first baseball team on the Hill; and now we have football, basket-ball and baseball.

Last fall, the football schedule was so arranged that the team did not have the opporutnity to take a long trip. In order to compensate the members of the team for the splendid way in which they supported the Orange and Garnet banner, each member of the first team was awarded a sweater with an M attached. Also, each member of the second team was awarded a monogram.

Many colleges and universities give their first teams sweaters every year. Why not make this a practice in Maryville College?

Maryville-Vanderbilt Game

Wednesday night, February 25, the Highland warriors lost a hard fought game to Vanderbilt's crack team 22-10. Maryville completely outplayed Vandy in the second half and undoubtedly would have won on the home court. Cullis and Montgomery prevented Norton, their opponent's star forward from shooting a goal in the first half. Vanderbilt made only five points in the second half.

Professor F. L. Proffitt and his family are back in Maryville. His daughter Louise has recovered from her recent illness.

GIRLS DEBATING TEAMS CHOSEN

Tusculum Co-Eds to be Debated on Irish Home Rule Question.

The preliminaries for the Girls' Forensic League were held in Athenian Hall Monday. The successful candidates in these try-outs were as follows, Mildred Campbell, Janet Ensign, Mary Louise Hayes, Edith Moore, Licia Johnson, Josephine Hamilton, Bernice Kimble and Ruth McCall. From these eight survivers, two teams will be made up, one to debate at Maryville and one at Tusculum. The subject Resolved: that England should not recognize the independence of Ireland, which was used in the try-outs will also be the question for the Tusculum debates.

The girls of the league wish to thank the judges Mr. Orr, Mr. Southwick and Dr. Gillingham for patiently listening to them Monday afternoon. They will try to show their appreciation to Prof. Hunter for coaching them by doing their best in the Tusculum debates.

MISS E. FANSON LEADS WEDNESDAY EVENING MEETING

Miss Fanson read the beautiful love story of the Shulamite as presented in the Song of Solomon. She divided the book into a drama of five acts. The drama was beautifully presented and the meaning of the book became much clearer to all who heard it. The story was refreshing viewed simply as it was read; it imparted new meaning to the story viewed in an allegorical setting. The answer to the story is the abiding and exclusiveness of love. The answer can be found in the poem itself "Set me as a seal upon thy heart, as a seal upon thy arm". The great inspiration is the power, the everlastingness, the freedom of love between man and woman, and its exclusiveness when it is real. Love endures through all chances and changes; it looks down with contempt on all worldly advantage.

Viewed simply as poetry, the Song has a singular beauty and power. It is unaffected in all things; it is delightful in its descriptive power of nature; it thrills the reader with joy. The jelicities and the imaginings are endless. "Rise up, my love. my fair one, and come away." "I was asleep but my heart waked." The author seems to have caught the spring of nature and of love and immortalized it into exquisite beauty.

OPIE REED FAMOUS READER AND AUTHOR

Discourses on "The Country Philosopher."

Last Thursday evening a very instructive address was delivered in the college chapel by Mr. Opie Reed, famous author and reader. The impression which the speaker of the evening gave his audience upon appearing on the platform was not very favorable; but after the introduction and a few witty remarks, the audience was held spell bound by the philosophy, ethics, and religion which the speaker propounded.

In order to seem more real, Mr. Reed was dressed as an old country philosopher, who on account of the non-appearance of the speaker of the evening, was called upon to tell something of his recent visit to the city.

Many lessons were illustrated by the stories which he told. The way in which the speaker personified the characters presented, and the way he appealed to the imagination of the audience were two features which will be remembered.

The speaker talked very rapidly and as a result soon ran out, for he had been on the platform only one hour when he bade his audience good evening.

Attention—Basketball

Look who's here!

On February 28th. a return game will be played with the U. T. girls at Knoxville.

We are hopeful and expectant that the results of these two big games will add more laurels to the Orange and Garnet Camp.

VOLUNTEER BAND PRESENTS AMERICA'S GIFTS TO THE NATIONS

The Wednesday evening prayer meeting was of more than passing interest. The Volunteer Band had charge and presented a historical allegory of America's contributions to the Nations. The story was beautifully rendered in poetry, prepared by the members of the Band. Miss M. Hoffman read the story and as it was unfolded the curtains were slowly drawn back and behold, Columbia stood welcoming the peoples of every nation. "To me all men are equal, brothers all, with God as Father." The figure of Columbia was symbolic of Liberty as she stood holding the constitution to all who come.

The years move on and the young nation grows and reaches out with her commerce to every nation. As the curtain rolled back the audience saw Columbia holding forth a ship to the representive of Japan.

A new and virile people with great expanses and high mountains must bring new creature inventions into being. "Great machines that did their bidding. And so the gift of her invention she gave." The curtain was drawn and Columbia stood holding a locomotive.

Her growth brought new responsibilities to those who were throwing off the shackles of bondage, and when Cuba called she answered, "That Right should rule forever in that island sorrow-laden." The scene represented Columbia holding forth a protecting shield, beneath which was a Cuban.

Columbia rested and seemed in peaceful security when with startling suddeness came the call—the call for aid. As the call was clear and insistent not a moment did she waver, but to France she gave the sword of Power. And to the farthest fields of battle gifts of love and service. Here a beautiful scene was revealed as Columbia extended to the Red Cross nurse her richest

College men and women, of all people should have respect for public property, but if some one should visit Maryville College he would be convinced that college people have no respect for public property—for, he would find walls scribbled on, the grounds strewn with candy wrappings, orange peel, and so on, thrown from windows and dropped while walking, and even locks torn off of book-cases. Such carelessness is inexcusable. It makes us have to look at what is ugly rather than what is beautiful; it makes us be ashamed to have visitors come, and makes visitors think us slovenly, it makes people spend time cleaning up that could be much better employed. "By their fruits ye shall know them." What kind of people do our actions make us appear to be?

Did you ever stop to think of the tremendous amount of time, ink, paper, brains, patience, that is yearly wasted by the faculty by turning in cuts? As all students who come to Maryville College are literally burning with a desire for knowledge, they naturally attend chapel and classes as much as is possible for mortals to do. Haven't you ever looked out and seen perhaps a dozen people running as if to a fire lest they get to class or chapel a minute late and fail to catch one drop of knowledge, hear one hymn announced, and yet, when it is impossible for them to get to class or chapel merciless teachers hand in cuts. In keeping rolls and filling out unexcused absence blanks the teachers divert their minds from uplifting things. Instead of getting in a worshipful attiude before chapel begins, they are looking around seeing who is and who is not present. Isn't this almost irreverant? Instead of collecting their thoughts on the lecture they are about to give a class, they scan the rows of faces, trying to find that some one is not present, thus wasting not only their own, but the pupil's time. Think of the many uplifting books our teachers might have written or read in the time they spend making out cut reports, of the money spent on stamps and paper informing parents that their children are not at classes, money that might have been spent for the Belgians or Armenians, or even for helping Maryville College. Think of the time our worthy dean could spend lecturing and writing books did he not have to inform people that they had five cuts, think of the time the pupils lose from their pursuit for knowledge while they wait for a chance to speak to the dean. Think of all these things, dean, faculty and surely you will see that a reform is needed—and needed at once.

"Are you all going to a picture show," an excited group of girls was asked several times Wednesday afternoon while they were waiting for the rest of their number; to which they serenely replied, "No", and a little later departed for the woods and eventually arrived at the House in the Woods—the place where every one delights to go. There they had a wonderful time playing jack straws, forty-two, dominoes, jacks, whipping cream, making cocoa, poping corn, and doing all manner of exciting things, yea, even helping milk the cow, that unusual cow which stands perfectly still until milked and then changes her attitude slightly. They even signed their names in the guest book. If you don't believe the time they had was worth twenty picture shows just ask Florence, or Marie, or Nell, or Mildred, or Clyde, or Catherine, or Jennie, or Martha. They will tell you that Mrs. Stevenson knows exactly how to make girls have a good time.

A SUBSTITUTE

At the meeting of Union Presbytery in Knoxville, last Monday, Tommy Loft was licensed to the Gospel Ministry. Dr. Wilson acted as sponser. The examination in Natural and Revealed Religion was conducted by Dr. W. R. Dawson; in Church History by Rev. R. M. Ramsay, Ph. D., of Caledonia; and in English Bible by Rev. J. S. Eakin. The licensure was granted by unanimous vote.

HOW ABOUT THE SOCIETIES

What do you suppose is the reason that so many colleges do not have literary societies? What is wrong with literary societies that they are being killed in many institutions?

The usual program of a meeting is—

1. Song or instrumental number.
2. Some one with little or no preparation gases on a subject that has been presented for debate.
3. Some one tells a few stale jokes or perhaps practices his or her expression lesson.
4. The society as a whole discusses plans for improving society and inducing members to attend.

In many colleges a Glee Club, Dramatic Club, Science Club, Outdoor Club, or something similar is organized—something that has a little pep in it and that the members are interested in.

A change must take place if the Literary Societies on College Hill are to live. Would fifty per cent of the members of each society be a reasonable estimate of the attendance at the weekly meetings? Does your society do that good? How many of the members of your society obey the constitution?

ATHENIAN

In as much as a little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men even by those whose literary tastes are molded by the high standards of the "Owl and Crescent", the program secretary responded to an emergency incurred by the Faculty's refusal to permit members of our sister society to appear on our program, and instilled a little deviation in the form of a mock trial.

After the usual opening exercise and the well-rendered solos by Buchanan, the society voted to be resolved into a regularly constituted court, and proceeded at once to business. President Deyton automatically became judge and Secretary Johnston served as clerk of the court. The prosecuting attorneys, Minarik and Kirkpatrick, gathered in their trusty witnesses and the counsel for the defense, Brown and Vance, prepared for the onslaught. Sheriff Ogan impaneled a competent jury after many members had been disqualified. Athena, the plaintiff, solemnly accused Mr. Faculty (alias Herrick Arnold) of overstepping his authority in interferring in a co-ed program, of unduly curtailing "spiritual moonshining", and of encouraging and compelling his Chemical Subjects to indulge in illicit physical moonshining in his laboratory; and by reason of the above she prayed that her grievances be released in the relinquishment by said Mr. Faculty of his high-handed interference in secular and literary affairs hence-forward and forever more.

Lucky indeed was the witness that withstood the barage of cross-examining questions without incriminating himself or losing his honor in the eyes of the court. So spiritual were the debates between the illustrious counsellors, that order was maintained with the greatest difficulty. Sheriff Ogan was compelled to resort to physical force several times, but his greatest task lay in keeping the jurymen awake.

The defense won the case by establishing the non-corpus mentis of Mr. Faculty, thereby rendering him irresponsible in the aforesaid accusations. This decision forced the court to issue an injunction prohibiting further action in these affairs by Mr. Faculty. More wit and humor was never before displayed in the Athenian Hall and the program was pronounced a howling success.

THETA ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

In spite of the rainy night a large number of girls were present in Theta Hall Saturday to greet the new officers for the Spring term. Those sworn into office were as follows:

Catherine Ridgeway - - President
Vivian Hall - - - - Vice-President
Catherine Wilson - - Secretary
Margaret Graham - - Treasurer
Sue Nuckols - - Program Secretary
Julia Anderson - - - - Editor

After the business was dispensed with a most enjoyable program was rendered.

Ruth Stone opened the program with a piano solo. Genevieve Tetedoux gave some very interesting currents events. Virginia Nicely gave a vocal solo. Sue Nuckols read, 'nuff said. Everyone knows the result of Sue's readings. They always call for another.

The last number was a stunt, "How we made the American Flag". given by several of the girls. The entire society joined with the noble partakers in "The Star Spangled Banner."

JUNIOR Y. W. C. A.

The Junior Y. W. C. A. met last Sunday. The leader was Miss Marjorie Lloyd. The subject was, "George Washington, his life and character". Special music was rendered by Misses Kimble and Stevens, who very beautifully sang "Never Alone", there was also a piano solo by Miss Armentrout.

After Miss Lloyd's talk Miss Mady Ridgeway discussed "Character", Miss Mattie Hodges talked on "Patriotism", and Miss Mary Broady very ably spoke on "Loyalty".

After the song, the meeting was closed with the Mizpah benediction.

ALPHA SIGMA

Do all students of College Hill realize that attending a Literary Society will help them? And to be an active member which will help them in reading, speaking and debating. These members will also receive many essential auxiliaries which will help them in college life.

A very important business meeting followed this program.

BAINONIAN

Bainonian met on Saturday night, February 21st. and the following program was rendered:

Vocal Solo - - Winston Newton

Debate: Resolved, That George Washington could not have been a married man and never tell a lie.

After a short business meeting the society adjourned.

Next Saturday night Bainonian will present a play, Jack O' Hearts. Do not miss it! All Bainonians come!

VESPERS

The pastor made a very unusual discourse from the text found in Isaiah 40:1-2. "Comfort ye my people". There is a tendency among writers and scientists to bring about a reform in christianity. H. G. Wells and Sir A. Conan Doyle, are to the forefront with their ideas of new creeds. They both agree that the Old Testament should be scrapped and one supposes then our fantastic creed substituted. It is true the Book does contain crudities, but they are not condemned; it presents life in the form of a series of pictures with God at hand to lift man to a higher plane. The Old Testament portrays men of like passions, hopes and fears as to ourselves, to whom it speaks the language of the heart—"The secret of the power of the Old Testament."

The Book stands as a comforter, because there is a limit to sorrow and affliction. This is part of the plan that is being worked out; it is a groundwork for eternity. With this Book there is a well ordered world to a definite end, remove it and accept Doyle's new creed and chaos will result.

"God", as Mr. Wells says, "May be doing the best he can." Should man question the end? Royce says, "Our consciousness is linked to the part in our memory to the present and to anticipations in the future." Therefore God in the same way spans time and space to eternity.

This Book restores spiritual life. It was the dark hour for Jerusalem, yet the prophet spoke reassuring words to the stricken people. Abundantly they were given—and this super-abundance is the mystery of the cross. "Heaven holds all for what you sigh."

MISS GEORGE WASHINGTON DISCUSSED AT Y. W.

The subject of the Senior Y. W. C. A. was in keeping with the day, the subject being "Miss George Washington". Licia Johnson leader. The characteristics of George Washington which are applicable to "Miss George Washington" are strength and truth. Miss Johnson stressed these two points, showing what it means to be true, and how we must not rely merely upon our own strength, but upon the strength of our Lord. A helpful open meeting followed. Special music consisted of a vocal solo by Myrtle Rendon.

As she sleeps there comes the call and the vision that the Christ was not for Jew or Gentile—not for America only, but for the world. Here a figure enters and calls to America that they are in darkness. Slowly Columbia is roused and in the future she is seen gathered with the nations, having carried the cross to all. It is a glorious triumph to the call. If Columbia fails, then she will perish. Shall the call be answered in this generation? Shall Columbia allow the call to pass unheeded?

VOLUME FIVE — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, MARCH 4, 1920. — NUMBER TWENTY-ONE

HIGHLANDERS WIN TWO OUT OF THREE GAMES

Strange Court Caused Fatal Results in Game With Vanderbilt. Ramblers and Central State Normal Bowed in Defeat.

Leaving on short notice, Maryville's crack quintet left Tuesday morning, February 24th., heading towards Nashville. Tuesday night was spent in Chattanooga and the journey resumed early Wednesday morning. Arriving at Nashville the team went immediately to the Y. M. C. A. building and secured a room. The Y.W.C.A. cafeteria was then visited and everyone proceeded to break Manager Brown's heart by eating fifteen cents worth over the regular allowance. However, said Manager Brown recovered in time to invitingly push back the empty chair at his side, whenever a madamoiselle approached, and finally succeeded in capturing two Here's to our Manager! In the afternoon after a light work-out on the floor that was that night to witness a struggle, momentous in the minds of the Maryville aggregation, the team spent in bed.

The Vanderbilt Game

At the appointed hour the team appeared on the floor and after the usual preliminaries, when the team was unable to shoot goals on account of the baskets which were different from those on the home court, the whistle blew for action. After a short rush by Vandy, the ball came into the possession of the Highlanders who carried it down the floor in great style, only to shoot and miss. This was the usual run of the game, except that Vandy found the range to their basket long enough to make seventeen points, while Maryville was able to shoot only two goals. Graves, the big Vanderbilt center was the big scoring factor in the first half. Cody, the forward, who was most feared by the Highlanders, did not score a point in the game. In the second half the Commodores were completely out played and out scored. Graves the big center was not allowed a chance to score in the second round on account of the excellent guarding of Cotton.

Throughout the game Cullis and Montgomery played a masterful game. The Nashville enthusiasts say that the Maryville guards are the best that have appeared on the local floor this season. Cody, Vandy's big forward was noticeable for his rough playing.

The line-up and score was:

Maryville 10		Vanderbilt 22
Hendricks	r.f.	Cody
Wagner 2	l.f.	Norton 6
Carter 2	c.	Graves 16
Cullis	r.g.	Gleaves
Montgomery 2	l.g.	Floyd

Substitutions: Cotton (4) for Hendricks.

Time of halves, 15 minutes.

Referee, Fred Davis.

Hendricks was not taken out of the game on account of technical fouls as the Nashville and Knoxville papers stated.

The Rambler Game

The experience of the game against Vanderbilt was used to advantage against the Ramblers. The Ramblers could not stem the onslaught of the Highlanders even though they used two teams. The scoring in this game, was largely due to Carter and Hendricks. Hendricks showed up well, shooting five field goals in the first half. The first half ended with the score 16 to 10. During the first half, the old time Ramblers of Nashville opposed the Highlanders; but in the second half, the young blood of the Capitol City was sent in to the rescue, but the best they could do was to hold Maryville to an even score. Several times during the

FRED HOPE TELLS OF AFRICAN MISSION

Many Missionaries are Needed to Carry on The Work.

Saturday morning after the usual chapel exercise the student body, faculty and visitors were addressed by Mr. Fred Hope, a graduate of this college.

The address was about missionary work among the native tribes of Africa. On the west coast of Africa in the Cameron district is to be found the thickest jungle in the world. The moisture is very dense in this region and vegetation grows rapidly and continually. A person may travel for days without seeing the sun. Throughout the day anyone, accustomed to life in the open, would think twilight had appeared and was going to continue on forever.

Here in this land of vegetation live the Boolah people, who, until thirty years ago, had not seen a white person. Dr. Good, the first white man to explore these regions was thought to be a spirit by the natives. When he told them he was sent to help them; they would not believe and said they did not want a God who would leave his son to be crucified.

For a number of years the missionaries had little or no effect on the savages. The mission board in New York City became dissatisfied and decided to withdraw to a better field. But the missionaries begged to be allowed to stay as they saw that a change was taking place. During the first twelve years of the mission, thirteen missionaries died. But finally three natives were converted. The result was that the converts were disowned by their families and persecuted. The natives did not believe that they could live clean lives but that only white people could do that. A few years later the negroes began to listen to what the missionaries had to tell them and more were converted. In 1907, when Fred Hope arrived at the mission at Elat in the Cameron district of Africa, there were six hundred members of the Sunday School and eight hundred members of the church. The natives were not taken directly into the church but were placed on probation for two years after they were converted.

Later on the old church was not large enough to hold its members and as a result a church large enough to seat five thousand was built. The number of white people in the mission were not able to comply with the needs, so natives were taught and sent to different stations.

The greatest obstacle to the missionaries in this section of Africa is polygamy. The men look on their wives as they were animals or as slaves and not as their equal.

The missionaries are not the ones that effected such a great change. The native Africans are able to get a hold on God in a way that we cannot do in our higher civilization. They do not know of the skepticism which is so prevalent in the more highly civilized countries. Many natives have given their lives for the God they believed in and worshipped.

Africa is pleading for men and women to teach. Men answered the call to crush the Hun. Thousands of soldiers went over the top to save humanity. Are there not more stars for those who work for God than for those who murder? Let us live for Christ.

Mr. Hope is at the head of the Frank James Industrial School which he founded at this misison. Every year it has been the custom for Maryville students to give in order to help Mr. Hope enlarge his plant and adapt it to the needs of the native Africans.

GIRLS CONTINUE THEIR TRIUMPHANT MARCH

Volunteer Lassies Overcome in Fast Game 23-9.

The Highlander co-eds won their sixth consecutive victory of this season and continued their march toward the State Championship by overwhelming the Volunteer girls at Knoxville on Monday evening, March 1st., by a score of 23 to 9. It was their first game of a three-days' invasion into hostile territory against three old rivals. They encountered the Martha Washington College quintet at Abington, Va., on Wednesday and the Tusculum five at Greeneville on Thursday.

The U. T. girls showed a marked improvement over their playing in the exhibition staged at Maryville on January 30th., but still were not able to check the fierce onslaught of the female warriors from Blount County. The game was fast, hard-fought, and, despite the one-sided score, very interesting.

The Maryville guards, Misses Samsel and Ingle, played an air-tight game, allowing their opponents to score only three field goals during the whole game. Miss Lloyd at center led the offensive for Maryville, demonstrating a brand of basketball second to none shown by any Highlander lass this season. In this game she completely outplayed both of the girls that opposed her. Miss Dawson was a great asset to Maryville because of her excellent goal-shooting. The U. T. star guard attempted to look after Captain Bailey but did not prevent her from making two of the most sensational shots of the game.

The M. C. co-eds scored first and retained the lead until the blowing of the last whistle. Tennessee scored two foul goals in the first half which ended with the score 7 to 2 favoring Maryville. Miss Morgan of U. T. received an injury in the first half and was relieved by Miss Johnson. Both teams exhibited goal-shooting of a more brilliant hue in the second period.

A fairly large crowd witnessed the game which was played in Tennessee Hall. House and Scott starred for U. T.

The line-up:

Tennessee		Maryville
House (1)	f.	Bailey
Jeter (2)	f.	Dawson (6)
Morgan	c.	Lloyd
Stark	g.	Ingle
Scott	g.	Samsel

Foul goals—Bailey 3; House 3. Substitutions: Johnson for Morgan, Garth for Stark.

Referee, Hill.

THE BATES PRIZE

The final date for the submission of the Orations for the Bates Prize is Tuesday, April 6. The members of the Senior Class are urged not to delay their work on these orations until too late. This year will mark the second year of the Bates Prize in Oratory. Mr. Bates the founder of the prize has done an admirable thing for Maryville and for the cause of oratory, especially. Last year's contest was a notable one; this year's contest ought to be even more notable. A valuable tradition is here in the making, surely no loyal member of the Class of 1920 will fail to contribute his effort toward the success of the Second Bates Prize Contest.

An evening among the stars! Come to Bainonian Saturday Professor Knapp will be there.

Tuesday night the Maryville Co-eds were defeated in a fast game by Martha Washington College girls 13-9.

ENGLAND'S WAR CORRESPONDENT LECTURED

World Problems Must be Settled Sir John Foster Fraser Gives Europe's Opinion of America.

Another Lyceum number was given Thursday evening, February 26th. It was an English tourist, Sir John Fraser, who revealed his wit and humor and his knowledge of world problems in discussing "International Affairs." Sometime ago he left his native home rambled through the jungles of Africa and crossed the Great Sahara Desert. This was only an introduction to his travels, for since he has been thirty-seven countries of the world. With his traveling experience and an intellect well informed through reading, one can expect valuable ideas to be revealed.

How wrongly people do things in other countries from that of America. Stories of the Englishman are of their stupidity; it takes thirty minutes for one to see a joke. Their trousers were kept turned up, while Americans kept theirs down, except in case of rain, now custom is vice versa. Well, each one represents his home as being the greatest of all.

Attention was directed to the great Peace Conference at Versailles where the different nations were represented. Six Germans sat at the lowest place of the table. They manifested the sad and bitter expression of disappointment and grief. The terms of peace treaty are not harsh enough against the Germans. Think, what of the terms had the allied powers been vanquished. The League of Nations will not prevent war but will delay it, for at least six months. No country should join the league for self benefit but for the best of the world. There are mistaken ideas about being represented in this league. Its purpose is for the discussion of international affairs. The Americans ask what is the opinion in Europe of our attitude toward the league of nations? Peace between the U. S. and Germany has not been declared. America having started the league is now to become isolated; but, she must take all things into full consideration. Powers in the league are the powers of good will. The U. S. must come out strong for the league. It is a fault for a man to praise his own country in the presence of a man from another country.

The speaker saw France bleed at the heart; Belgium given a crushing blow, and other tragic incidents. When America entered the war, the best men of the allied warring nations had met death and only poisonous things were raging, which has tended to give us a bad impression. Only in particular instances did wrong events take place and they have been greatly exaggerated. The greatest lesson to be learned in war should be modesty.

Twenty-one wars are being waged

ORATORICAL CONTEST

James Martin to Represent Maryville.

Last Monday afternoon the preliminaries for the Inter-collegiate Oratorical Contest were held. This contest is to be staged every year between Tusculum, Emory and Henry, Carson-Newman and Maryville Colleges. This will be the first oratorical contest of its kind in which a Maryville man will strive to uphold the Maryville banner. As a result of the preliminaries, Mr. James Martin won first place among the contestants and will represent the Orange and Garnet standards on April 2nd. The other contestants were Charles Sharpe, Eugene Stanbery and Howard McGrath.

BIG TRIANGULAR DEBATE MONDAY NIGHT

With Tusculum and Emory and Henry. Question is Prohibition of Immigration.

We Must Win

Where is the next scalp coming from? We are going to capture the scalps of Tusculum and Emory and Henry in an Intercollegiate Debate.

A Triangular Debate will be held Monday night between Maryville and Tusculum and Emory and Henry. Our affirmative team debates Tusculum at home and the negative team goes to Emory and Henry. A real live question is to be discussed— Prohibition of Immigration. Both teams have been working hard and they are confident of victory, although debating two old rivals. And why not? Haven't we an invincible team? Haven't we enough experienced men to assure us of victory?

The affirmative team will debate Tusculum at Maryville and is comprised of three strong men; Arnold, a freshman, will make a good lead-off man, with his coolness and self-possession. Bill Holmes, the captain of the team, an experienced man and a senior, will keep his reputation as a forceful speaker. Ralph Ogan, familiarly known as Caminetti, is the enthusiast of the team and is bubbling over with enthusiasm. Weisbecker, the alternate is a valuable asset to the team.

Tusculum is apparently sending her strongest team to Maryville. It is made up of Charles Chandler, Robert Rankin, and Walter Gray. At least two of these are experienced debaters and promise us a treat by a hotly contested debate.

And what about the debate at Emory and Henry. There we are to be represented by Stanton, Minarik, and James. A fiery debate is assured because we are to be represented by "Red" Stanton, the torch bearer of the league. True his name, he is a fiery speaker. Frank Minarik will follow with a determination "to make 'em big", and "to win the champeenship". And Jimmy James our veteran debater, and captain of the team will move his audience to tears by his pathetic utterances; and by his convincing deliberative delivery, will convince the judges. Cox the alternate is a very helpful and faithful worker and much credit must be given him.

These men are looking for your support by your presence in the Chapel, Monday evening, March 8. When we get Tusculum's scalp.

SELF DESTRUCTIVE

Quite a strange term with which to begin a Highland Echo article, especially concerning its ownself. But the matter for consideration is the fact that one less issue of the year's Echo is now in sight. There will be thirty issues. We guaranteed that. Yet we usually have one or two extra issues in a year. This year we may and may not. The facts are that in accomodating the subscribers desiring extra copies of two of our big issues so far this year we have lost enough to put out a usual four-page issue. We do not consider it a fault of our management in over-ordering extra copies for when persons sign their

The two teams for the Girls' Debates are as follows: Affirmative, Captain Licia Johnson, Edith Moore, Ruth McCall; alternate Janet Ensign. Negative, Captain Mildred Campbell, Jewell Stevens, Mary L. Hayes; alternate Josephine Hamilton.

A post season game with U. T. is to be played at Knoxville Saturday night.

Do you realize that on Tuesday, February 24th, our basketball team started out on the hardest trip of the season? Are you aware of the fact that they left to uphold the Maryville banner without even so much as a few cheers? When the team started they knew they were to play two of the best basketball teams in the South. And they left without the support of the students.

But who was to blame. The team left on a very short notice for the manager of the team did not have time to tell the players to pack up. But the players received word after a delay.

So, if the players barely had time to prepare for their trip, was it possible for basketball enthusiasts to organize in time to give the team a rousing send off?

But no matter how short the period for preparation may be, if there were a permanent organization for such occasions, there would be no trouble in finding enough boys to give a few yells for the team and for victory. In the future let's have our athletic teams know that we are supporting them.

names to orders it is expected those persons will take their orders. This is no reflection upon those who lowered their orders from four to three or one. We agreed upon those at the time of the sales. But we do not believe it fair to the students and subscribers to rob them of an extra issue by causing the Echo such a deficit in its attempt to accomodate its patrons. There are many copies of the February Meetings number waiting to be called for by the persons who ordered them. Also extra copies of our football issue. All of which are expected to be sold after signatures and applications were made. These are just a few revelations of our standing just now. So if the thirty-first and thirty-second issues do not appear this year consider the reason why.

JOINT MEETING OF Y. M. AND Y. W. ADDRESSED BY FRED HOPE

The Y. M. and Y. W. were indeed fortunate in having Fred Hope speak to them on Sunday afternoon. The president of the Y. W. C. A., Miss Jessie Creswell was in charge. Fred Hope needs no introduction to a Maryville audience, for who has not heard of him and the wonderful work he is doing. Mr. Hope spoke on "The Jungle Folks of Africa." He gave us a clear glimpse into the Boolah race of that land, their ignorance, and their superstition. Their belief in Witchcraft and Tetichisue was illustrated by real instances. But there are great possibilities in Africa, some fine characters have been develped through the grace of God. These people are hungering for the word, a call comes to US from the jungles of Africa to tell the story. Hear the call—Will you go?

ATHENIAN

Last Saturday night the Athenian program was rendered in unusual fashion. The topic of the program in itself is commendable. It was, "The Opportunities of the Several Professional Careers". The law part was presented by W. Nace; that of pedegogy was handled by Milling; medicial dope was administered by D. Shaver; the agricultural line was lined out by F. A. Green; the ministry was presented by Floyd Watt.

Much interesting information was given to us by these fellows. If any professional man had been present he, himself, would have learned something about his profession—so searching were the inquiries made by the several men into their subjects.

All fellows and girls missed a real treat in not hearing these talks. These talks would surely bring a person nearer to his calling, if he had been there and heard. Perhaps the Faculty members would have been aided materially in finding their places in the World if they had been there.

A cordial invitation is extended to all fellows who want to WORK —Come up and be one of us.

THE BLUE RIDGE CONFERENCE

Dr. Graham gave an illustrated lecture in the college chapel Saturday night. The lecture was illustrated by stereopticon slides, showing the location, the surrounding country, some of the important buildings and many other scenes familiar to those who have attended a Y.W. C. A. or Y.M.C.A. Conference at Blue Ridge. A very vivid picture of Blue Ridge was given, also a very clear outline of what takes place during the ten days of conferences.

The lecture was of special interest to those who wish to represent their organizations as delegates next June, as well as to those who have already attended a Blue Ridge Conference. The scenes and descriptions alone were enough to assure one of ten days of good times and of time and money well spent. The training and influences are very valuable and anyone who can possibly attend the conference should do so.

The probable dates for the conferences are for the girls' conference, June 4-14; for the boys', June 14-24.

CHURCH NOTICE

Service begins at 7:45 p. m. Subject, "Fools". A cordial welcome to all.

LOVERS IN CONFERENCE

Chemist—Love is not a solid, nor a liquid, nor a gas. It is odorless, colorless; it tastes at times very sweet and agreeable, but at times bitter and offensive. Rarely it occurs in its pure state; but in its combined form it can be found in the human blood. This, under critical conditions, becomes acidic, thus being very detrimental to the organic development. An excessive amount is very undesirable.

Athlete—Love is a baseball game. So many like it, but very few can make good. Of course it is easy to play a winning game, but it takes a real sport to play a losing one. Once in a while you make a big hit —a spectacular one; but believe me, it's a pretty tough job to make a home run.

Business Man—Love is a speculation. When successful, it leads to the formation of a productive partnership of two persons, each holding 50% of the stock. It is not in the least dangerous to one who knows one's business. But it brings disappointment to one who expects much return from his small investment; and it brings ruin ultimately, if one goes about wildly.

Miner—Love is the unmined coal. A prospector, in order to get anything out of his mine, must work persistantly; and must face the floods and explosions waiting for him in the dark. Among the final products, some are clinkers giving lots of trouble; some nothing more than gas and ashes; but some keep the home fires burning.

Electrician—Love is electricity. It is intangible, but quite demonstrable, in this 20th century it is one of the greatest motive powers in all human enterprise. It may flash with great brilliancy; or it may produce intense heat and burn up the body. Gold is its best conductor.

Detective—Now, boys, love is a mystery. So far it has never been solved by pure intellect. But, look here, if you open your eyes, sharpen your nose, camouflage your face, be alert to take hint, be ready to jump and dive, and above all don't loose your nerve—these will help you lots. Neither gun-play, nor bluff will get you anywhere.

Physician—The characteristic of this disease (love) is that the victim is often ignorant of its attack. It is contageous; it spreads quickly or slowly, according to the individual constitution. In its acute state the victim's nervous system is completely paralyzed. It is incurable by any medicine. When one recovers from it the after-effect is the most unpleasanat. Worst of all, the victim can never become immune.

A girl student—The boys are learning new ways at an admirably good speed, but they have a common fault; while they know the theory of the subject, they are hesitant or even at a loss to apply, and practice it. Shall I say they don't know what they are talking about?

BAINONIAN

Saturday night there was such a crowd in Bainonian Hall that there was hardly room for every one The audience waited anxiously until the curtains rolled back to show the first scene of the play, Jack O' Hearts.

The Dramatic Personae were as follows:

Mary Hart - - - Martha Robison
Winthrop Hart - - - Ugee Stump
Dr. Hart - - - - Emily Fowler
Mary Robinson - - Mary Broady
Betty Deuyer - - Hazel Bevan
John Ames - - - Myrtle Rendon
Jack Botsford - - - Irrovia Corry
The Maid - - - Cristine Copelan

Between acts Sallee Huffaker soothed the nerves of the excited audience by a piano solo. During the course of the play one love affair was broken up and put back together again, another was resumed which had previously been discontinued, and still another, a brand new match was made. As it always is with romance, jealously, nervousness, and perverseness brought about some strange and ludicrous situations. At the end of the performance, the audience, by its prolonged applause, expressed its gratification at the outcome of the seemingly unfixable difficulties, and wished them all, lives "happy ever afterwards."

Miss Coulter Entertains

Real fried chicken? Yes, that is what we who went to Miss Coulter's party Saturday afternoon saw, already on the table when we opened the door of her room. We won't tell you how good it was because, in the first place, it would make you hungry, and in the second place, we can't tell you. But chicken wasn't all we had. The second course consisted of boiled custard and cake. Lastly, apples were served.

None of us could condescend to eat Old Lady for supper after such a feast. When we departed, we could find no words to express how much we enjoyed the afternoon.

Those present were Miss Cora Henry, a teacher at the East Side school, and a niece of Miss Coulter, Miss Elizabeth Headrick of Maryville, and Misses Ethel Sharp and Jennie Lequire.

BOYS' BIBLE CLASS

Immediately after supper Tuesday evening a large crowd of Carnegie inhabitants wended its joyous way up the Pearson stairs to Theta Hall where the men's class for the study of Christian living is held weekly. Dr. Stevenson took as the topic for his talk Mark 9:38-0, speaking principally of the Christian's attitude toward sin, and stressing particularly the thought expressed in the forty-third to forty-seventh versus. It is impossible to reproduce the whole talk as it was given, but it is possible to give some short quotations.

"The sinners sins are his own."

"People have been side-stepping their sins since the time of Adam; we have been shoving the responsibility for one's sins on others."

"A sinner's sins are not only his own but he must do his part in getting rid of them."

"God never takes anything from us that we are not willing to lose."

"Sin cannot be pinched off, pulled off or shoved away—it must be cut off, for the best way to get rid of a diseased member is to cut it off."

"God makes no compromise with sin."

ALPHA SIGMA NOTES

The old familiar motto "Variety is the spice of live", was upheld Saturday night by the Alpha Sigma Literary Society. Spicy readings were rendered by Fred Cagle and George Callahan. The rum and tobacco evils were discussed to a great extent. Then came a discourse on the college-bred man and the self-made man. Plans were drawn up for compulsory attendance by the members, and to this effect an amendment was drawn up and passed, to be voted on at the next regular meeting.

If you are an Alpha Sigma, and have not formed the habit of regular atendance, your presence at the meeting Saturday night will be beneficial to you.

GIRLS! SEE THE MOVIES WHILE YOU MAY

Most girls like movies. Theta girls enjoyed two movies of unusual nature on Saturday night.

Through the kindness of Dr. Graham the college had an opportunity to hear an illustrated lecture on Blue Ridge. Later some of the home talent presented in Theta Hall the tragic picture "Death's Triple Triumph" which was everything that its name suggests.

The musical part of the program was not lacking for three unusually good numbers were rendered.

Miss Clara Browning in a piano medley pictured to us the Old South. Miss Bernice Kimble and Jewel Stephens gave a vocal duet and Miss Sue Sugg played a violin solo.

Miss Ruth Quinn gave a reading from "Ann of Green Gables".

The success of the program was due to the support given by the audience.

Tuesday afternoon Miss Licia Johnson had as her guest her father.

Dr. and Mrs. Gillingham had as their guest for dinner Saturday night, Mr. Fred Hope.

Mr. and Mrs. Tippet have been visiting their daughter Miss Augusta Tippet and niece Miss Mary Tippet. The Misses Tippet went to Knoxville Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Tippet.

Mr. George Kimsey, Mr. Owen Henderson and Mr. Mac Clark spent the week-end in Knoxville.

Miss Aiken has had as her guest her sister.

Miss Esther Montgomery is attending Johns Hopkins University where she is taking training to become a nurse.

Mr. Guy Counts left Saturday for his home in Alabama. Mr. Counts has been ill for the past week.

Miss Anna Lee Roberson is able to be out after a slight illness.

Miss Florence Leonard leaves this week to regain her health.

Miss Della Carpenter who has been ill for the past four weeks left this week for her home in Kentucky.

When Willodine McIver reached Knoxville on her way home she sent this message back, "Please take care of my tulips."

After a week's stay at home on account of her father's illness, Lucile Carter is back on the Hill again. She reports that her father is improving.

Miss Ulah Lamer from Mooresburg, an old Maryville student, is visiting friends here.

A crowd of boys, which was diminished very little in size from that which attended the first of Dr. Stevenson's classes on the study of the christian life, attended the third meeting held in Theta Hall Tuesday evening. These meetings are proving very popular and helpful with the boys, and more should be present.

On last Friday, February 27th, a bunch of "old hay-seeders" got together and organized an Agricultural Club. Officers were elected as follows:

F. A. Green - - - President
Lee Herndon - - Vice-President
E. D. Armstrong - Secy.-Tras.
S. E. Peters - - - Editor

It is the purpose of this club to study and discuss some of the present day agricultural problems, to arouse interest in farming as a profession, and to show that there is a need of a good strong Agricultural Department in Maryville College. Not only are agriculturalists needed in this country to help feed America's millions, but we have learned recently that the mission fields are calling for farmers as well as ministers and teachers. A large per cent of Maryville College students come from the farms of Tennessee and other states. They come here to prepare themselves for entering the ministry, teaching, law, medicine, and various other professions, but as yet those who have chosen the one most necessary occupation, must go elsewhere for training.

This club is open to all college men interested in Agriculture. Programs, dealing with subjects of interest and importance to farmers, will be rendered.

The Service of an Electrical Research Laboratory

The research facilities of the General Electric Company are an asset of world-wide importance, as recent war work has so clearly demonstrated. Their advantages in pursuits of peace made them of inestimable value in time of war.

A most interesting story tells of the devices evolved which substantially aided in solving one of the most pressing problems of the war—the submarine menace. Fanciful, but no less real, were the results attained in radio communication which enabled an aviator to control a fleet of flying battleships, and made possible the sending, without a wire, history-making messages and orders to ships at sea. Scarcely less important was the X-ray tube, specially designed for field hospital use and a notable contribution to the military surgical service. And many other products, for both combatant and industrial use, did their full share in securing the victory.

In the laboratories are employed highly trained physicists, chemists, metallurgists and engineers, some of whom are experts of international reputation. These men are working not only to convert the resources of Nature to be of service to man, but to increase the usefulness of electricity in every line of endeavor. Their achievements benefit every individual wherever electricity is used.

Scientific research works hand in hand with the development of new devices, more efficient apparatus and processes of manufacture. It results in the discovery of better and more useful materials and ultimately in making happier and more livable the life of all mankind.

THE ALLEGORY OF HAM

The little birds were twittering a feeble twit this morning which reminded me that I had only the price of a dope plus war tax, and that Congress had still failed to ratify the League of Nations. After some cogitations on these premises, I moved into the next room and decided that I'd cut chapel. Feeling proud of myself for so firmly meeting this momentous problem, I basked for a short time in the consciousness of my courageous conduct, and then went anyhow.

Oh the curse of vacillation,—what awful things have come to pass because of it, in moments of stress. Louis the Wishy-Washy, undecided whether to flee Paris is no more pitiful sight than Algernon wondering whether to ask Lizzie or Mamie for a date. Nor is it alone in these great crises that the habit of vacillation shows its baleful influence, but even in the minor events of an uneventful day, it is often the undeciding factor.

There are twenty-three and a half hours in a day. One-half hour being of course allowed for such details as brushing the teeth and completing the coiffure. If by a concentrated action of the will each of these thirteen hundred and eighty minutes were actively utilized, what mountains of achievement could be piled up!

Think of it! What if each ramification of our activity was rammed cram full of rampant action instead of hanging close to the zero mark because we can't decide how to go about it? But to return to these much desired mountains of achievement,—if the mountains won't come to Mohammed, Mohammed can go to the mountains.

Now there was Mohammed Jones. Good old Ham aspired to rear up regular Alps of achievement when he first stepped off the K. & A. at Maryville, but after some while he found out that he hadn't made a very sizeable replica of the Chilhowees. He aspired and he perspired, but it transpired after some little time had expired that nobody in Washington was getting alarmed over a big noise at Knoxville.

The only thing that Ham could decide suddenly, just like that, was to go over to Pearsons when the meal bell clanged. On other important questions he couldn't even resort to the old method of flipping a coin, for he couldn't decide which to call heads. And thus he went on wavering between points so rapidly that he resembled a buffalo gnat until a certain event changed his course from that of a meteor to that of a meteorite,— the etymological difference of which is, that a meteor is in an awful hurry but never gets anywhere in particular, while a meteorite hits the earth in a way that makes it sit up and take notice. Even as Mohammed of old, was saved by a Fatima, our hero, Ham was saved by a little fat girl with whom he happened to have a date to a basketball game. Oh no, I hadn't decided to take her, but I had been chatting with her on the way out of class and somehow before he got away he had a date. I didn't know how it happened and no other mere man could really tell him, but they do it somehow.

Ham got to the dorm about twenty minutes late, because he had spent that time on the important question of which tie to wear, but they hurried over the way to the gym. On the way over the conversation proceeded with them in this manner:

Fatty: "Isn't this a wonderful night?"

Ham: "Yes, but—"

"Oh, and isn't that moon grand?"

"Well, now—"

"Do you think it's going to get colder?"

"Well, I don't know as,—"

"Wasn't that an awful assignment in English today?"

"Uh-huh, if—"

They got to the gym late as could be expected and could hardly get within hearing distance of the floor. All the chairs around the place were already in use and of course all the windows had couples parked in them.

Girls, you know how you'd feel if you had gotten yourself all dolled up and then had to move around carefully for half an hour lest you get disarranged, while you waited to hear the word that a gentleman below desired your presence. And on top of all that to get to a game in time to see a lot of unpromising backs, and nothing to do but stand around and try to get some talk out of the fish that conversationally was far behind a cuckoo clock which really can make a positive statement at least once an hour.

Fatty held up bravely for awhile, but she had on a new pair of kicks and her pet corn—. It was too much and she blew up. The next few minutes were occupied by a vitrioli dissertation in which Ham got his deserts. He didn't have to decide whether he was being bawled out or not. That was impressed deeply on his inner consciousness. No man takes kindly to being called a spineless jelly fish by a good looking girl, and oh how it hurt to be told that he couldn't decide whether he was dead all over or only from the neck up without the aid of a committee.

He was still pondering it all when he went to Pearsons for his ham and eggs the next morning, but he did reach a decision, and that was to grab at least one side of every question he met and ride it to its garage. That is why a couple of years later we put him on a train with a sheep skin in his hand and felt like we were moving the old college to parts unknown, for he was the boy that kept the whole works on the hum. And he could get more done while we were thinking about it than all the rest of us together could after we had completed those formalities.

PARADISE FOUND

And it came to pass that, as the millionaire was tired of his silver, and of this world, and of all the anxieties and toils he went to Paradise.

And the Paradise being guarded by Peter, when Peter saw him, he opened the gate, saying: "The world below is glorious, but this is more. A thousand years below is here only a minute; a million dollars below is here only a cent."

And when he had said this, the millionaire begged, saying: "Lend me a cent."

And Peter answering said unto him: "Wait a minute." —Ex.

upon the earth today. Europe is in much worse condition than she was two years ago. A still greater onslaught will be raging before spring over Fiume, if the trouble is not soon settled. The worst condition is in Russia. Its people lack continuity of will power. It has always been under alien dominion. Germans and Jews are there in large numbers. These Jews if allowed to develop their commercial ability will make a prosperous nation of Russia from her natural resources. This is true of every nation where the Jew has been given a chance to grow and develop. They have been suppressed in Russia. Due to this fact they brought about Bolshevic movement in order to be recognized by the world. When these people are given a chance that nation will be prosperous. But Russia must be left to solve here own problems. Her government must soon be recognized as substantial by the world powers.

The world could not at present stand the real story of the war. It will be thirty years before present facts are revealed. See the desolated battlefields in No Man's Land, in Belgium, in France, and with poppies that have taken root and fed upon the fertile and oily substance of the brave, decaying bodies of Our Heroes. Sweet it is to die for one's country, but better still it is to live for one's country.

Constance Talmadge in "TWO WEEKS" and believe me it is some two weeks. It's a snappy, jazzy comedy, full of fun and love interest. A peach of a story—wonderful acting.
Also Great Gamble and News Reel.

MONDAY, MARCH 8TH—
"DANGEROUS HOURS", The wolves have broken in— human wolves, ranting at law, sneering at virtue, scattering red poison in the name of humanity. "Dangerous Hours", is the record of their deeds. A picture built on the biggest things that now face the world. Vivid, human, spectacular. Lighted up with a romance of love.

TUESDAY, MARCH 9TH—
Bert Lytell in "THE RIGHT OF WAY", the story that has thrilled and held spell-bound millilons of people. A vital, tremendous brilliant story. Also a two reel western.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10TH—
Vivian Martin in "LOUISIANA" It all started in the modern hotel lobby. There is where she met the "city feller", no he is not the villian but some one else. Things are delightfully mixed up in this picture so much so that it keeps you guessing.

A CALL TO PRAYER

"The Volunteer State Volunteering For God"

There will come to Maryville, the last week end in March, delegates from practically all of the colleges of Tennessee, to take part in the State Students' Convention. Maryville bears practically all of the burden for the success of the convention and to this convention belongs a great influence over every student in Tennessee. Plans are hard to lay, difficult to be carried out. We will need help. Will each student make use of thhe following suggestions? It is one way of doing your share for the college and the state.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THOSE WHO PRAY FOR THE CONVENTION

1. Pray for the Convention Committee, Secretaries and other workers.

That nothing may be left undone which will increase the power of the Convention.

That nothing may be done which will hinder the workings of God's Spirit.

2. Pray for the Program Committee.

That they may have divine wisdom in the selection of speakers and topics, as well as lead vs for the various sectional meetings.

3. Pray that every speaker and leader may be helped by the Holy Spirit in the work of preparation; that the addresses delivered and the results of the Convention may be such that the Evangelization of the World may be hastened.

4. Pray for the delegates selected by all classes of institutions:

That students and professors may be sent as delegates who can receive and take back to their institutions the greatest inspiration and blessing as well as enlarged plans for the Christian program in these centers.

That the money needed to defray expenses of the delegations may be secured. That the sacrifice involved in sending delegates may prove a blessing.

That the delegates may be prepared to hear the message of the Convention with open minds and obedient hearts.

That the men and women whom God calls to foreign missionary service may not be disobedient to the vision.

That those not sent abroad may respond to God's call to devote their lives at home base with equal consecration, vision and sacrifice, to sending the gospel to the whole world in this generation.

5. Pray for the students and professors who do not go to the Convention.

That they may be in an expectant and receptive attitude as they listen to the reports of the Convention brought back by their delegates, and that they may enter heartily into the enlarged plans which should be undertaken in every institution and that they yield to God's call for their service.

6. Pray for the Mission Board Secretaries and other leaders of the Church who will attend.

That there may come to them an enlarged vision of the resources of the Church, an increased sense of responsibility, and new faith that God will use them in turning resources into channels which will most speedily accomplish His will for the evangelization of the world.

7. Pray for the misisonaries who attend.

That they may be renewed in spirit, and greatly encouraged, and that they will use opportunities which come to them to share their rich experiences with other delegates.

8. Pray for Maryville:

(a) For the Committee on Finances, that the money needed for expenses of the Convention may be secured.

(b) For the Hospitality Committee, that all arrangements for rooms and meals may be made with entire satisfaction.

9 Pray for the Colleges.

That a definite revival of religion may come to the universities and colleges of Tennessee because of the outpouring of God's Spirit at the Convention.

"Not by an army, nor by power, but by my Spirit."

Basketball Season Closed--Twelve Victories and Four Defeats

CENTRE COLLEGE, UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE, AND THE NASHVILLE RAMBLERS WERE DEFEATED. CAPTAIN WAGNER DIRECTED TEAM WITH GREAT SUCCESS. HARDEST SCHEDULE IN YEARS PLAYED.

The Maryville College basket-ball squad has now withdrawn from the arena of 1920 athletics and has left behind in the history of Highlander achievements an imposing and glowing record which is resplendent with success and victory. It can be safely stated that it was composed of the cleanest and most skilled set of basket-ballers ever in attendance at Maryville College at one time, and was in every way a credit to itself and to the school.

The wonderful success which attended the Highlanders this season is clearly revealed by the fact that out of the sixteen games played, 12 were won and only four were lost, and 470 points were scored against the opponents' 367.

The three most renowned and most celebrated victories of the season were, over the Ramblers, Tennessee, and Centre College. These three victories alone prove the A number one quality of the Highlanders, for not in recent years has a M. C. team wrought such consistent havoc. The defeat which Centre was handed by the Highlanders was the first they had received in any branch of athletics at home for four years. Tennessee claims the Southern College Championship and have hurled their defiance to any team doubting their superiority. The Ramblers have laid claims, which have not been disputed, on the Southern Y.M.C.A. Championship. Surely the defeat of these three great Southern teams has elevated the Highlander quintet to the loftiest pinnacles of basket-balldom.

The second even break with Tusculum this year—a victory for each quintet—has only plunged the two schools more deeply into bitter rivalry. Although in the game at Greenville on the 16th the Highlanders were seriously handicapped by the absence of their captain and greatly fatigued by their long delay and slow transit, they nevertheless outplayed the Greenvillians up until the last few minutes of the game when their previous misfortunes began to tell on them and ultimately caused their defeat.

There is but one regret voiced in the Highlander camp—that the first few minutes of the game with Vanderbilt was not of the same character as the rest of the game. Towards the latter part of the first half and during the second half Maryville outplayed and even defeated the Commodores, but owing to their opponents' wide lead which was gained in the first few minutes of play, the Highlanders were unable to ever emerge from the hole. The size of the Vanderbilt court and the new experience of playing in Nashville were probably the causes of their momentary bafflement.

Captain Wagner led, directed, and generaled the team in a highly commendable manner. He not only assumed a stellar role in every game in which he played, but he was in fact the backbone of the team. This fact was proven beyond a doubt by the loss to Tusculum. Cotton, playing in his second year for his Alma Mater, developed into one of the most promising floormen and most consistent scoring factors on the Highlander roster. Hendricks, a new man who hails from Nashville, has proven beyond a doubt his super-ability as an all-around basket-ball man.

Each game of the entire season is a lasting monument to the laudable performances of Carter, Montgomery and Cullis. The guards played an air-tight brand of guarding which was wonderfully effective. No two men played with more steadiness nor with more fight and vim than did the two guards Cullis and Montgomery. Carter was a tower of strength to the team because of his scoring and all-around qualities which were directly responsible for many victories. McCullough proved time after time by his spectacular shootng that he is no slouch at the basket-ball art.

Much credit is due Horace Brown for his competent management of the team and schedule. He secured sixteen real live games and two interesting trys—which is indeed a credit to his ability to manage.

The following is a record of the games played this season.

game intervals of five minutes passed without a single point being made on either side. The Nashville Banner stated that if Maryville should be able to come back and win from the Ramblers, after being beaten by Vanderbilt the night before, that it would be the greatest comeback in local basketball circles. And Maryville Pulled Said Comeback!

The line-up and score was as follows:

Maryville 26		Ramblers 20
Hendricks 10	r.f.	Burton 6
Wagner 2	l.f.	Brown 2
Carter 10	c.	Sharpe 4
Cullis 2	r.g.	Emerson 2

Substitutions: Maryvile— Cotton (2) for Hendricks; Ramblers—Pinson for Burton; Welch for Brown; Zerfoss for Welch, Blair for Petway, Hughes for Emerson.

Murfressboro Game

The team landed in Murfeesboro Friday morning at 9:30. During the morning and afternoon the boys found nothing to do but moonshine Here Carter progressed extremely well. Without the Coach knowing the why and wherefore Cotton and Cullis could not resist the temptation to jazz a little and almost forgot the approaching game. Hendricks, the Nashville idol, was not much of a favorite at Murfreesboro as he had no clean collars. Wagner and Montgomery stayed home and took a beauty sleep. At a leap year party, given at the normal Friday night, was where Brownie starred on the trip; his flame happened to be the music teacher of the school. Brown had reminded his team-mates before the game that they need not fear but that he would have a fine date.

The result of the game was never in doubt as Maryville scored sixteen points before the normal boys even touched the basket. The first half of the game ended with the score 16-5 in Maryville's favor.

In the second half more points were scored for Maryville than in the first. Carter starred in this game making 21 points.

A CORRECTION

We were recently privileged to hear a lecture from a man who is an Englishman, and also a cosmopolite. Being an Englishman, he is modest. At any rate, he said he was modest. And therefore he said very little about England, which left to him quite a large part of an hour and forty-five minutes in which to talk about the U.S.A.

We have no desire to destroy the splendid impression he made here. We are cognizant of the fact that he is an intelligent and cultured gentleman.

It was merely a misinterpretation of sentiment on his part, but it was a shame to Maryville that the only statement hotly applauded during his lecture was the denunciation of Stephen Decatur's justly famous toast 'My Country! May she ever be right! But, My Country, right or wrong!"

Decatur was privileged to shed his blood for America in the War of 1812, a phase of history which some strange reluctance forbade Sir John to speak of. This was Decatur's toast of love to his country, and when read from the heart can never be misinterpreted—"My Country! May she ever be right! But, My Country, may she ever be,—I love her, I couldn't help it, even She were in the wrong!" Not my Country to fight for in the wrong, not necessarily that, but just My Country to love!

This is no expression of policy, it is a toast to America, one of the highest expressions of love ever breathed, and be it forever a source of shame to Maryville students that they were not Americans enough to know it. The Alpha Sigma Literary Society desires that in the future such a thing may be avoided, and publishes this hoping that all Maryville will see it, and particularly Sir John Foster Fraser.

ARE YOU DISCOURAGED?

Remember this:

When Abraham Lincoln was a young man he ran for the legislature in Illinois, and was badly swamped.

He next entered business, failed, and spent seventeen years of his life paying up the debts of a worthless partner.

Later he married a woman who was a constant burden to him. Entering politics again, he ran for Congress and again was badly defeated.

He then tried to get an appointment to the U. S. Land Office, but failed.

He became a candidate for the U. S. Senate, and was badly defeated.

In 1856 he became a candidate for the vice-presidency and was again defeated.

In 1858 he was defeated by Douglas.

One failure after another—bad failures—great setbacks. In the face of all this he eventually became one of the country's greatest men, if not the greatest.

When you think of a series of setbacks like this, doesn't it make you feel kind of small to become discouraged, just because you think you are having a hard time in life?

CLUB HISTORY

During the fall term many clubs such as State, Pre medical, Ministerial and County were organized. Officers were elected and perhaps a little social gathering was held. Recently these clubs have had their pictures taken for the Annual. Let us stop to consider a moment. Is there anything else that they have done? What was the purpose of organizing the club?

It seems that a few people like to be officers of various organizations, yet, they are unwilling, don't have time, or are too lazy to put forth an effort to make a success of their charge. Some people try to do a dozen things but fail in every one of them, others do not have the courage to do anything, and others take into consideration that which they are able to do and then set out to do it.

A MESSAGE FROM MR. TROTTER

Dear Friend:

How glad I am that you have been led out into deeper things of God, if I have helped you to do that? I give God the glory, and thank Him that He even sent me to Maryville. You can remember this, you never have nor will give up anything to Jesus that He does not bring you something better in its place. Truly we can say with all the students of that great school: "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

O, how glad I am to hear you say that the students are praying for us and for our work, truly we need more than all else besides, this very thing, and its more than money or presents. We appreciate the presents you gave us, but we appreciate more your prayers. Ask them to keep on praying. I just had a telegram today asking me to address a young people's conference of three thousand now in a short time and I am hoping that I may say something that will cause many of them to give their lives to the service of our blessed Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Mr Hammontree and I are here on this island for a short but much needed rest; the quartet is in Indianapolis singing. We will be here for three weeks, then we will all meet in Wichati, Kansas for a meeting, from there to my old home town, Polo, Illinois.

Keep praying and remember Romans 8:28. I am,

Your friend,

Mel E. Trotter.

VESPERS

Fred Hope led the Sunday Vesper service and the service to resume his work in Africa. The work in addition to the regular church work consists of teaching the natives in their schools. These are being pushed into the interior as advance agents of the church. One of the problems is to get the girls into the schools. An educated girl being at a premium, for they are in demand and many are stolen. A missionary on being asked what was the most dangerous beast in the African jungle? Replied, "The white man is the most dangerous." The schools have taught the value of work and now they are unable to take care of all who want admittance. Besides this there has been added to the already burdened missionaries the work of the former German mission.

At Elat there are 45,000 communicants belonging to the mission station and divided into a number of churches. Throughout the station on any regular communion Sunday there are about 500 debarred. The entire work is carried out by two ministers and four laymen and 576 native workers. The total number of native supporters is 1500. The number of church services held during the week is 462.

He told many stories of the fidelity and christian zeal displayed by the natives. During the war they suffered torture and even death for their faith.

BOOTLEGGERS TRIED

Not Guilty was the verdict rendered in the trial of Jesse Crum in the Junior Alpha Sigma Hall Saturday night. The defendant was charged with transporting four gallons of intoxicating liquor from Happy Valley to Maryville on the night of February 26th, 1920. Judge Hargraves, whose thorough and far-reaching knowledge of the law gives him a reputation as one of the best on the Hill, presided. The audience looked on with wonder and admiration as he skillfully saw that justice was administered.

The trial was one of the most popular and interesting of the season. The large audience was swayed first one way and then another as each witness testified. Opinions were evenly divided until the final plea of the defendant's lawyers. Their eloquent and convincing speeches drove all doubts from the minds of the court and when the verdict of Not Guilty, was rendered every one seemed satisfied.

Watch for a surprise for next Saturday night on the Junior Alpha program.

MARYVILLE LASSIES WIN AND LOSE

Martha Washington Administers First Defeat of the Season. Tusculum Girls are Easy Victims.

Maryville girls were defeated last Tuesday night by Martha Washington, the champion girls' team of Virginia. The game was exceedingly fast and rough throughout. Maryville was greatly handicapped in the second half when she had to play with three courts, and six plays on each side, and as no substitutes were taken along the Manager had to play. Both teams regret that they had to play on a very poor floor with bum baskets.

It is rather hard to pick the stars on the Martha Washington team as it is good all around. However, both V. Cole and R. Cole did especially good work. For Maryville, Ingle and Dawson did good work.

Maryville		Martha
Bailey 5,	f.	R. Cole 9
Dawson 4,	f.	Roland 3
Lloyd	c.	V. Cole
Ridgeway		Garrison
Ingle	g.	Browder
Samsel	g.	Garrison

Field Goals—Dawson 2; R. Cole 4; Roland 1. Foul Goals—Bailey 5; R. Cole 1; Roland 1.

In a rather one-sided game Maryville co-eds defeated Tusculum girls 26-3. The game was rather unique in that Tusculum never got a field goal, her three points came as a result of free throws. Of course everybody on the Maryville team starred.

Maryville		Tusculum
Dawson	f.	Alexander
Bailey	f.	Burkey
Lloyd	c.	Kiser
Ridgeway	s.c.	Lewis
Samsel	g.	Litchfield
Ingle	g.	Lerves
		Jones

Field Goals—Dawson 6; Bailey 5. Foul Goals—Bailey 4, Burkey 3.

The girls all report a wonderful, wonderful time on the entire trip, eing royally treated and entertained y U. of T., Martha Washington, and Tusculum. The only thing that hurts them is the fact that they cannot treat visiting teams as well as we are always entertained elsewhere.

ANNALS OF THE SENIORS

Vol. 101 No. 9.

At a class meeting of the Seniors, held on last Tuesday, a motion was made and carried (by the usual voting sign) that the Seniors have a party on Friday night. When discussion came as to where the party should take place about thirty Seniors said "Mr. President, I move you that we go to the House in the Woods." And as only thirty members were present there was no objection.

And so at seven-thirty the Seniors started. Forunately Winston was persuaded not to throw any rocks and no especial accidents occurred. Miss Wadsworth, Mrs. Stevenson, and Dr. Stevnson welcomed the class very cordially and everybody settled down in their favorite nook for an evening of pure fun, and truly there were fifty-seven varieties.

To begin with Licia decided to initiate Joel into the mysteries of all the curios and between them things were in a fair way of being totally destroyed when an A. B. C. contest was begun. Mr. Deyton, being a lawyer, and arguing so eloquently that his work was perfectly honest was awarded a very suitable prize, a box of A.B.C. blocks. George was successful in the vegetable contest and named the prize Georgiana. Edith succeeded in the author's contest and won a book and certainly Winston deserved the whistle awarded to the winner of the musical romance.

After initiating the new members of the class into "Brother Bob, I've Been Bobbed", the whole class "bit" in the salt and sugar game, of course with the exception of Dr. Stevenson and one or two other unusually bright men. And then salad, sandwiches and coffee were served! And although slang should not be used about Seniors those refreshments realy did, 'hit the spot".

Too soon eleven o'clock came and the Seniors dutifully and reluctantly came back to the Hill knowing that this party was, as all others had been, the best ever.

N. B. Misses Hattie and Mary Louise Hayes announce to friends that all "stolen" goods were returned in good condition.

STATE STUDENT VOLUNTEER CONVENTION

Unique Gathering at Maryville March 27th-28th.

The first State Student Volunteer Convention of Tennessee is to be held at Maryville, Saturday morning, March 27th, and continue thru until Sunday night. Maryville will be the meeting place of student delegates from the fartherest limits of the State. Old Voorhees chapel the place of many unique gatherings will have yet a newer item to add to her history. It has held more than its typified number often, she wi. again. Those two days will be days worth noting in the history of Maryville College.

An entertainment committee has been appointed to arrange for accommodations for the delegates. In Pearsons, Ethel Doctor; in Baldwin, Hazel Cleveland; in Carnegie, George Howell. Take them in, will you? You may entertain an angel unawares! If you are going home for the week-end be generous enough to lend your bed, but please don't go home. Hospitality can be shown as well by piling up as by piling out.

You haven't done your share when you have taken a bunk-mate. Something that people are crossing the length of Tennessee to hear may be worth your while.

Dr. Cyril H. Haas, doctor to China and India, graduate of Michigan University, will be the leading speaker. Two representatives of the Movement from New York will have charge, and a quartette and pianist will be included in the party. A second "American four", is not being promised, because that four will never be swelled to eight, nor a second "Dick" is not to be introduced, but unless something very unforseen takes place a Tennessee quartette and a Tennessee pianist will be here.

Particulars of registration and extra events will be made public at a later date. Remember—two weeks from Saturday! !

Please make use of the Call to Prayer in last week's Echo.

BIG LYCEUM NUMBER COMING MARCH 22d

Liberty Belles to Present a Popular Program.

Misses Vera Krake, Eleis Belmont and Ruth Hardy, three charming Boston girls make up the organization known in the Lyceum world as the Liberty Belles, who will appear on the Hill the night of March 22nd and present an entertainment "somewhat different". They offer a varied program of music, vocal and instrumental, readings, sketches and impersonations all designed to furnish just the kind of an entertainment needed in these days of unrest. They are most likable artists both on and off the platform and everywhere they have been they have requests for return dates next season. Their aim is to bring sunshine where there are shadows; to refresh jaded minds; to touch hearts; to make the world brighter, happier and a more livable place to live in, thru the gospel of song, of story and of music.

The Liberty Belles use quite a number of attractive costumes in presenting their program which adds greatly to the popularity of their performance. In their individual and in their joint humorous and dramatic work, these artists touch the chords of pathos, patroitism and humor worth entertaining their audience everywhere they go. They are coming on the regular Lyceum Course, Voorhees Chapel, College Hill, on the night of March 22. They will make everyone feel happy and joyfully for two weeks, provided you are fortunate to be in the audience. Don't miss this number.

BASEBALL

The curtain will soon rise on the last of the feature acts of Maryville College Athletics. The first two acts have been truly successful and have made a big hit, but the last promises to be the star attraction of the whole 1919-1920 show.

With a wealth of material available and an extraordinary complete and attractive schedule arranged by Manager Cotton the 1920 season promises to be a hummer. F. G. Ruble has been chosen to lead the Highlander nine through the coming season and with such a man at the helm we are confident of a season of succes.

Among the last year's men who are back are, Ruble, Davidson, Wagner, Lowry, Weisbecker, Hicks, Cotton and McCall. Also there are several men here this year who are baseball men of pre-war fame: McClenagan, a member of the star 1917 team, Cox, and D. Jones. Some of the new men who should show up well according to the "dope-sheet" are: Anderson of Milligan, Partee of the Middle Tennessee State Normal, Rowan of Tusculum, Joseph of Rockwood, Williams of Harriman and McCullough.

While the schedule has not been altogether completed and the dates have not been permanently fixed, the following will give a general idea of the content of the schedule:

MARYVILLE BECOMES CHAMPION IN TRIANGULAR DEBATE CONTEST

Home Team Scores a Unanimous Decision.

Monday evening, March 8 was an evening of triumph for the Maryville Debaters, and an evening of defeat for Tusculum and Emory and Henry.

The Maryville College Debaters won a double victory Monday evening in the triangular debate with Tusculum and Emory and Henry. The two undefeatable teams with excellent coaching by Professor Hunter and the excellent work of the captains, Jimmy James and Bill Holmes made the work of the Maryville teams far superior to that of their opponents.

The evening started with a few rousing yells led by Cody and McGrath. This was followed by Invocation by Professor Orr. The quartet then rendered a selection which was appreciated very much by the audience.

By this time every one was eagerly waiting for the fray to begin. R. W. Wright, the chairman of the debate made a short introductory speech emphasizing the importance of deciding wisely, such important questions as Prohibition of Immigration; as it would play an important part in determining the future of the nation. He ended his speech by introducing the debaters.

Arnold, led off the debate in a cool and convincing way. He showed in his speech that the large immigration had changed from Northern Europe to Southern Europe. He was followed by Chandler, who supported the negative. He emphasized the fact that only restriction of immigration was necessary. He had an excellent voice and delivered his statements with forceful gestures.

"Caminetti" Ogon followed with his constructive speech. He piled up fact after fact. He showed that the foreign born population lived in colonies apart from American influence. He based much of his argument on the plea that our present immigrant population is not being Americanized. Rankin was the second speaker for the negative. He brought out in his speech that the evils attributed to immigration is due to other sources.

Bill Holmes followed and it was soon evident that he had had experience in debating by the ease he showed on the floor. He showed that the problem of assimilating 11,000,000 foreigners already in this country was as great a problem as we could deal with without allowing the complexity of the problem to grow by admitting more. He closed his speech by a plea for three years time for distribution of labor from congested districts where labor is needed.

Gray of Tusculum followed Holmes and true to his appearance he strengthened the argument of the negative by showing that Prohibition of immigration would create an unfriendly feeling among our foreign neighbors; and that prohibition of immigration would mean reduction of labor when labor is most needed. He closed by a plea for restriction and not prohibition of immigration.

The enthusiasm was not shown in such quantity until the rebuttal. The main issue seemed to be the discussion of whether there was a labor shortage. Arnold showed that labor shortage was only apparent and not actual. Ogan with his sledgehammer blows tore up the argument of Tusculum. On the negative, the contestants fought hard and made drive after drive trying to pierce the argument of the affirmative. Gray, especially made a wonderful rebutal.

But Holmes clinched the debate

Negative Team Debated Twice To Get The Victory.

The persistent efforts of Maryville's Negative Debate Team and their final triumph constitute one of the most dramatic chapters in the history of intercollegiate relations at Maryville. The team reached Emory Monday at 6 o'clock and at 7:45 took the floor against the Emory and Henry College team. Before the debate began it was announced that the decision was in the hands of two judges, for the tnird man had found it impossible to come only at the last moment and a substitute had been secured. But this substitute proved to be a trustee of Emory and Henry. His official connection, however, was not known to the committee in charge of arrangements and they were the first to suggest that he be ruled out. At the debate, when the decision was announced, one vote was for the affirmative, and one for the negative.

A very pleasant social hour followed and at the flashing of the lights even Stanton consented to leave the scene of festivities and seek lodging for the night. In the morning the suggestion was broached that a repetition of the debate before a new set of judges would be much more satisfactory to both schools and so with only thirty minutes time to spare the Emory and Henry authorities were located and the proposal laid before them, that both teams go to Bristol or Johnson City, secure a new jury of three before whom to repeat the debate. We should like to say right here that Emory and Henry is fair and square and game. They gave our boys a royal welcome and cordial treatment, and they met this proposal in a fine sportsmanlike spirit.

Hurry-up plans were agreed upon and at 1:30 the stage was once more set for the debate. This time the scene was not a beautiful well-appointed auditorium such as had served the night before, but the low-ceilinged, bare, and stuffy sample room of the Hotel Virginia at Bristol.

A gentlemens' agreement between the two teams resulted in a virtual verbatim repetition of the speeches of the preceding night. But on this second occasion the audience consisted only of the judges, the two coaches, and Emory and Henry's negative team enroute home from Tusculum. Mr. J. W. Douthat, the first affirmative speaker is a forceful and eloquent debater who on both occasions made a very favorable impression. "Red" Stanton followed and it is no slight thing to say that "Red" made the speech of his life. It was his strong fiery presentation of the negative position which gave Maryville the lead that was never overcome throughout the entire debate. Mr. M. L. Blevins continued the argument for Emory and Henry and made an earnest and effective attack on the negative stronghold. Then Frank Minarik came along and made 'em big. Frank was debating for his first time in intercollegiate debate and he certainly is a comer. Every one who commented on the work of our team was loud in praise of his work in this debate. Mr. V. C. Wolfe, the last affirmative man, is a peculiarly convincing debater. His argument in advocacy of sound Americanism was very forceful and impressive. "Jimmy" James closed the constructive argument as only "Jimmy" can. Every one who knows Maryville debating for the last decade ranks James as one of the very best ever developed here. This debate was his last as a collegian and it was a splendid consummation of a great record on the forensic stage.

The rebuttal speeches were full

U. T. GAME

On last Saturday evening the Knoxville Y.M.C.A. basketball court was the scene of a rough-house battle between Maryville and the University of Tennessee. Although the scoremen declared the Volunteers winners by a score of 26 to 25 it was only by counting a field goal caged several seconds after the blowing of the referee's whistle that they were able to manoeuver a defeat into a victory.

From the very first the Volunteers attacked in a rough and foul manner which completely prevented the running of the wonderful Highlander game into a free-for-all battle-royal. Perceiving the uselessness of attempting to play basketball against the charging, blocking, and other football tactics brought into play their knowledge and abilities along the line of football and defeated their opponents at their own game.

The sole and only reason advanced by the Highlanders for not walking from the floor after the first few minutes of play was the ray of hope that, in spite of the raw deal and all the rough stuff, Dame Fortune might favor them and carry them out on top.

The officiating of Proffitt and Sandberg was most unsatisfactory and decidedly poor. There may have been a reason for it, but it seemed that Proffitt failed to exert his official authority in upholding his decision.

The game was in no way a credit to either school nor to either team, and it shall always be thought of with regret and with contempt. The unpleasant character of the contest defies further description.

The line-up and score was reported as fololws:

Tennessee		Maryville
Troutman 10	f.	Wagner 6
Bell 4	f.	Hendrick
Moss 10	c.	Carter 13
James 2	g.	Cullis 2
McCabe	g.	Montgomery

Substitution: Cotton (4) for Hendrick.

Officials: Proffitt and Sandberg.

PRAYER MEETING

Ambitious Sophomores Discuss Ambition.

The Wednesday evening meeting was led by the members of the Sophomore Class. Mr. Sharpe opened the discussion with a talk on the ambitions which lead to service, and especially service to one's country. Several worthwhile statements were made concerning ambition in general. Ambition sends young people to college while duty drives them to classes. All men are ambitious, but the various methods of realizing one's ambition accounts for the difference in men. The duty of a citizen does not consist of merely obeying laws in fear, but thru the true citizenship. The desire which actuates a motive is what counts. Just to get by, is ambitionless and parasitical. The accomplishment of every task makes for the realization of the ambition.

Miss Grace Sydenstricker told the story of a boy whose great ambition was to secure revenge for insults received. The scene was laid in Jerusalem. The lad was being made bitter by his craving for revenge when a passing camel driver showed him the beauty of the true religion. As soon as the boy realized he was a joint heir with Christ his ambition changed from revenge to service for his fellow-men.

Forrest Brown closed the discussion by being ambitious to serve God. He used Christ's last parable as a setting. Christ is the vine and we are the branches, every fruitless branch must perish. The union with Christ creates an ambition for service. All must live close to God in order to serve him. The grace of God sustains all our efforts. The fruitless barren branches are burned there will come also the realization while the good fruit receives eternal life. To serve, is to have an ambition of service. No christian can be without Ambition.

"When The Beatitudes Walk The Campus"

The Y. W. service on Sunday afternoon was led by Miss Ethel Doctor, who had as her subject "When the Beatitudes Walk the Campus." Miss Doctor told us of a picture, that we have doubtless seen that of a little child leading a lion, a wolf, a lamb and a leopard—"and a little child shall lead them." When the beatitudes walk the campus of the prophecy of that picture.

The beatitudes were taken separately and explained, and we were shown what part we have in bringing about the day of the walking of the beatitudes upon our campus.

And if the time comes, when we who walk the campus shall personify the beatitudes, when the proud, the unmerciful, the unclean and the weak shall walk together in perfect love and unity. Then shall come also the time when the wild nature of animals shall be subdued and the lion shall walk with the lamb and a little child shall lead us all to the Master's feet, where we shall dwell with Him in that peaceful and heavenly kingdom.

A piano solo was beautifully rendered by Miss Mabel Webb.

Miss Ada Roberts has not been able to attend classes the last few days.

Miss Carry Gouch left Tuesday, to spend the week resting in her brother's home in Erwin.

by boiling down the argument to three issues; Labor supply, International relations, and needs of the U. S. vs. needs of Europe. When he had finished there was hardly anything left of the ruins of Tusculum's argument.

Great was the suspense while the Judges were waited on. Miss Whitlock rendered a piano solo. Then R W. Wright read the decision of the Judges, the decision being unanimous for Maryville.

The men from Tusculum were a good team of losers and in the reception which followed the debate they proved to be a fine bunch of fellows. We are glad to have such kind of men visit College Hill.

ALPHA SIGMA

Society opened Saturday with a large crowd present. After the roll call a musical number was rendered by society, America led by Howard McGrath.

Election of officers for the Spring term followed.

Since the changing of two amendments, all Alpha Sigmas should be present. Everyone should take an interest in the society and work to his utmost to help.

VESPERS

A lesson in optimism was the keynote of the Vesper service. The text was taken from the book of Isaiah 38:15. "I shall go softly all my years in the bitterness of my soul." Truly all have felt as Hezekiah who felt badly when he was in the best of health as he thought of the bitterness in store. To most, life at times seems barren and not worth the candle. R. L. Stevenson teaches a great lesson the very opposite of our hero in the scriptures.

Sick men's minds are abnormal and we are forced to agree with the Christian Scientist that pain is abnormal. It was pain that prompted the question on the cross. So that in this land of counterpain there is much of gloom and tragedy. Yet there is much to learn; man's extremity is God's opportunity. It is in this hour that men are made greater through his redeeming power. But it must not be forgotten that they may be made worse. For example Richard of Gloucester thought he had been defrauded of his physical rights and resolved to become a devil. Gloom, darkness and bitterness is dispelled by unselfish service. Men have fellowship with Jesus as they suffer with him. "He made the Captain of our salvation perfect through suffering."

THE SUFFRAGE LEAGUE

It was at 6:30. It was in Bainonian Hall. Then and there a lively band of Suffragettes met for their regular meeting last Monday night, March the first. The program was as follows:

Piano Solo - - - Hattie Hayes
Talk on History of Woman Suffrage - - - - Licia Johnson
Vocal Solo - - Josephine Hamilton
Presidential Possibilities - - - - - - - - - Mary Mason

Miss Mason's report was quite interesting. She enumerated the possible candidates of either party, discussing the character and abilities of each.

This was followed by an informal discussion by all of other current events as well as of the "presidential timber". New ideas and suggestions for future programs were discussed.

Indeed, an all-round, lively time and be it known on College Hill that the Suffragettes are "alive"—not merely in name and in existence but we are "Johnny on the Spot", and it won't take long to learn our new work. Why the club is knee deep in earnest. And when you get a crowd like the Suffragettes of Maryville College in the lead you've got to keep step or else you'll be waking up some morning at 7:20 and find yourself left behind—out-o'-sight—and the Suffragettes are gone to breakfast.

Look in his face to meet thy neighbor's soul,
Not on his garment to detect a hole.

A STARRY NIGHT AT BAINONIAN

The regular meeting was held in Bainonian Hall last Saturday night. The program was opened with a piano solo by Hattie Hayes. Then, amid the ardent cheers of the society Professor Knapp came forward to speak. He believes in having a hobby for it makes life much more pleasant. One hobby he recommended was bird study. How charming it is to recognize your bird friends when you see them and to know their songs!

The other hobby recommended was the study of the stars. It is nice to know the stars and what they are made of. How interesting are the mythological stories of the constellations! Most of us know very little of Astronomy and yet it is a most fascinating study. It is one of the most ancient sciences and is found among the Chinese back as far as 2500 B. C.

Professor Knapp traced its development from this early date up to the present time giving in particular the important part which William Herschel played in its development.

When he had finished and the society was dismissed a great many would not leave until they heard Professor Knapp tell just a little bit more about the stars. The Bainonians declared their firm intentions of studying Astronomy the very next time that course is given.

KNOXVILLE HIGH WINS IN TOURNAMENT

In the closest and most hotly contested game staged on the local court this season the Knoxville High quintet won the prep school championship of East Tennessee on Tuesday afternoon by defeating the Cental High fie 22 to 20. The game was the concluding contest of the tournament which was held here several weeks ago. After winning their way through the tournament in which ten other schools were represented, they refused for financial reasons to play the final championship game until after the annual City-County fray at the Knoxville Y. M. C. A. The annual game which was played last Friday evening resulted in a victory for Knoxville High by a score of 18 to 16.

Both teams showed a brand of basketball which would put some college teams to shame. From the first it was evident that each quintet considered itself engaged in a life and death struggle, but their eagerness to obtain victory did not in any way impair the openness of the game. It was the inability of the Central forwards to shoot goals from the field that ultimately caused their defeat, as the summary showed tht each C. H. S. forward had only one field goal to his credit at the end of the game. Keister and Crittendon clung so closely to the Central forwards that they would have made the renowned beach seem A.W.O.L. Shanton led in the scoring for K. H. S. and starred consistently. DeMarcus, the lanky center, was the main strength of the Central team as he scored 12 of their total of 22 points.

The final whistle found the two teams tied. An additional five minutes was agreed upon and Crittendon secured the winning goal.

Cody presented the winner's cup to Captain Crittendon and the second honor cup to Captain Sterling.

The line-up:

Central		Knoxville High
Sterling 2,	f.	Shanton 12
Snodderly 2,	f.	Dean 2
DeMarcus 12	c.	Donahue 2
Johnson 2	g.	Keister 2
Brooks	g.	Crittendon 2

of spice and point. Every man made effective assault on his opponents' position. The judges: President Naffsinger of Virginia Intermont College, Judge Floyd Roberts, and Rev. J. L. Rosser, all of Bristol; voted, one for Emory and Henry and two for Maryville. Emory and Henry lost as they fought, like gentlemen and good sportsmen. We like their spirit and shall give them a hearty welcome when they invade the Hill next year.

These two victories mark Maryville as the undisputed title holder of the Triangle.

AFTER PRAYER

By George T. Liddell

Up from the depth of danger,
Out of the battle's dull roar,
We cried unto God and He heard us,
He answered our prayers, and more.
We called on His Name and we promised
To follow wherever He led,—
And today rings the challenge from Heaven,
"Now prove that you meant what you said."

Our phrases were high and inspiring,
Our slogans were "Justice" and "Right",
And "God was the God of our nation
"And His, not ours, was the fight".
And God has kept faith with His people,
Kept faith with the living and dead,—
And now His New Era commands us,
"Go prove that you meant what you said."

Our brave words of faith and of promise,
O Men, may we never forget,
For a holier cause now is calling,
And the Master believes in us yet.
And so long as a sinner needs saving,
So long as the hungry need bread,
May we give of our hearts and our treasure,
And prove that we meant what we said.

VOLUME FIVE — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, MARCH 25, 1920. — NUMBER TWENTY-THREE

FINAL BASKETBALL GAME OF SEASON RESULTED IN ANOTHER VICTORY FOR M. C.

NOT A GAME LOST THIS SEASON ON THE HOME COURT BY EITHER BOYS' OR GIRLS' TEAM. GIRLS LOSE ONLY ONE GAME. INGLE AND SAMSEL PLAY BRILLIANT GAME.

The Maryville College co-ed basket ball team ended a very successful season on Friday evening, March 19th, by defeating the Martha Washington quintet by the narrow margin of 8 to 7.

The Martha Washington aggregation invaded Maryville with the expectation of repeating the performance of March 2nd., but the Highland lassies came out triumphant by one point, thus duplicating the glowing record made by the boys' basket ball team in making every game played on the home court this season a victory for M. C.

The game was unanimously proclaimed the best girls' contest witnessed here this season. Despite the fact that Maryville retained the lead throughout the greater part of the game, the final outcome was always in doubt, even up to the last minute of play. Maryville obtained her greatest lead when the score stood 6 to 3 at the end of the first period and was in serious danger in the second when her opponents scored 4 to her 2.

The skilled work demonstrated by the guards of both teams prevented the scoring of but three field goals during the entire game. Many fouls were levied but neither side profited very consistently therefrom.

The stars which scintillated most brightly in Maryville's firmament were Misses Ingle and Samsel, while Misses G. Cole and Browder were the mainstays of Martha Washington.

The Highlander co-eds have rolled up a total of 165 points against their opponents' 65 during the season of '19-'20, and have won 8 out of the 9 games played. Coach Weisbecker has reason to be justly proud of the quintet which won for itself such a splendid array of laurels.

The line-up and score of Friday's game was as follows:

Maryville (8)		Martha W. (7)
Dawson 2	f.	F. Cole 2
Bailey 6	f.	F. Rowland 5
Lloyd	c.	C. Ivey
Samsel	g.	G. Cole
Ingle	g.	G. Browder

Substitutions: Nuchols for Samsel; Garrison for Ivey.

The following table gives the games and scores of the season which has just closed:

Maryville 19	Young's High 0
Maryville 15	Cumberland C. 7
Maryville 12	Cumberland C. 7
Maryville 19	Union College 11
Maryville 34,	U. of T. 6
Maryville 23	U. of T. 11
Maryville 9,	Martha Washington 13
Maryville 26,	Tusculum 3
Maryville 8,	Martha Washington 7

A RE-ACTION AFTER EXAMS

Such a beautiful day! Why not celebrate with the unusual! Such were the thoughts and perhaps the spoken exclamations of a group of girls on Thursday afternoon. A hike was the order of the day, so gathering together kodaks, sweaters, etc., off they sped to enjoy the afternoon. They certainly were not disappointed in their selection of a diversion to drive dull care away. What fun they did have and how the kodak groaned because of its popularity! It would be inexpedient, of course to describe the hazardous assent to the top of a somewhat ancient (not to say rotten) barn, and the difficulties involved therein. Each member of the group attained the following rewards for utilizing a beautiful day—a splendid coat of mud on their shoes, thorns, watercress for sandwiches, and thoroughly tired bodies. However, all were bubbling over to tell someone of the superior merits of hiking. For further details see Verra, Lucile, Lina, Ruth, Addie, Iva, Lilah, or Mildred.

A FAREWELL FEAST

There was quite a joyous midnight feast on the third floor of Pearsons Saturday night, joyous but yet sad because the honoree left as soon as examinations were over. At about eleven o'clock when all honest folk, save school girls should be in their beds, there came a knock at the door, and the information was volunteered that they were keeping the whole hall awake. Of course they immediately quieted down, for the time being—and continued feasting. When full justice had been done to the feast, the guests crept noiselessly down the hall to their respective rooms. You can tell this because the Matron has already found it all out and meted out justice—just the same the names of the feasters will not be disclosed, suffice it to say Bernice Jones was the honoree. She has left for her home in Florida where she will stay a few weeks, and then will go to Carolina to teach in a mountain school. Miss Jones is very prominent in all the activities of the Hill, and will be sorely missed.

Harold Leyshon spent a few hours on the Hill last Wednesday morning renewing acquaintances with friends in Pearson and Carnegie halls. He has been for some time working on the Mobile Register, (Alabama) but is now with the Knoxville Journal and Tribune.

ARE YOU A DEMOCRAT?

Read This.

Hoover Club of the University of Virginia,

March 3, 1920.

To the Editor of the College Paper,
Dear Sir:

In order to give expression to a rather widespread opinion among the students and members of the Faculty at this institution in favor of Herbert Hoover as the next President of the United States, approximately two hundred students and professors met together here recently and organized the Hoover Club. According to the Constitution of the Club, the purpose of its members is to stimulate interest in the nomination of Mr. Hoover by the Democratic Party by securing the organization of similar clubs thruout Virginia and in other American colleges and universities, and to use all proper methods possible to endeavor to crystalize sentiment in behalf of Herbert Hoover as the Democratic candidate.

To that end, therefore, we are writing to request you to give publicity to this letter in the columns of your paper and to solicit your cooperation in trying to accomplish our purposes. We feel that Mr. Hoover's success in the difficult tasks which he has undertaken during the past few years; his accurate knowledge of the great problems, both domestic and foreign, confronting our country at the present time; his intimate acquaintance with the conditions in almost every nation in the world; and his recognized ability as an administrator and a business man, coupled with his broad human sympathy and idealism eminently fit him to lead this country through the next four years.

Although our primary purpose is to try to bring about Mr. Hoover's nomination by the Democratic Party, many of the members of the Club here would support him regardless of his party affiliations. We believe, however, that his election can be brought about only through the Democratic Party. The leaders of the Republican Party appear to be too confident of victory in the coming elections to be persuaded to nominate one who is not a regular member of their organization. Therefore we are working solely for the Democratic nomination, at the same time calling upon all independents and Hoover Republicans to aid us.

The daily papers in this section have responded very liberally to our requests for publicity, and we believe you would find it very valuable to use the newspapers of your locality to make known your activities.

Please advise us as to your opinion with regard to this movement, and call upon us for any assistance we may be able to render.

Very respectfully yours,
Goodwyn Kuyk, Chairman,
Committee on Colleges and Universities.

A MEMORIAL BIRTHDAY PARTY

Saturday evening, Miss Ruby Carroll entertained a number of friends in her room, No. 26 Memorial Hall, in honor of her sister, Lida's birthday.

The room was beautifully decorated with Japanese lanterns, pink carnations and evergreens.

The gentlemen, attired in middies and bloomers, showed a marked devotion to their partners and throughout the evening there was much moonshining in the dark corners of the room.

A huge birthday cake covered with lighted candles was then brought in, and Lida Carroll succeeded in blowing out the candles in two puffs. After refreshments were served, the lights flashed, and the guests reluctantly departed.

A BIRTH

Last Thursday a daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. McCampbell in Knoxville. Mrs. McCampbell (Miss Alice Gillingham) was formerly a member of the faculty of Maryville College. The Echo extends congratulations to the parents.

Wednesday morning the child of Mr. James Irwin died at his home and will be buried today. The faculty and students extend their sympathy to the bereaved parents.

LIBERTY BELLES MADE A BIG HIT

An Excellent Program Was Rendered.

On Monday night, The Liberty Belles gave the sixth number of our lyceum course. The company was composed of Miss De Mont, contralto and violinist, Miss Harding, soprano and impersonator, and Miss Vera Crain, pianist and reader. The first part of the program consisted of classical numbers which were very successfully and artistically rendered. Then the spirit of our forefathers and the revolution was brought to us in costume and in song. Following this were costumes of civil war days and more of the old songs we like to hear. Costumes of the recent war were used in the last part of the program and then it was the ukuleles made their appearance. The program was variety and surprises from beginning to end and the audience was pleased with all of it. We may also add that The Liberty Bells with their talent and charm and pleasantways made not "a friend or two", but a host of friends on College Hill.

FORMER ECHO EDITOR VISITS HILL

Bob Adams paid a flying visit to M. C. on Wednesday of last week. He has been working since last October on the Mobile Register (Alabama), but resigned his position on that paper to accept a better one with the Asheville Citizen (North Carolina).

"Bob" is making good at the newspaper game and says his experience as editor-in-chief of the Echo has been of inestimable value to him in his work.

A LETTER FROM DICK OLIVER

Student Volunteer Band,
Maryville College,
Maryville, Tenn.

Dear Fellow Servants in Christ:

Letter Number One makes its appearance from one "Dick", recently honored by participating of your fellowship and united to you by that blessed and only "Tie that binds", Jesus Christ and His cross.

How I thank God for you and for allowing me to come to Maryville to be one of you. It has been one of the most wonderful experiences of my life to be at Maryville where God so wonderfully worked in the hearts of young people. What greater joy is there in all the world, than the joy of winning souls to Jesus? And then you people are all so good and so kind-hearted that one could not wish for greater hospitality. I did appreciate the home-made candy so much. I had a good time eating it and found that it was so good, that your warning about getting sick were entirely unnecessary.

Often within the last few weeks, I have asked the Lord to bless you, and have prayed that those lives that were touched might be wholly consecrated to His service and that the Holy Spirit might fill the heart of each one of you.

I have received word from Dr. Wilson of the death of Miss Andes. It was with the thought of 1 Thes. 4:13 in mind that I was able to rejoice when I received the news. I remember talking with her and I was impressed with the way the Lord had worked in her life that week and how she had been used of him in the winning of souls. I remember her saying that she had surrendered all of her plans to the Lord and that she was hoping He would use her in His service, not knowing God's plan for her future yet she trusted His plans to be the best. How much better to be with Jesus! What a happy though short life of fellowship she had with Jesus! I am sure that her testimony lives among the students.

O Volunteers, are we so fully surendered to God's will that whether we ever reach the foreign fieldor not, we are living witnesses for Him! Am "I bearing much fruit" by "abiding in Him" today? If not can I expect to be used of Him when my student days are over?

I think the most effective way to win souls is through prayer. And yet how little time we give to real intercession. I feel that I have miserably fallen short of God's will for my prayer life. But I am trusting him to make me the intercessor that I should be. I am so glad that praying is not an art in the sense that we ourselves must have "talent" for to be "accomplished in". It is not of ourselves, for "we know not how to pray as we ought, but The Spirit Himself maketh intercession for us". (Rom. 8:26) I believe that a true prayer life comes from the Holy Spirit infilling. (Gal. 5:22) That makes it accessible to each one of us, for we are all commanded to 'Be filled with the Spirit" (Eph. 5:18), as our greatest christian privilege.

And so I believe that the chief business of our band, as a group of soul winners, should be intercessory prayer. We ought to have prayer meetings (I say "we" because though sundered far—we all can meet around one common mercy seat") for the different countries that are still in heathen darkness. We can pray for missionaries, the native evangelists, the native christians; we can pray that God will "thrust forth laborers into the harvest", that missionaries that really know and preach the Gospel of the Blood of Jesus will be sent out to the fields, and that christians we know may be led to yield their lives

Have you ever thought that if everybody studied all the time like all do during examinations that we would have a most wonderful Hill? It does look that way, but if we did really study so hard, we would find this place unbearable. We would know so much that we could graduate in about two years, and that would never do. We would study so much that we would have no time for athletics, which would be dreadful. We would use so many candles that the supply in town would give out. We would be so good and so quiet that matrons and proctors would be useless. The present ones would automatically lose their positions, and think how sad that would be. And so, after all, isn't it better to go on as we have always done, studying some, playing some, developing the complete man, not his intellect only?

ALPHA SIGMA

Vital Subjects Discussed

The Alpha Sigma program had its enjoyable feature along with its instructive value. Most every phase of College Life was presented. The speakers' interpretations of their topics was given so clearly that each phase served to make the whole of college life only more attractive. The speeches were given by men who had "been there". Huskey related his first appearance on College Hill. Cotton discussed Football, the manly game that requires not so much skill as endurance and grit. The game, basket ball requiring even more skill than foot ball was discussed by A. W. Cullis. Many reasons were given for the participations in these sports, but the chief one was playing for the love of the game! Lawson gave the "Why, How and When" of studies. J. M. Cox ended the discussion of assigned topics by showing the value of the literary society to the individual. Moonshine was then ably discussed by Weisbecker, Marquis, and Callahan, all veterans in the art. Tucker, Sergeant-at-Arms and Sheffey, editor were sworn in at this meeting. After singing the familiar college song, the meeting closed. A large number attended the well rendered program.

PROF. BASSETT LEADS WEDNESDAY EVENING MEETING MARCH 10TH.

Professor Bassett gave an illuminating account of the Resurrection. At the basis and as a foundation of christianity is faith. Peter declared Him the Son of God, by faith. By faith, on the testimony of the witnesses was the early church reared.

The proofs of the Resurrection were that if Christ did not rise from the dead, then He was an ordinary man. Again, if death conquered Him, what was the use of the crucifixion? Would he prove the victor of the tomb? The disciples did not look for Him, they had lost hope, but on learning He had risen, new zeal inspired them to build the structure that is the church of today.

Professor Bassett disposed of the story of stealing the body in masterful manner. He showed the difficulties the disciples would have encountered; the Roman guard, the weight of the dead body, the difficulty of concealing it, and besides all this, did the disciples have the morale? No, they fled at the trial and at the final scene on Calvary.

He closed with the appeal that "He is risen". Since He is risen He is a conquering Saviour—an intercessor—and He shall come again the way He went away.

The double quartet furnished the special music.

VESPERS

SUNDAY, MARCH 14

Dr. Stevenson took issue with the medical profession on the subject of enlarged heart. He set forth three propositions that would enable one to live a better and longer life by an enlargement of the heart. This malady would give an increase of wisdom; an increase of faith; and an increase of joy. The beauty of the disease is that all who aspire can attain it. With it all are enabled to run the race that is set before them. It is necessary adjunct to the calling of the heights of duty. The Psalmist never asks that the standard be lowered, but that he may be inspired to reach them. To carry this larger heart it is necessary that every superflous weight be cast aside. The precepts of right living can and must be held as they form the ballast, and enable one to carry the wider spread of sail which is necessary with an enlarged heart.

The secret of christian progress, depends on the motive power within us. There is no room for self excuses with the large heart. Men rise triumphant over their dead selves with this enlarged implement. As the heart enlarges every doubt and vain desire vanishes and is turned to service.

SUNDAY, MARCH 21

"What profiteth us if we pray?" This question found in the book of Job 21:15 was the theme of the evening's discussion. Every generation asks this question and tries to find other answers. It seems that religious questions are always open. Not so with scientific, for a fact once declared is settled or chaos would be the result. Why not in religious truth? Prayer is a moral force although enshrouded in mystery. But so is electricity and it is used by every one. Prayer is both reasonable and profitable. All are led to it. Its desire is universal; all men in all ages have used payer. The practical results of prayer is best illustrated by the prayer life of Moses. Prayer gave him that wonderful personality. Paul was a man of prayer who had a prayerful dependence on God. Prayer is not a demand, but a request—a communion—not binding or bargaining with God. It is as a child approaching a father with a request. Prayer is a divine protection—a vesture, a defence that surrounds one with a heavenly atmosphere.

The pastor concluded with the story of Gilalai and his pupil Ezra, As the pupil grew he became independent in thought from the master and stopped his prayer habits. On being rebuked he replied that since God was all-providing he would take care of him. A few days later Ezra found the old teacher in the garden lost in deep thought. Gilalia told Ezra he was much troubled about a farmer friend who had sold all his tools and was henceforth depending on the father. Ezra declared the farmer a fool. Then said his teacher "You are the man".

SAINT PATRICK'S DAY CELEBRATED BY A PRAYER MEETING

Mrs. Alexander spoke on the Apostle to Ireland the evening of St. Patrick's day. A suitable introduction was provided by Miss M. Campbell who read one of the few pieces of literature from the hand of the saint.

The name of St. Patrick has lived thru five centuries, and why it has lived was the substance of the address. St. Patrick was captured by a marauding band of Irish pirates and taken to Ireland from his home in Scotland. He later escaped and fled to France. There he had a vision of a letter calling him to come and live in Ireland. He did return and brought the knowledge of the Christ to the people.

He succeeded through four qualities of his personality. He was humble, and in testimony to this his resting place has the single word—Patrick, inscribed on the boulder. He had abundant kindness which won over all men. He was self-sacrificing. He was enthusiastic and aflame with the love of God. These were the elements that won Ireland in his generation to Christ. Thru his influence there were built 385 churches and beside each church a school. He had the greatest success of any known missionary and many missionaries went out under his direction to preach the word.

The call comes to each one to give of himself as did St. Patrick and A. Jackson who placed himself as a barrier to stop the bubonic plague and gave his life.

The boys' quartet gave an old favorite hymn as the special music.

JUNIOR ATHENIANS START TERM WITH PEP

It was a goodly crowd that met in the Junior Athenian Hall, Saturday evening, to witness and take part in the first program of the Spring term.

In his address, President King earnestly urged that every member should do himself and the society justice by being punctual and regular. He said, "It is up to us to make the most of those few last meetings."

The debate, Resolved, that Ireland should be given Home Rule, was very instructive. The negative line held by Jody and Hamby "proved beyond doubt" that Ireland did not need or even want Home Rule. The affirmative side held by Cornelius and Milling, proved equally as convincing. The crash came in the rebutal when Cornelius put the steam roller over Jody's argument that the Phillipines have as much right to independence as Ireland. But in this as in all life issues, one must be either "for or against", so the judges decided for the affirmative.

Boys, if you want to enjoy a few minutes each Saturday evening, just come up once and "get into the game." Can you afford to deny your better self?

BAINONIAN

Bainonian met as usual last Saturday night at 6:30. The meeting was opened with a prayer by Helen Lewis. Since this was the last meeting of the term the officers for the spring term were elected.

Miss Emily Montgomery, a former member of the Class of '21, has been honored upon several occasions by the student body of Wooster College. She has recently been chosen Queen of the May, which is the highest honor bestowed by the school upon the girls of the student body. Miss Montgomery was selected to represent Wooster at the women's conference at Wilson College Pennsylvania but was later chosen as a delegate to the Des Moines Conference which interferred with going to the conference in Pennsylvania. We are always delighted to see Maryville students make good, wherever they may be.

PRESIDENT INAUGURATED

New Officers Begin Work in Junior Alpha Society.

At the meeting of the Junior Section of the Alpha Sigma Literary Society last Saturday night most of the time was given over to transacting of business. The officers elected for the Spring term took the oath of office and entered upon their new duties. These officers are Mr. Szilagyi, president; Mr. Youell, vice president; Mr. Hargraves, program secretary; Mr. Davidson, recording secretary; Mr. May, Sargeant-at-Arms; Mr. Crum, janitor; and Mr.. Franklin, editor.

The retiring president, Mr. Hargraves, in a short address expressed his appreciation of the support and co-operation given him during his term of office, and urged the new officers to continue the work that had been begun. The society then voiced its appreciation of the service Mr. Hargraves had rendered, and gave him a rising vote of thanks for his good administration.

A discussion of the work of the society for the term followed, plans for the debate between the Junior Athenians and Junior Alphas were completed, and proposals for increasing the efficiency and helpfulness of the society were received with favor.

A statement by the new president, Mr. Szilagyi, of his plans for bettering the society doing his term of office met with enthusiasm.

With such a start, the Junior Alphas hope to make the Spring term a memorable one, and they invite all the fellows interested in real literary work to join them in this.

THETA EPSILON

On Saturday night before going to the Movies, Minnie Hunter recited two excellent little readings. These were followed by a pleasing rendition of a violin solo by Ruth Baker Licia Johnson gave an extemporaneous talk on, Should students go to movies. She decided that Seniors should. Miss Helen Park read some jokes picked up here and there. Elsie Dawson sang a solo and a quartet composed of Margaret Newell, Ruth Kain, Mamie Witherspoon and Elizabeth Gouffoun was heard in a medley. After the critics report and repeating of the motto the society adjourned.

REWARD!

The girls of Pearsons Hall will be very glad to give a suitable reward (such as a smile, or a sweet, 'I thank you") to anyone who will free the hall of rats. No sooner do the lights go out than the whole rat town gets busy. The rats wander through the rooms, eating orange seed, candy, and other delectable foods, nibbling new kid gloves (they never attack old ones), hiding handkerchiefs and papers. And worst of all making a great deal of noise. Traps do no good, for they run off with them; poison does no good for they have lived in an educational atmosphere so long that they know not to touch it. The girls are convinced that the pied piper of Hamlin should return and visit Maryville, but, alas, they do not know his address. Can't some bright person suggest a solution to the rat question, or rather problem?

BAINONIAN

Saturday night, March 20th, the opening meeting of the Spring Term was held. A large number was present and the new term of the society began with a great deal of enthusiasm.

The officers for the new term took the oath of office, after which the following program was rendered:

Piano Solo - - Robbie Chescher
Current Events - - - Ruth Allen
Extemporaneous Speeches:
"Fashions" - - Florence Oates
"Hobbies of The Faculty" - - - - - - - Edith Moore
"Love Affairs of The Matrons" - - - Mary Louise Hayes
Sketch of Anderson's Life - - - - - - Mildred Campbell
Opera—Hansel and Gretchel
Cast of Characters
Hansel - - Jeannette Hibbert
Gretchel - - - Mildred Kimble
Father - - - Flora Strong
Step-Mother - - Helen Lewis

After the report of the different critics the meeting closed with prayer. Each girl returned to her room well satisfied with the way she had spent this part of the evening.

for service wherever God wants them. We can pray for one another that we may be continually filled with the Spirit, abiding in Him, and led and directed in every detail in the will of God. Rather than seeing the weakness of the "babes in Christ" around us and the worldliness of the "earnest christians", we can pray that they be strengthened and increased in the Lord.

Doubtless you have these prayer meetings, but shall we not each one spend more time in the closet of prayer, whether alone or in groups? I believe that the Lord would have me do so, and I am trusting Him to that end.

I know that we all want to be led directly by the Lord in every detail of our lives. I do not know what the Lord has planned for me beyond this semester at college. I have no desire to stay here at Northwestern, but rather I hope that I shall be able to come to Maryville in the fall. I have told a good many of my friends here how well I like the school and I have been advertising you the best I can. Quite a number of Moody people had already planned to come in September, and I am pleased to report that others are thinking and praying about it. As for my own coming, I must wait until the Lord says 'Go" before I decide. Praise God that He never fails to give that definite guidance if we seek it without a will of our own to hinder Him!

Hoping to hear from you soon,
I am your brother in Christ Jesus,
By His Grace.
"Dick".

VOLUME FIVE | MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, APRIL 1, 1920 | NUMBER TWENTY-FOUR

PRACTICE GAME ENDS IN VICTORY FOR M. C.

All First String Men Were Given A Try-out.

The Maryville College base-ball nine made a flying start towards a season of victory by defeating the Walland "Bears" on Tuesday afternoon by a score of 6 to 1.

Walland began by throwing a man-sized scare into the Highlander bunch the first crack, but when Wagner reached up and pulled down what would have been a three-bagger and doubled at second Walland took a rear seat and remained quiet until the ninth. Although the mountain lads slapped out several scattered hits during the game they were unable to score until the ninth when Jeffries was allowed to make the circuit because of a series of errors.

Owing to the fact that Tuesday's game was a practice affair it seems wiser not to itemize the details of the game but to consider in this space the season's prospects as they were revealed.

Four of Maryville's five prospective moundsmen were seen in action on Tuesday,—as Williams was out because of an injured hand. It is apparent that Centra, a former Tusculum twirler, is a valuable asset to our base-ball outfit because of his batting as well as his pitching knack. Smith has an assortment of twisters which will doubtless win him a position on our pitching force. Merle, who hails from Virginia, shows form which bears the mark of experience. To pull out of a hole such as the one in which he found himself in the seventh is no small feat. Add to Weisbecker's 1919 reputation the fact that he possesses the same old smoke and coolness, and you will have him sized up properly.

Behind the bat Davidson, Hicks, and Benfield reside. "Davy" has the judgment, self-confidence, and steadiness which are the prime requisites of an A number one backstop. The way he poles out that pill is another big winning quality to his credit. Hicks and Benfield are promising candidates but as yet are lacking in experience.

Captain Ruble and McCullough are holding down the first-sack position in a laudable style. We are contemplating the revision of base-ball rules so as to have two first sacks and then be able to retain both men.

With McClenagan or Cox guarding second, Lowry or Cotton holding short, Partee or Anderson playing third, U. T. will take one farewell glance and throw up the sponge in despair.

Out in the left garden Wagner shines out like a star. The way he sacked them in all last season and again on Tuesday wins for him a record rarely excelled or even rivalled in collegiate base-ball. In center that Tusculum man Rowan is certainly master of his pinnacle. We don't doubt but what he makes a miss sometimes but it is an experience yet in store for the writer of this article to witness such an occurance. McCall, Carter and DeLozier occupy the right garden. McCall, the only one of the three who was given the opportunity to prove his fielding ability on Tuesday, showed himself to be a worthy claimant for the right-field position.

A total of nineteen Highlander diamond artists performed against Walland, but now that the grinding-down process is under way it is likely that by April 1st. a much more concentrated aggregation will take the field.

The officers which were recently elected to direct the Y.W.C.A. next year are:

President - - Martha Robison
Vice President - - - Edith Moore
Secretary - - - Bernice Jones
Treasurer - - Nina B. Caldwell

ENORMOUS BUILDING TO BE CONSTRUCTED

To Contain Dining Hall, Class Rooms and Lecture Hall.

What is to be Maryville College's most up-to-date, efficient and largest piece of equipment for the education of young Americans has just recently been started on its way to completion. This piece of equipment is in the form of a building, and is to be situated back of and facing the library.

The principal donor of funds toward the erection of this building is the widow of Mr. William Thaw, who up to the time of his death, was the principal Donor of Maryville College.

Fifty thousand dollars of the money to defray the expenses of the building have been subscribed and half of this sum has been received. The structure is to be a Memorial building.

The new hall will contain the boarding club, on the first floor and class rooms and a large lecture hall, on the second floor. The third floor is not to be completed at present.

This will be the largest building on the Hill, its dimensions being two hundred and fifteen feet by one hundred and forty feet to rear of the kitchen. The dining hall will be seventy-three feet long and seventy feet wide. It will be capable of being divided into three rooms, two of which will seat comfortably three hundred and fifty students each, and the center room will seat one hundred and ten, making a total of eight hundred and ten places.

There are to be three entrances to the building, one on the north, one on the south, and one on the west side. The kitchen is to be in form of a wing at the back of the hall and will in itself form a large building. It will be two stories high and will have a basement. Its dimensions are to be seventy-five by sixty five feet. The people who have charge of the kitchen will occupy the second floor. The kitchen will contain all kinds of upto-date equipment.

The second floor is to contain eighteen class rooms and a large lecture hall. The lecture hall will be larger than the old chapel in Anderson Hall. The class rooms and lecture room will have all modern equipment. There will be two stair ways leading up to the second floor from the front of the building.

On account of disturbed conditions in the market it is hard to obtain building material. The new hall will not be opened in September as expected but in January.

The erection of the building is in charge of Mr. Graf the architect who drew the plans for new Carnegie Hall.

When the new hall is completed the dining room in Pearsons hall will be turned into rooms.

MR. PAUL SHAW ADDRESSED STUDENTS

In The Interests of The Foreign Student Association.

Wednesday morning the American and foreign students of Maryville College were addressed by Mr. Paul V. Shaw, in behalf of the foreign Students' Association in America.

Maryville College is rendering an international service by educating foreign students. The United States is the leading nation of the world and should teach students from other nations true ideals. The students from foreign countries that are in our midst today will in the near future be the leading men in their own country. These students will tell their people what they have learned from the Americans.

Often the wrong conception of a people is given by a representative of that people. Every foreign student should represent his own country worthily, study the American as he is and carry back to his own country a true conception of both sides of the American.

The attitude of America toward the foreigner should change. The death and resurrection of Christ should be taught to them as the only thing to save them. International friendship and world peace depends upon the teachings of Christ. Later in the day Mr. Shaw met the foreign students and had a conference with them.

SUNRISE EASTER SERVICE

The Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. will have a joint Easter Service on Baldwin lawn at 6 o'clock Sunday morning. This is one of the most distinctive features of Maryville life. Don't miss it!

THINGS TO WORRY ABOUT

Attention Dopesters!

All you dope-hounds gather round and let us put a beetle in your auditory apparatuses.

The facts so far as known are to-wit:— Our Honorable (?) Opponents the University of Tennessee take their best excuse for a basketball team to Atlanta, and guided more by nerve and providence than by reason, march boldly through the gate to the world tournament. Some few hours later they are a sadder and wiser crew with a 57 to 29 score chalked up against them by the A. A. C Anomalous as it may seem, the Atlantians evidently rang the Bell even if they did have Moss under their feet! But as the hearse rolls by with remains of the Yellow (and white) crew, we come to the real object of this article, to-wit, Altanta A. C. beats U. T. 57-29. The Atlanta A. C. is beaten by Detroit Y. M. Order 5-26.

The Detroit Y. M. O. beat the Ramblers on their (Rambler's) own floor 5 points. Maryville beat the Ramblers on their (Rambler's) own floor, under same conditions practically by 6 points. Now it is true that Maryville was bested by Vanderbilt on a night that was obviously an off one for Maryville, but it is equally true that the Ramblers walloped Vandy twice—the last time badly.

Well, its all over now, but if you don't get dopey doping out the dope, maybe you can see that little old "Marytown" had some team, and what couldn't they have done with a regular gym, and better conditions generally. We want them all back next year—we just got to have 'em—and that new gym too.

At a meeting of College students last Thursday evening, Mr. Lamar Wilson was elected Editor-in-Chief of The Highland Echo for next year.

STATE CONFERENCE WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Dr. Haas, Missionary to Turkey, Delivered Inspiring Address.

Dr. Cyril H. Haas, the only American doctor who remained in Turkey throughout the entire period of the war, was the guest of Dr. Stevenson during the past week-end. Few more horrible scenes were enacted during the war than those staged in Turkey. Life for everyone was a fleeting thing, half realized when present, scarce hoped for for the future, and easily lost when gained. Acts as black and tyrannous as those of the dark ages of history, opportunities and needs arose with miraculous insistancy; there were few to fill those places of need. Quick thought, quick action, instant faith in God were necessary. These were found in this man who came to Maryville with a message which because of its truth was forceful, its reality was insistant, its very presence was impelling. Dr. Haas was with us two days, he brought a revelation of action, immediate, unswervering and necessary. It should stir every normal college man and woman. Whether it does or not rests not upon the measure of his power, but upon ours. Are we measuring up to the greatest things, the greatest type, the greatest places of today?

Miss Edith M. Hazlett, secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement has by her guidance in the days of the Tennessee State Convention meant much. Her personality during the time here has brought satisfaction to some who before were wondering. For her willing service and ready friendliness we wish her great success and God speed in the place of her choice.

The Student Volunteer Union of East Tennessee, is now the Tennessee State Union. Officers for the next year are:

Mr. Patrick Clark, President, U. of T.; Mr. Berthold, Vice-President, Nashville; Miss Dorothy Dailey, Secretary, Knoxville; Mr. George Howell, Treasurer, Maryville.

Maryville as the scene of the organization of the first State Volunteer Union, the meeting-place of delegates from all over Tennessee is bound into a great union made up of colleges throughout Tennessee, the other states, U. S. and Canada. She is a part of the chain of unions whereby the Student Volunteer Movement of U. S. and Canada is the great organization it now is.

The past week-end meant much to many on the Hill. Others have taken back to other colleges something gotten at Maryville. Maryville herself came in for a share of that something which seemed worthwhile. Conventions do not exist for only a limited two days, but forever in the hearts of people and as the hearts of American institutions are keeping time with world events, is the pulse of Maryville going to slow down and weaken? How does our heart beat compare with that of the world at large?

NEWS FROM SYRIA

Miss Lois Wilson arrived safely at her destination in Syria and is strong, well, happy as a Jay bird, and is getting plenty to eat. She is situated at Sukel Gark, near the home of Mr. George McKenna whose people have visited her. At present she is studying the Arabic language and is advancing rapidly.

SECOND CHILD DIED

The death of another child of Mr. James Irwin occurred Wednesday, March 31. The child had measles which later developed into pneumonia. Faculty and students sympathize with Mr. Irwin and family in their bereavement.

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE FOR NEXT YEAR

Jellicorse Is To Lead The Highland Warriors.

While our interest is pre-eminently centered on the base-ball diamond, and while we are entertaining the fondest hopes and the highest expectations for the success of our representative nine, it may seem somewhat untimely to divert our attention abruptly to the grid-iron once more and to consider the prospects for the season 1920. But if by any power of constraint it is possible to forget the horse-hide and recall to mind the pig-skin for a time sufficient in length for the reading of this article, we will endeavor to summarize the prospects for the big grid-iron show to be staged here next Fall as they appear at present.

Although the team of 1919 was the first real football outfit Maryville had turned out since 1917, it was no slouch by any means, as any Maryvillian will proudly testify. But we have every reason to believe and little cause to doubt that the 1920 aggregation will out-shine that of 1919 fifty per cent and perhaps more.

Our greatest incentive for believing this is the fact that we will in all probability have a big man and a capable leader at the helm. Jellicorse, the worthy captain-elect will, according to the opinion of the other members of the team, return next Fall to take the reins of the squad, and, in so doing insure a season of success for the Orange and Garnet.

Manager Meade Johnson has arranged the unusually complete and attractive schedule which is listed below. Maryville need feel no anxiety in regard to the management of next season's grid outfit with such a man as Mr. Johnson in control.

It is expected that the following letter men will return next Fall: Jellicorse, Johnson, Cotton, A. Cullis, E. Cullis, Davidson, Wagner, Moore, Ford, and Sullivan. It has been rumored that Hurst, a backfield man of 1916 fame, will be with us again next Fall.

The reserve material of the past season which will be in line for varsity re-enforcements and replacements during the coming season are: Beck, Buchanan, Middleton, Hendrick, Weincoop, McCullough, McLaughlin, Hicks, and McClure. Also many new candidates invariably make their appearance at the beginning of every season.

The following is the schedule as per present arrangement.

September 25—Open

October 2—University of Tennessee at Knoxville

October 9—University of Kentucky at Lexington

October 16—Roanoke College at Maryville.

October 23—Emory and Henry at Emory, Va.

October 30—Open

November 6—Reserves at T. M. I. (tentative)

November 13— Oglethorpe at Maryville.

November 20—Reserves at Maryville.

November 25—Tusculum at Maryville.

NEW BEACHERS

Our stand on the base-ball situation has suddenly suffered a drastic change. The old bleechers (the part that remained) were torn down last week and new ones, which are to be made from new timber sawed from logs from the college woods, are now being constructed.

JUST A HINT

Music recitals would be better attended if the students were allowed to moonshine to them.

A Question—Can Maryville College support a Monthly Magazine as well as a weekly newspaper?

The past week has witnessed one of the most successful conferences ever held in Maryville College and the first of its kind ever held in Tennessee. In considering the amount of work necessary to organize a convention of representatives from all the colleges of Tennessee the student body should thank those in charge for the efforts put forth. There were one hundred delegates here for the different meetings and the way they were treated by the students is to be commended.

And then think of the benefit the college derives from such a convention. Many of the delegates were impressed with the way the students and town people accepted into their homes and showed them the best kind of hospitality.

The conference was a great success even if we must say so ourselves. Maryville College has something more to be proud of.—That is The Student Volunteer Band.

MUSIC AND EXPRESSION DEPARTMENTS ENTERTAIN

The best afternoon recital in the history of the college was given Friday afternoon in the chapel. Both the music and the expression departments participated. The oft repeated, "A group of Maryville girls and boys could get up any number of splendid lyceums", was again proved beyond a doubt to all present. The program given by the students of Miss Dawson, Miss Gregg and Mrs. West was as follows:

Papillocce Roses - Francis Thomas
Sallie Huffaker

"I'm a Longin' Fo' You - Hathaway
Messrs. Hayes, Buchanan, Montgomery and King

Cutting from "Seventeen" - Tarkington, Alberta Frow

Valse Briallante - - Moskowski
Miss Nellie Baker

"The Moon Family" - -
Miss Bernice West

2nd. Maguika - - - - Godard
Miss Lucile Webster

The Swan - - - - - McDowell
Miss Jewell Stevens

The Tin Gee - - - - - - Cape
The Night Wind - - Eugene Field
Miss Mary Louise Hayes, accompanied by Miss Hattie Hayes

La Cavalier Fantastique - - Godard
Miss Ruth Sloan

Such a list of talented men and women needs nothing else. However, Miss Huffaker showed unusual understanding of the composition which she played so admirably. Every one looks forward to hearing our boys' quartette, and Friday afternoon was no exception. Miss Frow made her first public appearance in "Seventeen". It was prophetic of a very successful future. Miss Baker's rendering of the Valse Brillant was very pleasing. Miss West also made her first public appearance, though one would never have guessed it to be by the able and interesting way in which she read. Miss Webster's solo was very delightful. It was a real treat to hear Miss Stevens sing "The Swan" Great things are expected of her. Those Hayes girls can do anything if they go at it together. With Hattie to help Mary by playing accompainments and Mary to help Hattie by reading they make a splendid pair. Miss Sloan's "La Cavalier Fantastique" was very instructive. Let's have more of these entertainments.

Tuesday morning a son arrived at the home of A. D. Huddleston.

Word has just been received of the death of Mr. Earnest Golf who was a member of the Freshman Class this fall. Mr. Golf was operated on for appendicitis. Later pneumonia developed and the end came Tuesday.

Melvin P. Ricks who has been with Uncle Sam in Panama for several years has returned to continue his work here in college.

STAR GAZERS SHINE

Talk about moonshining in the wee small hours of the night and where no moon was seen!—We!!, Professor Knapp makes a delightful chaperon and an interesting instructor concerning the stars. It was a rare opportunity for star-gazers and although some of the class were too busy with other matters, an inquisitive bunch met in front of Science Monday morning at 2:00 o'clock.

Ask Grace to tell you the shape of the Swan. All of those present are still wondering why Lucile asked so many question about the Power House, especially about the carrying of the coal to the furnace.

With no mishaps greater than cold feet the star gazers and others arrived at their dormitories at 4:00 o'clock, wiser but sleepy.

LAW CLUB

The future Supreme Justices of the United States met, Monday evening, March 29th. The following Justices who will interpret the laws of this triving community, were sworn into office by retiring Chief Justice Poe. Chief Justice Isaac Husky, Associate Justices Verton Queener, Eugene Stanbery, Harry Pearson, Edward Hargraves.

Associate Justice Stanbery expressed his sentiments in the form of a thesis, on the Chief Justices of the United States. He praised them all very highly, and giving in detail the more important decisions handed down by them.

Mr. Nace, gave a speech on the Origin of Law. He traced man from his Medevial haunts, his laws and moral code up to our present system of administering justice. It was very interesting and every one enjoyed it very much.

Legislative and Judical procedure will be very heavy this term. There will be a sensational trial held in the chapel, Monday evening, April 19, in which parties will be concerned, whom you think could have never committed such an atrocious crime.

We want all of the students to hear this famous case, as a life hinges on the decision of the jury.

ALPHA SIGMA

In the Alpha Sigma program speeches were heard giving vividly the contrast between The South of the past and the South as She is today. Also, there was a display of patriotism in the discussion of two men of history by admirers of them. McClure's reading from Dunbar was so well liked that he was heartily encored. The speakers and their topics were:

The Old South Plantation - Myers
General Lee - - - - - Stanbery
A. Lincoln and the South - H. Cox
The New South - - - L. Poe

If you want to hear a 'snappy' program come to Alpha Sigma Saturday evening.

WEDNESDAY EVENING MEETING

Mr. Jason Purdy, the popular preparatory teacher brought a great lesson to all the students in his talk on "Wild Oats". He first drew a word picture of the two painters—Health and Disease which were striving for mastery. Disease always insidious stalked abroad at night and besmirched the work of Health. The analogy then is life—what you sow you reap. He told of a priceless vase in the British Museum which had been broken by an enraged man, but by careful work it was repaired, however a close inspection revealed the cracks and flaws. And so in life sin cannot be hid. God has thrown around us every protection to our bodies which are the greatest piece of mechanism and are so finely adjusted that every sin is recorded—the body therefore is a sign post of what the soul is. God's laws are the same today as of old—do the stars ever change their course in the heavens? No man, not even the greatest would advise anyone to follow in his footsteps to reach fame. It is a sad affair in our national life that the drug habit has become popular. First it is used to alleviate pain—then to blot out sad memories and last of all to blot out life. "If any man destroy the temple of his body him shall God destroy."

THE EQUAL SUFFRAGE LEAGUE

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Suffrage League was held in Bainonian Hall, Monday 6:30 p. m. The vice-president, Hattie Hayes, presided. A committee of four was appointed to make and sell sandwiches and salad on Saturday night after society. Don't you forget this and tell everybody else.

The following program was rendered:

Report on fourth chapter of History of Woman's Rights among early Germanic tribes—the Gauls especially as reported by Caesar, Frances Hickey
Piano Solo - - Elizabeth Whitlock
Report on Republican Party - - - - - - Lucile Carter
Report on Democratic Party - - - - - Mamie Witherspoon

The whole program was very interesting, showing the efforts of both program committee and those who gave the program. This program was followed by an open and "peppy" discussion by "everybody".

Have you noticed the Women Vote for the Man, his abilities and character, be he and his political pedigree of whatever party he or it may?

"Which, we do".

Professor H. J. Bassett left yesterday afternoon to attend the session of Classical Association of the middle west and south for Greek and Latin teachers at Cleveland, Ohio. He will be away during the remainder of the week.

Wednesday afternoon a very extraordinary event occurred at the college barber shop and almost caused the proprietor to go bankrupt. The reason was that Mr. Nace cut Professor Walker's and Leslie Jones' hair.

And what Keener says is so.

If between your bare feet and the pulsating warmth of the new-born spring of Eastertide. there is a pair of well constructed, stylish shoes, some of the gladness of the re-born world will seep into your system.

When we talk about shoes the town listens because we know a whole lot about the subject—come in and see.

SOCIETY NOTES

Messrs. Middleton and McClure entertained Friday at their apartments in Carnegie Hall. Prof. George Alan Knapp was the lion of the evening; Samuel Peters and Porter Turner, two young men prominent in upper circles were among those present. The first hour was spent in the spacious drawing-room, penetrating into the mysterious realm of astronomical perplexities. About 9:00 o'clock the company retired to the dining-room, the fragrant cocoa pot was unearthed, soda crackers were resurrected and revelry commenced.

After dining sumptiously and remarking the exquisite taste in which the dining-room was furnished, especially the priceless cut-glass ware which Mr. Middleton secured from the Ex-King of Jalappi, the company returned to the parlors. The Duke of Ilaccabun stumbled into the boudoir by mistake, but his Lordship, Count Yermome, gallantly retrieved him.

Professor Knapp then regaled a spell-bound audience with a tale of his Freshman days, in which the central theme was three Cider Barrels.

Bill Cox arrived in time to eat the crumbs, and Red Hayes stumbled in still later. These gentlemen have wonderful proboscises, often searching out such hidden affairs with a vexing certainty of action.

P. S.—Tex wouldn't wash the dishes and we fear no one will volunteer.

I saw them do it.
She held her face up every time;

Clara Belle: "O, I wish someone would send me Orchids for Easter".

Frank: "I never send fruit."

PERSONALS

The engagement of Miss Maude Hite, a member of the Senior Class to Mr. Horace Dean has recently been announced.

We are glad to hear that Dr. Wilson is able to be out again after an attack of the Flu which caused him several weeks of illness.

Professor Walker's family moved to the farm on Quality Hill Wednesday.

It is the opinion of ex-chaplain Cody that the Walland first baseman couldn't even catch the Flu.

The base-ball season invariably brings forth an abundance of wit—dry and occasionally otherwise.

A FRESHMAN OR A FIRST PREP

Which Could It Be?

Dear Pa:—I don't want no money this time, I just want to tell you about the Liberty Belles. You know I read in the history where they had a Liberty bell in Fannel Hall in the city of Conneticut and when Alexander Hamilton won the war Stephen A. Douglas he rung the Liberty Bell till it cracked. Well tother night long about half past seven all the boys begin to running around in their Sunday clothes and when I axed them which away they said they was going to see the Liberty Belles. I thought at first they was trying to green me (you know they try that on some fellows) but they wasn't. Pretty soon a feller comes along and hollors, "I see 'em ticket for sale—35c cents. I wanted to see 'em and I had 34 cents left over from what you sent me last month and I knowed where my old lady (that's my roommate) had a penny so I bought the I see 'em ticket. I went out to the chapel and set down but they didn't have no Liberty bell there so I just 'lowed as how they hadn't brung it from behind the curtain.

I was looking over some honor reports (the boys calls them lie slips) that had been left in the seat, when three of the prettiest girls you ever seed came out on the stage. I bet if you'd a seen one of them when you was courting I'd a been somebody else cause you know you said mammy named me and you didn't want to call me Ephriam Jehosaphat. Why they would make the Venus de Milo look like a washerwoman. You know Venus she's just a statue of a woman with her hands broke off. They have a sign up "hands off" like they think people can't see it. They was one of them girls that could play the pianner 'most as good as that Dick Typewriter I wrote you about. She could play and look at you at the same time. One feller 'lowed that it was one of them player pianners and she was just moving her fingers, but I don't taink it was. She played one that made me remember how it was with me and Marthy the night before I came down here. It was about a feller going to see his girl and kissing her and then when he started away she cried, just like Martlry lid. The tears rolled down her cheeks when she got to that part of it and I justthought as how I would like to have one of them tears and have it set in a scarf pin. They was another one of them girls recited a piece about Betsy Ross making George Washington a flag, but she didn't know all of it cause she never said a word about what she made it out of. She made the white out of a shirt, and the blue out of an army coat. I'll tell you what she made the red out of when I come home. They all sung and played around awhile and then went out. Everybody left but I was waiting for the Liberty bell. But they turned the lights out and I went to my room and got the dictionary and looked "bell". I found that they is two kinds of bells. One is a bell and the other is a beautiful woman who is much admired. So I guess I seed the Liberty bells after all. Well, I got to quit and write a essay on John Greenlief Shakespeare for the Literary Society.

Yours truly,

Eph.

The Highland Echo

VOLUME FIVE — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, APRIL 8, 1920. — NUMBER TWENTY-FIVE

T. M. I. BADLY DEFEATED SATURDAY 9-2

Centra Retired Fourteen Batsmen.

The Highlanders annexed their second victory of the season on the local diamond Saturday afternoon by a score of 9 to 2; the vanquished being the Tennessee Military Institute baseball outfit.

The game was safely stowed away by Maryville in the first when three costly errors by the visitors and a clean hit by Wagner advanced three Highlanders to the counting station. But as if still possessing an unappeased hunger for spoils, the Maryville lads continued their unremitting onslaught against their adversaries and strengthened their vantage by two tallies in each of the second and third. Their position was so secure that they appeared indifferent, even bored, at the Monroe countian's rally in the sixth which had the effect of merely prolonging the contest and preventing a complete shut-out from being scored against them.

Arising to resent the audacity of the military boy's manifested in filing another tally against them in the eighth, the Highlanders descended on Toofe's offerings with a determination which completely destroyed his claims as a moundsman. With one man retired, McCullough took a grim swing at the spheroid and doubled to left. Partie declared himself in on the onslaught and observing that the right field had been discriminated against in the matter of drives, walloped the pill into the highway for a round trip to the rubber.

In the dawn of the second, Lowry gave the ball the most powerful wallop yet delivered this season. It had "home run" written all over it but Armstrong by a magnificent sprint and a right hand catch in his birthday glove captured it while it was long gone for the tall timber. Wagner and Rowan sparkled in their respective settings by checking and seizing, on several occasions, the pellet in its sullen flight.

Center towered conspicuous on the Maryville mound. He allowed only four hits, handed out only one base on balls, and retired by the strike-out route. In each of four innings only three men faced him.

Following is the summary of Saturday's game:

ORATORICAL CONTEST HELD AT TUSCULUM

Carson-Newman Orator Wins.

The first oratorical contest under the auspices of the newly organized Virginia-Tennessee-North Carolina Forensic League was held at Tusculum College, Friday night, April 2. Six colleges were represented. The order of the program was as follows: Mr. E. F. Smith, Cumberland University; Mr. James Martin, Maryville College; Mr. D. P. Buchanan, Tusculum College; Mr. H. M. Shouan, Carson-Newman College; Mr. J. W. Douthat, Emory and Henry College; Mr. W. H. Thomas, Lincoln Memorial University.

Two sets of judges passed on the orations. Three men judged the literary value of the orations and three heard them delivered and judged the orators on presentation. The winner of the contest was Mr. Shouan of Carson-Newman College. His oration subject was The Responsibilities of America. Mr. Martin, our representative, whose worth we at Maryville already know, made a fine impression with his splendidly conceived oration on The Conquest of Palestine.

While the unavoidable absence of the officers of the League made a business meeting of the League in connection with the contest impossible, it is hoped that the work of the League will go on with greater success next year than in this initial year of the movement.

THE COMING CONFERENCE

This is a subject all of us are interested in and want to know more about. Plans for the Conference are now being made. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick of New York is to give a series of addresses at the Student Conference, and his wife who is chairman of the Conference Department of the National Board of Y. W. C. A. will also attend. The services of the following leaders have been secured: Rev. Richard Wallace Hogue of Baltimore, Rev. Ryland Knight, pastor Baptist Church of Nashville, Dr. Howard E. Roudthaler, President of Salam College, Winston-Salem, N. Car. Dr. A. W. Van Hoose, President of Shorter College, Rome, Ga., Prof. J. R. McCain of Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga. These are but a few of the wonderful leaders that will be at Blue Ridge next summer. One can not afford to lose the wonderful inspiration which will be received from listening to these leaders in thought and action.

At a meeting of the Sophomore Class, Mr. Charles Scharpe was elected editor of the 1921 Chilhowean.

ELOCUTION GRADUATES GIVE ENTERTAINMENT

Splendid Readings Given by Misses Mattie Hamilton and Jessie Creswell.

What was pronounced by many as the most perfect recital ever given in the college chapel took place last Monday night, April 5th., when Miss Jessie Creswell and Miss Mattie Hamilton gave their graduate recitals.

The program began with a beautiful piano solo, by Miss Hattie Hayes—a Japanese Etude by Poldini. Miss Hayes showed a keen understanding of the oriental in her interpretation of Poldini. This was followed by a duet "A Night in Venice", by Miss Winston Newton and Mr. Young Hayes. This is the first time they have sung a duet on the Hill, but the students are unanimous in hoping it is just the first of many times. Their voices blend beautifully.

Miss Mattie Hamilton then read "Experience" by Hobart. This is a morality play full of most difficult impersonations. It was wonderful to see how clearly Miss Hamilton presented Love, Ambition, Pleasure Wealth, Youth, and the host of others that Youth met in his journey through life. The audience was so quiet that the clock could be heard ticking the whole time that Miss Hamilton was reading, showing the spell which she cast over the audience. She read simply, sympathetically, never overdoing, just suggesting enough and letting her hearers do the rest. Her gestures added much to her presentation being perfect. She showed plainly that she has learned to make her face and its expression, her voice and her body absolutely submissive to her will. So perfectly did she do her work, that "Experience", will not be soon forgotten by the large number of the faculty and students who heard her.

Miss Hattie Hayes then played Chopin's Prelude Op 28 No. 21, and No. 16. Even those who have very little understanding of or appreciation for music enjoyed Chopin immensely as presented by Miss Hayes. Indeed she played so perfectly that a large number present were exceedingly surprised that she too was not graduating.

The last number was "Happiness" by J. Hartley Manners as read by Miss Jessie Creswell. The audience forgot that Miss Creswell was reading and saw only the disappointed, money loving father, the discontented, perplexed children handicapped by their many advantages, and Jennie the little shop girl living on only six dollars a week but happier than them all. The social problem presented in the play is one which all who heard Miss Creswell will constantly think of. Her pantomine was especially interesting. She presented the little shop girl and the cultured lady both trying on the same dress so differently but so naturally. This play was entirely different from Miss Hamilton's, and required an entirely different interpretation. Miss Creswell's character interpretation was as good as Miss Hamilton's quality.

Mrs. West and Miss Buxton deserve great credit for having trained such excellent readers.

SENIOR CLASS IS BUSY AGAIN

Class Mascot and Baby Christened. The Faculty Fooled.

On Sunday afternoon Sylvia Bryan Holmes, the Senior baby and Ruth Wilson Holmes, the Senior mascot were christened at the House in the Woods. Dr. Stevenson conducted the service, which was very impressive. Following the baptism Mr. Cagle, the president of the Senior Class presented Sylvia with a gift of baby pins from the Seniors. His speech was very appropriate.

Later in the afternoon the spring was visited and almost everybody went on a search for spring flowers. At five-thirty refreshments were served and at six thirty the guests started for Vespers. The Seniors count themselves very fortunate in having such a mascot and such a baby. It isn't every class which is honored.

April first was a very memorable day for the Seniors. Every one arose promptly at six o'clock—an unheard of proceeding and when the breakfast bell rang every Senior was in the lobby ready to go in to breakfast. But instead of going to regular places they took seats at the faculty table. No one was seated at the faculty table but Professor Walker who surely can take a joke! Soon Miss Caldwell and Miss Coulter came down and Miss Coulter immediately took possession of her place—ask Stacey! To watch the other members of the faculty come in with calm assurance that they would have no trouble for their places were secure and then to see every place occupied was very amusing

The Seniors conducted themselves as much like faculty as possible. It looked once as though the joke was about to be turned, for all rolls were suddenly removed from the table, but the waitresses took pity on the Seniors and brought one plate of rolls after another. Consequently the Seniors look forward to the time when they become regular members of the faculty. We hand it to the present faculty— they are some sports.

LET'S QUIT

Several weeks ago there appeared in the Sunday Journal and Tribune a picture of the Girls' Basketball team of Maryville College. This picture was made at the expense of the students of Maryville College. Perhaps you are now wondering why the same picture was not printed in the "Echo", your own paper.

An attempt was made by the editor to obtain cuts of both basket ball teams but on account of the financial condition of the "Echo" the necessary funds could not be obtained to meet the cost. At that time the pictures were being made for the Annual and the promise was given that the pictures would be turned over to the Editor of the Echo as soon as they were completed. The pictures were completed and the cuts were made for the Annual. One of those cuts was run in the Knoxville paper, but the Editor of the Echo has not even caught a glimpse of either of them. Now if you think more of having your school represented in the Knoxville papers than in your own college paper why go to all the trouble of having a college paper?

PREP TEAMS TO DEBATE TUSCULUM

Support Your Own Teams. Victory is Assured.

The second debate for the year will be held Monday night, April 12, when Maryville's two Preparatory Teams will meet the Tusculum Preparatory teams. This promises to be one of the most interesting Forensic events of the year. The question that will be debated is: Resolved, That before reaching the age of twenty-two every male citizen of the United States should be required to take military training equivalent to six months in the army. This is an up-to-date question, and it will be thoroughly discussed by the two strong debating teams.

This will be a dual debate, Maryville's negative team will meet the opponents' affirmative team at Tusculum, while her affirmative team will meet Tusculum's negative team at Maryville. We expect to win the victory at both places, and why shouldn't we? A glance at our team is proof sufficient. Both the teams are composed of strong men. The affirmative team consists of Sam Franklin, Captain, who is a natural debater; Verton Queener, who possesses a clear, argumentative style; Charles Maye, who has such a stern appearance that he can convince the Judges without any difficulty; and Floyd Corry, alternate, whose intellectual ability will do much toward bringing victory to the affirmative team.

How about the negative team? Likewise it is composed of strong men. Caswell Johnstone, captain with his enthusiasm and debating ability; David King, who is a smooth talker; David Friedman, who knows the tricks of debating from A to Z, and Ed Hargraves, alternate with his great store of knowledge on the question; this list of men complete the negative team. We are perfectly confident that they will bring home the bacon.

Two debates take place Monday night. Everybody come to the chapel and see what Maryville "Preps" can do.

"FLYING PARSON" GAVE "BOB" A RIDE

Tuesday, March 30 was the day that the "Flying Parson" gave Bob Adams, who is now a reporter for The Asheville Citizen, the ride of his life. The trip was made in a biplane and lasted, well at times Bob thought the trip would continue on into eternity, for all kinds of stunts such as the loop and the tail spin were performed and at another time the machine almost crashed into a barbed-wire fence. But the trip was really made over an infinite distance in a finite length of time, and ended with no serious results. Bob says, "He gave me what I asked for and that was enough."

Prayer Meeting Friday night, The Easter Cantata will be given.

The last issue of the Old Gold and Black states that the students at Wake Forest have gone Bolshevik. On account of the Bolshevik attitude of the Staff it is believed that the next issue will state that the Editorial staff have gone home.

Can you faintly remember the year long long ago when Maryville had a May Day? If you can your memory is excellent. Of course war conditions prevented anything of this description from taking place during the past few years. But there is no war now. Couldn't we celebrate at least half of one of the thirty days in the month of May?

Study up, now, so that you can go and see "Prunella".

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

Subscription price $1.00 everywhere, paid in advance. Thirty issues guaranteed.

Entered as Second-class mail matter in the Postoffice at Maryville, Tennessee.

Contributions and expressions of opinion are solicited from the student body and from interested alumni.

While thinking over the old saying, "Progress is ever forward or backward", the writer of this article accidentally thought of the publications of this college as a splendid example. Five years ago a few students here on the Hill met together, and came to the conclusion that Maryville College should have a weekly newspaper instead of the Monthly Magazine, that was published during the previous years. The result was that the publication of the magazine was discontinued in favor of the weekly newspaper.

Five years ago The Highland Echo a four page weekly college newspaper with a subscription price of seventy-five cents, was first published. During those five years Maryville College has increased in size over twenty-five per cent. Next year there will undoubtedly be a greater increase than ever before. In the past five years the price of the college annual has increased from one dollar and seventy-five cents to three and one-half dollars. If you should look around, you would find that other changes have been made—but always on the increase.

Five years ago a four page paper was published at the subscription price of seventy-five cents. There was not more than 25 issues published per year during the first three years. This year an attempt was made to make the Echo a six page paper. But on account of the lack of funds, which was the result of the low subscription price, this was impossible. The best that could be done was to publish a six page paper once every month and the other three or four copies each month remained as five years ago in the days of infancy, only four pages.

The time has come when a change is necessary. If Maryville College is to keep in step with other colleges she must be advertised. And is not the college best advertised by its publications. A larger paper is necessary and more funds must be provided. All other schools are increasing. Maryville must not lag behind but should be in the front ranks.

AS TO THE MONTHLY MAGAZINE

When the change was made from the monthly to the weekly paper it was not supposed to be a permanent one. There is plently of talent on the Hill to write poetry, essays and other forms of literature to fill a monthly magazine. If there is to be two publications next year the editors and manager must be elected this year. What are you going to do about it?

NOTHING AT ALL

Some people are afraid to think of anything.

Some people think but are afraid to say anything.

Some people talk very much, but are afraid to do anything.

Everybody work for the Common Cause.

A MUSIC NOTE

Maryville is up to the present time in athletics, it is with the present in school activities, but is it up to the date with student musical entertainments? There is a fine music department here at Maryville in piano, voice and violin. There are many talented and qualified musicians but is the college furnishing the musical entertainments she should? No! And the question is how can it be obtained? If the students would take part and pull it through a 25 or 30 piece orchestra could be easily obtained for the opening exercise in chapel as well as other places. There was a good orchestra here several years ago, but now because no leader comes to assist every day, each person depends on the other. Students! Let's all class together and go in for music. There is talent here and why can't it be used. Music helps the school as well as athletics.

The literary societies in giving their plays this season had a difficult time obtaining music for the scenes. This should not be allowed. Music should be easy to get and will be, if all go in together for it. Let all work together and this school can show up in music as well as in athletics.

ALPHA SIGMA

Lectures on Science

For the second time during the year our society has had the pleasure of hearing lectures from members of the faculty. The Alpha Sigmas are grateful to Miss Fanson Head of Chemistry Department, for the splendid lecture she brought them on the subject of Chemistry. Miss Fanson showed the practical side of Chemistry, mentioning some of the earlier experiments and showing the place that this science has in educational activities. It is a mistaken idea that the study of Chemistry is a bug-bear. A deeper interest has been aroused among us for the study of Chemistry.

Mr. Peters followed next in order by a lecture on "Astronomy". He gave accurately the description of the planets, their order, periods, and relative distances. Mars was the principal planet discussed. He raised the question of its habitability, giving recent quotations from American and French scientists in favor of it. A trip to our Martian neighbors is recommended as a great flesh-reducer.

Did you know that between 80 and 100 different varieties of birds visit you during the summer? We did not until Mr. T. Knapp gave his enjoyable talk on "Birds". It was interesting to hear of our feathered friends, who, at times show traces of human-like intelligence. The speaker proved himself an authority on the subject and surely made a friend or two for the birds.

The last speaker was our president with a lecture on "Mathematics" that had required much reading and thought. From the early methods of savages down to our present time Mathematics has been the language of all sciences. It has proved its usefulness in invention, commerce and all parts of education. Mr. Georges ended by discussing briefly the Fourth Dimension.

WEDNESDAY EVENING MEETING

Professor E. R. Walker in the discussion of "Scriptures" showed that all the great leaders have made sacrifices. In order to gain great rewards great sacrifices must be made. Noah made a sacrifice in building the ark. Abraham was about to make a supreme sacrifice of Isaac, but his faith was the saving sacrifice. Moses was unwilling to make the sacrifice, yet God used him in making a great sacrifice. It remained for Christ to complete the work and make the greatest sacrifice of all.

All must make sacrifices to succeed. The parents are making sacrifices in order that their children might be better equipped for life's struggle. The speaker made a touching reference to Dr. Wilson, who he said had sacrificed his life-blood that he might have an education. No one can live on the sacrifices of others—each one must sacrifice himself—he must live for others.

MISS GAMBLE'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

Last Friday six Pearsons girls were quite excited all day for they were invited out to Helen Gamble's to supper! At last the time to go came, and they soon found themselves out at Helen's. When they went to supper lo and behold there was a birthday cake in the center of the table! Such a supper, fried chicken, and everything that goes with it—absolutely everything. Then when even hungry Pearsons girls could eat no more, the girls tried blowing out the candles, and thus telling their fortunes. If you want to know how long until Mary Mason and Winston Newton are going to be married, just ask Helen, she knows. After supper they did all kinds of delightful things. Hattie sang "I love you truly, dear", as only she and her model can sing it. Cerena played the piano while the latest quartette of the Hill sang. M. H., Grace, Mary Gamble, Mary Hayes, Mary Mason and Martha played "Hiding" and lots of other things—in short everybody did exactly what she most wanted to do. However, time waits for no girl, and nine fifteen came all to soon and they had to leave all of them—Cerena, Hattie, Mary Mason, Little 'Un, Winston, Mattie, and Martha—declaring that this was a perfect evening.

Actually, Pearsons, Baldwin and Memorial halls looked like flower gardens last week when every room had lillies, roses, carnations or sweet peas or maybe all four, in it. Too bad they can't be that way all the time.

Speaking of lyceums, and so on, how about the entertainment at the chapel Monday night? Can you think of any more perfect evening than the one the Music and Expression departments gave us?

WHAT ABOUT A MOUNTAIN HIKE?

In this hustle bustle season we may overlook our annual mountain hike. It is rumored that several of our other privileges, ie, moonshining under proper conditions, etc., have met their death in similar manner, that is mere forgetfulness. The students certainly should have a mountain hike before June 3, 1920. The time is fast coming to an end and a fear is expressed that we may overlook this very important privilege.

IY DID YOU VOTE FOR THE PEACE TREATY

f course we don't like to talk at ourselves, or even pull the "I-told-you-so", but you will re- that not very long ago we had referendum on the Peace Treaty. when a few of us, who had our thinking powers, such as are, and our knowledge of an nature, such as it is, to the of our ability voted for Pro- ition 2 we were quite severely ized in some quarters. This came very forcibly to our d as we read Frank H. Simond's cle in Sunday's Journal and bune. Simonds a recognized hority on International affairs, s, in part:

Three Paths Open

Thus, with influence and with ct, we may choose for ourselves role of arbiter of the whole lement of world peace. Or, we y elect to become the supporters one of the several plans for ld rehabilitation proposed by er nations, by the British or the nch for example. The only other re open to us is to refrain m either of the foregoing poli- and aside from certain inci- tal interventions on behalf of ples or principles, where the d is obvious or our national in- st compelling, pursue a splendid ation policy.

Mr. Simonds then shows how the suance of the first policy would lt only:

In the one case, therefore, the cy failed outright, in the other ed directly to a military alliance, lly outside the President's notion the way world order should be tored or maintained."

Summing up he says, "Recogniz- the total failure of the first hod, as disclosed at Paris, we y pass to the second."

Of the second course, that of ing with one of the three great vers in enforcing one of their ns for world rehabitation, Mr. monds sums ups, "Moreover, if we with the British and the same true if our partner were France Italy, we actually agree to a itary alliance, become involved h that country in all its other putes, inherit its enemies and e enemies of nations still our nds. This again is a long way m accomplishing our purpose as forming our duty to the world."

This of course, leaves only the rd alternative—"splendid issola- n". Concerning the effect of our rance into the League upon this icy he says, "Entering the league nations will change nothing. It merely mean endeavoring to do or the other of these things ide the league instead of out of

Again, "Thinking over these cir- nstances during many months, I e been led to the conclusion that ation, within certain limits is only possible policy for my ntry. Reluctantly, very reluc- tly, I have reached the conclus- that the United States cannot ept the responsibility for world justment, that our country can- safely for itself or profitably the world, put its momentary thority in the pathway of what er great nations regard as con- ions essential to their existence, their security."

And finally, "In my judgment, if re is to be a League of Nations, form of association, we shall e to begin over again and at beginning we shall have to con- t ourselves with a modest foun- ion and proceed only so far as re is a common agreement on n sides of the Atlantic."

Now, of course, Frank H. Sim- s is only a man; but he is a n of established reputation in rnational affairs— a reputation blished upon keen, critical, and ect analyses made in previous s, and surely he may be trusted time in general if not in partic- . And when we consider the that he, as he himself admits uctantly, very reluctantly" nged from a policy which favor- the League to almost the con- e, we must concede that he is likely right. In fact, Simonds a clear, concise thought process now reached the same conclus- that a few of our clear-headed Americans in Congress, if they did not see, at least sensed, some months ago.

Yes, we "apple-knockers" are really quite proud of the way we voted and believe that time will give us better cause yet to gladly affirm that we couldn't count above two, even in so small a matter as the college referendum.

VESPERS

Easter Service

The blackest day in all history has been turned into Good Friday through the Resurrection. The despairing, sorrowing disciples failed to comprehend the significance of the day, they were at a loss what to do through this long day, then came the dawn with its triumphant note, "He is not here He is risen", yet they could not grasp the full meaning. He arose and walked forth in serene majesty. Yet the disciples failed to comprehend the magnitude of the event—they were to be supplied with the proofs.

Since God gave life, He can restore life—death is but a passageway from life to life. Who has the convicition that he is limited to this world? Does not everyone look forward to a greater life beyond the precincts of this terrestrial life? Then why fear death?

The pastor concluded his remarks with an old fable of a boy whose sister lay dying. One thing would cure her—a leaf of the tree of life. But no one could reach the garden where it grew as this garden was guarded by a flaming angel. The boy struggled to the garden and begged for a leaf from the tree. He was questioned that if he got the leaf would his sister not suffer pain, hunger and unkind words, but being unable to promise all that was asked he could not get the leaf. He was given a peep through the gate into the garden. What he saw made it unnecessary for him to ask further. On the way back a burst of radiance and a song fell upon him—the messenger of death had passed by with another inmate for the garden. He returned to find his sister dead, but he was forever comforted by the thought of her life in that wonderous garden.

JUNIOR ATHENIANS

In spite of the many distracting influences, the Junior Athenians still survive and render their services.

Vice-president Cornelius presided. The "Liberty Lad" quartette most certainly has talent which has not been hidden. Everyone thanks them again for their delightful music and hopes to hear them again. The debate was of universal interest and well handled on each side.

Adjournment was on time as usual. Literary work when properly carried on does not interfere with activities. But "first things should be first" always.

SECOND PREPS BUSY AGAIN!

The Second Preps met at 12:10 Tuesday. There were about fifteen members of the class present. The president anonunced that the editor of the class had left school and another would have to be elected. Three candidates were nominated and they withdrew protesting that the honor was too great and they could not hold this high office.

A discussion was held about having a class party, but nothing was decided upon. The class adjourned after telling the editor to be sure to write up the meeting.

THETA EPSILON

Theta Literary Society met in Theta Hall Saturday night and after transacting some important business the following program was rendered.

Gladys Hutchison gave a very interesting pianologue. Ruth Sloan favored us with a piano solo. Sue Nuchols gave a reading. The last number was a selection from a human music box. It contained most wonderful bird-like tones which captivated the entire audience.

Miss Ruth Schenk a former student spent the week-end on the Hill visiting friends.

LLOYD (HAM) HAMILTON AND VIRGINIA RAPPE IN "A TWILIGHT BABY"

A casting for one of the huge water-wheel driven generators installed in the Mississippi River Power Company's plant at Keokuk. This installation will ultimately consist of thirty of these machines, giving a total capacity of 216,000 kilowatts (300,000 horsepower). It is the largest hydro-electric development in the world. The General Electric Company builds generator for water-wheel drive in sizes ranging from 375 to 32,500 kilowatts and the aggregate capacity of G-E units now in successful operation is in excess of four million horse-power.

Mississippi River Power Company, Keokuk, Iowa

Utilizing Nature's Power

ELECTRICAL energy generated by water power has grown to be one of our greatest natural resources — and we have only begun to reach its possibilities. It mines and refines our ores, turns the wheels of industry, drives our street cars and lights our cities and towns. The power obtained from Nature saves many million tons of coal every year.

At first the field of its utilization was limited by the distance electricity could be transported. But soon research and engineering skill pointed the way to larger and better electrical apparatus necessary for high-voltage transmission. Then ingenious devices were invented to insure protection against lightning, short-circuits, etc., which cause damage and interrupt the service. And now all over the country a network of wires begins to appear, carrying the magic power.

The General Electric Company, with its many years' experience, has played a great part in hydro-electric development. By successfully co-ordinating the inventive genius of the company and its engineering and manufacturing abilities, it has accomplished some of the greatest achievements in the production and application of electrical energy.

The old mill wheel of yesterday has gone. Today the forces of immense volumes of water are harnessed and sent miles away to supply the needs of industry and business and the comforts of the home.

Get Ready For The Student Conference at Blue Ridge---June 4-14 and 15-24

MY IMPRESSIONS OF BLUE RIDGE

"Blue Ridge is the land of birds and flowers where you can spend many happy hours. There you will find young men from everywhere, clean young men who do not curse or swear."—Reed Rowan.

"Perhaps the thing that impressed me most at Blue Ridge was the character of the leaders of the Conference and their ability to really understand and help the students."—Sam Franklin.

"The thing that impressed me most at Blue Ridge was the beautiful blue mountains."—Claxton Langley.

"The thing which impressed me most when I was at Blue Ridge was the fellowship. Every person was glad to make a new acquaintance, and after the first day the boys were bound together by a bond of Christian fellowship which no one will ever forget."—Edgar Martin.

"The thing that impressed me most at Blue Ridge was the religious atmosphere. There everybody was full of pep, not only for the athletic contests, but also for the classes in Christian study and the religious meetings."—Percy Buchanan.

"To me the most wonderful thing about the Conference was the messages brought thru the classes and platform. The messages were equally valuable to the student volunteer and the law student. This breadth of vision was something that we all needed."—Forrest Brown.

THE STUDENT CONFERENCE FOR THIS YEAR

The Southern Student Conference for this year will meet from June 15 to the 24, at Blue Ridge, North Carolina.

The ten days as planned are to be full of inspiration and enjoyment. The program of speakers has not been announced but the men chosen will be leaders in world thought and action, men of experience who can out of the depths of their experience guide young men to higher levels.

The platform addresses, morning and evening, are of such a character as to make indellible impressions on the mind. As one student expressed it "I can never be the same again."

There are three class groups, meeting from 8:00 to 11:00. First hour classes of which there will be a choice of at least six, deal with Bible Study, the character of the Christian life, the life of Christ, Science and the Bible, or some similar topic.

Second hour classes deal with Association problems and methods. There are special classes for every member from president to social chairman. The particular problems and their remedy are the key notes of this group of classes. Efficiency in student organization is the purpose. The experiences and experiments of practically one hundred student Y. M. C. A.'s is the material for discussion and improvement.

The third hour classes deal with the outside activities of the Association—its social service program. There are classes of particular interest to the Student Volunteer, to the medical student, to the law student, to the agricultural and mechanical students. Helpful guidance is given to those contemplating the various fields of professional and business life.

To some the most valuable feature of the program will be the opportunity of consultation with experts on either Association or personal problems. To the student unsettled about his college course or his life work, this may be the means not alone of a definite choice but of a reversal of policy.

The student planning to go to Blue Ridge this summer must not forget that he will have other interests outside of the program. The fellowship of the Blue Ridge atmosphere reminds one much of the February Meetings, tho the Conference is not a series of evangelistic services. Whether one meets the fellows in the class room, in the lobby, in the dining hall, on the athletic field, or on the trails, he is impressed with the wonderful and democratic spirit. Fellows from neighboring schools from which we are sure no good can come, are our best friends, and so we are all closely drawn together.

At the close of the ten days, your verdict like that of every other student, will be, "I never spent a better ten days in my life—it was worth while."

Those interested in the expenses should see some officer of the Association Board and room for the ten days will be $20. A registration fee of $5.00 will be collected before you go. Train fare is at the rate of fare and a third. You will need to buy a few inexpensive books, but beyond this, you will have few expenses. The Association will help all those interested in going.

For your personal equipment take:

The suit of good clothes you are wearing, hiking shoes and suit, and bathing suit, raincoat, overcoat or sweater, tennis equipment except balls, baseball uniform and glove only, basketball uniform, college pennants and banners, Bible note book and fountain pen, and plenty of PEP.

Who can go?—Any student who is thoroughly committed to the Association program, and who agrees to carry full schedule (see posters on campus).

Last year Maryville had only two representatives at Blue Ridge. Tusculum had eight, and the University of Tennessee had thirty eight. Let's not let that happen any more!

RECREATION AT THE STUDENT CONFERENCE

The situation of the Conference buildings at Blue Ridge makes it an ideal place for a summer vacation. These buildings are built right against the mountains and they give the appearance of diamonds in a dark setting. This beautiful appearace mingled with the pure mountain air and water makes Blue Rndge an ideal place for pleasure and recreation. One can get any kind of recreation that appeals to his taste from singing to playing base ball or mountain hiking.

The grounds are well equipped for playing tennis, volley ball, basket ball, and base ball; also many opportunities for mountain climbing may be had.

The Conferences As Arranged For This Year For You

Facts About Blue Ridge

The Blue Ridge Association contains 1,191 acres of land, 24 buildings, electric light plant, all modern conveniences, capacity 500, elevation 2,700 feet, splendid tennis courts, outdoor swimming pool, base ball diamond, volley ball and basket ball courts.

Blue Ridge is in the heart of the most rugged scenery of Western North Carolina, located two and a quarter miles from Black Mountain, fifteen miles east of Asheville.

Blue Ridge has a United States postoffice, book store, soda fountain, pressing room, photographic finishing room, barber shop.

The work in the Blue Ridge buildings is done by high-toned, cultured Southern College men and women, thus insuring cleanliness, elegance, and efficiency.

Blue Ridge is under the shadow of Mt. Mitchell and the great craggy mountains of Eastern North America. The trip to Mt. Mitchell, the highest point east of the Rockies, makes a wonderful day's outing over one of the finest, if not the very finest pieces of scenic railway in America.

At Blue Ridge you have the opportunity of listening to some of America's geratest social and religious leaders.

The catch words of Blue Ridge are Recreation, Information, and Inspiration. Blue Ridge rests the body, informs the mind, fires the imagination, renews the spirit.

A Day at the Boys' Conference

Like many other of our most pleasant experiences, a day at the Blue Ridge Conference is hard to describe. However, if you will imagine yourself to be one of the fortunate individuals who are going to attend one of the conferences next summer, it will not be difficult to picture any one of the days which you will spend there.

Now days at Blue Ridge somehow do not begin just as other days. Perhaps it is because you have had a restful night's sleep in the cool mountain air, a sound sleep which you earned the day before by much outdoor exercise in this same air that the rising bugle awakens you at six forty-five with a feeling of being in a place different from any other in the world. During the next few minutes, if you are a hardy individual unafraid of cold water, you may take a swim in the lake that lies so invitingly near at hand. But by ten minutes after seven you are back at the Hall, dressed, and ready to begin the "Morning Watch", a period of twenty minutes spent in thought and prayer, you find that this custom forms in you a most valuable habit, and gives you fitting preparation for the rest of the day.

At eight-thirty the work of the morning begins. For the next three periods you attend the classes which you have chosen from a number of courses all taught by most capable leaders. It is safe to say that you grow each day more surprised at their helpfulness in meeting your own personal needs. The fourth period, ending at twelve-thirty, is the platform hour. Perhaps today the speaker is Robert Speer, or John R. Mott, if not it is one of the many other notable men or women whose addresses you never forget.

At twelve-thirty, dinner, and then—you are almost bewildered by the number of ways in which you may spend the afternoon. Base ball and volley ball games and tennis matches have been arranged between the different schools, represented, and, while crack teams are not always organized, the fun of practicing, playing and rooting in itself would make the afternoon pass most agreeably. But this is not nearly all in the matter of recreation that Blue Ridge offers you; you may swim again, you may take trips to surrounding places of interest, or Biltmore, Asheville, and Montreat, and last but not by any means least you may take long and glorious hikes over the mountains. A time longer than that allowed for the whole conference could be spent in climbing and exploring them and then not be nearly long enough to suit many of the students. Your afternoon soon passes, when there are so many ways of employing its time, and at six o'clock you joyfully direct your steps toward the dining hall.

Right on the heels of supper comes another very important event. It is the "sing" in the lobby. You know about what to expect from a group of kicked college students when, under the direction of the jolliest sort of a leader they gather about a piano and begin to sing, and you certainly are not disappointed at this particular time. You feel almost unwilling to leave when the time comes for the Hillside meeting, that is, you feel so until the latter begins. Then, when Dr. Brown or Dr. Murray or some of the rest begins his presentation of a life work, you are sorry that you ever thought of missing such a meeting. Afterwards, the last study of the day, classes in "Human Problems", and the short meeting with the delegates from your own state, give the day a fitting close. Taps are blown at ten-thirty, and one of your memorable days at the Blue Ridge Conference, when pleasure and profit are so skillfully combined, is over.

A Day at The Y. W. Conference

Reveille at six o'clock is the way it begins. Can't get 'em up in the morning is right. It is just cold enough to make one want to snuggle up under the blanket and take another snooze worse than anything in the world. After those scorching commencement days at Maryville the change to the bracing mountain climate makes it all the harder. But thoughts of the wonderful hot biscuits and coffee make it possible to force oneself to do without that extra snooze. And, if one remembers that those who are late to breakfast are not admitted, it is easy.

But all mornings are not like this for all people. If one has the energy there are many hikes which could be taken before breakfast. On one morning a bunch of girls got up during the wee small hours and climbed to High Top to see the sun rise. All day it was easy to pick out just who had gone, but they declared it was worth doing.

After breakfast there are a few minutes of leisure before chapel. One can sit in the wonderful big lobby of Robert E. Lee Hall and talk with one's friends or have an opportunity to make new ones. Or one can spend the time in the book room examining the books, looking at the many interesting souvenirs or buying them possibly.

After classes are over there is just time to get the mail before lunch. Matriculating at Maryville is heavenly compared with getting mail at Blue Ridge. Heed the warming and tell everyone not to write.

After lunch comes a much enjoyed quiet hour from two to three, but with three o'clock comes the best time of the day. One may swim, play tennis, or hike. There are trips to famous places as Vanderbilt's home, Biltmore, or Mt. Mitchell. One of our most thrilling and romantic experiences while at Blue Ridge was a trip to an old Spanish castle. We did not know the way but at last arrived at the castle only to have the unique experience of having the owner threaten to put us in jail or shoot us. Go to Blue Ridge next year and perhaps you will see the castle and its occupant, an old Spanish woman, under more favorable conditions.

Whatever one does, all too soon it is time to hurry home and dress for dinner. With the appetite which necessarily follows such an afternoon, think of being served such things as fresh tomatoes, chicken salad, and perhaps ice cream for desert. Merely a suggestion, the other meals are wonders but this one is beyond description. The only possible objection is that it is impossible to satisfy such an appetite. If one fails, one may go to the bookroom and get an ice cream cone. That is the way that bookroom differs from ours, it has ice cream and Hersheys at all times of the day.

On some evenings before the evening service an hour is given for stunts. That is when she shows her college spirit and displays the talents of her college. What do you say? Will Maryville be represented there next year to let Vanderbilt, Ward-Belmont, Agnes Scott and other colleges know that we can do things too?

Then at eight o'clock comes the treat of the day. After the various duties and pleasures of the full day for an hour it is all forgotten and one is led to think only about the big issues of life, about what makes this life what it is. At the beautifully conducted service at the chapel one is led to pause and thank the One who is the giver of all good and perfect gifts.

Then to our rooms and to bed, and thus ends a happy day.

RECREATION AT THE GIRL'S CONFERENCE

Fellow School Mates:

You know how tired you are going to be when commencement day is over. You know how hard the teachers work you during those last few examination days. You know about all that midnight oil you'll have to burn before that last note book is in. Don't you think that after it is all over, there is somewhere a week or two of Good Times coming to you? Don't you think that ten days of care free enjoyment would put you in a better frame of mind for going after that summer job? Well then, go to Blue Ridge, the Camping Ground of Good Times. There's nothing "blue" about Blue Ridge, but the sky above her and the soft blue haze which hangs over her mountains. Her people are anything but blue and she opens her doors only to those who are willing to say that the complete life must contain much good hearty laughter, many many smiles and hours of pure pleasure.

The recreational life at Blue Ridge is not of the "pokey, pious" type either. Its full of snap and pep and "spizzerinktim".

If you are a good mountain climber, think of having an afternoon to spend on the trail that winds up, up into the rugged heights of the Appalachians! If your ambitions do not soar so high, follow the shorter paths which lead out from Robert E. Lee Hall. In every direction they go, across the mountain streams and on into the woods where blossoming rhododendron, sweet wild ferns and galyx leaves make a sight on which the eye delights to dwell.

If your thoughts turn toward athletics of another kind, then spend the afternoon on the tennis and basketball courts or in that clean, cool swimming pool. Or would you see still more of the surrounding country take a touring car trip to Biltmore, the great Vanderbilt estate near Asheville; to Montreat or to any of the other scenic spots which are accessible to an automobile.

Then there are the big sings on the veranda after supper; contests between the various colleges; stunt night and—Oh! What's the use? The Good Times of Blue Ridge are not to be told in mere printed words. Go and see for yourself. There's a great good time awaiting you there, and you can't afford to miss it.

RECREATION AT THE STUDENT CONFERENCE

During the Student Conference certain programs of athletics are arranged in order that the delegates may be able to get the exercise and recreation they need, and every fellow is expected to take a part in some form.

The whole afternoon is given over to the various forms of athletics and all the facilities are well attended. The base ball diamond is a magnet which draws the boys in large numbers. The Athletic Committee arranges a schedule whereby all the colleges and universities get a chance to try for the baseball championship of the Conference. The first games are only five innings long; the second series seven innings; and the finals are nine innings. Of course these games are not regular college games for many of the delegates have never played much baseball. They are however very interesting.

A little different form of recreation may be had by attending the "sings" in Lee Hall lobby after supper. There they sing the folk songs, popular songs, college songs and spiritual songs. College yells afford much pleasure throughout the entire recreation program.

KEENER SAYS:

"The Happiness of an Easter Morn is Yours if You Step Out into it in a Pair of Our Shoe Classics."

And what Keener says is so.

If between your bare feet and the pulsating warmth of the new-born spring of Eastertide. there is a pair of well constructed, stylish shoes, some of the gladness of the re-born world will seep into your system.

When we talk about shoes the town listens because we know a whole lot about the subject—come in and see.

THE MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

While Dr. Stevenson is directing the classes for the young converts in the "Study of Christian Living", a Bible discussion is being carried on over at Bartlett Hall for and by the future ministers of Maryville. They have no human leader but all the fellows join in and make the discussion very lively and interesting. At the present time they are taking up vital questions in detail such as salvation, sin and love, and are tearing these to pieces, that they may gain more knowledge of God's word. Man's greatest need at the present time is salvation, and it's up to the future ministers to find the best way to give this to man.

Say, all you "Sky-Pilots"! Listen for the anouncement and come out and join us with your Bible and concordance. We need your ideas.

BAINONIAN

Bainonian Literary Society met Saturday evening, April 3. Who does not enjoy Folk-lore? That was just what made the girls present forget for the time being all the worries and perplexities of every day school life. With what spirit they sang together the two familiar songs "Old Black Joe" and "My Old Kentucky Home."

The first number, a paper on the "History of Folk-Song" was given by Jenny Montgomery. She imparted some interesting information about folk-songs.

The Irish chorus with their gorgeous and elaborately decorated costumes won quite a little fame. How about hearing from them again in the near future?

To merely mention the fact that Winston Newton sang "My Laddie" is sufficient to reveal what a treat was enjoyed. Hattie Hayes played the accompaniment.

A duet "Comin' Thru the Rye" by Irma Schwab and Myrtle Rendon called forth a loud applause.

But the evening would not have been complete had not the good old colored mammy appeared and sang one of her soothing melodies. The last number was a "Negro Melody" by Ruth Gamble, a member of the well-known Brown-Gamble quartet.

After the report of the different critics, society was dismissed by repeating the Mispah Benediction.

JUNIOR AND SENIOR Y. W. COMBINED

The two branches of the Y. W. C. A. held a joint installation service Sunday night after Vespers. The members of the four cabinets were dressed in white and bore candles. Miss Martha Robison succeeded Miss Jessie Creswell as president of the Senior branch, while Miss Nannette Walker was installed president of the Junior branch, the position formerly held by Miss Rebecca Calderwood. As each retiring member of the cabinets lit with her burnt out torch the new candles of the recently appointed officer she gave a word of encouragement and advice. These girls accepting the positions of responsibility and leadership in the various channels of Y.W.C.A. work shall endeavor to make the ensuing year as successful as the one just finished.

COUNTRY JOYS

(Adapted from the Latin of Horace's second epode.)

Happy is he who free from care
Follows his oxen through furrows long;
Tilling the soil his father tilled,
Far from the city's noisy throng.

Neither is he as a soldier aroused,
Blasts of the trumpet sound no harm;
Seas may be wrathful, he shudders not,
Peacefully dwelling upon his farm.

Training his vines 'round the poplar tree,
Watching his flocks by the valley stream,
Happy, care-free 'neath an oak is he,
Losing himself in a peaceful dream.

Winter, the season of snow, will bring
Joy of hunting boar and hare,
Making the winter months for him
Free from all trouble and care.

Meanwhile the wife perfoms her tasks
Making the home so cheerful and warm,
Piling the hearth so high with logs,
Shielding her loved ones from a winter's storm,

Spreading a feast so simple and good
Wine and olives and meats the best.
Happy is he when he returns
Finding his home so joyously blest.

SUSAN ON A MID-WINTER DAY

Susan started on a mission,
On an icy winter day;
Started out to do some shopping,
For which father had to pay.

She was gowned in ultra fashion—
Nothing more than three weeks old,
And a watch ticked at her ankle
Gleaming in a case of gold.

Now the snow and ice had frozen,
And the street was very slick;
So the high-heeled shoes of Susan
Hardly found a place to stick.

So she hailed a passing taxi
With a condescinding air,
And when she reached her destination
Paid the driver double fare.

Susan shopped in divers places,
Leaving in her tireless wake
Scores of clerks whose anxious faces
Should have made her conscience quake.

But the high and mighty Susan
Felt no shadow of regret—
Clerks were made to do her choosing,
And they had no right to fret.

But at last with bundles laden
She was ushered to the door,
She could do no further trading,
For there was no other store.

Susan felt the pangs of hunger
And her gum was obsolete,
So she traveled Mary Blountward,
For it says, "A place to eat."

Proud and haughty was her bearing
As she walked the icy street,
While her tight skirt was impairing
The manipulation of her feet.

All went well until a bundle
Rolled from off her varied store,
And she made a frantic effort
To recover it once more.

Susan's ticklish equilibrium
Could not stand the sudden shock;
She tried to keep a standing posture,
But she skidded half a block.

One of Susan's feet went faster
Than the other one could
And so one turned down on Main street,
One down College Avenue.

Susan's hat blew in a snowdrift,
And her hair came tumbling down;
Wigs and rats and puffs and switches,
Scattered over half the town.

Susan's mode was far from graceful
As she sought old Mother Earth,
While the crowd that lined the sidewalk
Laughed and shouted in their mirth.

Gone was Susan's stately bearing,
Gone was Susan's proud disdain;
While the skirt that she was wearing
Ill withstood the awful strain.

Susan sat there meek and humble,
With a feeling of dismay;
While the street all strewn with bundles,
Marked her swift, inglorious way.

In the crowd that had collected,
Was a boy from College Hill;
He the gentler sex respected,
Though he quite enjoyed her spill.

So he helped her up and gathered
Hat and bundles, wigs and puffs,
While she fixed her meager tresses—
But there was no wavy fluffs.

And the now crestfallen Susan
Cautiously pursued her way,
Vowing ne'er to do more shopping
On an icy winter day.

VOLUME FIVE — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE. APRIL 15, 1920. — NUMBER TWENTY-SIX

A.C.O.A. TEAM DEFEATED; CARSON-NEWMAN TAKES HOME VICTORY

TEAM FROM ALUMINUM TOWN ARE EASY VICTIMS. SECOND GAME ENDS IN PITCHING DUAL BETWEEN MERNE AND WEBB.

Lady Luck deserted the ranks of Feeman's protege's during the contest of April 8th, leaving in her lurch a clan of diamond artists exposed to the merciless oppression of the Carson and Newman warriors generaled by their "miracle man", Mr. Webb. For, taking all things into consideration the visitors' victory may be justly attributed to the wicked ball served by Webb and by his seasonable smashes.

In the first three frames the Highlanders were retired in one, two, three order. However, in the third, McCall broke the ice by mauling out a single to left but was nailed at second in an attempt to steal. Maryville then celebrated the "fourth" by a belated rally which netted two runs. Lowry, the first man to approach the platter reached the initial sack via an error by Grabel. Wagner sacrificed and Rowan fanned. Davidson grabbed the willow and ripped off a double to right, scoring Lowry. Davidson stole third and scored immediately afterward on Holloway's unsuccessful attempt to field Ruble's grounder. With the exception of the next frame in which Merne and Lowry died on third and second respectively, the Highlander's played machine like ball without gaining any potential advantage.

Carson and Newman were held hitless until the fourth when the super-Webb attacked the first ball offered by Merne, swatting it to left for two bags. He advanced to third on Davis' sacrifice where he succumbed. In the sixth Merne wabbled and again Webb delivered a solid swat following a fatal pass and a hit batsman, scoring two men and himself reaching the third sack where he was again numbered with the dead. With the score tied the excitement ran high until the ninth inning when Maryville allowed the victory to escape. The formidable batsman Webb was allowed to stroll to first and shortly following this fatal event he rode home on Rowan's unsuccessful attempt to capture King's pop-up—which by-the-way belonged to the second-sacker. Maryville failed to retaliate in their final effort to pull the contest out of the fire.

This was the first real 100 per cent base ball uncorked here this season and was looked in on by a large audience. Despite Merne's wabble in the sixth he showed class and ability which will undoubtedly develop into a winning and potent factor for the Highlanders. Davidson captured first honors among the Maryvillians, poling out a two-bagger, drawing two passes and "acting up" at the receiving position.

Two misdeeds were charged against the Highlanders as compared with three against their opponents. It was noted as unusual that all three of the visitor's runs were counted by players who had been passed to first.

The festivities of the afternoon of April 9th, in which the Highlanders crossed bats with the Alcoa nine, resulted in a third victory for the Feeman favorites this season, the score being 10 to 2.

Maryville started the fireworks in the first inning and aided by the ragged fielding of their opponents concluded the attack after having accumulated a total of four runs. The issue of the day was perceptibly dead and the Alcoa team was beaten. But as if dissatisfied with a mere base ball classic the Highlanders converted the action to a veritable harvest of tallies by which they became reapers of a tenfold harvest.

There was quite an assortment of faulty base ball mixed in the game and, in fact, the chief point of interest rested in the spirit with which both sides attacked.

The "aluminum lads" batted hard and hit viciously at times but were unable to complete the circuit but twice during the entire fray. After the first inning Manager Smith had no choice as to the style of his assault and his only hope lay in a series of hits which failed to appear. Waters wabbled wearily throughout the fore-part of the game and Hollingsworth was trotted out to relieve him in the seventh.

Partee proved the hero of the day by delivering the horse hide on each of two out of four trips to the platter a savage blow which bought for him a round trip ticket. On the second such occasion Davidson, being at the time a resident of first base, shared the benefits of the homer. Smith pitched versatile game, yielding five hits and striking out three men. He also had one put out, one hit, and four assists to his credit. Weisbecker ascended to the mound in the seventh and held the visitors hitless in the last three innings.

COLLEGE OVERALL CLUB ORGANIZED HERE

Over One Hundred and Fifty Men Join. Girls Should Organize Similar Club.

Some want to join the Bachelors' Club, some want to join the Anti-Cigarette Club, some want to join the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Mute Bipeds—but they all wanted to join the Overall Club, as one could readily see Wednesday noon when practically every boy on the Hill was present at the chapel and became a charter member of the strongest club on the Hill—strongest both in quantity and quality. The boys all came with the purpose of the meeting fully in mind and seldom has the Hill seen a club organized and put in running order with such smoothness and grim purposefulness. Happy and full of pep, enthusiastic for the new idea, as were the students present. There was, nevertheless underlying this carefree spirit, the realization that the aims and principles of the Overall Club are practical and worthy, and that once entered into, the Club would be no passing fancy.

Without hesitation, and unanimously, Mr. Jason Deyton was elected President. The following officers were then elected and installed:

Lee Herndon - Vice President
Chas. McClure - - - Secretary
F. A. Greene - - Treasurer
A. W. Cullis - - - - Editor

A second meeting was held immediately after supper, and a report from the Committee on Ways and Means (of buying overalls) was heard. Prices were quoted from several Maryville merchants, and plans were formulated for quickly supplying the immediate wants of the Club. Again there was in evidence the spirit of "stick-to-it-iveness" which was present at the first meeting, and which practically assures the success of the club.

Of course, being men, we are deeply concerned as to what those of the other sex will think of this, our latest endeavor to make life once more what it used to be. We are convinced that our aim is right and just, and that that end is such as justifies the means which we have taken to gain it. Having once set our face in this direction we propose never to turn back, and we believe that the feminine occupants of this Old Hill will look upon the matter in a sensible and rational light—in a way which will eventually result in a better understanding and better fellowship all around. There are some whom we know, who have made the remark that "no gentleman would do it", but we hope that they are much in the minority, and firmly believe that such opinions are indicative only of shallowness and narrow mindedness

Be that as it may, the Overall Club has come to stay!

OVERALL CLUB SONG
(Tune: Hot Time)

Cheer boys, cheer, here's where old H. C. falls
Cheer boys, cheer, we're wearing overalls
And to put them on it takes no time at all
For you can slip them right over your shoes
Rah! Rah! Rah!
Yell, girls, yell. Oh say, don't we look great?
Once we used to have our suits pressed while we wait
But now with overalls we're happy to relate
We never press them. Long live overalls!

—Ferguson.

GAME WITH L. M. U.

Tuesday afternoon, in the midst of a snow storm similar to the one here on Easter Monday, the Highlanders played the L. M. U. nine on their home diamond. The game was a disaster for Maryville as it ended in a 13-6 score.

PREP DEBATORS WIN BOTH ENDS OF A DUAL DEBATE WITH TUSCULUM

Queener, Maye and Franklin Defend Affirmative.

The double victory of the Preparatory debate teams over the teams from the Tusculum College Preparatory Department on Monday night was an achievement of which both the debaters themselves and the entire school may well be proud.

The debate at Maryville was a splendid exhibition of forensic skill. The question was a vital one. The nation as a whole is interested in the matter of Universal Military Training, and the able presentation of the proposition by both teams was convincing proof that there are two sides to the issue.

Mr. Berthold Fraker of the Tusculum team attracted the attention of every one present for despite his small-boyish appearance, he had the real debating faculty, and won the attention and respect of every one in the audience. He not only will be a great debater someday; he already is a great debater. Mr. Gillard and Mr. Smith, the other two Tusculum contenders presented a convincing array of arguments very effectively.

And what about our team? Well, you never saw a better Prep team in your life! For self-possession, logical reasoning, flexibility of defensive arguments, complete mastery of their questions, they yeild nothing to any team in their class. And many a college and university team would do well to take notes from these young Daniel Websters.

Verton Queener, Charles Maye, Sam Franklin,—thats the bunch that did it. Queener's argument in opening the debate was peculiarly clear and convincing and,—how he did shine in rebuttal! Charles Maye is a scrapper on the stage. You can't pull any thing over on Charles and hope to escape his challenge. He drove point after point home with assurance and energy. Sam Franklin,—well you know Sam. He is a born debater. His speech Monday night was a gem from every point of view. His rebuttal argument was presented in a most masterly fashion. Sam enters college next fall and you'd just as well move over and make room for Sam on the college team for if you don't do it yourself, Sam will very politely, but very firmly, move you.

AUCTION SALE

On Monday Pearsons' girls (not Pearson's girl) held their great spring sale, a yearly event of no little importance. Much clothing, shoes, and sundry articles were auctioned off at astounding prices. One white skirt was on the list which it has been asserted has had the honor of being sold at three successive sales. Yet it seems none the worse for these years of service.

The news of the opening of the sales spread to Memorial and Baldwin and these girls came to see what might be picked up or disposed of to advantage. This time honored custom breaks the monotony and as a means of producing or reducing ready change is unexcelled.

Governor Roberts To Be Here For Preparatory Commencement

Governor Roberts will make the commencement address to the graduating class of 1920. The graduating exercises will take place June first. The class of 1920 is to be congratulated on the opportunity of having one of Tennessee's ablest governors to address them.

Negative Team Wins Unamious Decision At Tusculum.

The preparatory representatives, headed by the towering form of C. Johnstone, seconded by the quiet unassuming King with the fiery Friedman, travelled to Tusculum and administered the knockout blow to military training. Their arguments were invincible to the affirmative team and never at any time was the negative team in danger. It was a clean cut fight—a retail slaughter of the innocents, for the judges gave each man on the negative team his vote.

The debate was opened by Shanks of Tusculum who put forth the advantage of military training namely, a better development of the physical body and a respect for discipline—law and order; and it would give vocational training.

Friedman followed on the negative and showed that military training was unnecessary, as a national defense, as a defense of the Mexican border and in international affairs.

Ramsey continued the argument for the affirmative, showing that military training was necessary. The present volunteer method had failed; military training was necessary as a substitute for League of Nations, and because of our exposed and isolated position.

King advanced the argument of the negative by showing that there was no benefit to the individual physically, mentally or morally, nor did it better citizenship.

Centra closed the debate for the affirmative. He showed that it was the best plan for America to gain a place among the nations. The failure of the League of Nations makes it imperative. Military training was the best preventive of war.

Johnstone closed the debate for the negative. He showed military training to be a national danger, economically, socially and in international affairs.

EASTER CANTATA

The large crowd that gathered in Voorhees Chapel on the night of April the ninth could not have been more highly benefitted and entertained than they were by hearing Richard Worthing's cantata, "He is Risen". This cantata was very successfully rendered under the splendid leadership of Miss Gregg, director and Miss Hale, accompanist. Also the soloists, Miss Newton, soprano, Miss Stevens, contralto and Mr. Hayes, tenor, deserve special mention for their entirely pleasing solo work.

This cantata gave to us in beautiful and inspiring song the story of our resurrection hope with its victory over fears and lament and death and it was interpreted and presented in such a manner that it appealed to the hearts of all the eager listeners. We saw the women at the sepulchre, heard the angel speak, saw Mary Magdalene at the sepulchre with the two angels and then we heard the lament of Mary. Next Jesus appeared to Mary and then what a volume of joyful voices we heard telling of a risen Christ and conquered death.

The closing carols sung by the entire chorus and "Oh Jesus, Thou Art Standing" sung by Miss Newton, Miss Johnson and Mr. Hayes were wonderfully beautiful and touching and it was an inspired and thankful audience that left the chapel after the benediction.

We are very grateful indeed to Miss Gregg, to Mis Hale and to the chorus for their earnest efforts and we will never forget how very successful these efforts were and how much we appreciated and enjoyed the cantata.

:--:--:--:

Haven't we some debaters this year? Four victories out of four contests. Why not make it unanimous?

:--:--:--:--:

What do you think of the Overall Club? Just you wait until they get dolled up in their new uniforms. Won't they be pretty though?

:--:--:--:--:

What are the girls going to do? They can't wear overalls and go to school at the same time. But they can wear bungalow aprons and sunbonnets if they wish to do so. If the boys are going to get rough the girls might as well do the same.

Did you see those movies Tuesday? Well that was the first and perhaps it will be the last chance to see movies in town with out a chaperon. Wouldn't it be nice if both boys and girls could go to the show in town together, at least once a week?

Why not stop this talk about a school magazine and have one? The theme writing class has demonstrated the fact that there are plenty of literary sharks on the Hill. Just the other day Professor Hunter read "A Dissertation on Idleness", and "Enterprise Sunday School", and a model short story which were immensely enjoyed by that class, but the school body as a whole didn't get to enjoy them. A magazine would enable the whole student body to read the good literary productions. Such a publication could have a large corps of editors and thus keep the work from being burdensome to anyone. Most up to date High Schools have them, let's have one, too.

The new idea which is spreading over the country of reducing the cost of clothing by wearing overalls has just reached Maryville. A club has been organized and some hundred and fifty men have solemnly sworn to wear overalls at least six days of the week until the end of the school year.

The reason for organizing the overall club was to reduce the price of clothing. Whether the price of clothes can be reduced, by stopping to wear one kind of clothes to adopt another is left to your judgement. But why not organize a club with the idea that no new clothes are to be purchased? Give the man who wears the poorest clothes in the neatest way the greatest honor. What of those boys who do not have the six dollars to buy a pair of Overalls? Shall they be ostracized?

Greetings From Tusculum

Tuesday morning Professor Hathoway, instructor of Biology in Tusculum College delivered a short address at chapel. Greetings from Tusculum were extended.

We assure you Tusculum that in all the contests in which we participate that you are our most worthy rivals.

Last Monday an announcement was made that Mr. Freeman A Green had been chosen Business Manager of the Highland Echo for next year.

Friday afternoon one of the best games of the season will be played with the U. T. aggregation. Let everybody be out to support the team. Of course we will have an Overall parade Friday night instead of the usual kind.

WHERE DO THEY PLAY

There is no little complaint among the chronic grumblers about the attitude the girls take on tennis. We girls who are interested in this pleasant and unexcelled form of recreation ask all to stroll by the girls' courts and look at them. For fear there will be great difficulty in recognizing the courts as they lie in their grassy and gravelly beds their exact location will be given in the next Echo. This wild state may be very aesthetic but it can not be called practical. It might be added that no other form of exercise is being offered the girls now. If Maryville girls are to have any class meets or intercollegiate matches the courts must be looked after now so that practice may begin. To the numerous requests about this matter made at the office the answer has been "Come tomorrow." The authorities are procrastinating until the weather will be too warm for much activity. The girls can not work the courts so they have resorted to the Echo through whose pages they wish to arouse sentiment.

DR. WARD CRAMPTON SPEAKS ON PHYSICAL CULTURE

Wednesday afternoon Dr. Ward Crampton gave an interesting lecture on Physical Culture in the chapel. The importance of physical culture and the need for trained men and women to teach Physical Culture in institutions was stressed. Just recently the United States government has agreed to help the state in providing for the instruction of students.

There is a summer school at Battle Creek, Michigan for young women, and there are numerous schools throughout the country for men who intend to make the teaching of Physical Culture a vocation.

The course of training in one of these schools extends over a period of three years. The first year the student is taught graceful movements such as the use of dumbells. The second year the student is taught athletics of all kinds, folk dancing and swimming. The student is taught how to teach others during the third year. Classic and interpretative dancing is taught and the student becomes sufficiently proficient to teach others how to teach.

At present there is a great need for young men and women in industrial fields who can teach laborers the value of recreation. High salaries are being paid to those who can fill such a position. This is your opportunity.

FEEDING THE EMPIRE STATE

Monday afternoon the students from the Empire State held their annual feed. Of course on account of the rain the affair was staged in Pearsons' parlor. The usual line of eats were passed around and the remains also.The usual games were played in the usual way except that Frank Minarik the notorious and (any word that will express the idea of a person who eats too much) founded a city the name of which begins with a capital H. The worst moonshiners known on the Hill were there. They carried on in the usual way.

Y. W. C. A.

Conservation of American Womanhood.

The Conservation of American Womanhood was discussed Sunday in Y. W. C. A. by the Sophomore girls. Miss Irma Schwab told why the movement had been instigated, while Miss Janet Ensign specified the three points where conditions demand attention. Miss Mabel Webb showed how betterment might be brought while Miss Vera Dunaway closed the discussion by naming some of the good results dependent on the conservation of American womanhood.

During the meeting Miss Helen Park played a piano solo.

The reason that the punch ran low Monday night was, because Professors Walker, Purdy, and Farmer carried it over from Science Hall.

YOU AND THE NEW ERA MOVEMENT

The Presbyterian Church wants to be as efficient as possible. In an endeavor to stimulate and encourage the work of local congregations, General Assembly two years ago started a New Era expansion movement. This governing body of the denomination put the whole matter in the hands of a picked committee.

This committee has been asked to assume the responsibility of attempting to raise money for the mission and benevolent boards of the church in much larger amounts than has ever before been thought of.

Helps Church Loyalty

In addition to the financial campaign the New Era Movement has during the year projected such stimulation of local activity as a loyalty campaign in the fall for church attendance, a stewardship campaign in the spring and a campaign for new members leading up to Easter.

The whole movement is giving thelaymen of the church a new vision of their responsibilities.

As a student in college supported by Presbyterians you ought to be fully informed concerning the progress of the New Era Movement—the biggest effort the church has ever made. This information is available in booklets issued by the New Era Movement and by the various boards of the church.

The official monthly of the Presbyterian Church—New Era Magazine—($1.00 a year and 75c in clubs of 10) gives full details of the progress of churches at home and abroad. Send to 1328 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, for sample copy. Read it regularly in your college library or ask your parents to send it to you.

JUNIOR ATHENIANS NOMINATE AND ELECT U. S. PRESIDENT

The open meeting discussing presidential possibilities led to some interesting discussion. Some of the views stated are as follows: "I have supported the democrats and will do so if they put out the right man. I would support Hoover in any party".—Johnstone. "I am a democrat both by birth and by conviction. We need legislation that will carry out the will of our people. I am for Mr. Hoover."—Queener. "I would like to advance fourteen points for Wilson."—Capps. "Mr. Capps has a good sense of humor. It seems to me that Hoover is the man, but there are other able men". —King. "I think of Mr. Hoover as the most able man of the day. He is a mining shark and capable administrator, but I would like for him to do one of three things,—endorse either the republican platform or the democratic, or construct one of his own and ask the voters to endorse it".—Cornelius. "Wood's brain is o. k. and that "Teddy" trusted him is enough."—Brown and Wathen.

Primaries resulted in Palmer, democratic and Wood, republican. Final, Wood. "Straws tell which way the wind blows."

VESPERS

"Rise take up thy bed and walk". No one can understand the difficulty involved in this command. Here a man lay helpless beside the pool for thirty-eight years; it was the sabbath day; to walk with one's bed would raise the hostility of the Jews. But notice what he did, he attempted to do what was asked. He had only an imperfect knowledge of Jesus and yet he laid hold on His command. "Whomsoever willeth to him it shall be done". It was the personal contact with Jesus that gave him the power to tell the leaders that it was Jesus that had healed him. This power grows out of personal experiences that cannot be daunted; all need to know what God has done for each one. It is he that knows God that has a song on his lips. How can you refuse to obey when He stands and commands? Be as the man at the pool expect great things with the assurance that He can meet them. This is the triumphant note in the life of the apostles. Life is a positive, aggressive thing not a negative thing. He expects your life to produce. It is not what evil you have avoided, but what have you done that counts. It is not what you have stolen, but what have you given that counts. The victorious life is the aggressive life, not a life that is anchored.

THETA EPSILON

On Saturday night in Theta hall quite a number of girls were entertained with a most interesting program.

Nanette Walker gave a piano solo. Goldie Nicely read "The Shop of the Cleft Heart". Miss Virginia Nicely played on her guitar and sang several old southern melodies. The last number was a two act motion picture drama. Indeed it was very tragic when Nell, the pet of the Plains sacrificed her own life for her rival.

Miss Jessie Johnson, Miss Isabel Beck and Miss Roberta Hall were welcomed as new members into the society.

Monday night after the debate a reception was held in the basement of the chapel in honor of the debaters who were here from Tusculum.

Such an affair as this, is always held after each debate. Don't forget that when you miss one of these receptions, you miss something to eat.

DOINGS AT BLUE RIDGE

Discussed at "Y" Sunday.

Mr. Reed Rowan told those who were present at the Y.M.C.A. meeting Sunday afternoon, of the many interesting, helpful and profitable means of instruction afforded at Blue Ridge.

The speaker emphasized especially the physical side of the development attained during the conference, or, in other words, the different ways in which the afternoons may be spent. The nearby, chief points of interest were mentioned for the benefit of those who like to spend their spare time in sight-seeing and who love to be alone with nature in order to meditate upon the deeper concerns of life. For those who desire to indulge in sports he told of the Athletic Contests in which all those who so desire have the privilege to engage.

Mr. Forrest Brown made us acquainted with the procedures of the morning or the study and class work part of the program. It is possible for a fellow to take a course in almost any field he desires.

These fellows and others who have been there say it is well worth while. What do you think about going to see for yourself?

A GREAT SECRET DISCLOSED

Maryville, Tennessee,
April 16, 1920.

Dear Sirs:

You remember the midwinters I wrote you about, don't you? One was "Armageddon" and the other was "Peter Pan". (I'm talking about the girls' mid-winter, now). Well, the expression department is going to give a play for the Junior and Senior Y. W. C. A. next Monday night, and is going to have the stars from both mid-winters in it. Won't that be some entertainment! You know I wrote you about the girl who read at the Easter service well, she's going to be Pierrot (one of the leading characters, they tell me), and Bernice West is Prunella. Her mother is head of the expression department and you know she'll be some actor! Then Mildred Campbell who was Peter Pan is going to be Aunt Privacy and Mildred Copenhaver is going to be Aunt Prude. Mildred Copenhaver's just a freshman, but she sure can read. Ruth Quinn is Aunt Prim. She finishes in expression this year. Ugee Stump and Mildred Striplin are the queerest, quaintest servants, they say, and Lola Beeler and Bessie Henry are going to be gardeners. Little 'Un Hayes is going to be a boy this time and Mildred Kimble is Love. I know she'll be a good one. Then there are four clowns: Reba Seaton, Cerena Polk, Goldie Nicely, and Hazel Walker. There are some mummies, too—they are Myrtle Rendon, Helen Horton, Hattie Cox and Annaline Atkins. I just know it's going to be as good as any mid-winter. One of the girls that's in it say its awfully pretty. I know the stage will be pretty because Sue Nuckols is stage manager.

Well, I've got to study now, so I can go to see Prunella. I just can't miss it.

Your loving sister,
Peg.

BAINONIAN

Who says that originality is not shown in Bainonian programs? Why no one, because there is not and never has been any reason for such a statement! Ask those who were present on Saturday night, April 10th. what they think about Bainonian programs? Who would not enjoy such a program as the one given at that time?

The program consisted of a play—a real play—presented by the latest star actresses. This play had the interesting and suggestive title, "A Bachelor's Romance". It was divided into sixteen acts during each of which appropriate music was rendered by the very melodious quartette composed of Callie Speck, Mary Elizabeth Clemens, Margaret McSpadden and Josephine Hamilton, accompanied at the piano by Hattie Hayes.

After the dismissal of society quite an uproar of voices filled the room, amid which could be distinguished such expressions as, "My, but I am glad I came tonight", "Wasn't it a peach of a play?", "Eunice sure is some vamp", "Did not she make a cute little girl?" and "And oh, how I adored the bride, wonder if I will ever look like that?"

ATHENIAN

The usual weekly meeting of the society was devoted to a discussion of current affairs in Europe and the U. S. Floyd Watt gave an interesting discussion on the failure of Peace Treaty and the next step. The speaker deemed it regretable that the U. S. should be in a position of splendid isolation. Mr. Hackler followed with a short review of the conditions in Germany today. August Johnston gave or rather read a delightful O. Henry story—"Girl". Mr. Milling gave a clear and concise analysis of the trend of events in the Ruhr Valley and showed that these may lead to another European war.

The program was well enjoyed and all joined heartily in the short business meeting which followed.

PERSONALS

Miss Addie Roberson returned to her home at Mount Hope, Alabama, Tuesday. She has been sick so much this term that it was thought best for her not to try to make up her work. Her many friends on College Hill hope she will be back again next year, well and strong, for another term's work.

Miss Bobbye Chesshire spent Tuesday night with friends in Knoxville.

Miss Margaret Tynes of Birmingham is visiting her cousin, Miss Lela Ware.

HERE AND THERE

"That little Dutch House is almost ready. I do hope Prunella will like it."

"Here's hoping I can sell this waist at the Rummage sale for twenty-five cents. Then I can go see Prunella."

"Come on, let's go to the picture show."

"Can't do it, I'm saving my money for that play Monday night."

HIGHLANDERS DROP TWO GAMES TO U. T. BUT WIN FROM C.-N. AND T. C.

GAME HERE WITH U. T.

Maryville Let The Victory Slip in The Eighth When a Hot Time Ensued.

Feeman led his ace but Bender trumped and came back in his strong suit, thus winning both "tricks".

In two contests replete with thrills and heartbreaks, varied by some weird fielding, snappy baserunning, and mighty clouts the rampant nine of the University of Tennessee were victors.

The first which was staged at Maryville on Friday afternoon ended in a 5 to 4 count; in the second at Knoxville the margin was healthier, viz, 8-2. The festivities of Friday afternoon consisted of hash, base ball, wrangles, disputes, a spectacular display of pugilistic activity, and, in short, everything relating to the national pastime and to a free-for-all embroilment.

With the assistance of a pass and certain fielding eccentricities of their opponents the Highlanders annexed three tallies in the first round. In the second Dietzen, the first Vol up failed to remove a portion of his anatomy from the path of one of William's offerings and consequently strolled to first. He crossed the hearthstone soon afterward on Hatcher's and Lane's timely bingles.

From then on to the eighth inning neither side scored. A ghastly group of errors by the locals in the eighth allowed three pairs of Orange and White legs to cross the rubber. In Maryville's half of the same frame the melee occurred. McCall started with a whiff just clear second and Williams sacrificed. McCall counted the tieing score on Gannoway's error and Lowry advanced to second sliding into Lane who was attempting to block the sack. Lane resented this act by slapping the runner and a battle-royal ensued. Several of the would-be supporters surged onto the field and formed a war-center around second base. Reinforcements thronged to the scene of battle two and three hundred strong. In the few minutes of fur-flying which followed several heroes were hatched and many thrilling anecdotes received origin. After fifteen minutes the diamond was again cleared for action—of another sort—and the game was continued.

The score stood 4 to 4 at the beginning of the ninth inning. Lane, batting out of turn, was allowed to reach first on a pitcher's error. Boone and Landess each picked out an affable offering of William's and singled sending Lane to the counting station with the deciding run.

To return again to the interruption of the eighth inning we have this to say: The loyalty with which the town people have always supported the College in all its publications, activities and especially athletics has helped render possible the remarkable advance and growth which we are enjoying and of which we are proud. We are certainly not unappreciative of their support. Yet, after weighing the happenings of Friday afternoon carefully and without prejudice certain townfolk must admit with us that their feigned eagerness to support was overdrawn and distorted by their personal antagomism for certain practices tolerated by Coach Bender and that their conduct was in a measure detrimental to our highly prized reputation as clean sportsmen.

We feel under no obligations to offer apologies to the University of Tennessee for the broil of Friday afternoon as it was not of student origin. We hope to live to see the day when the University and Maryville will be able to engage in clean sportsmen-like athletic contests un-

GAME AT CARSON-NEWMAN

C. N.'s Big Man Webb Not Supported by Team. McCullough Stars in His Debut.

Maryville broke her losing streak by drubbing the Carson and Newman lads at Jefferson City on Monday afternoon by the one-sided score of 9 to 0.

The opposing pitchers performed in laudable style. Williams, Maryville's star moundsman, allowed only two hits, struck out five batsmen and passed only one man. He was injured in the eighth by a pitched ball but completed the last two innings, allowing no man to reach first. Webb who won the game here on the 8th seemed a bit wobbly and tired at spots but with air-tight support could have limited the Highlanders to only one earned run. He allowed five bingles, retired eight men by the strike-out method, and passed three. He failed, however, to wield the mighty stick which so distinguished him in his former game with Maryville. The crowd chanted encouragment to their hero and although he held his adversaries to a few scattered hits it was noted that the Highlanders were slugging them savagely into the outfield and sizzling them to the infield in such a manner as to present plenty of opportunities to the Jefferson Countians to reveal their fielding eccentricities. The crowd gave Webb a rousing welcome each time he appeared at bat and semed indisposed at all times to give yells for other players. Even when they decided to eulogize occasionally the performance of their "team", Webb and everyone else knew to whom the term applied. But Carson and Newman received the revelation at the hands of the Highlanders that a one-man team is no good.

Catcher Joseph led a terrible life throughout the fray, being unable to glue on to the pill. On five occasions the lack of the sticking qualities of "old-lady" in his mit was directly responsible for a run. He also seems to have a tendency to play for the grandstand rather than for the mutual good of his team-mates. The record-book of the defeated team was defaced in the final settlement by a total of 15 errors being recorded thereupon.

First honors go to McCullough who slapped out two hits out of five times at bat, stole three bases, and accepted successfully three chances at drives.

The day was ideal for base ball and the pastime was looked in on by a large audience. A large delegation of followers journeyed from Maryville to support their favorites.

Carson and Newman have been ebullient with joy since their victory over the Highlanders on the 8th., and have painted the score in many conspicious places over their little city. We suggest that they record Monday's score along side each of these flaring ostentatious notices.

DEBATE WITH L. M. U. TOMORROW NIGHT

Another Victory Must Be Won To Make The List Unanimous

With two scalps already taken, the Maryville debaters are making ready to invade the ranks of the Lincoln Memorial debaters in a dual debate, Friday evening, April 23.

The college men won the Triangular debate with Tusculum and Emory and Henry. The preps followed with their remarkable victory in a dual debate with Tusculum. Nothing but a double victory could follow such a record as this and because of it, our two strong teams are working hard to make this a wonderful year for our Forensic Leagues.

The question to be debated is Resolved, That the United States government should own and operate the coal mines. Our affirmative team will debate this question in Voorhees chapel Friday evening, while our negative team will journey to Harrogate, Tennessee to debate the Lincoln Memorial affirmative team.

Tom Vance, the lead-off man will make a good start by his fine constructive speech and will easily enlist the interest of the audience on his subject. Jimmy Martin, our silver tongued orator follows with his usual good, and convincing delivery, and with his usual self-possession that he has while speaking. J. B. Deyton, the captain of the affirmative team will close the debate, both in constructive speeches and in rebuttal, and with his logical reasoning assure us of a victory. Ralph A. Armstrong is the alternate for this team.

But what about our negative team which has to debate upon the foreign floor. We are sure that they will bring back a victory.

Edward F. Cody, our preacher debater is to give the negative case a good send-off. He will take his text from the leading periodicals of the day. Charles R. McClure in his deliberative manner will go a long way in winning the debate. The argument for the negative will be closed by the captain of the team, Joel S. Georges. He with his ability to refute all argument makes our chances for a victory a certainty. L. M. U. debaters, we pity you and your arguments when Georges gets through tearing them up. Forrest D. Brown an experienced debater is the alternate of the team.

And what are we going to do to help win this debate? We are going to support them and show that we believe in them by our presence at the chapel Friday evening, at 8:00 o'clock.

SPLENDID PLAY PRESENTED MONDAY NIGHT

Under Auspices of Y. W. C. A.

With the spirit of spring everywhere and gardens growing green no play could have met with more success than did the one presented by the dramatization class for the benefit of Y. W. C. A. on Monday night.

It was a light and entertaining play yet touched with pathos.

The characters, all of whom acted out their parts admirably were as follows:

Pierrot - - Irrovia Corry
Prunella - - - Bernice West
Boy - - - Mary L. Hayes
Love - - - Mildred Kimble
Prim - - - Ruth Quinn
Prude - - Mildred Copenhaver
Privacy - - Mildred Campbell
Queer - - - Ugee Stump
Quaint - - - - Mildred Striplin
First Gardner - - Lola Beeler
Second Gardner - Bessie Henry

It has been said that the numerous attractions offered by the various organizations interfere and conflict with school duties. Be this true or not, may the entertainments given by the dramatization classes be continued. They surpass many lyceums in excellence and at the same time they present our own students.

FIRE PROTECTION TO BE INSTALLED

Have you noticed the ditch which is being dug in front of Bartlett? Well the reason for all the excavation is that the college and city water systems are to be connected. This union is being made for the prevention of fires. Fire plugs will be placed at intervals over the campus to assure protection to the buildings. In case there is a fire in town or here on the Hill there will be a sufficient water supply from both systems.

This is an improvement which has been needed on the Hill for many years as there is only one building that has adequate fire protection.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT SATURDAY

Interclass tennis tournaments are to be held Saturday. This is the first year since the spring of 1916 that the various classes have aroused enough interest to play off a tennis tournament. Why couldn't we have interclass base ball this year?

Campus To Be Beautified

Arrangements are being made for the paving of streets and side walks this summer. Also a committee is working on a plan for beautifying the campus which was drawn up by two of the best landscape gardeners in the country.

FRED HOPE FUND CAMPAIGN

The Fred Hope Fund pledges were very successful. A total of $400 was pledged. The success of this most worthy fund will now depend upon the payment of pledges as only a small percentage was cash. Towards the success of this fund a collecting campaign will be conducted from May 1 to 5th. In the meantime if you should wish to settle your pledge, see your class committee man and give pledge money to him. Representing the different classes are:

Helen Gamble, Hazel Cleveland, Nina Bell Caldwell, Mary Bigelow, Helen Horton, Mattie Hodges, Rebecca Calderwood, Susan Carson, Lora Hibbert, Jason Deyton, Tommy Loft, Forrest Brown, Roy Buffat, Ed. Moore, Sam Franklin, Walker Alexander, Hobart Ford and Frank Heard.

BATES PRIZE CONTESTANTS CHOSEN

Contest To Be Held During Commencement Week.

Those members of the Senior class who were fortunate enough to be chosen as the persons to compete for the Bates Prize are as follows:

Mildred Campbell
Irrovia Corry
Jessie Creswell
Joel Georges
Helen Lewis
James Martin

Undoubtedly the above contestants have well prepared orations—the best that could be prepared by any of the students on College Hill. These contestants will deliver their orations some evening during commencement week. They will then be graded on their delivery and the winner will be chosen.

THE LAST DEBATE OF THE YEAR

A Novel Event in Prospect

St. Patrick's Day would have been a better day for it but circumstances placed it Monday night next. It's that long expected girls' debate on The Irish question. The fair co-eds from Tusculum are going to invade the Hill for the purpose of convincing us, and incidentally three disinterested gentlement, that Ireland ought not to be a free nation. They are going to have a hard time doing it for the Maryville Cause, which is for once the Irish Cause, is to be upheld by a capable trio of,—well if they are not Irish themselves, they are going to make the world think they are Monday night. The affirmative team for us is composed of Misses Ruth McCall, Edith Moore, and Captain Licia Johnson.

Now conditions at Tusculum are to be exactly reversed. With strange inconsistency the Tusculum co-eds who remain at home agree, not with their sisters who come to Maryville, but rather with the Maryville girls whom we have just named. If they were just willing to come down here and let the others stay at home wouldn't things be more agreeable? But we can't complain because our negative team which goes to Tusculum Monday morning has the same strange pro-British notions that the Tusculum negative team has. This negative team of ours is composed of Misses Mary Louise Hayes, Bernice Kimble, and Captain Mildred Campbell.

Maryville wants to wind up the debate season with a pair of victories. Everybody out Monday night, April 26, 8 o'clock.

SPRING FOOT BALL

It Pays to Look Ahead.

In many of the colleges of this vicinity football practice is started in the Spring term. This enables the coach or manager to get in line with the prospective material that has entered school since the Christmas holidays. Let's try something along this line ourselves for every little bit helps. There is not much time in the fall to train green material into veteran line plungers.

As there will be only five more editions of the Echo published this term, and as it was thought that it would be more desirable to leave out an issue here and there, rather than several at the end of the term, there will be no paper published next week.

THE HIGHLAND ECHO

Published every Thursday by the students of Maryville College.

The student body is to be commended on the way it has been supporting the baseball team during the last few games.

:-:-:-:-:-:

Don't you wish you were a Senior these days? Well you will wish you could be one about the middle of next week.

:-:-:-:-:-:

We were certainly glad to hear from the orchestra Monday night. Orchestra music adds much to an entertainment.

:-:-:-:-:-:

The Y. W. C. A. wishes to take this opportunity to thank the boys who worked so nobly and so willingly on the stage scenery and the bleachers, at pulling the curtains, etc., and who were so good about cleaning up after the play was over.

Through a most senseless mistake for which the Y. W. is exceedingly sorry, the names of the clowns were left off the program. They were: Reba Seaton, Goldie Nicely, Hazel Walker, and Cerena Polk. They were the life of the play with their frolics and games and fun. Each of them acted her part to perfection.

WHAT WAS IT?

It was not a mountain hike or trip; it was not a wedding feast or invitation; it was not what you are thinking about. What could it be? Were you there? Did you go along or did you miss all the pleasure of life? It was just a jolly good and enjoyable trip to the city of Knoxville. Practically each and every student of M. C. boarded the train, autos and truck to their maximum. This was making good the use of the half-holiday given Saturday.

See the happy hearts and pleasing faces as they go over there. Moonshining was a favorable feature that served to charm and flavor the entire situation even though it bore heavily upon the now vacant pocket books.

Everybody found a seat in Knoxville on U. T.'s bleachers where the Highlanders fought hard to take over U. T.'s goat. The opponents have admitted that the visitors succeeded in surpassing them in yells, pep and enthusiasm for they certainly did carry the day in this respect.

The object in view having been decided all returned in same similar manner as that pursued in going over. It is only whispered here that doubtless a number of those who went two in a hill or in couples took advantage of the the opportunity and in going and coming went the furtherest way round which is said to be the easiest way found.

DOINGS OF THE FACULTY

Several of our worthy professors have been absent from our midst during the past week.

Professor Orr attended a meeting of Union Presbytery at Beaver Creek, Tenn., April 14, where he became a member of that organization. Last Sunday he preached at Erwin, and next Sunday he will fill the pulpit at Parrottsville.

Dr. Gillingham also attended the meeting of Union Presbytery where he was appointed Chairman Permanent Committee on Education. Also he was elected commissioner to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. at Philadelphia, Pa., May 20-30, 1920.

Dr. Stevenson has been utilizing his spare time preaching commencement sermons at several of the high schools in this vicinity.

Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday afternoon was by no means a failure, although the speaker for the afternoon was unavoidably detained just at the last minute.

The service was made very interesting as well as helpful through the song service and the open discussion by several of the fellows on things that had recently struck them with force concerning their Christian life and which they thought worth telling to others.

The meeting was short although full of enthusiasm and the remarks made were brief and to the point. A cornet duet added variety to the program.

VESPERS

"I will turn aside to see this sight". These words from the life of Moses formed the basis of the Vesper lesson. The life of Moses was a life of contrasts. Born of humble Jewish parents, yet was brought up at the court of Pharoah. He had a conception of God's purpose, yet he killed a man. At eighty he saw the burning bush and turned aside to see it. He then realized God's relation to the human soul. God knew his name. As Moses had lived on the thought of God had become vague and obscure. But God has his eye on everyone's character.

God has a natural right to your service as well as he had to Moses. God gave the energy to the coal, to the iron ore, to the electrical power and to you. Can you withhold it from him? "We are not our own but God's through redemption". You may try to withhold your services as did Moses, but God has your life planned. Do not let the force or power within you separate you from God's plan.

The pastor concluded with a story of a business man who shut himself away in the mountains, from the falsehood, the deceit, and hypocracy of human nature. A stranger entered the cabin one day and asked the hermit to play the violin. He did in a manner not tolerated in the best schools. Then the stranger played, and it seemed as heaven itself had opened. The violin was nothing, but in the hands of the master it became the instrument of instruments. Your life in the hands of God will accomplish his plan. God and Moses, a nation.

FRESHMAN CLASS LEAD PRAYER MEETING

The great and mighty host of the class of '23 made a conspicious display by the minority that was on the platform Wednesday evening. The subject was "Enthusiasm" a big subject for a big class, but only the faithful ones displayed their enthusiasm.

Among the features were a duet by the Misses Stevens and Kimble. A violin solo by Miss Sugg. The Freshman quartet, Messrs. Nichols, King, Howard, and Montgomery gave a pleasing selection.

Mr. Wilson gave the first talk and showed that the enthusiastic life is also a victorious life. He mentioned many of the enthusiastic men of history and the victory they obtained. Their enthusiasm depended on the responsibilities they set. Where there is no responsibility there is no result. The result of the enthusiastic life is like that of Huss, of Wickliff, of Luther, of Latimer and Riddley that goes on and lives on.

Mr. Buffat's talk was on the ideal of enthusiasm. Youth has a very warm enthusiastic vision of the baseball hero, of the cowboy, the knight and finally the financial giant of Wall street. In every boy's life there are three periods. The speaker then took up John's message to the churches and drew the parallel to school life. There are the three classes—the cold, the lukewarm and the hot. All have witnessed these various degrees. The February Meetings left everyone at the top notch of enthusiasm. Then there has come the lukewarm period. At present not a semblance of the prayer meeting held on the floors of Carnegie are to be found—enthusiasm has waned—it is neither hot or cold.

THE SUCCESS OF FAILURE

In Senior Y. W. C. A. Sunday afternoon Miss Addie Fine discussed the part that success and failure play in all lives. Success is a natural desire but something good results from every experience. What then is the value of defeat? The following lives who have made success out of failure were used as examples: David, Moses, Jonah, Joan of Arc, Hellen Keller, and Mr. Cook. Short sketches of these well-known people were given by Robbye Cheshire, Blanche Moore, Willodine McIver, and Luster Brooks. Nor was the musical part of the program lacking. Miss Elizabeth Whitlock played a piano solo and Miss Elizabeth Moore gave a vocal selection.

A PARTY

Misses Zina B. Parrott and Janet Ensign gave one of the most charming parties of the year Monday afternoon in Bainonian Hall when they entertained their table. One of the events of the afternoon was a contest— questions whose answers were to be found on the back of a dime. Hattie Hayes was the winner of the contest and Bob Belt received the booby. Another feature was a story, the blanks of which were filled in with the names on cards which each person held. This excited much mirth, especially when George Kempsey pealed forth with "white rabbits". While a most delicious salad course was being served, each person had his or her fortune told—and these fortunes were unusually interesting. George Kempsey is to be married three times and all of his future wives are now peacefully eating at the same table in the dining room; Bob Belt will be married at least twice and his two wives are now room-mates! Mary Mason and Francis Hickey both have perfect dispositions, and Hobert Ford is going to die of hard work! The four-thirty bell rang entirely too soon, and all had to leave, but with a feeling that they had spent one perfect afternoon, thanks to their perfect hostesses; and that their table was the best in the world!

O don't forget that in the beauty contest Zina B. Parrott won for the girls and Skipper Henderson tied with Hobart Ford as being the best looking man!

GAME WITH U. T. AT KNOXVILLE

Saturday dawned bright and fair in the regions of East Tennessee, and with the first rays of Old Sol came thoughts of base ball and revenge to every resident and sojourner on the Hill. After persistent supplication and humble genuflection on the part of the students our beloved Dean granted a half holiday, and the privilege to invade our neighbor city via a special which wheezed out of Maryville at 1:30. About two hundred loyal fans and ardent boosters took advantage of this concession and journeyed forth to witness what proved to be the massacre of the local idols.

The Highlanders at the outset appeared to have bright prospects of feasting on McCabe's offerings, but the seven clean swipes registered against him were too scattered to net any material gain.

Lowry led off with a smash to left, Wagner grounded to Kennedy who took his siesta before pegging to first. Davidson poled out a clean bingle to right scoring Lowry and advancing Wagner to third. Wagner crossed the plate on Ruble's grounder to second base. From the initial inning on to the finis only one M. C. man was privileged to visit third base. In the eighth Partee sent the pellet on an excursion to deep center which threatened to be a circuit slam, but by the fast fielding of Dietzen narrowed to a three bagger.

The Volunteers scored one tally in their half of the first and were held intact until the sixth. The Highlanders took an ascension in the sixth and when they had at last alighted from their firmamental strayings four markers had been chalked up against them. Three of the Vols who seemed to have solved Weisbecker's delivery fattened their batting averages in the final frame and together with three misdeeds of the Highlanders added three more scores.

The supporters from Maryville returned to their tranquil little city not altogether jubliant but satisfied with the character of the contest as contrasted with the one of the preceding day.

CENTRE COLLEGE DEFEATED IN WILD GAME

Errors Prove Fatal to The Visitors. Lowry and Cotton Show Good Form.

Playing on their own familiar real estate and cheered by their loyal following the Highlanders again tasted of victory on April 30th. For the second time this year Centre College of nation-wide fame in athletic circles admitted the superiority of a Maryville aggregation and confessed defeat, this time by the score of 5 to 3.

As a real base ball classic it was not much to behold. It was, in short, a serio-comic affair punctuated by fourteen clean hits and fourteen errors.

There was small glory accruing to anyone from Friday's performance, but what glory was coming belongs to Lowry and Cotton, each of whom sent the globule into regions uninhabited on two occasions. Their fielding skill was also put to numerous tests and was proved competent. Smith, one of Maryville's best slabmen performed throughout the holocaust and while he had seven hits registered against him, he was steady in pinches and kept them well scattered throughout the nine innings.

The locals in truth earned only one tally by conscientious workmanship and the other four came partly by the grace of the Kentuckians' errors. The Highlanders took advantage of the careless vigilance of the Kentuckians in the first two innings and tucked the victory away under their wing where it remained for the day.

In Centre's part of the seventh a bit of comic base-running took place which was as funny as a sack race. With Centre only two points in arrears and with two men gone, K. Bruner was allowed to stroll to first. He was advanced to second when Embry gave the apple a ride to left. As Smith seemed engrossed in thoughts absolutely unrelated to base ball, Bruner took a shot at sneaking third—and succeeded. The jubilant coach of the third sack nearly exploded with glee because of the accomplishment of such a clever trick and proceeded to bestow a congratulatory slap on the back of the runner. Munch, not being versed on this year's rule in which the clause forbidding the touching of a runner has been annulled, called the runner out. The visitors' vision of a tied score were thereby obliterated.

BEST EXPRESSION RECITAL EVER GIVEN HERE

Misses Hayes, Corry and Campbell Participate.

On Monday night last three of the most popular as well as most talented girls in school gave their graduate recitals in expression.

Miss Mary Louise Hayes read as her selection "Peg O' My Heart". Having made an exhaustive study of the Irish question, Miss Hayes undertood the Irish temperment perfectly, and presented Peg accordingly. Who could help but love the sweet, impulsive, patriotic, sincere, Irish girl as she seemed to live before us; so perfect was the entire character, the brogue, the gesture, every detail, that it was hard to believe there was not a real dog on the stage, and that Little 'Un was the only person there. The other characters, too, were presented with rare ability and skill—all of them, the aunt, Ethel, Alred, Mr. Jerry, one so proud and haughty, another spoiled by her environment until she was most superficial, Alred conceited and silly, and Mr. Jerry—the democratic, friendly, yet titled guardian, friend, lover.

Then Miss Irrovia Corry read, "The Servant in the House"—in her splendid efficient way. So perfect was her technique that had one been able to hear her and not see her, he would have been conscious of every change of character. This play contains a number of different and difficult persons, yet Miss Corry presented them perfectly. Mary was lively and playful, loving, trusted and thoughtful, having a clear understanding of the deeper things of life—an understanding which, strange to say, is more characteristic of children than of grown people. The vicar was anxious to do the right thing yet easily influenced and often persuaded to do what was only apparently right. His wife was cold and indifferent to everything save as it affected her idol—her husband. Hanson—the servant, and savior of the house—the most difficult of them all, was wonderfully realistic—so strong, so kind and sympathetic, so wise in the ways of men's hearts, and in the true service of God, that even a child could not help but wonder how it was the vicar and his wife did not recognize him. Robert, the other brother, was equally well presented, so well that the audience saw his wrongs, his reasons for bitterness, his wonderful sense of honor, his rare understanding of the spiritual and the value he placed on his humble work which made possible the more beautiful work of those above.

This was followed by "Rosalind" as read by Miss Mildred Campbell. She thrilled her audience with her beautiful presentation of the many sided Mrs. Paige whose whole life seemed to be acting one part or another—the beauty of her life, its tragedy, and her almost incomprehensible personality were interesting throughout.

Miss Campbell's characterization of that splendid young man, Charles, was especially good. The audience liked his perfect manners, his impulsiveness, his love for Beatrice, be she young or old, his great surprise and consequent sorrow followed by his avowal that nothing could ruin his love for Rosalind, even if his father did call him only an expense. To hold the atention of an audience that after walking for miles, has sat still for over an hour is an almost impossible feat; yet that is exactly what Miss Campbell did.

For the first time in seventeen years, Mrs. West sat in the audience as a listener only, and she heard—a perfect recital—without a flaw in any way, without a forgotten line, without an imperfect gesture,—a recital that could not have been more perfect.

OUR QUEEN OF THE MAY

MISS SUE NUCKOLS

THE MAY-DAY FESTIVAL

First Celebration in Years Was Great Success. Classes Participate.

On last Thursday morning, you remember, we heard Dr. Stevenson make an announcement. After a lengthy elaboration of expressive, impressive, and oppressive verbs and adjectives, he arrived at this theme —"The Election of a Queen of the May". It was with difficulty that one girl was chosen from among the eight.

The festivities took place on Baldwin lawn just after three o'clock. Six pretty little girls—three on each side—marched through the portal to the throne making a royal passway for the King and Queen. Then came some very beautiful maidens with baskets of flowers on their arms attended by their respective suitors. Next, the lovely Queen was beheld, as she marched slowly to her throne. Three little boys then came in—one of them bearing the royal crown on a velvet cushion. These, as the others had done, took their places near the throne. Next the King came proudly forward, stood at the foot of the throne, and received the crown from its bearer. It was then amidst great applause that William Montgomery crowned Sue Nuckols Queen of the May.

The first part of the program was a May-pole dance made very beautiful by costumes of various colors. Then, each of six classes presented a stunt:

First preps: Two black faced Comedians, Horace Wolverton and Ambrose Eidson.

Fourth preps: Violin solo, Lucile Thorpe.

Freshman: Columbia, a tableau, Mary Ridgeway.

Sophomores: The Mack Sennet Beauties at Coney Island, Helen Park, Mary McKensie, and Irma Schwab.

Juniors: Class Reunion of '21—twenty years hence, entertained by Rev. and Mrs. Floyd Watt.

Seniors: Faculty Reception and the Evolution of a Senor.

After the rendering of this program, Dean Barnes (Joel Georges) extended the invitation, "Come and bring all of your friends", to partake of refreshments. The whole crowd "came" and "partook" of ice cream served in cones. And thus ended a perfect May Day.

LAST NUMBER OF LYCEUM A SUCCESS

Mmme. Rose Lauler Speakes

The last number of the most interesting and successful lyceum course Maryville College has had in many years was given in the chapel Friday night. Mmme. Rose Lauler told of her war experiences, in her own original and charming way. She held her audience spellbound while she told of her hair-raising escape from German soldiers, the dramatic way in which she became an American citizen, her difficulty in convincing people that she was an American when she couldn't speak a word of English, her providencial knowledge of the States and their chief cities and the principal railroads in each. As we cannot all have such thrilling experiences, we are glad to hear some one tell of hers in such a realistic way.

The Y. M. C. A. is to be congratulated on having presented so well balanced a lyceum course at such a reasonable price.

LIVE INTEREST IN TENNIS THIS YEAR

College Hill has probably never seen a better aggregation of tennis players than is here this year. The tennis enthusiasts hope to show those whom they meet some good-playing.

Carson-Newman will be our first opponents, the initial tournament to take place on the C. N. C. court, May 10th, return tournament at M. C., May 15th.

Following this will be matches with Tusculum, Emory and Henry, and ——U. of T.

By the end of this year it is hoped that inter-collegiate tennis will be on a firm basis.

HIKE TO MT. NEBO

Monday morning, on a special train for such an exceptional occasion, several hundred students rode to Melrose. From there they hiked up to the summer resort where the dinner was disposed of. Then the climb up the mountain was made and later on the whole outfit slid back down the mountain side and into the coaches. All of the hikers had a splendid time and no one was left behind.

Tuesday morning, Rev. Charles Reynolds Brown, Dean of Religion in Yale University delivered a masterful address before the student body in chapel.

SENIORS ROYALLY BANQUETED BY JUNIORS

Many Splendid Toasts Delivered

'Twas the night before Thursday,
And all over the Hill,
Every Seniors was stirring,
Not a Junior was still—No, that's not exactly right.

The moon was shining bright—well, it was, both literally and figuratively, but that's not the way to begin it either. It's the Junior-Senior banquet, and we can't begin to tell all about it; words won't express it at all.

The members of both classes met at the Presbyterian Church where they were greeted by sounds that were never heard before. Say, did you ever hear Marquis, Buchanan, Hanson and Moore sing together? If you haven't, you just don't know what you've missed. They cast such a spell on us that when "Tommy" Loft told six of the "moonshining couples to lead the way to the Mary Blount, nobody moved for almost one minute! Then the old married folks got up and left and the others who were very sure that the old folks couldn't be trusted alone with a banquet, simply had to follow.

The Mary Blount was decorated in Senior colors, and the place cards were Seniors too, but you'd better believe there was room enough and eats enough for the Juniors too! The memory of those eats lingers with us yet! There was absolutely everything to eat that you ever dreamed of. And it surely was glorious just to sit there and eat and eat, while the orchestra played and your best girl smiled at you between bites

After even Weisbecker could eat no more, Prof. Southwick remembered (after a sign from the "chaperon") that he was toastmaster. Accordingly, things began to remind him of stories he had heard, and all agree with the little girl at L. M. U. who told him after the debate (and after he had taken her little hand "with a good Methodist grip") that he "just did fine!"

Martha Robison, who was the first "toaster" proposed eloquently and delightfully a toast to the Seniors. Fred Cagle answered with a toast to the Juniors, in his usual competent manner. Then George Callahan startled everyone by stating that he is bright! None never suspected it before, but the speech he made convinced everyone of the fact. His toast was to "Chilhowean Charms", which turned out to be not the mountain scenery, nor the pictures in the annuals, but the Girls. Then our May Queen told, in her charming, composed manner about some funny old girls, who decided they could live without men. But they weren't really people, and Sue's toast to "Brilliant Prospects" was really to the Boys. Minnie Hunter then related some very thrilling "Highland Echoes", and all were moved almost to tears, when Harry Wagner brought "Auld Lang Syne" back to us so vividly.

It was now time for the "After Dinner Mints", and our beloved Professor Hunter concluded the toasts a'la Himself, which is enough said. The lights were burning low, or at least that was in his speech, and after we all stood and sang lustily "Dear Old Maryville", it was time to leave. Reluctantly all filed out, and everywhere could be heard "The best time I ever had!" and "You'll have to hand it to those Juniors", "they surely know how to entertain", and "wasn't everything just perfect?" And it was, and we'll never forget it.

The Senior Class secures noted Violinst, Aage Fredericks. His company along with The Republic Male Quartet will present joint concert, of unusual merit, Friday, May 7th., 1920, Voorhees Chapel.

:--:--:--:

The school year is fast coming to a close. Commencement season will soon be here. Within the next month another class of students will be added to the Maryville College Alumni. During the past years classes have left the Old Hill never again to be reunited. There is to date no organization which endeavors to reunite the Alumni of various years in class reunions. Unless some action is taken soon another class will leave never to meet again as a class.

1922 CHILHOWEAN

At a meeting of the Sophomore Class last week Mr. Forrest Brown, Mr. Tom Vance and Mr. Owen Henderson were nominated for business manager of next year's annual. At a meeting of the class on Saturday Owen Henderson was elected to this position of responsibility. With Mr. Charles Sharpe as editor-in-chief, and Mr. Owen Henderson taking charge of the business connected with the publication, the Sophomore Class expects to publish an excellent Chilhowean next spring.

THE GIFT OF SELF

On Sunday night after Vespers in Bainonian hall the Y.W.C.A. presented a pageant. The scene opened with a prologue. The stage was lighted with the candles of Enlightenment and before the throne of Receiving the abstract characters History and Church gave advice to the ruler's little boy and little girl. These two children had their selfish and shrinking selves who as tempters appeared from behind a screen These evil spirits were the cause of the extinguishing of the candles of enlightenment. When the children heeded the call of the pleading Needs, the Friendless, the Poverty-stricken, the Immigrant, the Labor Child, the Eskimo, the Mexican, and the Mohammedan, the selfish and shrinking selves disappeared, the children came down from the thrones and sacrificed themselves to the need of the world.

Mrs. Buchanan has gone to Virginia to attend a missionary meeting there.

Y. M. C. A. HIKE SATURDAY TO THE SMOKIES

The Y. M. C. A. hike to the crest of the Smokies will be this weekend. The party will leave by train at four o'clock Saturday afternoon and return at five o'clock Monday afternoon. The trail will be hit at Townsend.

The trail to Thunderhead and the Spence Cabin on the blue grass crest of the Smokies is twelve miles long, being along the identical trial which marks the old road built by Isaac Anderson, founder of this college, more than a hundred years ago. It passes through Jefferies' Hell, over Ball Mountain right through the most rugged of mountain scenery. To one side is the mass of Chilhowee peaks while to the other side is a deep and wild gorge through which leaps a torrent of glistening water, and rising above it to the sky line is the crest of the Smokies culminating in the lofty Thunderhead. If you have never hiked through the wilds of nature, this sublime and awe inspiring scenery will create within you a new sense of wonder; if you have had such an experience, you need no invitation to go.

The return will be by way of the Russell Cabin and Cades Cove. You will be astonished by the grandeur of the scenery, the beauty of the mountain shrubbery—the rhododendron, laurel, gaylax, spruce, and balsam.

Sure you are going. Your round trip fare to Townsend and back will be about $1.50. Take with you rations for six meals, be sure however that you take only the things you will actually need for you are the one who will have to cary the pack. Take a heavy blanket for the nights will be cold and propably the shelter slight. Wear substantial hiking clothes, heavy and broad shoes. If possible wear spirals for they will increase your endurance on a long trail. Come with a good spirit, a light heart, and a light pack.

"Y" DEPUTATION TO GREENEVILLE

On Friday, April 22, 1920 the College Y.M.C.A. made an important stride to the fore by sending a deputation of ten men to Greeneville, Tennessee to conduct, under the auspices of the Greeneville Hi "Y" Club, a series of four meetings for the moral and spiritual uplift of the young people of the town. The deputation was composed of the College quartet, Young Hayes, Percy Buchanan, William Montgomery, and Robert King, and four speakers, E. E. Loft, A. W. Cullis, R. S. Buffat, and C. N. Sharp. Harry Wagner, president of the local "Y", and Professor Henry of the Maryville Polytechnic School arrived in Greeneville late Saturday afternoon and greatly reinforced the team.

Friday morning was spent in becoming acquainted with the high school pupils and in establishing a firm basis of fellowship upon which to conduct the meetings. The afternoon was occupied by a splendid lecture by Rev. George R. Stuart, and the first meeting began at seven o'clock the same evening. The place of meeting being in the M. E. Church. Mr. Clinger, president of the local Hi "Y" Club introduced the campaign and Mr. Loft briefly set forth the purpose of the deputation. Mr. Sharp followed with a discussion on "Making a Living or Making a Life". Saturday morning was devoted to a visit to Tusculum College where lunch was served to the party in Tusculum's dining hall. On returning to Greeneville in the early afternoon a hike was staged by the students of the high school. Pleasure was the sole end and the right means for the right pleasures were employed. A feature of the afternoon was Mr. Buffat's blindfolded chase in search of a local belle. Mr. Montgomery is also to be commended for his ease and grace in tearing up the sod in a frantic and vain effort to keep his equilibrium during a wild gallop around a handkerchief ring. It was noticed that Mr. Loft put aside his dignity and took unto himself a course in moonshining and, incidentally, a reputation for good-fellowship.

Saturday night's meeting was conducted by Mr. Clinger. Mr. Cullis spoke on "Athletics as a Character Builder". In the course of his discussion he unconsciously revealed his own splendid ideals and Maryville's high standards of sportsmanship. Athletics build character, either of two kinds, good or bad, what the player puts into his game will be just what he will get out of it. Mr. Buffat discussed "The Manhood of the Master" and the principles which he advocated went far toward making the meetings successful.

Sunday morning was given to visiting the local Sunday Schools, each man being assigned to a School. The quartet, which had performed such inestimable service on all former occasions, furnished harmony to various classes of one of the churches.

The Sunday afternoon meeting was quite successful. Mr. Montgomery discussed "Efficiency in Living" and his words were of great value to all who were present. High ideals were dominant throughout and many right principles of living were set forth. Mr. Wagner spoke briefly on "Why I am a Christian" and by his simple and earnest reasons he left a firm basis for any Christian to build his structure upon. Mr. Loft, from his wealth of experience in ministerial work, delivered what can be justly termed a most inspiring and uplifting sermon.

Mr. Doughty, a Greeneville business man, entertained the men at his home in the afternoon and had them as his guests at dinner at Hotel Brumley. The Sunday evening meeting was, unquestionably the most eventful and successful of the entire series. The congregations of the various churches convened at the M. E. Church, and crowded it to capacity. Professor Henry lectured on the social problems of the day and his statements were of great merit. The deputation was very fortunate in having such an able speaker to deliver the closing address. Two young men answered his appeal for better living. This meeting concluded the series, and the men returned to Maryville on Monday morning.

Undeniably, the project was successful. If only one person had been helped in his problems the desired end would have been achieved, but many were helped, according to their own testimony. The purpose of the deputation was not evangelical, in the common sense of the word—the goal sought was moral unlift, and through the grace of God, the effects were far-reaching among young people, and among parents The deputation, although it was strictly non-partisan, undoubtedly did a great deal toward propagating Maryville's reputation for Christian ideals of training. Nothing was said or done during the three days which would detract from the College's good name.

The boys of the quartet acquitted themsleves with honor, performing with cheerfulnes and skill all of the numerous tasks which were placed upon them by appreciative audiences. They worked hard in preparation and in actual singing and the success of the deputation is, in a large measure, due to their efforts.

The plan was an innovation. It has been tried and it works—works not for Maryville's glory, but for God's glory. Greeneville is not the only field. Name the others yourself and you will see the importance of such work. Our "Y" may be the nucleus of much future good along this line—the sharing of God's blessings with others.

The Highlanders were administered two defeats last week at the hand of the Oglethorpe nine. 7-6, 4-0.

ATHENIANS HOLD FRENCH MEDAL CONTEST

The French Medal Contest held Saturday night in the Athenian Society was a great success. If Mr. French, the donner of the medal, had been present, he would indeed have been well pleased.

The orations and participants were "Retribution" by Charles Sharpe; "The Americas" by Delemo Beard, and "The Conquest of Palestine" by James Martin, the last being the winner.

The Society desires to thank the judges for their services: Professor Hunter, as chairman of both committees; Professor Knapp, Miss Fanson, and Professor Southwick as committte on composition; and Professor Bassett, Professor Brittain, and Professor Orr as committee on delivery.

This French Medal Contest will be held annually. Mr. French is an Athenian of former days and now a resident of Albuquerque, New Mexico. He presented the Society with the prize to be given in oratory last spring at a meeting of the Athenian Alumni. His purpose was for encouraging and furthering of the literary work in the Society. The object is a very commendable one and it will no doubt be a great stimulus to the literary activities.

The type of the orations given Saturday night would be creditable to any such organization. Each dealth with a specific and important issue,—the negro problem, Pan-Americanism, and the Jewish restoration to Palestine. Origionality and personality stamped itself upon each composition, indicating the thoroughness of the work in the construction.

LUSSY WANTS A CORNER

On Sunday afternoon, April 25th. the girls of the Junior class discussed the vocations open to women. The following short talks were given:

Introduction - - Miss Robison
The Business Woman- - - - - - - Miss Striplin
The Professional Woman - - - - - - Miss McSpadden
The Social Service Worker - - - - - - Miss Carter

Miss Johnson gave a vocal solo and Miss Nuckols read "Gyn". A piano selection was rendered by Miss Hibbert. The meeting was a very helpful one and was made interesting by the large number of girls who took part in the program.

ALUMNI NOTES

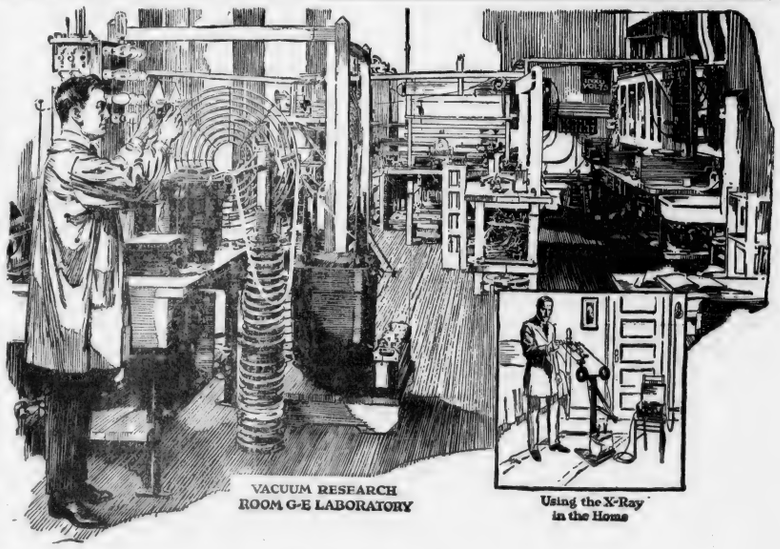
1904.

Rev. William E. Lewis, '04, was married on April 21st., at Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, to Miss Mary Louise Dodson. Mr. Lewis' alumni friends extend congratulations and best wishes.

1906.

Fred Hope has just completed his speaking tour and returned to his home in Winona Lake, Indiana, where he hopes to remain until he sails for Africa in the latter part of the summer. After leaving Maryville Mr. Hope spoke at various points in Florida and then made an extensive speaking tour in Texas where he addressed over four thousand students. He concluded his work with several speeches in Kansas.

1911.



Mrs. Tootell, formerly Miss Anna Kidder, was a recent Maryville visiter. She is spending her furlough from her mission work in China at the home of her parents in South Knoxville. Her husband, Dr. Tootell is doing graduate work in a medical school in the north.

1912.

J. L. Tweed, '12, City Recorder of Maryville, and practicing attorney, surprised his friends last week by taking unto himself a wife. The bride was Miss Ashton Clayton, who until last Christmas was a student at the college. The ceremony took place on April 24, and after a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Tweed have returned to Maryville. Both bride and groom have many friends among Maryville alumni and students who wish them a long and happy life.

1913.

Cupid has certainly been violating the eight-hour law recently. As noted above he has attacked the classes of 1904 and 1912. The class of 1913 and 1915 have also felt his arrows. Lieut. Howard Wilson, son of President Wilson, went down to Albany, Alabama on April 28th and claimed as his bride Miss Loreen Scheer, a former Maryville student. President Wilson performed the ceremony. After a short honeymoon the bride and groom will take up their residence in Maryville. The Echo joins with their many Maryville friends in cordial good wishes.

VACUUM RESEARCH ROOM G-E LABORATORY

Using the X-Ray in the Home

Greater X-ray Service— through Research

FOR years after the discovery of X-rays it was evident that only intensive research could unfold their real possibilities.

Meanwhile, scientists of the General Electric Company developed the process of making wrought tungsten. This proved ideal as the target in X-ray tubes and its use for this purpose soon became universal.

Then further research resulted in the development of an X-ray tube of a radically new type — the Coolidge Tube — with both electrodes of wrought tungsten and containing the highest attainable vacuum.

But the complication of high-vacuum pumps made the new tube in large quantities impossible. The answer to this problem was the Langmuir Condensation Pump, utilizing mercury vapor in its operation and almost automatic.

Self-rectifying, Radiator-type Coolidge X-ray Tube

To meet the need for simple X-ray apparatus during the war, the G-E Laboratory developed the Self-Rectifying Cooiidge Tube, which made possible portable outfits at the front. The latest X-ray outfit of this type is so small it can be taken conveniently to the home or to the bedside in the hospital.

Thus the Research Laboratory of the General Electric Company continues to serve, that progress in things electrical may continue for the good of humanity.

Complete Victory Won Over L. M. U.

GEORGES' LOGIC WAS TOO MUCH FOR OPPONENTS AT HARROGATE. JASONITES CAPTURE THE FLEECE.

Maryville Varsity debaters again accomplished the unusual feat of defeating and opposing team on its own ground when the Maryville negative team won the decision on the government ownership of coal mines from the Lincoln Memorial University team at Harrogate, Tennessee on April 23rd.

The affirmative team representing L. M. U. launched a vigorous attack upon the private ownership system from start to finish and in a manner which would entitle them to the rank of veterans. Robert Cochran, the first speaker, showed the great wastes under private ownership and that these are in large part the cause of coal shortage. Cedric Beverly, the second speaker, spoke on the constitutionality of government ownership, and pointed out that it is not only constitutional but actually more democratic than the present system, since it eliminates the possibilities and evils of a coal monopoly. The last speech by Landie McHenry further developed the need of a change by pointing out the labor difficulties which exist under the private regime and that government ownership was the only successful means of solving them.

From the moment that the first speaker of the Negative, Edward F. Cody, took the floor it was apparent that the debate would be a head-on collision. He lost neither time nor force in proving to his audience that the coal problem is not a problem of production but a problem of distribution and that the coal industry is inseparable from others, such as the railroads and the steel industry. If the government took over the coal mines it would also need to take over these allied industries. Charles R. McClure, the second speaker, in a keen, deliberate and convincing manner dealt with the unfeasibility of the project, industrially, economically, and politically. Joel Georges closed the case for the Negative by showing that government ownership is contrary to American ideals and to the American Constitution and that the change would precipitate state socialism in America.

At the close of the constructive speeches an unbaised listener might have pronounced the contest a draw. Arguments had been well built up on both sides and what the Affirmative had gained in fluency and eloquence, the negative had gained in keen analysis of the question, clear thought, and deliberate and convincing delivery. The clashes of opinion came on the questions of who is to blame for the coal shortage, is the coal industry at present a monopoly, is government ownership, more efficient than private ownership, and should the United States adopt a measure which is socialistic? In the rebuttal speeches the Affirmative arguments fell and with a good clear summary of the Negative arguments accompanied by a few sledge-hammer challenges handed to the opponents by Mr. Georges in his final speech there was little doubt as to the outcome of the debate.

On account of another meeting in the evening of the East Tennessee College Association the debate had to be held in the afternoon, but in spite of this it was well attended. The Maryville visitors were royally entertained and came away with respect and admiration for L. M. U.

The Lincoln Memorial Debaters went down in defeat in a double victory for the Maryville debaters. Friday evening, April 23rd. This made the third debating victory for Maryville and established a new record for the Forensic League of College Hill. Much credit is due Professor Hunter who has trained all of these debaters.

Although at present there is no probability of the United States owning and operating the coal mines, our affirmative team proved to the judges without a doubt that it was a wise plan and L. M. U.'s negative team failed to show conclusively that it was not a god step for our government to make.

Tom Vance led off the affirmative, enlisting immediately our interest. He showed much debating ability and gave us assurance that he will help to make a strong team for Maryville next year. Mr. Park Carr followed with an impressive speech.

James Martin was the second speaker for Maryville. Jimmy is a Senior and debated his last time for the Orange and Garnet. His record in debating has been a good one and he made a fine wind-up by the fine argument that he gave. Mr. William Crockett followed Jimmy with a strong constructive speech.

Jason Deyton surely captured the golden fleece and proved to be a very worthy descendant of the ancient Jason. His constructive speech was convincing and in his summary he artfully presented the affirmative argument to the judges. He was followed by Mr. Cecil Shanks for L. M. U. who did well in his speech strengthening further the argument of the negative and closing the constructive speeches.

In the rebuttal Jason and his trusty warriors, Martin and Vance flayed all the dragons, found in the argument of the Negative. The L. M. U. debaters fought valiantly but the Jasonites were too much for them. The decision of the judges was given in favor of the affirmative.

GLEE CLUB IN BIG RECITAL

Benefit of Athletic Association Friday, May 14th.

The biggest and most attractive local talent musical event of the entire year is to occur Friday night, May 14, when the Men's Glee Club under the direction of Miss Gregg presents its recital program in Voorhees Chapel. An elaborate and varied program has been prepared. Not only will there be numerous selections by the entire club but there is an abundant variety of selections in song by quartets, and soloists, as well as solo work on the cornet and violin.

It is entirely possible that some readers of the Echo may not know the make-up of the Glee Club, and consequently a mention of the names of the men who compose it may be of interest. The first tenors are: Messrs. Hayes, Marquis, Rowan, and Barker. The second tenors are: Messrs. Howard, Buchanan, and Nichols. The first basses are: Messrs. Montgomery, Cotton, and Jennings. The second basses are: Messrs. Hansen, Herndon, and King.

No one who knows these men will doubt the quality of their program. Miss Gregg has spent time and energy freely in the working out of this recital and here is an added reason why no one can afford to miss it. As if this were not enough an added attraction is offered in the form of a group of selections by the famous Scrap Iron Four, more affectionately called the Jazz Quartet. And then Mr. Charles R. (Chad) McClure and Mr. Jason B. Deyton are to appear in the role of readers.

Need more be said? You simply can't afford to miss it. No lyceum attraction of the year has thrilled as this program will thrill. The Grand Opera scene which features the second part of the program will do more to drive away dull care and cure a grouch than,—well, than a baseball victory over U. T. And if you have, at any time throughout the year, heard a more beautiful bit of work than the club's rendition of O Lovely Night in the first part of the program,—well you can't have your money back for it is to go to the Athletic Association in a good cause, but you won't want your money back.

A SUCCESSFUL DEBATE SEASON CLOSED

Seven Victories and One Defeat

Now that the 1920 Debate Season at Maryville is a matter of history, perhaps a few words of summary may not be amiss, or as the debaters themselves put it: "Honorable Judges, in Conclusion I have proved."

The completed schedule of debates follows. The name of the visiting team is placed first in each case and the decision is indicated at the end of each line.

Triangular Debate, Emory and Henry, Maryville, Tusculum, March 8.

M. C. vs. E. & H. C. at Emory and Bristol 2-1
T. C. vs. M. C. at Maryville 0-3
E. & H. C. vs. T. C. at Tusculum 0-3

Preparatory Dual Debate, Tusculum Prep and Maryville Prep, April 12

M. C. P. vs. T. C. P. at Tusculum - - - - - - 3-0
T. C. P. vs. M. C. P. at Maryville 1-2

Men's Dual Debate, Lincoln Memorial and Maryville, April 23

M. C. vs. L. M. U. at Harrogate 2-1
L. M. U. vs. M. C. at Maryville 1-2

Girls' Dual Debate, Tusculum and Maryville, April 26.

M. C. vs. T. C. at Tusculum 1-2
T. C. vs. M. C. at Maryville 1-2

It will be observed, by those who wade through these statistics, that Maryville had a team in eight of the nine debates listed above and that in seven of the eight Maryville was victorious. Of the twenty-four votes cast by judges in the eight debates, seven were for the opponents of the Maryville teams and seventeen were for the defenders of the Orange and Garnet. It is a habit of intercollegiate debate that, very frequently, the negative team which travels away from home, working under the handicap of a foreign floor and the technical advantage held by the affirmative team in the final rebuttal, loses the decision. Not so with the negative team from Maryville this year. Three of the four won in spite of these difficulties. One of them won a unanimous decision. One of them had the novel experience of drawing a divided decision and then coming back the next day with a victory, 2-1. The one team which did lose was one of the best teams ever sent out from the old Hill and the team that defeated them is surely one of the best that Ireland ever produced. At that, the decision was 1-2, maybe even closer than that.

The writer, with a penchant for statistics, is inclined to publish herewith a list of the debaters and their classification. Please observe therefore, ye who have read thus far, that nine of the college debaters are members of the Senior Class and that only four of the preparatory debaters will be in college next fall. Therefore, Honorable Judges, I have proved that while our foes will be as numerous as ever next fall the ranks of our veteran debaters will have been thinned and we must have recruits. Plan through the summer that you will come back to college next September a candidate for the teams. You will be needed. Now, for the list:

College men' R. A. Armstrong, '23, H. R. Arnold, '23, F. D. Brown, 22, E. F. Cody, '23, J. M. Cox, '21, J. B. Deyton, Capt. '20, J. S. Georges, Capt. '20, W. B. Holmes, Jr., Capt. '20, E. K. James, Capt. '20, C. R. McClure, '21, J. Martin, '20, F. S. Minarik, '22, R. W. Ogan, '23, O. Stanton, '21, T. B. Vance, '22, H. G. Weisbecker, '20.

College girls: Mildred Campbell, Capt. '20, Janet Ensign, '22, Josephine Hamilton, '23, Mary Louise Hayes, '20, Licia Johnson, Capt. '20, Bernice Kimble, '23, Ruth McCall, 22, Edith Moore, '21.

Preparatory boys: F. Corry, '20, S. H. Franklin, Jr., Capt., '20, D. Friedman, '21, E. Hargraves, '23, C. Johnstone, Capt. '21, D. King, '20, C. Maye, '22, V. Queener, '21.

Every single name on this roll of the victors is the name of a hard-working and capable debater. To their persistent and intelligent efforts Maryville is indebted for a remarkable debating record for 1920.

We should like to add that this season has been a most pleasant one from the standpoint of our dealings with the schools with which we have debated. There has not been a hint of unpleasantness. It is a pleasure indeed to meet such courteous and straight-forward treatment as we have met in every contest this year.

A Real Irish Debate Results In a Tie

Maryville Girls Defeated at Tusculum

The recent debate between representative girls from Maryville and Tusculum Colleges was, to use an expression at which the literary censor will probably look askance, "some" intellectual conflict. From what we hear it was a battle royal at Maryville, and such it certainly was at Tusculum. From the first tick of the Timekeeper's watch until the last word of the final rebuttal speech was spoken, opinion swayed from one side to the other, hopes and fears alternated, and no one was sure what the decision would be before the third judge's decision was read.

It is true we brought back only one slice of the succulent bacon instead of the three we went out after, but please believe an aging and ordinarily truthful and fairly impartial observer when he tells you that the diminshed portion of the porcine product falling to our lot was in no way due to any failure on the part of our representatives to present their views with most excellent clearness, fullness, and logical power.

"The best all-round debate we have heard in years", was the common comment in Tusculum, so if we did not win all the credit, at least we did not lose any of our honor. It would be invidious to call particular attention to the merits of any one of our team when each acquitted herself so very admirably. Let it be sufficient to say that they all took their parts smoothly and gracefully, without faltering or hesitation, and each ran true to form and shone in her own individual way.

Quiet, impressive dignity, and cogent clarity of argument characterized the speeches of Bernice Kimble. Piquant stabs of humor, sharpened by logic to a needle-like keenness, caused the opponents of Mary Louise Hayes to wince uncomfortably. And the lucidity of the closely knit statements, the varied abundance of the resources, and the masterly massing of pertinent facts by Mildred Campbell who presented them with such fluent ease and persuasive grace, that Tusculum supporters trembled and secretly rejoiced that she could not have the last rebuttal speech.

It was indeed a memorable forensic struggle, and since this first argumentative clash between the girls of the two colleges has established such a fine record, and has left such pleasant memories of courteous, fair sportsmanship, with honors so evenly balanced, we surely want another try at such worthy opponents next year.

How The Girls Won Here.

The affirmative team of the girls' Forensic League won a hard fought debate on Monday night, April 26th. The Irish question stated, Resolved, That England should recognize the national independence of Ireland, was the subject for discussion. Every inch of the ground was thoroughly contested both pro and con. The girls' arguments showed careful preparation and clear thinking. The debate according to several members of the audience was one of the narrowest victories ever won in Voorhees chapel and for that reason one of the most exciting events of the year.

Miss Ruth McCall, the first speaker, with her perfect comprehension of the material and excellent presentation showed how completely Ireland is separate from England in every respect. Miss Edith Moore continued the affirmative proof by masterly delivering the two well worked out points that England has failed to do that which Ireland is fully competent to do i. e. maintain a government in Ireland. Miss Licia Johnson closed the constructive arguments for the affirmative by picturing the benefits to be derived from Irish independence. Her abundance of proof was carefully grouped. Up to the last rebuttal the audience see sawed from side to side, and it was the fiery arguments in Miss Johnson's gripping rebuttal that clinched the decision for the affirmative. The three girls from Tusculum had fine speeches and are all excellent debaters. They showed a thorough understanding of the subject and the Misses Johnson, Moore and McCall are to be congratulated for their victory.

BAINONIAN

Bainonian Literary Society met on Saturday night, April 24th. An important business meeting was held, the chief subject of which was the attendance of the members of the society. A motion was made and carried that every member be fined for each time that she is absent in the future.

The following program was then rendered:

Vocal Solo - - Hattie Hayes
Piano Solo, Margaret McSpadden
Scene from "Hiawatha"

Society was dismissed with the Mispah Benediction.

A HIKE, A DINNER, AND A CAR RIDE

The echo heard on College Hill Monday morning was "I wish I were in Mrs. McMurry's Sunday School Class'. "Why?" asked Carnegie Hall. Here's the reason. Mrs. McMurry lives five miles out in the country. She teaches one of the Sunday School Classes, so she made this proposition to her class. "If you think you can walk five miles, I'll be glad to have you out for dinner Monday." The girls accepted and assured her they would be there Monday "rain or shine", and they kept their promise. Though it was a rainy, drizzly morning when Monday dawned, that dinner pulled them onward and at eight-thirty the girls, well equipped with rain coats and umbrellas were off for their "hearts desire", the big dinner with Miss McLain as their chaperon. The hike was a typical one. Some walked faster than others and found at the end that they got the worst end of the bargain. S. B., the popular gentleman of the day came along in a car and "picked up" those in the rear who sailed by the unlucky ones with a smile of victory on their faces but leaving the assurance that S. B. would come back for them. Finally all arrived at Mrs. McMurry's and rejoiced that "the gang was all there". While dinner was being cooked a flower picking expedition was formed. However, every girl was on the spot when dinner time came. All gathered around the room forming a circle, each one received her portion of baked chicken, cottage cheese, salad, home canned pickles, pies, cakes and—well you know a country dinner.

After dinner some went horseback riding, some in search of flowers and others stayed at the house to rest. At four o'clock S. B. kindly volunteered to transport the girls back to College Hill in his car. After making two trips they were all safely home telling their friends about all the happenings of the day and most of all emphasizing the Big Dinner.

It is a deplorable fact that for 400 girls only 3 poorly equipped tennis courts are provided on this 250 acre campus.

TUSCULUM SQUAD SUFFERS TWO DEFEATS, 3-2, 4-0

The airplane which was sent up from Maryville in search of the Highlander nine subsequent to the games with the University of Tennessee was recalled on April 23rd., and the hunt was pronounced unnecessary. The reason was that the Highlanders had returned to terra firma three days previous and had anchored themselves to this earthly habitation by the annexation of the heavy ends of the scores 3-2 and 4-0 from Tusculum and 7-0 from Georgetown.

Our bitter adversaries, the Tusculum crew, having been, on the preceeding day, subdued by the narrow margin of one tally, were completely blanked on April 22nd and were sent back to their native haunts at Greeneville with only two markers to show for their sojourn here.

History failed to repeat itself when the visitor's hard-hitting proclivities of the first game narrowed to four scattered bingles on Thursday. Only three times during the contest did a Tusculum representative succeed in resting on the third cushion and but three others visited the station of McClenaghan's charge.

Maryville gleaned seven hits, two of which resounded from Davy's wicked willow. Centra exhibited control, speed, and judgement and, despite the fact that his comrades were charged with six misdeeds, was supported by healthy fielding in times of imminent danger. Three of Maryville's four runs were scored in the third round as result of six costly errors by their opponents.

GEORGETOWN SWAMPED TO THE TUNE OF 7-1

Williams won an undisputed place on the pedestal of fame when he limited the Georgetown lads to three scattered hits and in so doing hung another scalp among the trophies of our athletic contests.

Time after time. the Kentuckians approached the platter with contortions of countenance bespeaking grim determination, slammed away at the resistance of the air and "snuck" dejectedly back to seclusion. The meager successes achieved by the two visitors who solved Williams' service awaited them nothing

Two errors by the locals in the initial frame following a hit to center accounted for Georgetown's first and only run. The Highlanders batted around with no success and then rallied for attack in the third. The flock of runs which gave Maryville the victory were distributed in the geometrical progression of one, two, and four over three consecutive innings. Seven Highlanders hit and seven scored.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE LEAGUE

Monday evening the Equal Suffrage League held its bi-monthly meeting in Bainonian Hall. The theme of the program was Woman's Rights in England.

Miss Vivian Hall discussed its development from the early times up until the present. She took up the subject under two main heads, Legal and Social. Woman's rights were very narrow in scope in the earlier days but the way has gradually broadened until now nearly every field is open to woman.

Lady Astor M. P., the woman and the office; was very ably discussed by Miss Helen Horton. Lady Astor is a woman whom women are glad to look up to as one of the pioneers in a new field.

Miss Mary Mason and Miss Hattie Hayes rendered a very pleasing duet after which the League adjourned.

JUNIOR ATHENIANS GIVE MOCK TRIAL

The large crowd that met in the Junior Athenian Hall Saturday evening cannot soon forget the good time which everyone had. In order to have the trial the society was changed into a court, Cornelius as Judge.

We take here the chance to forewarn you that there will be on Saturday evening, May 8th., an interesting society, Debate, contests, in the Junior Athenian Hall. Subject: Resolved, that the U. S. President should be elected for a term of six years and elligible for re-election.

Affirmative, Alpha Sigmas, Hargraves and Delozier; Negative, Athenians, Cornelius and Queener.

Every one (that the faculty permits) is invited.

Another recent wedding of interest to Maryville alumni was that of Miss Madge Reagan, of the class of 1915. The ceremony took place at the M. E. Church, South in Maryville. The groom was Mr. Clayton Baird of Akron, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Baird left immediately on their wedding trip. Later they will locate in Akron, Ohio, where the groom is engaged in business. The best wishes of the Maryville alumni go with them.

Frank M. Cross graduates this Spring from the San Francisco Theological Seminary and at once takes the pastorate of the Presbyterian church at San Anselmo, California. He expected to preach his first sermon there on last Sabbath, May 2. His brother, Rev. L. L. Cross, '14, of the Euclid Heights Church of Los Angeles planned to be present on that occasion.

Miss Elizabeth Moore and Miss Vera Dunaway spent the week-end with Miss Mary Broady at White Pine.

Miss Elizabeth Oates was a visitor on the Hill this week-end.

INDOOR BASE BALL

The game opened with Molasses at the stick, Smallpox catching, and Cigar in the box with lots of smoke. Palm fanned and Knife was called out for cutting first. Grass covered a lot of ground in the outfield, and the bleachers cheered as one man when Spider caught a fly. Onion was strong until the 8th inning but Potato was rotten from the first. In the ninth Trombone made a safe slide under Horn who was playing second base, but Meat was put out on the plate. Chicken was caught out on a foul and Calf took his base on four balls. This brought Bread to the bat with Crew on deck and Water in the hole. Brick put it over the wall. Trombone noting his chance stretched out and slid in home with plenty of wind, while Calf came in from first like a bullet. The Grandstand stood in a storm of applause when Crew hit it safe and sailed out to second. But the enthusiasm sank as Water knocked up a high one which the pitcher froze onto. The game ended with the score a four-in-hand-tie according to the decision of Bow and Cravat, the umpires. Door said if he had been pitching he would have shut them out.

Did you ever watch a boy take an examination? It's as good as a whole picture show, so try it some time. He will gaze off into space for awhile, carefully study the floor, and then the ceiling, read the questions for at least a dozen times, as if there might be some information between the lines, if he only looked carefully enough; then he will scratch his head. If all of these efforts bring no inspiration, he will stare at the instructor, as if the answer were all on his face, provided he looked long enough. This failing, he will ask questions, vainly hoping that in the answers will be some clue as to how to answer those questions. Having spent about an hour and a half in such performances, he at last begins to write, and is able to give his bit of knowledge in thirty minutes at the most.

On Saturday evening, April 24th., a lovely dinner party was given in 54 Baldwin in honor of Miss Ware's attractive visitor, Miss Margaret Tynes, of Birmingham, Ala.

The color scheme was purple and gold, carried out by daisies and violets. Covers were laid for twelve, and a delicious three course dinner was served. The first course consisted of grape fruit, followed by a salad course, ice cream and cake concluded the dinner.

Those enjoying the occasion were: Misses Magaret Tynes, Lela Ware, Ann Samsel, Belle Headrick, Mary Denny, Ruth Greenlee, Jewell Stevens, Mina Howard, Mary Howard, Betty Irvin, Bobby Hall and Florence Beecham.

Miss Henri Ludeman acting on the doctor's advice has moved from 4th floor Pearsons to 1st floor Baldwin.

Miss Emma Miles and Miss Alice Wright have been back at M. C. for a short visit.

VOLUME FIVE — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, MAY 20, 1920. — NUMBER TWENTY-NINE

NOTED VISITOR MRS. MARY C. THAW SPENDS FIVE DAYS AT MARYVILLE

IS PLEASED WITH THE PLACE, THE PLANT AND THE PEOPLE. THAW FAMILY IS ONE OF THE CHIEF DONORS OF THE COLLEGE.

Tuesday, May 11, 1920, was a red letter day in the history of Maryville College. Flags were flying on Anderson Hall and on the S.A.T.C. flag pole, and there was a general feeling among the students that something was going to happen. The report soon spread that the mysterious happening would take place in chapel, and that there was some chance of a half-holiday. The first part of the report proved to be true, for we had as a chapel visitor Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; and the students seemed satisfied, even if the last part did not come true, for they became acquainted with one of the principal donors of the College, who had been prevailed upon to appear publicly in chapel.

Dr. Wilson, who had not been at chapel for some time on account of poor health conducted the meeting. Dr. Arthur I. Foster, chaplain in the Thirtieth Division A. E. F. led in the devotional part of the exercise and gave a short and excellent address on "Not Stopping Too Soon". Following his address, Dr. Wilson spoke on "The Thaw Family and Maryville."

He told of the many friends of the College, who have made their gifts because they heard the College was doing good work, but he said that only one of them, Preserved Smith, had come from a distance to visit the college and see its good works. Hon. Wm. E. Dodge, Dr. Sylvester Willard, John C. Baldwin, David B. Fayerweather, Ralph Voorhees, John C. Martin, Louis H. Severance, Daniel K. Pearsons, Judge John S. L'Amoreaux, and even Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson, made their gifts before seeing the place they were giving to.

In telling what the Thaws had done for Maryville, Dr. Wilson began with the first gift of the Thaw family, a check for one thousand dollars received from Mr. Thaw on October 14, 1867. With this money and a note for six hundred and ninety-one dollars, Professor Lamar purchased the first sixty-five acres of the campus, the part on which the buildings now stand. The first house on the campus, the one that stood where Professor Bassett's house now stands, also was built with money given by Mr. Thaw. From the same source came the keystone of the first endowment of one hundred thousand dollars in the form of $5,000 added on the last day of the campaign to the $25,000 that he had already subscribed.

Three-fifths of the money for the first memorial on the campus, the Lamar Memorial Library, came from the same donor; but this was not all, for before his death Mr. Thaw had given to the College twenty-four thousand three hundred dollars for annual expenses, besides five thousand dollars for the support of a professor.

After Mr. Thaw's death, Mrs. Thaw took his place as a friend of the College, and made a gift of five hundred dollars during President Boardman's administration. Here Dr. Wilson spoke of his trip to Pittsburgh in 1902 in the interest of the endowment fund, of his first call on Mrs. Thaw, and of the warm reception which she gave him. The result of the call was three checks, totaling one thousand dollars, which was over half of the amount received on this drive.

Incident after incident was given of the liberality to the College of Mrs. Thaw and of three of her children, Mrs. Alice Whitney, Mr. Josiah C. Thaw, and Mrs. Margaret Carnegie: For the Chapel, $5,000; for the rebuilding Carnegie $1,000; for the fourth story of Pearsons Hall, $5,250; for Current Expenses, $4,265; for the endowment, $12,000; and for the hall which is soon to be constructed, $50,000. Another little flash of inside information was given at this point in the speech, for Dr. Wilson told of how Mrs. Thaw sent him to a hospital and paid all his expenses when he broke down from overwork on his endowment drive of 1908.

Mrs. Thaw, who was sitting with Mrs. Lamar at Dr. Wilson's left, was then introduced to the students as the woman who has made a college education possible for so many Maryville College students.

By their thirty hearty "rahs" the students showed their appreciation of the fact that Mrs. Thaw would give not only her money but also her time to see the good work her money is carrying on; and they again showed their appreciation when they voted unanimously to petition Mrs. Thaw to name the new building, for the construction of which she has given $50,000, The Thaw Memorial Hall.

It was an interesting coincidence that the widows of the two men to whom the rebuilding of Maryville College after the war was chiefly due, should be seated together on the chapel platform on this happy occasion. The students, always appreciative of the kind friend who gave them their hospital, gave hearty cheers for Mrs. Lamar, for her own sake and for her husband's sake.

Mrs. Thaw arrived in Maryville on Friday, May 7th. The five days she was here were spent at the "House in the Woods", where she was entertained by Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson.

On Sunday she took dinner at the Boarding Club and is said to have enjoyed the experience of eating in a dining hall filled with the music of over twelve hundred knives and forks, playing on over six hundred "china" plates. When told that a chicken dinner such as she was eating was one of the established "precedents" of the College, and that hash was served only once each week, she seemed surprised that such things could be done for the small sum of eleven dollars a month.

Another thing that interested her greatly was the self-help feature of the college, and she watched with interest the "pick and shovel" gangs of students busily engaged in digging trenches for the new water system.

On Tuesday morning, after her visit to chapel she left for her home in Pittsburgh. She plans to return when the new building is well on its way to completion.

SUMMARY OF FIFTY-THREE YEARS OF THAW GIFTS (1867-1920).

Mr. Thaw sent his first contribution of $1,000 in 1867; with it and a note for $691 Professor Lamar purchased the first sixty-five acres of the campus, the part on which the buildings now stand. Mr. Thaw contributed to annual expenses, $24,300; to endowment, $30,000; to the Lamar Memorial Library, $3,000 and left $5,000 in his will to be paid $1,000 a year for five years. The total of his contributions was $62,300.

Mrs. Thaw continued these contributions, giving $500 during President Boardman's administration; and then, beginning with 1902, the first year of President Wilson's administration, to the present, Mrs. Thaw and her children, Mrs. Whitney, Mr. Josiah C. Thaw, and Mrs. Carnegie, have given to the College: for Current Expenses, $4,265; the Chapel $5,000; the endowment, $12,000; the rebuilding of Carnegie Hall, $1,000; an additional story to Pearson Hall, $5,250; the Thaw Memorial Hall, soon to be built; $25,000 and $25,000 more pledged, making a total of $78,015.

The whole amount given the College by the Thaw family, including the building pledge, amounts to $140,315.00.

THREE STRAIGHT VICTORIES LAST WEEK

L. M. U. Completely Overwhelmed. First Game Results in a Runaway.

The Highlanders mobilized some of their old time winning abilities and romped away with three consecutive victories last week. The outfit from the Bingham Military Institute of Asheville, N. C., were the victims on the 12th., 4 to 2; Lincoln Memorial University was humiliated on the 14th and 15th by the scores 11 to 0 and 2 to 1.

Smith who twirled for Maryville against Bingham evidently had a rabbit's foot tucked away somewhere in a pocket of his jeans on that particular afternoon for his opponents smashed the pellet on seven different occasions and yet scored but two tallies. Twelve Highlanders fanned and only five hit, but when the error column of the visitors' ledger is totaled the cause of M. C.'s four scores is apparent.

Maryville's part of the initial inning was a modern "Comedy of Errors" in one act. Wagner reached the first sack when Burns fielded his grounder and threw to second cutting Lowry off. Partee ripped off a single to left advancing Wagner to second. Davidson struck out and McCullough followed suit but Young failed to glue on to the ball and then—after there were two men out and three strikes on the batter—the comedy began. The catcher threw to first who muffed. By the time Wann was able to retrieve the elusive globule, Wagner was scampering down the third base line toward home. Wann [illegible] back to Young who also fumbled allowing Wagner to score. Young recovered the ball and threw to second to catch McCullough but was too late, Partee crossed the platter an instant later while the ball was in the air between second and home. Cotton made the third out when he was retired by the strike-out route.

Maryville scored two more in the sixth on two hits, a pilfered base, and a wild throw by Griffin, shortstop.

BEST CONCERT EVER HEARD ON COLLEGE HILL GIVEN BY GLEE CLUB

AUDIENCE WELL PLEASED WITH THE PRODUCTION OF UNEXPECTED EXCELLENCE. QUARTET IS UNSURPASSABLE.

On Monday night, May the seventeenth occurred the biggest and best musical event of the year. This event was none other than the concert given by the Men's Glee Club and everyone is agreed that it was a huge success. It was not only all it was advertised to be, which is saying a good deal, but it was far more than that. No one's imagination had quite reached the heights before they came, to which they were carried as parts one, two and three of the program were so very successfully rendered by the various members of the Club.

In part one the Glee Club displayed unmistakable ability in the rendition of such numbers as "Sword of Ferrara" by Bullard, Barcarolle from "The Tales from Hoffman" which was especially beautiful, "Song of the Bow" by Aylward and "Swing Along" by Cook. These numbers were of quite different characters but each was interpreted accordingly and was rendered in a most successful and pleasing manner. The audience was appreciative of their good work and the men responded to their encores with "Alexander" and other short, snappy and humorous selections. Mr. Montgomery's violin solo, "Fantasia" by Mellenhauer was very beautiful and Mr. Montgomery showed himself to be quite an artist in the art of violin playing. Mr. Hayes in his usual capable and pleasing manner sang "Siegmund's Love Song from The Valkyr". Mr. Nichol's cornet solos, "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "Killarney" were very beautifully rendered and highly appreciated since cornet solos on the Hill are a rare treat. "Annie Laurie" as harmonized by Dudley Buck was excellently rendered by the quartet. Messrs. Hayes, Buchanan, Montgomery and King; and then they kindly responded to the prolonged applause with "The Lord Has Laid His Hand on Me" and "There's a Baby at our House". We believe they can't be beat now don't we?

Part two of the program consisted of readings by Mr. McClure and an act of Up-to-date grand opera. Mr. McClure's readings were well chosen and excellently given. The opera act was wild and shocking but very clever. Mr. Marquis and Mr. Hayes Mr. and Mrs. Tyler could not be criticised, while the janitor, alias Mr. Montgomery, and the other residents of the burning apartment house were absolutely indispensable. On the whole it was very cleverly done and the audience laughed till they thought they could laugh no more—then they laughed again. They couldn't help it.

In part three Mr. Hayes scored a hit in his solo, "The Story Book Ball" and the "Spontanous Effusions" by "The Scrap Iron Four" (Marquis, Buchanan, Hanson, Moore) were a delight to all. All listened in astonishment to their rail-road rags and "Dark-town Strutter's Ball" and we are convinced that they're the finest bunch of scrap iron we have ever seen or heard anywhere. Those "Limericks" by first this one and then that one were very clever little affairs, which not only provoked much laughter but told of bits of interesting news concerning our teachers and classmates. "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" and "Old Maryville" by the Glee Club were the closing numbers and we shall never forget how splendidly and how perfectly "Old Maryville" was sung.

The members of the Glee Club have worked earnestly and faithfully during the past months and no little praise is due them for this splendid program which they so generously and willingly gave. Nor do we forget Miss Gregg, the Director, who has been so unselfish in spending her time and energy in the working out of this concert. To her a great deal of credit is due; and to her and all the members of the club thanks and praise are being given.

Y. M. C. A. HIKE TO THUNDER HEAD

Last Saturday afternoon at three thirty Cox's army, twenty three strong, boarded the side door pullman of the Dixie Flyer for Townsend, the base of the army for the invasion of the Smokies. The sky was as clear as crystal and all indications pointed to ideal weather for a mountain hike. After inspection and roll call shortly after five o'clock the gang started for the long long trail a winding into the land of the clouds. John McMahan was appointed Chief as he was the only man of the bunch who had made the trip before and who was familiar with the geography of the Smokies. About six thirty we had hiked four miles when we came to a mountaineer's cabin. We unloaded our packs and built a large fire to cook supper. In a few minutes skillets were sizzling where bacon,

Don't you wish this was centennial year and we were having another pageant and all accessories?

:--:--:--:

Didn't those Seniors look dignified last Wednesday as they came marching up the aisle in their new gowns?

:--:--:--:

The next and final issue of The Highland Echo will be published by Mr. Lamar Wilson, who was elected editor-in-chief for next year.

:--:--:--:

Can't some one prevail on every member of our tired and over-worked faculty to take a nice vacation of two or three weeks between now and time for exams?

:--:--:--:--:

Why is it that as soon as an attractive poster on which some one has spent hours of precious time appears, it disappears? If you must have posters as souvenirs why not either make them yourself or hire some one to make them for you?

:--:--:--:--:

Did you ever stop to think how really wonderful are the girls on College Hill? Do you realize that the May Day celebration was gotten up in three days? Of course you know that no one but our own Grace Blank could have possibly taught a May-Pole dance in that length of time, and that none but Maryville girls could have learned it so quickly. Of course, if you think, you know how hard those splendid girls must have worked and thought in order to get up those costumes, those arches, that throne, everything that went to make May Day a success. Do you for a moment believe that any other girls could have even come near doing such a thing? Do you remember how many beautiful posters our girls made, how many plays, debates, recitals they give how happy, thoughtful, and full of life and fun they are, though all the time they are taking three and four subjects and some extras and all the time just piling up the grades?

Aren't you proud of OUR girls?

Will the Highland Echo continue to grow, or will it regress to the lean and hungry looking four-page issue of former years?

It would be useless to catalogue here the values and advantages of having a large, live, newsy, spicy, and up-to-date college paper as that goes without saying. Yet the management of next year's Highland Echo, which, by the way, is a newspaper now representing almost one thousand students, is confronted with the disclosure that an issue of no more than four pages can be published under the present system. To limit the Echo to four pages throughout the entire year would not be in keeping with, and, in fact, would be in direct opposition to Maryville's time honored policy of "Ever Forward".

The printer assures us that a six page publication is impracticable from his standpoint and would, in the end, involve a cost almost equal to an eight page paper. He shuns the six page proposition as a printer's nuisance.

So the situation resolves itself into the question: a four page or an eight-page paper? In an eight page weekly some such plan as this might be followed: two or three pages devoted to general college news, one to athletics, one to alumni and faculty news, one to announcements of coming events, personels, and jokes, and one or two to the airing of the literary talent of those students who have been clamoring for a monthly magazine. This is merely a suggestion of course, but it shows what might be done.

A few years ago upon request of students the college introduced an athletic fee into the registration fee of every student entering the school. Is it not time to take another step in advance and petition the College authorities to introduce an "Echo Fee"? By collecting an additional dollar from each student registering each semester thirty issues of an eight-page paper will be guaranteed for the year 1920-1921. The authorities may not deem it wise to grant such a request but it is certainly worth the attempt as several members of the faculty have promised their support to the movement and as the success of the future Echo is in a large way dependant upon the adoption of such a measure.

WHAT GREENEVILLE CITIZENS SAY OF THE 'Y'

The following notes have been received by President Wilson from Greeneville people regarding the visit of our evangelestic team:

"I am writing in order to express to you my profound appreciation of the service which the body of students that you sent to us has done for our little city. A cleaner, finer bunch of boys could not be found anywhere. Their message came out of the heart of the Gospel, and reached the hearts of our boys. The good done will bear fruition throughout the coming months.

"So, as the father of one of the boys, and as a pastor, and, hence, interested in all of the boys, I beg that you will accept my deepest gratitude for the service that you have rendered. How great your satisfaction as president of the college must be in having such a bunch bunch of men to send out on such a mission, I can fully understand."

"I learned from "Tommy" Loft you were confined with sickness at present, and I am writing you in order to tell you what a blessing your Y.M.C.A. boys have been to this town. They conducted themselves in a manlike way, and spread a good Christian influence over the whole town. As for my part, the meetings which they held have done me more good than anything I have lately seen or heard. I had drifted back into the old way of living and had become very careless in my habits, but your boys and our friends showed me exactly where I stood, and now I intend to live a better life, and to serve my fellow man and not my own selfish desires.

The worthy example set by your boys has given us an inspiration, and we are already forming plans to organize a similar deputation, and go to our neighboring high schools for the purpose of forming Hi-Y clubs there.

Encourage this bunch of fellows in the great work they are doing. We are eagerly looking forward to their return next season."

THIS AND THAT

Two cats were about to have a duel.

'Let us have an understanding before we begin", said one.

"About what?" asked the other.

'Is it to be a duel to the death or shall we make it the best three lives out of five?"—Boys' Life.

"Aren't you ready, dear?" called husband from downstairs.

"All but my hair, Henry", came the reply.

"Haven't you fixed your hair yet?" came from Henry an hour later.

"Fixed it!" shouted the female voice. "I haven't found it yet!"—The Boys' Magazine.

Y. W. C. A. CONCERT

The Music Department gave a very pleasing program for the benefit of the Y.W.C.A. on Friday evening, May 14th. The concert was opened by a piano duet by the Misses Elizabeth Bassel and Jane Waller. These two Freshmen are gaining an enviable reputation for their playing in unison having appeared together on several occasions. Miss Ruth Sloan rendered excellently Witches Dance, a piano solo. Miss Jewell Stevens in her pleasing soprano sang two selections by MacDowell. Miss Lucille Thorpe our most talented violinist appeared for the last time, having been called home before the completion of the year. Miss Hattie Hayes one of the most popular pianists of the Hill favored the audience with a Prelude from Chopin. Miss Sue Nuckols, graduate reader, gave a delightful study of human nature entitled Obstinacy. Le Matin, a piano duet was rendered by the Misses Nannette Walker and Elizabeth Moore with irreproachable technique. The girls quartet composed of the star singers of the Hill was heard in a pleasing selection—The Goblins. The last number of the praise worthy program was Octave Intermezzo played by the piano artist Miss Grace Majure.

THE GOD OF THE OPEN AIR

Y.W.C.A. Sunday afternoon was held out in college woods on the pageant grounds. The afternoon was perfect and many girls flocked out to the service. The music sounded inspiring and the numbers were well chosen for the occasion. Miss Elizabeth Moore gave a vocal solo. Miss Ruth Baker and Miss Sue Sugg played a violin duet. Several selections were read from the Bible concerning nature, one of the prettiest of which was the well known passage, "Consider the lilies of the field how they grow." Miss Sue Nuckols the leader of the meeting read in her usual pleasing way, "The God of the Open Air" and this closed a most helpful and uplifting service.

OFFICERS OF THE ATHLETIC BOARD OF CONTROL

The mass meeting of the Student body last week resulted in the election of the following members of the Athletic Board of Control:

Jarvis Cotton, president; Young Hayes, vice president; Cora Ingle, secretary; F. L. Proffitt, treasurer. The Student Representatives are: Girls, Bailey and Dawson. Boys, Montgomery and Cullis. The Faculty representatives are: Knapp and Brittain. The town representatives are: David Proffitt and Munch.

The amendment to the Constitution, that those athletes who make the varsity teams shall wear a stripe for each year that they make the varsity team, was passed.

SENIOR CONCERT

On last Friday evening a very delightful entertainment was given under the auspices of the Senior Class. The Republic Male Quartet and the Fredericks Concert company formed a double number and the enjoyment of the listeners was great.

The entertainment was one unusually excellent and the Senior Class is to be complimented for obtaining such talent.

Just recently news was received from three former students at Greenville, Texas. "Red" Campbell is working for a gas company and it is reported that cupid is rather busily chasing him around. Miss Gladys Graham is now occupying a position in a musical establishment. Miss Rena Taylor who is connected with the Federal Reserve Bank at Dallas, met the above named unexpectedly and the three celebrated with a big feed.

MOTHER'S DAY AT THE Y. W. C. A.

Sunday afternoon, May 9th., at Y. W. C. A. Mother's Day was the subject. Miss Florence Oates led the meeting. Definitions and selections concerning mother were given by several girls. Miss Irrovia Corry read Mother of Mine, and Miss Elizabeth Clemens gave a piano solo. The girls' quartet was heard in a pleasing number.

SENIORS ROYALLY ENTERTAINED BY MISS HELEN GAMBLE

"The world is so full of a number of things,
I am sure we should all be as happy as kings".

And the world surely seems to be full of a number of things for Seniors, one of the most important of these things being a party given by Miss Helen Gamble on last Wednesday evening. An unusually large crowd was present (seniors know a good thing when they see it) and needless to say everybody had a good time.

The first game was "Proverbs" and it proved so interesting that for almost an hour a person half-a-mile from the house might easily have heard the noise and concluded that the tower of Babel was again nearing completion.

Eventually the guests were quieted and provided with pencils and paper for a contest. And, believe me, if the faculty need any help in getting work from the class of Twenty they might ask Helen! Rusty brains began to work once more and the owners of the brains began to get warm. Foreheads were puckered, brows were lowered, and at last everyone from the President to the Chaperon breathed a sigh of relief and said "I'm through". But no, Helen then announced that the work already done was only half of the contest, so once more the crowd began to work.

But the reward was so great that the work done was forgotten for refreshments came! Not just ordinary Senior party refreshments but fruit salad! and sandwiches! ! and ice-cream! ! ! and cake! ! Absolutely and possilutely there never were better eats. And during all the evening there was music; vocal, piano, and victrola music. In fact when the lights flashed nobody even noticed them for the fun was still going on so, not at all phased by such an unusual proceeding the lights (long 'bout 11:30 p. m.) gave the Seniors a surprise and went out entirely. So taking the hint the Seniors went home, wishing there were at least four more Helens in their class.

ALPHA PHI EPSILON SOCIETY FORMED

The initial meeting of the Alpha Phi Epsilon Honorary Literary Society, Athenian Chapter, was convened on Wednesday evening, May 12 in Athenian Hall. An organization was effected and the following officers were chosen:

President - Freeman A. Greene
V. President - Forrest D. Brown
Sec. & Treas. - Chas. N. Sharp

This society, having, at present, a membership of nine men, is not, in the strictest sense of the term, a local literary society. It is merely the local chapter of an organization which includes practically every college and university of high standing, in the South. The University of Mississippi, Auburn of Alabama, South Western Presbyterian University, Stetson and the University of Tennessee are on the membership roster. The conditions governing admission to the local chapter are, briefly, the candidate must be a member, in good standing, of the Athenian Literary Society; he must have attended three fourths of the meetings during one year's membership in the Athenian; he must have, in that time, participated in two debates and must have delivered two original speeches, not less than ten minutes in length.

On account of the Athenian's seniority, both in years and in achievements, the National Convention at the University of Tennessee chose that society as the nucleus of the local chapter. In the next year the membership will be broadened to include Alpha Sigma men who fulfill the requirements. More details concerning the principles and purposes of the society will appear at a later date.

OFFICERS OF FORENSIC LEAGUE

Tuesday evening at a meeting of the Forensic League the following officers were elected for next year: Cody, president; Armstrong, vice president; Arnold, secretary and treasurer.

DISTINGUISHED CHAPEL SPEAKERS

During the past week several prominent men have been visiting the college and have delivered addresses at chapel. The first was Dr. Kelso, president of the Western Theological Seminary at Pittsburg, Pa., who spoke on The Most Significant Signs of Our Times. Chaplain Foster delivered a splendid address on Stopping Too Soon. The next speaker in order was Rev. Chester Leonard one of Maryville's promising graduates. Wednesday morning Mr. Haydenburg of Oberlin, Ohio spoke on finding our strength and weakness. We are always glad to have visitors in our midst.

BAINONIAN

Bainonian Literary Society met Saturday evening, May 15th. Quite a large number of the members answered to the roll call. After a short business meeting a wildly exciting play was presented by five of the most noted star actresses. Each actress acted her part perfectly. This play was entitled "Miss Civilization", and will be remembered for a long time by the spell bound audience that witnessed it.

The Cast of Characters

Alice Gardner—Daughter of Railroad President - - Hazel Bevan
Uncle Joseph Hatch - Ruth Greenlee
Brick Meakin - - Myrtle Rendon

Society was dismissed with the Mizpah Benediction. Every member must be sure to be present at the next meeting of the society.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT WITH U. T.

Monday afternoon the Maryville racqueteers journeyed to Knoxville where they defeated the U. T. defenders two to one. Hendricks lost the first set of singles to Allenburg. 4-6, 9-7, 2-6, 6-4, and 7-5.

Knapp easily defeated Szabo in the second set of singles 3-6, 6-1, 6-4 and 6-4.

The doubles were played by Knapp and Moore against Smith and Taylor. 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, and 6-3.

The tournament was played in a continual drizzle and in the final set the balls could hardly be seen on account of darkness. The U. T. players will invade the Hill next week when a complete victory is expected.

SENIORS HIKE TO ALLEGHANY SPRINGS

On Saturday afternoon at 3:50 twenty-three Seniors and three "almost seniors" rushed madly for the Southern station. The ticket agent, very much surprised to see the mob, was at length prevailed upon to sell twenty-six round trip tickets to Alleghany. With little thought of anything except a good time the crowd piled on the train and as the train began to move, several large boxes were seen sitting on the station platform and it dawned upon the Seniors that those suspicious looking boxes were the eats! Immediately the girls began to squeal and the boys disappeared out windows, doors, any hole big enough to vanish through, and as the train began to move faster boys with large boxes could be seen running down the track trying to board the train with their luggage. All this seemed to amuse the train crew very much as there was no prospect of their being eat-less for the week-end. Then came gasps of relief from the chaperon as the boys succeeded in climbing aboard once more, and the class of Twenty accompanied by Mrs. Stevenson rode gaily off to Alleghany Springs. The two-mile hike from the station was a tiresome one, with very few accidents except Jimmie Martin's falling into the creek with 60 loaves of bread on his shoulder, and the spilling of various and sundry articles such as pan-cake flour, eggs, etc., into the mud.—But at last the hotel was reached and boys and girls could be seen from the "still" in the basement to the roof garden. Ghosts were seen scooting around, rats were found in the piano and two large springs were discovered. By twilight a bonfire was burning in the backyard and supper was being served. Eggs, bacon, jam, and all the best of eats were devoured by the boys and girls. And when the dishes were washed and the folks were sitting around the camp-fire it was noticed that four couples were missing! So to forget the loss of these members songs were sung and Wisie entertained with his readings.

All day long new fun was available. Pancakes for breakfast, a trip to the top of the mountain, an enormous rope swing, shady nooks in which to sleep or moonshine, pineapple salad for dinner, wading in the creek, 'en everything. Visitors, Misses Alice Wright and Mary Thompson, and Messrs. Tom Carson and Meade Johnson, came to spend the night and on Monday morning several left for the College Hill leaving only fourteen.

Monday was the best day of all. A trip to Cock's Spur occupied the morning and target practice, horse shoes, rook, swinging, and a chicken dinner occupied the afternoon. And at dusk a regular camp-meeting was held with Mildred and Mr. Wright leading in the singing of "Old Time Religion", and the "Promised Land". Wisie became sick but an ashes capsule helped and he was so quiet everybody else had time to talk. Discussions of everything from the faculty to Alabama's progress followed and bedtime did not come until eleven o'clock.

Tuesday morning meant breaking camp and the hike to the station. Oh! how we hated to leave but we'll always have our memories of Winston's and Minnie's bed, Morgan falling off the brick wall, how Mildred and Little 'Un acquired an extra blanket, what a good sport Mrs. Stevenson is, the view from Cock's Spur, Minnie's anxiety (?) over the fall of Mr. Wright, the chicken dinner and the capability of the refreshment committee, the private practices of Robin Hood and Maid Marian, why the boys moved into the house to sleep, the mountain laurel, the weinies, the disappearance of Bessie's suitcase, Rhodies' attraction for the smoke—, and we still have blisters, bruises, dirt, and limps!

Our advice to future Seniors is—go to Alleghany Springs for a good time. Be sure and take some salt and stay a week if possible.

Mr. Forrest Brown was elected Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. last week.

GIRLS FROLIC AT MONTVALE

Did you ever come to the end of a perfect day, and want to cry or weep or do something else equally desperate because you were so sorry it was over? Did you ever want to be like Joshua and say "Sun, sit thou still on Chilhowee's top"? Well, that is exactly what eleven girls wanted to do Monday night—for you see they had really had a perfect day.

Mr. Pflanze came after them with two cars and took them to be his guests for the day at Montvale! Aren't you just green with envy? There they explored Lake Sidney Lanier, gathered mountain laurel and sweet shrubs, and ate most delicious candy and doughnuts that Mrs. Pflanze gave them to take to the lake. When they came back they explored the hotel and then had dinner—or rather three regular meals and a banquet all thrown into one. The dinner was eaten picnic style under the trees—three tables full of it! There was chicken pie and real country ham and the most wonderful fruit salad—but really it would be impossible to tell of all the wonderful things there were to eat. Anyhow, Louise had all the coffee and cream she could wish for, and more than Vance and Ruth thought any nice girl should have. Jennie ate pie (chocolate, blackberry and custard) till she was content to eat no more. Idella and Grace had all the milk (we thought it was cream, till Mrs. Pflanze told us better) they could drink. Nina Belle had plenty of home-made light bread, Laura had a sufficient number of corn sticks even for her, Mary had real country ham, and Martha had enough salad dressing to eat it with everything from chicken pie to custard.

That was a dinner, the like of which is seldom seen. After sufficiently recovering from it, the party started for Look Rock. Some fell by the wayside, but eight succeeded in reaching it and seeing the Cumberlands and the Smokies at once. Only too soon it was time to say good-bye and go back to school. And so, they left with a most grateful feeling for the Pflanze's who had made such a day possible, and with many vows to come again and stay.

Tired, footsore, but full and happy eleven girls returned to college Hill.

ALUMNI NOTES

1913.

A wedding of great interest to Maryville Alumni took place on Monday, May 10, at the residence of President and Mrs. S. T. Wilson when their daughter Miss Olive was united in marriage to Mr. Clyde T. Murray of Maryville. Miss Wilson was a member of the class of 1913 and Mr. Murray is a former Maryville student. He is at present engaged in the insurance business. Both have many friends among Maryville Alumni and students who wish them much happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Murray will make their home in Maryville.

1915.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Bond have delighted their Maryville friends by returning to Maryville to live. Mr. Bond has accepted a position as Physical Director for the Aluminum Company of America.

1917.

Rev. Chester Leonard, '17, who graduated from McCormick Theological Seminary this Spring was ordained in Birmingham, Alabama last week and has entered on his work at Vardy, Tennessee. Mr. Leonard and his wife, formerly Miss Josephine Wicks, and his sister, Miss Florence Leoard of Chicago, spent a few days in Maryville renewing old acquaintances on their way to Vardy. Mr. Leonard spoke at the Vesper service last Sabbath.

Misses Anna Ruth and Beatrice Thomas, two charming visitors from Knoxville spent the week-end with Misses Marguerite and Cora Thomson Saville at Memorial Hall, the other week.

LAST RECITAL OF THE YEAR A DISTINCT SUCCESS

An expectant audience gathered in the chapel Monday night, May 10th. to listen to the recital given by Miss Ruth Quinn and Miss Minnie Hunter. The audience expected much—and was not disappointed. Miss Grace Majure started the evening off beautifully with Godard's "Venitienne" 4th Barcorolle. Miss Majure is one of the most talented musicians on the Hill.

Then Miss Quinn read "Mary Rose of Mifflin" by Garratt. Miss Quinn always reads well, but Monday night she was unusually good. She presented the janitor and his wife, the princess, Mr. Jerry, Mr. Wells, and Mary Rose with an accuracy that was remarkable. She understood each of her characters so well that her audience felt that it had always know them. The transformation in the princess was especially difficult, but Miss Quinn depicted it with remarkable ease and grace. Former recitals have established a high standard of excellence for readers on College Hill but Miss Quinn read up to that standard beautifully.

After this Miss Winston Newton sang in her usual charming way.

Then Miss Minnie Hunter read "Robert of Sherwood", Act 1, by Crawford. How exciting it was to see Robin Hood and Little John right there on the chapel stage, how worried we were lest something would happen and he would not rescue the Lady Marian before sunset. How well Miss Hunter characterized the sheriff, Sir Hugh, King John, Little John "The Friar", Mitch, the charming Lady Marian and that beloved, that admired, that difficult Robin Hood. Without a most excellent technique, and a voice and body in absolute obedience to her mind, Miss Hunter could not have read this difficult number.

The expression department is indeed to be congratulated on presenting eight such splendid readers this year.

The last number was Leschetisky's 'Intermezzo in Oltaves, Op. 44, No. 4" by Miss Majure.

The major subject will determine the group in which the student will graduate. The major subject consists of eighteen semester hours of elective courses taken entirely in one department, except that not more than twenty-four semester hours, including the requirements of the Freshman and Sophomore years, need be taken in order to major in any department. The minor subject consists of twelve semester hours of elective courses taken in another department. These courses constitute the principal requirements of the Junior and Senior years, and shall be elected under the direction of the head of the department in which the major subject is taken.

3. 5. That curriculum credit for extra-curricum activities be limited to a total of five hours. Allowance for editorship of the Highland Echo, four hours; for intercollegiate debate, first and second years, two hours each, third year, one hour.

SMILES FROM OVER-SEAS

A Singapore student was in an automobile accident. He was not seriously injured, one of his legs mashed a bit and he was somewhat scratched, but he was not well enough to go to school, and this is the letter of explanation he sent his teacher:

"I entreat pardon for my awayness, but I am unreadably sick, for I have had my limbs compressed by an auto and am much scratched as as to my leather."

One of the families in a mission compound kept chickens, which sometimes bothered the teachers in the girls' school next door. Now the cook in the girls' school was a jealous guardian of the comfort of the foreign women who emloyed him, and one morning when the principal ,complained that she had been kept awake by the crowing of a young rooster, the cook promptly went next door to report the trouble. This is what he said:

"I regret to inform that your gentleman hen have exceedingly barked and trouble greatly the teacher lady in sleep."

JUNIOR ALPHA AND JUNIOR ATHENIANS HAVE DEBATE

Saturday evening, May 15th., an important and interesting debate took place in the Junior Athenian Hall.

Question, Resolved, That the President of the United States should be elected for a term of six years and be ineligible for re-election.

Affirmative, Alpha Sigma, Hargraves and Mays; Negative, Athenians, Cornelius and Friedmann. Judges, Professors Bassett, Knapp and Purdy. The contest was well waged on both sides. The affirmative were both members of the team that defeated Tusculum. Decision of Judges, two to one for affirmative.

Have you noticed how pretty the campus is getting?

THE "TENTH LEGION" AND "COMPANIONS OF CAESAR" HAVE FEED

Without fearing an attack from the enemy, Caesar's Tenth Legion and the Companions of Caesar, which make up the two divisions into which the large Caesar class is divided, pitched camp in the College Woods and there they entertained themselves royally. After the supply of sandwiches and ice cream were exhausted, games were resorted to. This program which everyone present immensely enjoyed lasted for several hours, and then followed the march back home all weary and tired but nevertheless happy. "If this was all they received for translating Caesar, it was worth while," they said.

JUNIOR Y. W. C. A.

The Junior Y.W.C.A. met in Alpha Sigma Hall Sunday, May 9th. A Mother's Day program was given which was led by Miss Ruth Sloan.

The meeting opened with a song and after devotionals, a Mother's Day reading was given by Miss Geraldine O'Dell which was very appropriate. A number of girls read verses from Billy Sunday, on Mother's Day, after which Misses Sue Rugg and Clyde Watkins played a violin duet. The meeting was one of the best of the year.

SHOWER PARTY

Few things have the distinction of being as rare as a shower on a clear starry night, but then many things happen in Pearsons. This had the added peculiarity of taking place in Pearsons parlor.

Fourteen girls met entirely by accident, so it seemed, in the parlor about eight o'clock Saturday night. They were none other than, Lucile Lodges, Lina Hodges, Lucy Waddell, J. Lyn McClung, Flora Strong, Mary McSpadden, Clarabel Smith, Ethel Doctor, Grace Sydenstricker, Helen Morrow, Edythe Brocklehurst, Charlotte Mosler, Mabel Zimmerman and Hazel Parks, a guest. No one seemed surprised at the meeting but Hazel. She seemed to see something miraculous in fourteen meeting so instantaneously and spontaneously, something curious in a screen very evidently concealing something in one corner.

Games sped the early part of the evening and then, at last the screen gave out its secrets, but not until all unbidden a knock sounded at the door and someone entered. No, not Miss Molly, but the cutest little girl in ruffles and ribbons, pulling behind her a tiny wagon bedecked in pink bows from handle to wheel, and piled high with packages of every conceivable size and shape. The little girl seemed to have a secret sign by which she could discover for whom her burden was destined. Oh, yes, of course, any one would know that. There is that sparkling diamond on her finger. That would be sign enough for everyone. Of course there had to be a speech and everyone wanted to know "how it all happened"—all these preliminaries to the wedding in the rosy month of June. And she told them, yes she did, but she did not tell them all, of course.

Parcels and packages, stories and sweets swung old Time's sickle faster than ever before and even made him blink not once but twice, and then the mystic spell was broken and the pleasantness dispelled, but not the memories because they are just as good and fresh as ever. And the lingers of good memories? Well we don't know exactly, but Mabel Zimmerman and Edythe Brocklehurst seemed to be the cause of some very special memories from behind that curious screen.

THREE STRAIGHT VICTORIES IN BASE BALL

base on errors, M. C. 7, B. M. I. 1. Hit by Smith, Wann, by Burns, Centra. Stolen bases, M. C. 6. B. M. I. 4. Umpire, Munch.

The Highlanders held a slugging fest on the 14th. in which they garnered fifteen hits and blanked the Lincoln Memorial nine 11 to 0—according to the authority of an approved adding machine.

Seven of the local sluggers fattened their batting averages considerably by pounding viciously the spheriod to every corner of the park. McCullough, our steady first sacker, led the assault by slamming out two triples and one single out of five times at bat. We'll have to hand it to "Mac"—he sure wields a wicked wagon pole. Rowan also rapped the pill's pallid cheek and sent it into unguarded regions on three out of five trips to the platter. Partee polled out the longest drive of the afternoon which bounded to Walker's residence and turned out to be a circuit slam.

The visitors can boast of only one hit on the 14th. Centra, the Cuban wonder, became a local idol by winning the distinction of being the first Maryville slabman to pitch a one hit game this season. He delivered them over in great style and was supported by sparkling fielding. In each of four innings the Cumberland "Gapers" were retired in one-two-three order and only two of their crew reached second base.

Umpire, Munch.

On the following afternoon the L. M. U. Coach trotted out his ace of the pitching department, R. Byrd, expecting him to deliver the coup de grace to the Highlanders. In a measure he succeeded but he failed to reckon with the deadliness of Lowry's willow and was consequently put on the shelf with the defeated.

Owing to a contest between Alcoa and the Southern Railway which followed, the intercollegiate game was trimmed down to seven innings. Remarkably good weather was again in evidence as on the two preceeding days and a large number of fans turned out.

The visitor's only score came in the third frame when Brogden, short-stop, hit to left, stole second and scored on a pitcher's error.

L. M. U. looked like a certain winner from then until the fifth when two pairs of Orange and Garnet legs crossed the pan. Rowan led off with a bingle just clear of short and Williams sacrificed. Lowry then stepped up to the rubber and taking a grim swing at one of Byrd's offerings sent the ball far into the hollow back of the left garden from whence it failed to be retrieved until he had safely reached the counting station preceeded by Rowan.

Williams allowed five hits but kept them well scattered throughout the seven frames.

ham, and eggs were frying. Hot coffee was also in abundance. As the shadows were gathering rapidly, each man got busy to prepare a bunk for the night. By ten o'clock most of the crew had crawled into their respective dens except Puny Youell and Shorty McCall who had evidently imbibed too freely of the black coffee. The gang in the barn loft was serenaded thru the evening by a barnyard orchestra of pigs, cows and horses. Evidently the Cox brothers and Frank Prather had a co-operative bunk as they engaged in heated discussions during the night in regard to the division of cover.

The next morning (Sunday) the sun and the hikers rose about the same time. By six o'clock we were all ready to begin the long climb for our first destination, Spence's Cabin. Puny Youell, Henry Cox, and Sullivan led the advance guard. It is not possible to give a full account of the journey up the mountain in the space alloted. At ten o'clock we had come to the last spring before we reached Spence's cabin. Here we halted for about thirty minutes and held a short but very impressive service led by Professor Southwick. After this service we started on the last lap to the top. We have only space here to say that the trail was long, steep, rugged and winding. The first man to reach the top at Spence's cabin was Henry Cox with Sullivan, Houston, McClung and McCall close on to his heels. We cooked dinner by a good spring and started for Thunderhead about two o'clock. It had been a long, hard, and tiresome hike to reach the top but it was worth it all.In every direction were mountains all green with cedars. To stand on the top of Thunderhead and view the beautiful scenery in every direction and breathe the pure, cool, mountain air made one feel that he was a little nearer to God.

Sunday afternoon we cooked supper early and prepared for a Y. M. C. A. sunset service. A big camp fire was built and logs served as seats for the occasion. We had another Y.M.C.A. open meeting, using as our subject "The principles that should guide a young man in choosing his life work". Every mon present took some active part in the service. We had two visitors present, cattle herders and their two fox hounds who occupied reserved seats on Shorty McCall's comfortably prepared bed.

We arose at about four-thirty Monday morning to make the hike back to Townsend. At five thirty we started the hike down the mountain. The first gang reached Townsend about nine o'clock. Some got a late start and came in later. Something interesting might be said about the individual experience of each of the twenty-three men who went on this hike. We desire to express our appreciation to Mr. Wagner and to the other Y. M. C. A. officers who planned this hike. We reached Maryville at five o'clock Monday afternoon, tired, weary, footsore and hungry—for moonshine.

VOLUME FIVE — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, JUNE 2, 1920. — NUMBER THIRTY

BACCALAUREATE SERMON BY DR. WILSON

Our Beloved President Delivers Master Sermon.

+ + + + + + + + + + +
+ Today I warmly commend to +
+ you two noble enthusiasms:— +
+ Enthusiasm for the gospel of +
+ Christ, and enthusiasm for the +
+ law of God. +
+ The justification for the most +
+ ardent enthusiasms regarding +
+ these is found in two consider- +
+ ations, namely, first, in what +
+ the gospel, (the law also) is; +
+ and second, in what the gospel, +
+ (the law also) does. +
+ +
+ Pursue these ideals and ex- +
+ emplify these enthusiasms thru- +
+ out life for the benefit of +
+ others. +
+ Our Lord needs you, and has +
+ his divinely chosen place for +
+ you, and in that place will +
+ bless and use you. +
+ + + + + + + + + + +

All over this broad land of ours at this season of the year the pick of America's young manhood and womanhood are hearing their Baccalaureate sermons. The long line of robed people marching into chapel Sunday morning gave evidence to the fact that Maryville was having its one hundred and first Baccalaureate. The auditorium was quickly filled with eager folks, for it is a true custom that sets aside occasion for those who have won honor and success to do homage to the God above, and to learn from His messengers.

We will long remember the happenings of this service. Prof. Clinton H. Gillingham, D. D. gave the invocation; Rev. William P. Stevenson, D. D., college pastor, read the scriptures; Rev. W. E. Graham offered prayer; Dr. S. T. Wilson delivered the sermon; the College Men's quartet sang; and Prof. H. E. Orr pronounced the benediction.

Hearts were glad and eager too, for after a long period of rest President S. T. Wilson, was with us again. And they were gladder still as with his old time power he brought to all an appropriate and memorable sermon on Enthusiasm.

How we do enjoy to hear Dr. Wilson speak. Not only do we get strength from his words, but renewed spirit from the man himself. Words may grow dim with us, but forever, in strength and pointing higher, will there live with us the students of old Maryville the enthusiasm of our dearly beloved president. And we who know the history of our college these last decades understand the source from whence came this masterly address on Enthusiasm, for the gospel and for the law.

M. C. BASEBALL TEAM

GRAND FINALE OF M. C. BASE BALL

Alcoa Defeated in Three Games, 5-4, 2-0, and 2-1.

The Maryville College base ball season was brought to a close on Thursday afternoon when the Highlanders defeated Alcoa by the narrow margin of 2 to 1. The event was a pitcher's battle between the two Ace's, Williams and Hollingsworth, and it was because the former Ace was of the trump suit that he captured the trick. Williams struck out 10 batsmen, passed 2, and was touched for 4 bingles. Hollingsworth fanned 9 men and allowed 3 hits.

It was a big day for Williams and McCall as each added another star to his crown of glory. Williams, in addition to proving himself a King of the mound accepted four fielding chances faultlessly and poled out one of M. C.'s three hits, while McCall seemingly covered more than his alloted territory, fielding perfectly four difficult chances at long drives, and exhibited the prettiest slide of the season when he recorded Maryville's initial score.

Alcoa's only score was chalked up by Clemens. "Bob" drew a pass, was advanced by Mullendore's sacrifice and Hollingsworth's hit, and scored soon afterward by the tag-up on Brogden's sacrifice foul fly to McCullough.

Alcoa looked like certain winners from then on until the sixth, when they were snowed under for good. McCall grounded to Henderson who pegged wild allowing McCall to gain second. Clemens was guilty of a passed ball and Roy went to third. Williams hit to Jackson who pegged home but Roy by a magnificent slide at the plate was safe. Williams was caught at second when Lowry bounded to short. Wagner sacrificed. Partee sent a difficult pop-up to Jackson who missed, thus allowing Lowry to cross the platter with the winning run.

This game attracted more interest and inspired more speculation (etc.!) as to its outcome than any other game of the season. It was truly a grand finale for the 1920 season of Maryville College base ball.

The Blount County Championship pennant is now flying from Highland Park. Said ficticious standard was captured as a result of the siege of the Alcoa nine by the Highlanders on May 19 and 20. The besieged were unable to withstand the final assault and so surrendered with odds against them 5-4 and 2-0.

The Maryville followers of the alleged pastime were given two real treats of one hundred per cent baseball in last week's contests. The formidable Alcoa athletes, being reluctant to concede either game to the Collegians, staved off disaster eleven innings on Wednesday and eight on Thursday but eventually exploded and collapsed.

The victory of Wednesday was

M. C.'s BEST MUSICIANS IN FINAL CONCERT

Miss Dawson Renders Beautiful Piano Solo.

Although Maryville College has not given any diplomas to music students this year it is hard for us to believe that there are really no graduates, after the concert Saturday night.

The "first appearance of the orchestra" made us realize the many good things we have been missing during the year. The college owes Professor Garrett, the director, a debt of gratitude for the excellent work he has been doing this year in spite of his handicap of not being with us all the time.

The piano numbers by Miss Hayes, Miss Armentrout and Miss Sullinger were especially enjoyed. Miss Dawson, one of our music instructors, also played. This is the first time, this year, that we have had the opportunity of hearing Miss Dawson, but we hope she will give us that pleasure many times next year.

The two remaining numbers, a duet by Miss Winston Newton and Jessie Johnson, and the College Male Quartet were among the best features of the program. We are enjoying Miss Newton's voice for the last time, since she is one of our 1920 graduates and we wish to thank her for the many times she has entertained us in her four years at Maryville. Miss Johnson, we hope will be back next year.

Last but not least comes the quartet and to merely mention that is "nuff sed" for we have heard it often and each time is better than the last.

Every one who wishes to vote, that the concert was a success please say aye. Contrary like sign. The ayes have it.

Announcements have been received of the marriage of John L. Graves, a former Maryville football star, to Miss Ellen Mildred Turner. They will make their home in Greeneville, South Carolina.

LARGEST GRADUATION IN M. C.'s HISTORY

Forty-four Receive A. B. Degree.

One hundred and seventeen people are graduating this year in the various departments of the college, forty four are receiving A. B.'s, sixty-three are finishing the preparatory department; nine are graduates in home economics, seven in the department of expression, and one is a graduate in Bible training. Forty of the number are men, the remaining seventy seven are girls, seven of them receive diplomas in two departments, seventeen of them have in the course of their Maryville career been assistants in the various departments. Seventy-four are from the State of Tennessee. A great many more equally interesting facts might be written about them, in their number are debaters, class, literary society, Y. W. and club presidents, editors of the Highland Echo and of the Chilhowean, pianists, singers,—almost anything you might want, and their ambitions are equally varied. Many of them—sixty-four in fact—are hoping to enter college next fall, some are going into journalism, others will enter Rush Medical School; several of them intend to teach, and it is rumored that some of them even contemplate being married! During the years which they have spent with us we have learned to sincerely admire these Seniors who have been our leaders in everything. They have been setting the pace, and a brisk one it is, too. We often see them strolling on the campus, having parties and doing all kinds of frivolous things, and yet they have put through our lyceums and mid-winters, recitals and debates, exhibitions and everything else. At the same time they have kept up a high standard of scholarship, as shown by the fact that all the College Seniors received the distinction of Pro Merito or Cum Laude. Really a more remarkable group of men and women could not be found. Best of all they are true Maryvillians, impregnated so thoroughly with the

:--:--:--:--:

The 1920 Chilhowean has arrived and is being rapidly distributed. It is a handsome monument to the scholarly and efficient work of the Editor-in-Chief, Miss Martha E. Robison, who has labored faithfully throughout the whole year for its success. Thanks to Martha—It Is a Success.

:--:--:--:--:

While you are perusing the pages of this last issue of the Echo, remember that one of the most important items of your 1920-21 budget will be one dollar and twenty-five ($1.25) for one year's subscription to the Highland Echo. Be sure and don't let Dad overlook said item!

The one hundred and first year of Maryville College has passed and is now a mere chapter in the book of retrospection of each teacher and student. Yet the red letter memories of the year 1919-20 will long remain and be cherished by each member of the faculty and by each of almost a thousand students.

:--:--:--:--:

Before we "shove off" for our cruise upon the unfamiliar seas of hard work connected with the publication of a College paper we wish to pay tribute to whom tribute is due. Namely, to the Echo Staff of 1919-20 who have sailed, fathomed, and become familiar with, the mysteries of the aforementioned depths and have withstood successfully the buffeting waves of a thousand troubles which inevitably beset the staff of a college paper.

It is to the Editor-in-Chief, Mr. Stacey F. Howell, whose faithful and unremitting labor from September to June has made the Echo a success and a pleasure to read, that praise and honor is due. We take this opportunity to express our appreciation to Mr. Howell for his praiseworthy work.

The business manager Mr. Callahan has acquitted himself with credit by performing his duties with exceptional thoroughnes. In spite of the soaring prices of paper and printing, a paper of high quality has been maintained and the number of complaints for lost and delayed copies has been unusually small. Mr. Callahan by his career as business manager of the Centennial Chilhowean and of the Echo has proven himself capable of discharging successfully the duties connected with larger enterprises of the business world.

THE NEW STAFF

Eight members of the new staff have been selected upon recommendation of Professor Hunter and have consented to serve. The athletic editor, Roy F. Buffat, was elected last Friday by the Athletic Board of Control.

In order that the "reading public" might become acquainted with the new staff, each member was asked to contribute to this the last issue of the 1919-20 Echo. However, Herrick R. Arnold was unexpectedly called to his home in Cleveland, Tenn., on account of an injury received by his brother and consequently was prevented from contributing to this issue.

The Echo was indeed fortunate in securing for another year the services of Miss Martha Robison as a member of the editorial staff. Her literary talent and ability is second to none on College Hill. She has spent considerable time in writing the article on the graduating classes which appears on the first page of this issue. Miss Ruth Tedford has written the very interesting account of the graduation exercises of the department of expression. Mr. Buffat kindly consented to write a summary of the whole athletic year. Miss Elsie Dawson makes her debut in the account of the Adelphic Union Banquet. Mr. Cody, who has announced the arrival of a charming young daughter to whom has been given the beautiful name Frances Elizabeth, also announces the evnts of interest which have occurred at chapel during the past week. Mr. Montgomery has collected a number of news items regarding the faculty which we hope will be of interest to all. Miss Bernice Kimble, our music editor, is an accomplished musician and writes very intelligently on the subject. She has contributed the account of the splendid recital of Saturday evening.

M. C.'S 1919-1920 ATHLETIC RECORD

Football, Basketball, Baseball and Tennis.

Only a few days after college work was again resumed last September, a call was made for football aspirants. Thirty or more would-be fell in line.

Sifting, training, and grinding followed, resulting in the production of a strong team. The first blood was drawn October 4th. when the Orange and Garnet fell before the bucking of U. T.'s eleven by a 32 to 2 count. Five other hotly contested battles of note followed. One was lost, three were won and the wishbone of Tusculum's turkey was pulled to a draw.

A total of 67 points were scored by Maryville's opponents, while her total was 103. So ended the football season for the varsity.

BASKETBALL

The twittering whistle of the basketball coach sounded next. Girls and boys trained, and practiced day and night. Good form and style of playing was exhibited by the many try-outs. A couple of "fives" were chosen. Speed, accuracy, and endurance made both teams a stonewall of defense for Maryville's hopes in the basketball world.

On December 5th. Carson and Newman was unable to break thru the defense and as a consequence suffered a defeat. Fifteen other floor-court contests were waged during the season. Eleven were scalped by our boys; three were lost in playing while the fourth was confiscated open and above board—on a basketball court in hailing distance of U. T.

Maryville scored a total of 470 points, while the ball was cast through the iron rings by her opponents for a count of 367 points. "Slim" Carter pulled down almost a third of Maryville's season score while "Wag" tossed 99, Hendrick 87, Cotton 70, and the others in all 98.

The Girls' team totaled 165 points while their opponents rolled off 65. A total of nine games was played and "Sister" Martha Washington was the only opposing winner by a count of 13 to 9.

BASEBALL

The national game is always the go in colleges and universities and Maryville proved herself not to be an exception.

Starting the season on March 30, with a victory over Walland by 6-1, and closing the season by taking a series of three games from Alcoa—, the last game of the series and of the season being 2-1, Maryville proved herself capable of producing a team which played the game with credit.

Twenty-three games were played, fourteen being won, eight lost and one forfeited but won.

TENNIS

One of the best lines of sports was revived this year with greater "pep" and enthusiasm. Tennis playing was done in earnest. Ten tour-

Maryville Cleans Up In Tennis

The records of the tennis matches played between the teams of The University of Tennessee and Maryville College this spring are all to the point that the college players are the undoubted superiors of their University competitors. The records of the matches which were played in Knoxville have already been published in the Echo.

Saturday afternoon, May 22, saw the history of the Knoxville play virtually repeated. In all six matches were played, three by the men's teams and three by the girls' teams. The coed players made a clean sweep of their series. Not a single set of the seven played went to the University girls. Miss Johnson had the unique distinction of winning every game in the three sets of her singles match except one. Miss Hodges' record in the two sets of her match with Miss Eldridge of the University met with almost equal success. The score of the girls' matches follow:

Singles

Miss Jessie Johnson, Maryville vs. Miss Grace McDougall, Tennessee; won by Miss Johnson, 6-1, 6-0, 6-0.

Miss Lucile Hodges, Maryville vs. Miss Ruth Eldridge, Tennessee: won by Miss Johnson, 6-1, 6-0, 6-0.

Doubles

Misses Johnson and Hodges, Maryville vs. Misses McDougall and Eldridge, Tennessee; won by Maryville, 8-6, 6-2.

The play in the men's matches was exceedingly good. It would be unfair to say that any one man was the individual star for all played a consistent and steady brand of tennis. The hardest fought match of the entire afternoon was the match in which Allenburg of Tennessee defeated Hendricks of Maryville. The score, which will follow later, only in part reveals the closeness of the play in this gruelling match. Both men are brilliant players and all who saw the play know that the man who beat John Hendricks is some player. Tracy Knapp played a great match with Smith of the University. If the play could have continued for a set or two more there is no telling what Tracy would have displayed in the way of brilliant play for he was getting better every minute. The work of Moore and Knapp in the doubles was also of a very high order. The scores of the men's sets follow:

Singles

Knapp, Maryville vs. Smith, Tennessee; won by Knapp, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1, 8-6.

Hendrick, Maryville vs. Allenburg, Tennssee; won by Allenburg, 6-2, 1-6, 9-11, 6-4, 7-5.

Doubles

Knapp and Moore, Maryville vs. Szabo and Taylor, Tennessee won by Maryville, 6-3, 10-8, 7-5.

Great credit is due Manager Middleton for the successful tennis season which has just closed.

STATISTICS OF ENROLLMENT FOR 1919-1920

Compiled by College Authorities. Total Enrollment for Year 1,003.

The total enrollment for the year 1919-1920 is 1,003, the largest in the one hundred and one years of Maryville's history. It is an increase of 177 over last year, which was the highest up to that time.

BY TERMS—The total attendance during the fall term was 871, an increase of 174 over the attendance during the corresponding term last year; during the winter term 863, an increase of 235; during the spring term, 759, an increase of 184. The average attendance by terms during the year was 831. The decrease during the last two terms was due chiefly to the influenza, here and at the homes of the students, but partially to the restlessness caused by the lure of positions with substantial salaries or big wages.

BY SEXES—The total enrollment by sexes has been: young men, 445, an increase of 59; young women, 558, an increase of 118. There were 113 more young women than young men. This excess was altogether in the college department, and is the result of the war, and of our excellent home economics department. In the college department there were 170 men and 282 women, as against 130 men and 256 women last year. In the preparatory department there were 275 men and 276 women, as against 190 men and 250 women last year.

BY DEPARTMENTS—The total enrollment in the college department is the most gratifying advance in the history of the College; it was 452, a phenomenal increase over any previous year of 132. This is a good omen, indeed. The enrollment in the preparatory department was 551, only 99 more than that in the college department. This was an increase over last year of 45. Had it not been for the need of the income received from the first year preparatory class, in this year when the salaries had to be raised to keep the teaching force from starving, and had it not been for the uncertainty as to how the income of the coming year would be affected by the proposed change to the semester system and by the increased tuition bills, the faculty would have deemed this the appropriate time to begin the long contemplated elimination of the preparatory department. In the face of conditions, however, it was deemed hazardous to take that action this year.

BY CLASSES—The Senior Class consisted of 45 students (last year's had 32), of whom 17 (11) were men, and 28 (21), women; one foreign country and 9 states being represented. The Junior Class numbered 48 (38), of whom 20 (14) were men, and 28 (24), women; 14 States being represented. The Sophomore Class numbered 75 (38), of whom 25 (12) were men, and 50 (26), women, two foreign countries and 15 States being represented. The Freshman Class numbered 259 (167), of whom 102 (63) were men, and 157 (104), women; one foreign country and 20 States being represented. The College Specials numbered only 25 (45), of whom 6 (30, including S.A.T.C.) were men, and 19 (15), women; one foreign country and 7 States being represented. The statistics of the preparatory classes are given in Principal Ellis' report.

BY LOCALITY—Maryville still holds the leading position among the smaller colleges in drawing students from all parts of the United States and even beyond. This year 337 students came from 39 States and countries beyond the borders of Tennessee; an increase of 80 students and 5 States and countries. In the college department, besides 282 (190) students from Tennessee, 170 (130) came from 30 (32) other States and countries. In the preparatory department, besides 384 (379) from Tennessee, 167 (126) came from 32 (24) other States and countries.

BY STATES, EXCLUDING TENNESSEE—From 10 States, south of the Ohio river and Mason and Dixon's line and east of the Mississippi river, 201 students, an increase of 46. From 8 States north of the Ohio and Mason and Dixon's line, and east of the Mississippi, 73, an increase of 9. From 9 States west of the Mississippi, 46 students, an increase of 13. From 11 foreign countries, 17, an increase of 12. To sum it up, there have been 201 students from 10 Southern States east of the Mississippi, and 136 from the North, West, and foreign countries, an increase of 46 and 34 respectively. Tennessee furnished 666 students, an increase of 97. The sixteen States that follow Tennessee in the number of students are: Alabama, 47; Kentucky, 47; North Carolina, 30; Georgia, 27; Ohio, 22; Texas, 19; Florida, 14; West Virginia, 14; Pennsylvania, 12; New York, 11; Indiana, 10; Mississippi, 10; Arkansas, 9; Illinois, 8; New Jersey, 8; and Virginia, 7.

BY COUNTIES—The attendance from 52 (51) counties of Tennessee amounted to 666 (596) students. So Maryville evidently stands well at home. From 27 (26) counties of East Tennessee, 603 (511); from 16 (19) counties of Middle Tennessee, 53 (49); from 7 (6) counties of West Tennessee, 10 (9). The enrollment from the counties of Tennessee has been as follows in the order of numbers in attendance.

Blount, 270; Knox, 64; McMinn, 30; Sevier, 26; Greene, 25; Monroe, 21; Hamilton, 16; Roane, 14; Loudon 13; Campbell, 12; Jefferson, 12; Washington, 12; Bradley, 11; Unicoi, 11; Hawkins, 10; Cocke, 8; Grainger, 8; Maury, 8; Anderson, 7; Marshall, 7; Morgan, 7; Bedford, 6; Hamblen, 6; Rhea, 5; Dyer, 4; Fentress, 4; Jackson, 4; Putnam, 4; Scott, 4; Carter, 3; Cumberland, 3; Franklin, 3; Macon, 3; Polk, 3; Sullivan, 3; Davidson, 2; Humphreys, 2; Bledsoe, 1; Carrol, 1; DeKalb, 1; Gibson, 1; Giles, 1; Hardin, 1; Hickman, 1; Lauderdale, 1; Marion, 1; Montgomery, 1; Stewart, 1; Tipton, 1; Warren, 1; Weakley, 1; Williamson, 1.

ALPHA SIGMA

Diplomas Presented To Members Of The Class of '20.

The Alpha Sigmas met Friday, May 28th., in a call meeting, for the last program of the year. The work done by our society during the past school year has been indeed successful. A large number of our members have been participants in victorious forensic events during the last two terms. The spring term is usually a busy one for all, but our programs have been carried out during this term and our interest in the literary society has been sustained so that a full year's work has been done. We attribute this display of interest, in a large degree, to our efficient presidents, Messrs. Weisbecker, James, Callahan and Georges.

It will be remembered that Mr. James was the leading character in the Alpha Sigma Midwinter, when "A Man Without a Country" was given. All who were present on that occasion can vouch for its successful outcome.

There are nine members of the Class of 1920 who have been loyal Alpha Sigmas. The purpose of the called meeting was to show appreciation of the work done by these men. Mr. Stanton, the newly elected president, presented diplomas to those who are leaving.

We trust that the coming years will be even more successful than this one has been and that the spirit of "On, On, Onward, Alpha Sigma" will continue to inspire the members to nobler things.

DIS TINGUISHED VISITOR ON THE HILL THURSDAY

Dr. J. H. McMurry who is at present the Field Director of the Red Cross of Camp Zachary Taylor spent Thursday as a visitor to our school. Dr. McMurry was President of Central College, 1902-05, and President of Lincoln College, Ill., 1905-18, from which position he resigned to go into war work in France for the American Red Cross.

ADELPHIC UNION BANQUET A GREAT SUCCESS

An Ideal Banquet On An Ideal Evening.

On the evening of May 21, 1920, the students of Maryville College met in Pearsons not for an ordinary meal, but for the greatest social event of the year, namely, the Adelphic Union Banquet.

There was nothing ordinary about either the banquet, the evening, or the students. The dining hall was elaborately decorated with wild and fragrant flowers. The daises, the honeysuckle and the candles artistically carried out the color scheme of yellow and white. As to the banquet proper—the eats—little need be said for every one recognized the rare privilege of sitting there and eating while the orchestra played "soul inspiring" music and the friend smiled approvingly at you.

The menu consisted of:

Cocktail au Fruit

Noix Salees Olives

Poulet a la Marquerie

Pomme de Terre Boules de Neige

Petite Pois

Croissant Buerre

Salacle Waldorf

Glaces Gateaux

Demi Tassee

The toastmaster, Professor Hunter, was enthusiasticly introduced by the President of the Adelphic Union Miss Louise Hayes. Professor Hunter then became "Master of Ceremonies" and it was unbelieveable that a mere man could remember all the jokes he knew.

Ernest Loft was the first "Toastee", he "delivered" an eloquent "address" to the Athenians. The response was given by Jason Deyton in his usual competant manner. Irrovia Corry then proposed a pleasing toast to Theta Epsilon. Sue Nuchols answered this in her "always" attractive manner. Mrs. Alexander's gracious toast to the Seniors caused us to remember that all good things must end, the best of friends must part, the Seniors must go—but a happy journey she wished for them. Phil Sheffey replied with an enthusiastic and inspiring toast to the Adelphic Union. Mildred Campbell concluded the program of the evening by offering a toast to our Alma Mater in her charming and original manner.

Early in the day the weather was threatening, but the weather man seemed to realize that the one event of the year was scheduled for that night so he turned his dark cloud inside out. So the "banqueteers" were thrilled and inspired by "moonshine" and the light of the moon.

As to the people—everyone knows the best people on earth belong to the four Literary Societies of the Adelphic Union.

Banquet, evening and people,—the best we had ever seen.

GLEE CLUB REPEATS CONCERT

A Member Gives This Account Of The Evening.

On Friday we gave our program in the basement of the New Providence Presbyterian Church. An appreciative audience called for several encores. We are greatly indebted to the good ladies under whose auspices the program was given, for an excellent banquet. Mr. Marquis serving as toastmaster, showed his ability by several witticisms. Mr. Hayes and Dr. Stevenson gave toasts to Miss Gregg for her patience in training the club. We owe Miss Gregg a debt too great to express in words but let us hope she will remember us by the little token, an umbrella, which we were enabled to give her through the courtesy of Coach Feeman and the Athletic Association. Every fellow who is interested will be given a chance to share the pleasure and honor of the big things we plan for next year.

Mr. Howard McGrath has accepted a position with the Cambridge Players who appeared on our Lyceum Course this year in "The Rivals".

PEDAGOGUES LOSE TO DIGNATARIES

Memorable Day For Knapp Family.

Did you see the Faculty-Senior game Wednesday? All who did not surely missed the most momentous, stupendous game of the season. It was worth the time spent at the game to gaze (it must be said, with awe and rapture) at the costumes of ye mighty Seniors. To the best of our knowledge and belief not one color, thus far known to mortal man, was lacking. Let it be said to the Seniors' credit that this glaring, glittering array probably prompted their spirits to do the many daring stunts they did, and carry off the glory of the day.

Professor Knapp was easily the star of the first part of the fray. So anxious was he to help bring the bacon home that he carried two gloves into left field hoping if one did not suffice, to make the other "do the dirty work". His two-bagger was a "thing of beauty and a joy forever."

Professor Brittain's base running was a feature of several innings. He cavorted with such speed that his cap would sometimes be found miles from its original desert abode. One thing probably omitted from the official score will be that he will not receive credit for the stealing of third due to the fact that he raised so much dust trying to crowd Hunter off of the sack that the official score-keeper could not ascertain the real state of affairs.

It is a shame "Babe" Ruth and Dr. Barnes cannot exchange places, for if such good luck could come to the "Yankee" there would be no speculation as to who would win the rag. At the present time the fate of one sparrow Doc Barnes tried to catch has not been learned but it will probably never chirp again, having lost his voice in the close call it had. Let it be said too that "Babe" Ruth would probably only have made first on the single which Barnes lengthened into a double, due to the speed with which he rounded first. This terrificly fast base running would never be forgotten were it not for the incapacity of the human mind to retain everything and one must ever remember the slide of John Graham which happened just off of first and by one mad leap into the air was stretched to within fifteen feet of mound.

About all the marvellous feats of the Faculty have been recounted save the ability of Professor Proffit to stop everything that came his way, and after due analysis by diamond experts it has been decided that the only reason that can be given for his failure to glue on to the pill was the mighty impact with which it met his glove on every occasion.

Were it not for Deyton's derby we should probably have sojourned for several days to see the game, for we will leave it up to anyone—where would the balls have been kept had he not had the forethought to wear it. And didn't his carrying of the whisk broom bespeak a tidy nature.

The score was comparatively close (10 to 5) but we are wondering just what the final outcome would have been had not Bob Belt after his long drive galavanted to third instead of first. Had it been Chang we would have understood the reason for such a performance but for a natural born American to do such a thing is altogether unpardonable.

Let us not forget Deyton's base running. We have an idea that he broke all records when he ran from second to third on his fellow-teamsman's two bagger. We have just heard that he has signed with Detroit as a replacement for "Tyrus"

The game was a peach all right, but in conclusion we wish to ask,—When Weisbecker and Deyton ran together and caught that fly—what caught it?

Visitor to Miss Mollie: "And are you a native of Tennessee, madam?"

Miss Mollie: "Oh no, I was raised in Blount County."

ANNUAL EXHIBIT

Art and Home Economics Department.

Two important features of the commencement program were the exhibitions given by the Home Economics and Art Departments.

The scene of the Home Economics exhibit was laid in the sewing labratory of that department, amid garlands of daisies and honeysuckle. The whole room looked as if Dame Fashion had waved her magic wand and called forth from realms unknown such wonderful creations as has never been seen there before. Dainty costumes of every pattern and hue that would charm the most delicate and cultured taste were literally hanging from every hook and nail.

The work in designing was especially good and shows that the class is not lacking in rare art and talent.

Neatly-kept note books (not the half-starved kind either) reminded us that the hours the classes spent with them were many and full of hard work and study.

As a whole this was the most wonderful exhibit that the Home Economics Department of Maryville College has ever given. The credit we give to Miss Sievers, head of the Department, whose faithful toil and labor has wrought such brilliant success, and to Miss Ware, the able assistant who was always on the job. Last but not least we hold the students of this department responsible for the remarkable display, self-evident of their skill and labor.

And no less genus was shown in the exhibit given by the Art Department. To them we give due praise for it now stands a known and undisputed fact that Maryville College has within its walls many artists.

Pictures in oil, water colors, charcoal, and in everything that pictures are ever made of, were placed artistically all over the walls of Baldwin parlors, transforming them into a real fairyland. Pictures of such beautiful landscapes and outdoor scenes that while we stood silently and gazed in amazed rapture on them we forgot our where-abouts and were carried far into the Great Outdoors where our troubled and forlorn feelings (caused from exams, probably) were soothed and healed by the song of birds and the rippling of running water. The pictures of fruit and flowers were so perfect it semed as tho they had just freshly been plucked from bush and tree. And then there were pictures of babies which recalled to us our childhood. "A Little Bit of Heaven" and others show great skill and talent. Then too, there was the portrait of our dearly beloved President, Woodrow Wilson. It was so real we thought it was surely Woodrow himself.

We are certainly proud of our Art Department and congratulate Miss Smith on her splendid work.

STELLA COMBS WINS ESSAY MEDAL

The 1920 Rush Strong Essay Medal was awarded to Miss Stella Combs, a member of the Freshman Class, for her essay on "The Value of Truth."

Rush Strong, a former citizen of Knox County left a provision in his will whereby each of several colleges of East Tennessee was designated to receive annually a twenty five dollar gold medal to be awarded to the individual writing the best essay on the above mentioned subject. Although this is the first year the contest has been held, considerable interest was manifested and several essays were written. Miss Comb's essay was well outlined, scholarly, and showed great originality. The Echo takes this opportunity to congratulate Miss Combs for her big literary success.

Miss Park (explaining the use of "will" and "shall") You use "shall" in the second and third person to express determination. For example, you remember the well known slogan, "They shall not pass".

Cecil Mc. (suddenly awaking from dreams of approaching exams) "They shall!"

THE WEEK AT CHAPEL

One of the many attractive features of Maryville College is the many varieties of visitors who are guests at the chapel exercises.

On Wednesday morning of last week Dr. Stevens of Lane Theological Seminary made a strong appeal for more and better leaders. Leaders who can and will set forth the great principles taught in the 12th Chapter of Romans. Leaders who will guide the world back into the paths of unselfishness and service. Dr. Stevens' talk was much appreciated because of the mixture of attractive humor with the appeal for leaders. The word, said Dr. Stevens, has a place for the prepared and a work for them to do. Their work is to lead the world out of the turmoil which is caused by the loss of over 200,000 of the cream of the world's young manhood and the world's forgetfulness of God.

Another one of the guests at chapel last week was Mr. Smith of the Armenian relief. This speaker told us that the Armenians are possibly the greatest people we know today. They are very literary, artistic, and religious. They were the first to accept Christianity. Today they are the most persecuted people on earth. The world cannot help but admire Armenia because of her loyalty to the Christ.

Christiantiy pointed our by Mr. Smith has done for Armenia more than anything else in all the world. Then we should be glad we are Christians. If Christianity has done so much for Armenia that we owe it to Christ to help our fellowman. God has given us a task and that task is to stretch out our strong arms with our hands filled with food for Armenia.

On Friday morning the old chapel rang with a message the students of Maryville will never forget. The messenger was Captain Moss, a chaplain of the Canadian Army. Chaplain Moss who had a taste of the misery and awfulness of that Western Front.

As did most every Chaplain in any army he found that the 91st Psalm was so much comfort to the soldiers.

Chaplain Moss sounded a note which was an echo of that feeling that swept over the world when the news came that the Germans were within thirty-six miles of Paris. He also gave us an echo of that feeling which swept over the world when the news came that those American Doughboys had sent back that message "To Hell with retreat, Americans do not retreat", as they pushed on to victory at Chateau Thierry.

The Chaplain had us pause in our thought of that eventful past and remember that God was on that battle front and in all those battles or no army could have driven the Germans back.

Chaplain Moss told us that the little country, Armenia, gave 3,000,000 of her people to suffer or to die, and that there are today 150,000 Armenian orphans looking to America for the necessities of life.

The Chaplain so beautifully gave that call thru the call from America's immortal dead who sleep in "Flander's Fields where poppies grow", and thru that message of Christ when he said "I was an hungered and ye gave me meat, thirsty and ye gave me drink, naked and ye clothed me". Will he ever be able to say to America, "I was hungry, thirsty, and naked in Armenia and ye ministered not unto me?" was the colsing appeal of Chaplain Moss.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE LEAGUE ELECTS

A called meeting of the Equal Suffrage League was held Monday for the election of officers for the succeeding school year. Those elected were as follows:

President - - - Frances Hickey
Vice President - - - Mary Mason
Secretary - - - - Lucile Carter
Treasurer - - - Manie Witherspoon
Editor - - - Elizabeth Whitlock

The upper classmen present, otherwise Seniors, entertained royally with humorous impromptus, dignfied duets, melancholy solos, and ambrosial readings, to say nothing of their shining, specific, farewell impressive embraces.

FACULTY SCANDAL

Moonshiners Take Notice

Moonshiners read and give heed to the warnings here issued in your behalf. It has been learned thru the tireless efforts, unceasing diligence and constant vigilence of our editor-in-chief that the faculty of Maryvillege College have banded themselves together in an effort to stamp out entirely and utterly obliviate every vestige of this dreadful, dangerous, destructive curse of moonshining. It has also been learned that thruout the past year they have secretly, stealthily, steadily, slowly but surely learned the whereabouts of our stills and have definitely determined upon a line of action which will be pursued thruout the summer months with the greatest persistency, perseverance and pertinacity on the part of each member of the band.

Staff representatives have interviewed a great number of the said band and with the greatest of difficulty have been able to discover their plans. They purpose to scatter themselves thruout the land and under the disguise of honest workers, sight-seers, travelers and in some cases, we regret to say, loafers, carry on their work of destruction.

We are glad to say that so far Dr. Wilson has heard nothing at all of the scandal and has decided to take a motorcycle trip with our Editor-in-chief thru Virginia, New Jersey, New York and into New England. We wish him God speed with an earnest hope that he returns again to us in the fall completely restored in health and able to resume his duties here on the Hill.

A goodly number of the faculty have promised to remain here on the Hill and hold the fort. Dr. Stevnson says that he'll milk the cow twice a day and feed the chickens but outside of that he has no plans to make public. Dr. Gillingham who has just returned from the General Assembly will spend most of his summer on the Hill. Professor Ellis will have charge of the newly established Preparatory offices in Anderson. Professor Knapp will spend most of his summer in Maryville but will visit friends in Ohio. Professor Hunter says his place of residence will probably be Carnegie but he has secured a "light" job at the Aluminum Plant for the next few months. Miss Caldwell, Professor Jones, Mrs Snodgrass, Professor Walker, Miss Henry, Miss Jones and Mrs. West will all be in the vicinity of Maryville. Professor Proffitt and his corps of workers will spend most of their time on the new building which is to be erected just back of the library. I think it is altogether fitting and proper to mention here that Professor Edgemon told the Staff representative that he had no use for little stenographers for they rolled off his lap. Professor Pleasants will also be busy on the building and is now making plans for the erection of a new manual training building, sometime in the near future. He wanted it mentioned also that his department would have an exhibit in Bartlett gymnasium on June 2nd, and 3rd.

Professor Bassett is thinking some of attending the Y. M. C. A. conference at Blue Ridge. From there he will journey to Michigan University and on June 24th. will receive his degree of Ph. D. On his way home he will stop at Winona Lake and visit Fred Hope and then do some sightseeing about Mammoth Cave. Dr. Barnes hoping to attend his class reunion at Marietta, Ohio and some sort of a convocation at Chicago. On June 21st. he will commence his duties as Professor in summer school at Ohio State University.

Madame Dennee says she can't think of anything scandalous to do right now but if she does, she certainly will do it. She thinks she'll spend the summer with her sister at Columbia, S. C. and take a trip to "Somewhere". Mrs. Alexander and the Misses Smith will motor through Connecticutt, Massachusetss, and Maine and spend their vacation on the coast.

Professor Brittain hasn't any idea where he will be. We regret very much to say that Professor Southwick has accepted a position with the Presbyterian Board of Temperance and Moral Welfare at Pittsburg, Pa., and will not be back with us in the fall. For the summer? Oh well, we are not sure, only he said that two weeks at Christmas time were insufficient but that he hoped to do better this summer. Miss Fanson will attend Chicago University and Rush this summer and be back at Maryville next year. Professor Orr will also attend Chicago University and assist some in the "New Era" work. Professor Purdy will attend some sort of a convention this summer in northern Ohio and next of Music at Boston and then visit in New York, Maine and Columbus, Ohio. Miss Jackson will spend some time at Jarrold's Valley, Va., with some missionary friends and then travel through New York and New Jersey. Miss Buxton, after a brief stay in Washington and New York will spend her summer at her home in Maine. Miss Coulter will be at her home in Melrose. Miss Darby will enjoy the summer at Montvale where she will be visited by her sister from Washington.

Miss Aiken will spend the summer at Lockport, New York. Professor Garrett will remain at Knoxville.

Sr. Arellano will return next year to have charge of the College Spanish. Everyone will be glad to know that Miss Green will be with us next year after a temporary absence to resume her work.

Prof. J. A. Hyden, Principal of the Preparatory Department of Cumberland University and a member of the class of '14 has accepted a position as assistant professor in Mathematics.

SEVEN GIRLS GRADUATE IN THE DEPARTMENT OF EXPRESSION

Charming Program Rendered

On Friday evening, May 28, the graduating exercises of the Department of Expression and Public Speaking was held in the Voorhees Chapel.

The chapel stage was decorated with masses of daises and honeysuckle.

At eight o'clock Miss Jeanette Hibbert played a march on the piano and the seven graduates, girls all of them, and beautifully gowned, came slowly down the aisle and were seated in the first row of seats.

Miss Mary Emma Armentrout played "Burlesque" by Gorno and did it extremely well too with a marked degree of skill and expression.

The next number was given by Miss Sue Nuchols and consisted of two readings "The River of Stars", a sweet little story by Alfred Noyes of Indian love and loyalty and "Quality Folks" by Irvin Cobb.

Miss Nuchols is a member of the graduating class of 1919 and every one of us who have ever heard her read (and most of us have had that pleasure) knows that half the charm of these readings lie in the manner of their delivery.

Then the Misses Winston Newton, Jessie Johnson, Bernice Kimble and Ruth Gamble sang Park's "Last Rose of Summer" and were enthusiastically received by the audience.

Last, but by no means least, was the presentation of diplomas by Professor Knapp. His address was a striking illustration of the growth of expression during the last decade. He pictured, very clearly, elocution, the stilted agonizing thing that used to be in contrast with expression, the charming and entertaining art that we have today.

After his address the graduates filed upon the platform and were presented with the diplomas which they so richly deserve and these fortunate young ladies were: Miss Mildred Campbell, Miss Irrovia Carry, Miss Jessie Creswell, Miss Mattie Hamilton, Miss Mary Louise Hayes, Miss Minnie Hunter, Miss Ruth Quinn.

SENIOR PREPS ENTERTAINED

Sam Franklin as Host.

Tuesday night was not a starlight night for nothing, neither did the mocking bird sing all night in vain. The Senior Preps were entertained at the home of their president, Sam Franklin on this moonlit evening. A large, happy throng of sweet mingled voices took their leave of College Hill at seven-thirty, and began to mingle themselves with the enthralling music of the Franklin home about eight o'clock. After this had continued for some time games were added to the merry-making until it was deemed necessary to reward four of the party for their unequaled wits and talent, by a choice selection of Miss Katherine's home made candy. The most delicious cake, strawberries, ice cream and candy were served, and were relished by "tout le monde". Professor Ellis voiced our thankful sentiments for this occasion which so well fills the closing events in our history as Senior Preps in Dear Old Maryville. Can we ever forget this thoughtfulness on the part of the Franklin family?

THE "PREACHERS" PICNIC

At least fifteen of the young men on College Hill now agree that it pays in more ways than one to be a sky-pilot (or" fire escape"). The Ministerial Association does not claim to be the only organization that knows the secret of success, even at picnics, but the "House in the Woods" program on last Monday certainly made a lasting impression on the "glory spot" of every rain-defying heart that attended. Yes, there was some system to it all, for Mrs. Stevenson with her little band of earnest workers had dinner almost ready when the "preachers" arrived. As suual, the dinner was the outstanding feature of the day, and while the home-made strawberry short-cake was being served, "Tommy" announced that games might be played indoors, immediatley "after the dishes were washed". Of course, this plan conflicted with other plans, and as it was Monday afternoon, not even a drizzling rain could break through the well-formed habits of any student. Consequently, many flowers were gathered and everywhere the woods were full of moonshine.

The members of the Association take this opportunity of expressing their appreciation and thanks to Mrs. Stevenson and the young ladies who so ably assisted in the program.

SAD DEATH OF YOUNG WIFE

The sad news of the death of Mrs. Myron F. Barbour (formerly Mariam Crum) was a shock to all who knew this estimable young lady.

Myron Barbour and Miriam, both former sutdents of M. C., were married at Lane Seminary by Rev. John Vant Stephens, a member of the graduating class of '15, on March 29, 1919. On May 9, 1920 Rev. Stephens had the sad duty of preaching the funeral discourse of this beautiful young lady, thus terminating the happy romance of thirteen months.

Miriam Crum Barbour was born June 5, 1895, at Charlestown, Ind. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Crum. She was the second child of a family of five, her brother and a sister being, Prof. Earl N. Crum, Miss Elinor Crum, and two younger borthers, Stanley and Quintin.

In 1914 Miriam was graduated from the Charlestown high school and from there was sent to Maryville College to complete her course of music in which she was exceedingly talented. It was while here that she met her future husband, Myron F. Barbour.

The happiness of this little romance which started in college days lasted but a year and a month after their marriage, for God has seen fit in His almighty providence to call her home to Himself. She answered the summons bravely and with a smile on her face bid her husband goodbye in a loving embrace. Her last words to him were, "I'll be waiting for you."

And what Keener says is so.

ATHLETIC RECORD

naments were staged resulting in Maryville taking eight. U. T. won two out of six from Maryville. Carson and Newman lost four tournaments to M. C.

The girls racquet wielders, who put the U. T. lassies down in defeat were Misses Johnson, Ensign, and Hodges. Knapp, Hendrick and Moore cut the bouncers for the boys.

Of such a year of athletics and sports Maryville should justly be proud. Proud, not so much of the excess scoring, as of the splendid, clean, sportsmanship practiced by the players. Whether it be in football, basketball, baseball or tennis, the true winner is the clean sportsman.

You may not believe it, but this happened at Maryville College. A student asked a Junior the following question: "Say, how often are the annuals put out?"

ALUMNI NOTES

1906.

Maryville Alumni will be sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Blanche Weisgerber McCann, '06, of Columbus, Washington, which occurred on May 17th. at her home. After graduating from Maryville Miss Weisgerber taught for a short time in Knox County, and then went to Washington where she met and married Mr. McCann. Her husband and four children survive her.

1911 and 1914.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Waggoner of Morristown, visited relatives in Maryville last week.

1916.

Mrs. Aletha May Armstrong is visiting with her mother in Maryville. She stopped on her way home from Washington, D. C., where she and her husband were in attendance on a Baptist Convention. They are located in Louisiana where Mr. Armstrong is engaged in church work.

1916-17.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Carver of the classes 1916 and 1917 respectively, welcomed the arrival of a son, Franklin Rea Carver, on May 16th. which date happened to be Mrs. Carver's birthday.

Mr. Carver has been re-elected for the second time as superintendent of City Schools of Hickory, N. C. at a salary of $3240.00.

Mr. Carver was one of the best catchers that ever bore the name "Highlander".

1917.

Mrs. Margaret Sugg Kelly and her husband, also well known to Maryville students, were recent Maryville visitors. They are now located in Cleveland, Tennessee.

A fair visitor at Baldwin Hall noting that the "stacked beds" were bound together by heavy cord exclaimed, "Oh, do you untie these reds every night?"

He put his arm around her waist
She said not gently, "Sir".
And as he let it gently fall
She whispered, "As you were".

M. C. WINS BLOUNT COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

the culmination of the glory accruing to slabman Smith. He has twirled five games on the home lot this season and has won five brilliant victories. We cannot give you the "why?", but Smith seems to have a peculiar fancy for descending into bottomless holes from which he always emerges triumphant and bedecked with glory. The features of the game were stellar catches in the outfield by Centra, Rowan, and McCall, who achieved the seemingly impossible. McCall, Davidson and Smith each registered two clean swipes, McCall also accounting for two stolen bases.

Two base hits, Henderson 2; Struck out by Smith 6, by Duncan 7. First on balls off Smith 2, off Duncan. Double play, Lowry-Cotton-Ruble. Hit by Smith-Jackson. Left on bases, M. C. 9. Alcoa 7. Umpire, Willis.

Alcoa's hope of a "rubber" was banished on Thursday by an eighth inning rally of the Highlanders which netted two runs.

Centra's sterling performance on the mound, supported by almost faultless fielding blanked the visiting team and allowed them no chance for a come-back. Only three men from the Aluminum town reached the second sack, and only one visited the third corner. Seven strike-outs were credited to Centra and only three to Bean.

Maryville's two runs came in the eighth when Centra found safety, by a fielder's choice, on first base and was followed by two three-base hits. Little Bean blew up allowing Lowry and Wagner each to pound him for three bags,—and the game was won.

Clemens starred for the visitors by catching with remarkable mastery and by tearing off half of the sum total of Alcoa's hits.

M. C. Opens With Record Enrollment--- Additions to Curriculum and Faculty

VALUABLE ADDITIONS TO COLLEGE FACULTY

Dr. and Mrs. McMurray Refuse Other Offers and Come to Maryville.

J. A. Hyden Will Assist Prof. Knapp in Math. Dept.

One of the most interesting things to an old student, on returning to Maryville, is to see the new faces on the campus and in the class-room. To meet the new students who will soon become friends.

This year however, the new faces are not confined to the student body alone. We see them among the faculty too, and of course are eager to become acquainted, for the best of our friends, and the wisest of our counsellors are the faculty members.

In the place of Professor Southwick, whom we all regret to lose, we have Dr. J. H. McMurray occupying the chair of Social Science and History this year. Dr. McMurray comes to us prepared for his work by many years of faithful service in several responsible positions. He is a graduate of the Class of '97 of Oberlin College, Ohio, and has also a year of post-graduate work at Harvard to his credit. For five years he was President of Central College, Indiana, now known as Huntingdon College. From this position he was elected President of Lincoln College, Nebraska, which place he held for thirteen years.

When America entered the war, Dr. McMurray resigned the Presidency of Lincoln, and offered his services to the Red Cross. He was connected with the hospital work at Camps Sherman and Taylor, receiving during his service several promotions, finally attaining the rank of Major at Camp Taylor, and was placed in charge of the Red Cross unit there. He left the service last August, and although offered excellent positions at both Berea College and Oberlin College, he accepted the position offered him by Maryville.

Mrs. McMurray is also a new member of the faculty, having been put in charge of the Home Economics department. She is particularly capable of handling this department as she has had experience during the war at Oberlin College where she conducted classes in food conservation, relief work, etc. Mrs. McMurray is also a graduate of Oberlin.

Maryville College is fortunate in securing Dr. and Mrs. McMurray. We welcome them to College Hill, and wish them much pleasure and happiness in their work among us.

Professor Hyden

Maryville College is quite fortunate in securing the services of Professor Hyden in History and Mathematics for the College Department. Professor Hyden has had a most excellent preparation for handling this work, and makes a very valuable addition to the Faculty.

He, like many other members of the faculty, is a graduate of Maryville, having received his B. A. with the Class of '14. It was with this class that our beloved head of the English Department graduated, and now, with the addition of another member of this class to our faculty list, we are beginning to think that the Class of '14 is a very valuable asset to Maryville College.

Immediately after his graduation Professor Hyden accepted a position as teacher of Mathematics at

ENROLLMENT OF STUDENTS REACHES 801

Change Made From Term to Semester System In College Department.

500 Expected in College Department This Year.

The first two weeks of schoo. have passed and most of the students who are to attend Maryville College this semester have been enrolled.

To date the total enrollment in the College Department is 428, and in the Preparatory Department is 373, making the total 801 for the entire school. As usual to the Freshman Class must go the honor in numbers, 194 already having signified the desire to assume the green.

It is interesting to compare the present enrollment with that of last year. The total for last fall was 871 but this includes everyone registering up to the end of the fall term. Assuming that there will be the usual number of those who come in late the total for the first semester should reach over 850.

As early as the second of August Preparatory girls had to be entered on the waiting list. At the opening of school the waiting list included both boys and girls in both College and Preparatory Departments. Some 50 boys and 30 girls came without attempting to make any reservations and consequently many are without rooms. All available space has been utilized by the College in making preparation for the increased attendance. It is hoped that arrangements can be made to take care of all those already on the Hill, and that none will be compelled to return home.

Prospects for the year are unusually bright for a record attendance. The total last year reached 1003, and this year the auspicious beginning promises an advance even beyond that mark.

One of the most gratifying results of the fall enrollment is the splendid increase in the number of College students. As the figures above indicate the College Department considerably outnumbers the Preparatory Department at this time. It is thought that at the close of the second semester the number of College students will reach the five hundred mark. This is much to be desired, and all those interested in Maryville College look forward to the day when the Preparatory Department will be completely done away with.

ALL OUT FOR U. T.! !

A half-holiday will be given next Saturday so that every student may be able to attend the M. C.-U. T. football game. A special train will probably be run, leaving Maryville immediately after dinner.

WIN OR LOSE WE ARE ALL BEHIND YOU, HIGHLANDERS! !

WE'LL ALL BE THERE ! !

IRENE BEWLEY GIVES YEAR TO MARYVILLE

Comes at a Personal Sacrifice To Assist Her Alma Mater. In Time of Need.

A Red Letter Event In History of Expression Dept.

The many students both new and old who have heard Miss Irene Bewley read, as well as the entire faculty are delighted that she has has decided to give a year of her life to her Alma Mater. Many think this one of the red letter events of the hundred and two years of Maryville College. Miss Bewley has a most unique and facinating personality which makes her take with every crowd, enables her to read with rare understanding and ability and makes friends of all who come in contact with her. She is a graduate of the Maryville College Department of Expression and Public Speaking, and also of The Leland Powers School of Expression. She is a noted Lyceum and Chautauqua lecturer, having read in every state in the union. During the war, the Entertainment Bureau sent her to France and Germany where she was an exceedingly popular entertainer. She even read before some of the greatest celebritees of Europe. General Pershing was very much pleased when she read for him one evening.

Miss Bewley is coming to Maryville at a very great personal sacrifice through her love for the department and for her Alma Mater. Her coming will mean much to the department, to the student body, and to the college.

Miss Bewley pleased the students by responding to their urgent request to give a reading at the chapel exercise, Tuesday morning of last week. She would have received many encores had not President Wilson quieted the students with the promise, "You'll hear her again soon!".

ATHLETICS AND THE STUDENT

Why does Maryville College or any other college have athletics? Who is supposed to be benefitted by such activities, and how? These and many other questions may be asked and answered, but still leave many in doubt. By special request of the Coach, the "Echo" will try to tell the student just what the athletics at Maryville are for.

First. The branches of athletics offered are not for the "select few". The idea has taken hold that only a few get the benefit of, say football and basketball. So long as the respective student carries such an idea with him nothing but delay in getting better equipment and facilities for physical training can be expected. These physical activities are for all students physically fit to enjoy them. When we, as students, show that we are really interested in what is going on about us it is then that things will happen in our favor.

Next, Those who represent the school in games and contests are due the whole hearted support of faculty and student body, and not until this spirit of co-operation and manifest interest is put to work will anything worth while be accomplished. Yelling and boosting for five or eleven men does not benefit all physically but the true college spirit is born in many a student's life in that way. Make the team's interest your interest and their accomplishments your gain, for all works for the school and its enlargement, and for more general athletics among both boys and girls.

Thirdly, The greatest asset to this college for physical training and development is to be found in the tennis and "Y" courts. Such as is obtained from these two fields of sport can be taken with the student wherever he goes. It takes only two to exercise in tennis or hand ball, and any number may play provided the courts are at hand. But they are not, you say. But they can be. How? Get in the game, catch the spirit, talk it up and if the earnestness of the student body does not bring satisfactory action, nothing else will. Manifest interest to the point of giving and serving, is what counts.

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE

It has been said that the swimming pool is a black eye on College Hill. That's going toofar. Patience when it slips, will cause many careless sayings. With the Coach working under handicap on account of not being able to get assistants, and with the car and coal shortage it will be difficult to keep the pool open in the winter, but it will be opened in a short while it is hoped for the students to use. Swimming will be enjoyed by students at intervals during the winter and at all time in the spring.

FORTY CANDIDATES DON THE MOLESKINS

U. T. Will Offer First Opposition to Feeman's Crew On Next Saturday Afternoon.

Kirkguard, The Texas Wonder, At Last Arrives.

Are the football men going to be ready to fly into U. T. October the second? Well, if it takes early morning and two hours or more of practice in the afternoon to put a team into shape we can safely say that whether a previous game is staged or not the Highlanders will be prepared to give U. T. all she is looking for and more too.

Coach Feeman, better known as "Doc", and his varsity helpers are putting the some thirty-five or forty football candidates into the best of form. "Dummy" rushing, signal running, and scrimmage work plus jog trotting and setting up exercises are samples of the strenuous work-outs given to the oval punters. That which makes the outlook still brighter is the willingness and eagerness demonstrated by the men themselves. This interest the men have shown brought these words from Doc, "The outlook for athletics at Maryville this year is bright, and with careful training of the men in all lines will bring satisfactory results."

Some thirteen or fifteen old timers are back on the Hill this year to fall in line and help make the wall of defence around the Orange and Garnet goal so strong that it may not be crossed. So with many varsity men back and with several new aspirants, who are spoken of as knowing men in the football world, the turning out of a drilling, driving, bucking squad is certain. Wagner, Davidson, Cotton, Buchanan, and Beck, all proven men in the backfield and second wall of defense, will be a great aid to the Coach, and in them will be found one of the fastest and strongest backfields Maryville has ever had. As to the line men, the players who bear the burden of attack, it is pleasing to note that such men as Ford, Sullivan, Hicks, and that would-be-center, C. McLaughlin, are showing good form on the "grid . With these linesmen and others of experience like the Hendrick brothers, Wyncoop and McCall and with the darkhorse heavy-weights, "Ici" Crawford, Mann, Greenlee, Szilagyi, Drake, King and Janovisky to pick from, how could the supporters of the team be anything but optimistic as to the outcome of the coming "grid" battles. Then too, there is a chance that Jellicorse, the wonder fullback, Hurst of '17, Kirkguard, Tulloch and Register may stroll into the Maryville atmosphere soon.

Rumor has it that our friends the Cullis brothers and "Jelly" will not return this year. However true that may be and to whatever place they pitch their tent we can wish them well, and hope that they play as clean a brand of ball for their new Mater as they did for M. C. Some have it that they have gone to U. T. and others go further by saying that they will not stay long. Whether they stay or not we can rely upon the new and old football men to keep the strength of the Maryville eleven to standard.

The arrival of Kirkguard, the speedy Texan, on Monday, caused the football prospects to take on a more lurid hue. We certainly welcome the little Texas Wonder back to the Hill!

We solicit contributions, suggestions, criticisms, and expressions of opinion from readers of the Echo

Welcome to College Hill!! May this be one of the most valuable years of your life.

:--:--:--:--:

Everyone will agree that the change from a term to a semester system involves a FEW complications and explanations.

:--:--:--:--:

One glance towards the immense amount of construction work on the Thaw Memorial Hall will instantly dispell any idea that one might have that M. C. is non-progressive.

:--:--:--:--:

The Orange and Garnet football huskies will again have the misfortune of bucking up against the U. T. outfit without a preliminary fracas of any kind whatsoever. They will certainly need all the support that eight hundred students can give them next Saturday!

:--:--:--:--:

The Maryville Spirit

The new students have doubtless recognized it as a spirit of welcome, hospitality, and friendly assistance. The old students associate the term Maryville Spirit also with cooperation, mutual support, and friendly rivalry. In studies, athletics, literary societies, religious organizations, clubs, yes,—and in "moonshining", the Spirit of Maryville is inherent. We are proud of it, and are reknowned and respected because of it.

As the number of students increases, the influence of the Maryville Spirit is more wide-spread. Its richness, instead of being diluted by the increase of numbers, seems even to be intensified. It is indeed gratifying to see the old Spirit perpetuated and strengthened.

But we must not allow our pride to blind us to our responsibilities. It is upon the underclassmen that the future Spirit of Maryville in a large way depends, yet the older students and the upperclassmen truly exert more influence upon the shaping of the lives and character of the underclassmen than do even the Faculty and the rules of the school. To Seniors, Juniors, and Sophomores, especially, the new students turn with the expectation of seeing the time-honored Maryville Spirit put into action. Therefore let this be a challenge to every loyal upperclassmen to conduct himself in such a way as to uphold the Spirit of the School so as to insure the perpetuation of its high stardard.

NOTICE

All news items, jokes, stories, poems, or articles of any kind for publication in the Echo must be put either into the hands of the Editor-in-Chief, or into the "Highland Echo Box" at the north entrance of Anderson Hall, before 8:30 on Wednesday morning.

"MY FIRST IMPRESSION OF MARYVILLE"

By A Prep

"There is one thing about Maryville that I shall never forget. It is the spirit of welcome. From the time I stepped on the Campus I have felt as if I had a place in the College. If every new student received half the welcome that I did, they cannot help but wonder at the spirit of the College. There is something about the College that seems to draw everyone right to its heart and tell them of its purpose.

"I saw the boys of the Alpha Sigma and Athenian. I met their representatives, first as students of M. C., and then as members of a society. Any rivalry between the different organizations must be an effort to outdo the other in keeping Maryville to the front. I had heard of the spirit of Maryville and now I see it for myself. It is the student body from which Maryville draws its unusual powers. I am glad I came!"

THE HIGHLAND ECHO

The Livest Wire on The Hill.

The Highland Echo begins its sixth year of usefulness to Maryville College with this issue. For the benefit of the new students let us say that it is a weekly newspaper published by the STUDENTS of M. C. for all those interested in the College. Understand that the term "Students" includes everyone who stepped up to the Treasurer's desk and planked down some of his or her perfectly good coin for tuition, etc. This is your newspaper and we want you to help make it the leading college paper in the South.

Of course it is necessary that a Staff of Editors and Reporters direct the Publication, but without the assistance and co-operation of each and every student of both College and Preparatory Departments, the Staff cannot attain the goal to which they aspire—namely,—of making the Sixth Volume of the Echo the Best College sheet in the South! WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO FOR THE ECHO THIS YEAR?

A HARROWING TALE

The following o'er-true tale comes to us from the columns of an exchange, and we print it as an awful warning to the students of Maryville College! We know that it is true, because it was printed in a newspaper, and, besides we ourselves know people who would rather borrow a paper than subscribe for one; and if these two facts are not a guarantee of veracity, we'd like to know what would be; The story is as follows: "Once upon a time, a man who was too economical to take a paper sent his little boy to borrow the one taken by his neighbors. In his haste, the boy ran over a four-dollar stand of bees, and in ten minutes looked like a watery summer squash. His cries reached his father, who ran to his assistance, and, failing to see a barb wire fence, ran into it, breaking it down, cutting a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a fifteen dollar pair of pants. The old cow took advantage of the gap in the fence, got into the corn field and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing the racket, his wife ran, upsetting a four gallon churn full of rich cream into a basket of kittens, drowning the whole flock. In her hurry she dropped a seven dollar set of teeth. The baby, left alone, crawled through the spilled milk into the parlor and ruined a twenty-dollar rug. During the excitement the oldest daughter ran away with the hired man, the calves got out, and the dog broke up eleven setting hens. Moral—Subscribe for our paper."

WANTED—MORE BOYS!

The Senior Class this year numbers exactly the same as last year's class—44 members. President Wagner will probably be running a want ad for boys soon, as there are 27 girls to 17 boys in the class.

POPULAR FACULTY MEMBERS RETURN

Strengthened By The Return of Professor Davis and Miss Green.

Both Return After One Year's Absence.

There are several additions to the faculty this year, additions which materially increase the efficiency of the teaching corps. One of these additions is Edmund W. Davis, M. A., who is now head of the department of Latin and Greek. Prof. Davis is not a new member of the faculty for he has been teaching here since 1915, with the exception of last year. He had Preparatory History one year, taught Greek for three years, and also taught Latin while Professor Bassett was in Europe. Last year he taught Latin and Ancient History in Knoxville High School. The entire student body is glad to see him back at Maryville. As Professor Davis took his college work at Missouri Valley College and his M. A. at Harvard, he is well qualified to teach his seven Greek and Latin classes.

He is also manager of the Boarding Club. When interviewed he said, "I hardly know my title. I forgot to ask it. I just ring the bell, get some one to say grace, and before long I am going to do my best to get every one seated to his or her own satisfaction."

Professor and Mrs. Davis are living on Stanley Street in Professor Curtis' house.

All old students are delighted to find that Miss Green is back as head of the Biology Department. Miss Green has been absent since the spring term of 1919. She spent part of this time in the University of Chicago where she had special work in Biology. She visited Miss Bliss out in Iowa, made other visits in Missouri, camped, and did all kinds of interesting things. Miss Green has been head of the department of Biology since 1906. She finished at Smith College, took her M. A. at Chicago, and has had two summer courses at Woods Hole, Marine Laboratory. She also has had a summer in Europe.

Miss Green says, "I'm so glad to be back."

There will be an unusually large number in her department this year; so many that it will be necessary to have one graduate assistant and three student assistants. Miss Annie Pleasants will again have charge of preparatory biology and the student assistants will be, Miss Grace Blank, Miss Leila Ware, and Mr. Lee Herndon.

Mr. Daniel S. Arellano who was the popular teacher of a class of Spanish last year, is to have all college Spanish this year. His old pupils are delighted, and so are all students who know Mr. Arellano at all, especially if they are taking Spanish.

PRE-NUPTIAL CLUES

The announcement of the engagement of Ruth Caldwell to Donald Jones has recently been made at Maryville. Rumor has it that the fatal plunge will take place sometime during the month of October, 1920.

Mr. Jones and Miss Caldwell were in attendance at Maryville College last year and the news of their engagement came as a surprise to their many friends here.

Miss Caldwell is a resident of Rockford, Tenn. Mr. Jones is farming near Huntsville, Ala., where they will make their future home.

Listen and we will tell you something that we maybe "shouldn't ought". Mr. Zollie Howard, a former student of Maryville College and now an employee of the A. C. O. A., recently purchased a little bungalow on Wilson Ave., and it was whispered with some certainty that Miss Jessie Magill had a good deal to say about the selection. The house is to be ready for occupancy by the new owner next April. Mystery!! Can you offer a solution?

CUPID ON THE JOB

Eight Weddings of Interest to Maryvillians.

Dan Cupid is one individual who never goes vacationing. At all times during every season the little matchmaker is active and never fails in exacting a heavy toll of youthful hearts. The following are some of the recent victims of his fatal arrows:

Feeman—Clark

The happy result of a college romance was the event on June 2 when Miss Mary Clark and Mr. Harry W. Feeman were married at the home of the bride's mother at Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Feeman were students in Maryville College in former years and it was while here that the acquaintance was formed which has led to the happy marriage. Mr. Feeman has been engaged in work for the Aluminum Plant during the past summer and has starred on the penant-winning Alcoa City league base ball team. Upon the reopening of the College he returned to the Hill to take up again his position as Director of Athletics.

Mr. and Mrs. Feeman are living at the home of J. I. Walker on Court St. near the College campus.

Kidder—Howe

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Howe, Grov City, Pa. the wedding of Miss Florence Howe and Rev. J. Edward Kidder, of the class of 1916, was quietly solemnized at noon on Thursday, June 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Kidder went to Swanton, Vt. where they spent a few days attending the conference for out-going missionaries at New York City. After the conference they came to Knoxville, the home of the groom, and spent the rest of the summer in this vicinity. Being under appointment by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions for work in Hunan, China, they expect to sail in early fall.

LaRue—Sutton

The following invitation was received by Maryvililans during the summer.

Mrs. Margaret Sutton requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter Marguerite
to
Mr. Claude LaRue
Wednesday evening, June the twenty-third nineteen hundred and twenty at nine forty-five o'clock
Five hundred fourteen Bailey Ave.
Chattanooga, Tennessee

Mrs. LaRue was a member of the graduating class of 1917 and still has many warm friends in M. C. and in Maryville. Mr. LaRue was a student in M. C. for several years and will be remembered as king of the base ball mound for two seasons. Both Mr. and Mrs. LaRue were prominent in the college activities during their sojourn here.

Hill—Hickey

The marriage of Miss Mary C. Hickey, who graduated from M. C. in 1917, and Mr. Paul T. Hill of Dandridge, Tenn., took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Hickey, at Jonesboro, Tenn., Tuesday afternoon, June 8. Mr. and Mrs. Hill took a trip to Atlantic City, and later returned to Dandridge where they are at home. Miss Mary Kate Rankin, of the class of 1913, was one of the few choice friends who witnessed the event.

Mrs. Hill is the eldest sister of Miss Francis Hickey who is a member of the present Senior Class.

Drake—Montgomery

Miss Hettie Sue Montgomery and Mr. Theodore C. Drake, former students of Maryville College, were married at the home of Rev. French Wampler, Maryville, Tenn. on Thursday night, Sept. 2. The only witnesses of the nuptial ceremony were two very close friends, Dewey Beck and Nell Russell.

"Cootie" Drake was prominent in the athletics of the Hill during the years 1917 and 1918, and was for one year business manager of the Echo. He is now successfully operating a grocery store on Main St.

Cooper—McGinley

Mr. Cedric B. Cooper and Miss Susie McGinley, also former students of M. C., were married at the Presbyterian Manse on College Street, Maryville, Tenn., Sunday evening, September 12th.

They will be at home in the house formerly occupied by T. F. Cooper, the father of the groom on High Street. Mr. Cooper is in the employment of the McCampbell Sales Company as automobile mechanic.

Burton—Jackson

A wedding of much interest to the students of M. C. was that of Miss Ethel Belle Jackson and Mr. T. C. Burton, which was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Jackson, Harriman, Tenn., Saturday afternoon, September 4th. Only the parents of the bride and a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony which was performed by Dr. Calvin A. Duncan pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Harriman. Mr. and Mrs. Burton left immediately after the ceremony for a short stay at Atlanta, Ga., after which they went to Cartersville, Ga., their new home.

Mrs. Burton is one of the charming young ladies who have come to M. C. from Harriman. During the year that she was on the Hill (1918-1919) her many talents won for her the respect and friendship of many Maryvillians who will always remember her with high esteem.

Mr. Burton is in business at Cartersville, Ga.

The Highland Echo extends to above-mentioned newly-weds the congratulations and best wishes of the students of Maryville College.

VISITS OF THE STORK

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Chapman Gibson at Maryville during the month of August a son whose name is Howard Brown. Mr. Gibson is in the employment of the Aluminum Plant.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Clyde Wilson are the proud parents of a fine baby boy whose name is Homer Lamar. Mr. Wilson says that 13 will henceforth be regarded as a lucky number for him as his boy was born on Sept. 13. Mr. Wilson is a Sophomore in M. C.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hickman at Eagle Pass, Texas, a son. Mr. Hickman used to be a hero of the gridiron at M. C. Mrs. Hickman was formerly Miss Eula Jackson.

FACULTY RECEPTION

President Wilson made the following announcement at the first Friday Chapel Service, with the charge to guess the author:

"A reception will be given by the Faculty to the students this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

"The Faculty will meet the students directly under this Chapel platform, which the students will enter by the south door, passing out by the north door.

"Vocal and instrumental music will cheer and sustain you while being presented to the different Professors, and ice cream and cake, served on the Baldwin Lawn by charming members of the Y.W.C.A. will reward the faithful students who survive this annual ordeal and present there the tickets they have received on leaving the hall. No handshake with the Professors, no ticket! ! No ticket, no ic cream! ! A word to the wise is sufficient."

It was not difficult for the old students to guess the author of the announcement as they are all lovers and admirers of our College Pastor's pleasing style.

So many (505) of the students availed themselves of this unique opportunity of meeting such a grip of Master Minds that the supply of ice cream was exhausted before the faithful Faculty Members themselves "survived the annual ordeal". They received their rewards in the form of unsatisfied appetites!

The music which "cheered and sustained" was supplied by the Boys' Glee Club which clothed itself with so much glory last year.

WILLIAM PERKINS RECEIVES BULLET WOUND

Accidental Discharge.

On last Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. Joe Gamble on Stanley Street, William Perkins of Greensburg, Ky., was shot and very seriously injured by a thirty-eight calibre pistol which was accidentally discharged while in the hands of his roommate, John Leonard Cooper, of Gastonburg, Ala.

Mr. Cooper removed the gun from hs trunk in order to obtain access to articles underneath, and was in the act of replacing it again when it was accidentally discharged. It was wrapped in cotton at the time.

Mr. Perkins was stooping over the table in the room when the bullet entered his head through his rght eye, and it is to his stooped posture that the physicians attribute his remarkable escape from instant death.

Mrs. Gamble upon hearing the report of the gun rushed to the room and found Perkins lying on the floor with Cooper kneeling beside him. A doctor was summoned and Perkins was immediately rushed to the Knoxville General Hospital. An X-ray was taken which showed the bullet lodged behind his left ear, but an operation was deemed impossible. Cooper accompanied his wounded friend to Knoxville and stayed by his bedside until Perkins was apparently in a much improved condition, Saturday evening.

Perkins is reported to be recovering and seems to be in full use and command of his mental facilities. His parents were notified and arrived on Thursday. Although his eyes were covered with bandages, Perkins recognized the voices of his parents and smiled.

When he partially regained strength after the shock of the blow, an operation was performed in which his eye was removed. The ball will probably be left in his head.

Cooper was grief-stricken over the affair, and has probably suffered even as much as Perkins, but in a different way. Our hearts go out in sympathy to Perkins, to Cooper, and to the parents of the boys. Cooper is suffering a double sorrow at this time, for only a few weeks ago he lost his mother. We wish to extend sympathy especially to Cooper at this time.

DEATHS

Mr. Joe McIlvaine

Hundreds of students and former-students of Maryville College will be saddened by the news of the death of "Uncle" Joe McIlvaine which occurred at his home near Maryville on August 21.

Mr. McIlvaine was one of the warmest and best friends a Maryville College student ever had, and many were entertained and made happy at his home and in his fine woods. Mr. McIlvaine will always be remembered by those who knew him as one of the most cheerful and optomistic men they ever knew. To say that he will be missed by the Maryville College students and by the people of Maryville is an inadequate expression of our bereavement. The sympathy of the students of Maryville College, is extended to his widow who is also our much beloved friend.

Mr. James Calloway

The death of Mr. James Calloway on Sept. 15, was the result of a long and serious illness. The funeral service was held at the home on Calloway street on Sept. 16, Dr. Wilson and Dr. Graham officiating.

All the children, Anna Belle, Lula, Mrs. Hutcheson, Henry, Tom and Joe were present at the funeral. The body was taken to Cleveland, Tenn., for interment.

All the children of the deceased have attended Maryville College, Anna Belle being a member of the graduating class of 1911. Henry graduated from the School of Medicine of Vanderbilt University last year and is now a faculty assistant at that Institution.

News has been received of the death of the mother of Miss Winnifred Decker of Los Angeles, Cal. Miss Emma Miles is in Los Angeles visiting Miss Decker in this time of her bereavement.

William Cosby, Jr.

Mr. William Cosby, Jr., of Birmingham, Ala., who was a student of Maryville College five or six years ago, was accidentally shot near his home on Sunday evening, Sept. 19, and died the following day.

According to the report, while young Cosby was changing tires on his automobile, a pistol, which he was carrying in his pocket, fell to the ground and was discharged by the impact, the bullet entering his body.

ONCE OVERS

Gee! I'm sure glad to see you back!

Have you paid your bills yet?

What number are you on the waiting list?

How are you hooked up?

Did you have a big time this summer?

We had the above hash for our full course and desert for the first five days, but thank goodness the menu has at last changed.

They are here all sizes. Some as thin as georgette, some as fat as Brooklyn's chance of winning the National League pennant, some as long as the Theism hour, and some as short as everybody's change at this time.

You have a receipt for everything you paid Maryville College—with one exception. You have no receipt for the grudge you paid them for making you stand in line for seven hours. Have you?

Does anything ruffle the fur on your angora goat more than the guy who tries to sneak into the line away up towards the front end?

C. E. Jellicorse, A. W. Cullis, and H. S. Dean will go to the University of Tennessee this year. The loss of Jellicorse and Cullis is a serious blow to M. C. athletics.

Miss Gregg was mistaken as to the date for the beginning of school and came one week too soon. Perhaps it was due to her eagerness to train the youthful voices that she overlooked the later date for the opening of M. C. (?) She spent the week with Miss Edna Dawson at South Knoxville.

For some reason the flow of students into Maryville was much swifter than usual this year. Was it because of a greater hunger for knowledge among young Americans, or was it due to the hundred and fifty per cent increase in the late registration fee?

A great danger of Echo editors is to use six and eight cylinder words to express one cylinder ideas.

Mr. George Adams, of the class of 1916, was a visitor on the Hill Wednesday. He came with a sister-in-law to help her get started in the grind of college life.

The Echo received a card from Frank H. Scruggs, '18, a few days ago. He is in the service with the A.E.F. in Antwerp, Belgium, and had the pleasure of seeing the U. S. A. win in the Olympic Games.

Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson had as their guests during the summer their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Stevenson, with their little daughter, Jane.

Somebody in Carnegie was so heartlessly cruel as to dare to play "Home Sweet Home" on his cornet the first Monday evening about nine o'clock. The music was partially drowned out by sobs emanating from Baldwin and Pearsons.

The Birmingham crowd gets the cake! They succeeded in winning sixteen new students for Maryville College.

"Tommy" Loft has conducted seven weeks of evangelical services during the summer in churches near the city of Knoxville.

Leslie Jones has been studying at the University of Miami at Oxford, Ohio during the summer. When passing through Cincinnati he chanced tomeet up with "Buck" Green and Charles Taylor. Charles Taylor is taking a course in Civil Engineering at the University of Cincinnati and "Buck" is majoring in football at the same institution.

The new system of transferring the students' trunks is certainly an improvement over the former methods, which were devoid of system. The big White truck is a valuable addition to the College's equipment, and with Bob Milling at the wheel it has precious few moments of idleness. Bob chauffeured a truck in France for eighteen months.

Marvin Price was here last week to see that M. C. got started off right. He was on his way from Akron, Ohio, to U. T. at Memphis, where he will study medicine this year.

Miss Ruth Clayton, who was forced to miss the latter part of last year on account of poor health, has returned to M. C. in a much improved condition.

Rev. J. M. Alexander of Louisville, Miss., led the Chapel Service on the first Thursday morning. He came to Maryville to put his daughter in school.

Don't be too severe in your criticism of the muddy, torn-up condition of the campus as Jupiter Pluvius is largely to blame. The excessive rain during the summer was a serious hindrance to all outside work.

Over two hundred college students are studying Spanish this semester. When Sr. Arellano agreed to take Madame Dennee's Spanish classes in addition to his own he did not realize what he was getting into. Sr. Arellano spent the summer in New York City.

Margaret Chandler, who has been attending Brenau College at Gainesville, Ga. has returned to M. C. this year.

Marguerite Staley has entered Martha Washington College at Abingdon, Va.

Roy McCall, Tex Middleton, Percy Buchanan, Red Hayes and S. J. Sullivan spent the summer in the harvest fields of the West.

Edwin ("Snitter") Ellis left Maryville a few days ago for the University of Virginia where he will study law.

Jason Purdy has gone to Princeton, N. J. to enter the Princeton Theological Seminary.

Mr. J. C. Walker, '16, the first Editor-in-Chief of the Highland Echo dropped in on Friday, September 17, for a visit on the Hill. He has a position with the National Shipping Board at Norfolk, Va.

Dr. R. I. Gamon made a business trip to Maryville on Thursday, September 16th.

Notice on Prof. Gillingham's black board during matriculation: "Take as little time as possible. Remember the other 249 Freshman".

Miss Florence Oates journeyed over from Knoxville on Sept. 17th., and spent the week-end on the Hill. She is teaching in the Knoxville Public Schools this fall. She asserts that she felt obligated to share with young America her bountiful store of knowledge. Trust Florence, she'll tell 'em!

Pigskin prospects: Present powerful pill-punters possess perfectly preponderous possibilities.

Rev. Herbert L. Walker, Secretary of the Tennessee Sunday School Association, Nashville, Tenn., accompanied his two daughters to Maryville week before last.

Frank Cody will not return to M. C. this fall on account of the serious illness of his wife.

Harry Wagner will coach athletics at the Maryville Polytechnic School this year. He has been in charge of a City Boys' Camp near Charleston, W. V. during the past summer.

Nina Belle Caldwell and Mary McKenzie are attending the Sue Ross Normal School, at Alpine, Texas this fall.

Mr. A. B. Waggoner, '14, who is in mercantile business at Morristown, Tenn., spent last week-end with relatives and friends in Maryville.

Miss Edna Foster, '16 was several weeks during the latter part of the summer in the Knoxville General Hospital with typhoid fever. She is now at her home at Corryton, Tenn. and is convalescing rapdly.

Mr. Ralph W. Lloyd and wife visited friends in Maryville last week-end. Mr. Lloyd graduated from M. C. in 1915; his wife is a graduate of Wilson College, Pa. Mr. Lloyd is engaged in business at Knoxville, Tenn.

Money talks—so do professors—but money never talked anyone to sleep.

Miss Annie H. Cheney, who has done so much for the College, has just presented three complete sets of books to the Library—all of John Fox Jr., Richard Harding Davis, and O'Riley.

Mrs. Ralph C. Thomas, nee Mittye Stovall, a member of last year's Sophomore Class, spent the summer at Columbia University, and now has charge of primary work in the Centerville Schools, Centerville, Ga.

Miss Sue Nuckols, a graduate of the M. C. Expression Department and a member of last year's Junior Class, begins her Lyceum work this week traveling through the Middle West. With her remarkable personality, her great ability and perfect technique, she cannot but be successful.

The usual opening snap social on Monday evening was attended by the largest crowd in the history of the great and renowned game.

Mr. William C. Broady, of the class of '84, was a vistor at Chapel last Thursday. His home is in White Pine, Tennessee.

Mrs. C. R. Baird, nee Madge Reagan, member of the class of 1915 and Editor-in-Chief of the Chilhowean for that year, attended the opening Chapel Service on September 15th. Mr. and Mrs. Baird are living in Akron, Ohio.

Miss Bernice Jones, who left M. C. at the end of the Winter Term last year to take a position as teacher in the Morrison Schools of Franklin, N. C. has returned to Maryville to resume her college work.

Now that the Chapel is full even to the gallery, why not turn the Seniors out and make room for the rest. Some of them have been attending Chapel for the last nine or ten years anyway.

Mr. Robert W. Adams, a member of the Centennial Class and former Editor-in-Chief of the Highland Echo, visited his Alma Mater on Thursday of last week. He has given up a position with an Asheville paper to accept an offer from the Knoxville Journal and Tribune. He and Skeeter Leyshon are intending to boost and "boom" the Journal as they did the Echo in 1918.

JUNIOR CLASS ON THE GO

It is true that the Juniors like every other class have lost several valuable members, but it is also true that others have joined their ranks. The members are already expressing a get-to-gether sentiment and with this feeling expect to push things through successfully. The class faces several tasks which might frighten a more easily intimidated bunch, but the Juniors look forward to the accomplistment of these undertakings as a means of showing their mettle. Mr. Charles Sharpe has already chosen several classmates for positions on the Annual Staff and plans to get this organization into working order in a short time. A class meeting will be called soon for the election of officers. It is urged that every loyal Junior make a habit of attending class meetings this year. The Juniors expect this not only to be their best year so far, but also the best Junior Class ever on the Hill and the cooperation of every member of the class will surely make it so.

ALAS! !

Where are the ears of yesterday?
Her hair has hid them all away.
Those shell-like ears, I once adored,
In whose pink curves my woes I poured.
To hairy wads I cannot pray—
Where are the ears of yesterday? !!

Somcone, I think, should interfere,
Lest other features disappear.
Next year, perhaps, eyes will be gone
Then chins, then noses wont be worn,
Until regretfully we say—
Where is the face of yesterday? !

She, (protestingly) "Don't do that".
He, "Why dearest, don't you crave affections?"
She, "Yes, but why treat me like a cafeteria and help yourself?"

Little girl with golden hair
Ruby lips and darlin' eyes,
Little girl, I'll say you're there
But I long to know the why.

If the price of rouge should rise
If peroxide took a jump
Tell me, tell me, angel eyes
Would your beauty take a slump?

FIRST OF WEEKLY CHAPEL ADDRESSES BY DR. STEVENSON

The Vesper Services Have a Record Attendance

Thursday Evening Service Discontinued.

The College Pastor Assumes Additional Service.

"Be a Builder" is Doctor's Opening Vesper Message.

The Speaker Lives As He Advises.

The chapel service Friday morning was led by Dr. Stevenson, our College Pastor, and is the first of a series of meetings to be held every Thursday morning in the Chapel. This series of meetings will be indeed a treat to the students, as those who are acquainted with Dr. Stevnson know, and as those who are not, will soon find out.

The Doctor took that wonderful second chapter of Proverbs as the lesson, and the message given to the students is one that never can be forgotten. He dwelt upon the most previous pearl of College life—WISDOM.

The responsibility is now upon all new students who are entering college for the first time to choose wisdom—to choose wisely their comrades, and to apply their time. The responsibility is no longer upon your parents, but the way is open before you to go to the "bow-wows" physically, mentally, and morally. The speaker gave a striking illustration of a baseball game which was lost by the errors in the first inning, although it was played practically perfect throughout the rest of the game. So it is, what we do in these opening days of college life determine mostly our standing with the Faculty and students. The student who wastes these important hours now in pleasure, loafing, or carelessness is a "humbug" or a fool of the most exaggerated type.

It is the purpose of the teachers to help you, and the one who deliberately plans to pass his exams by death-bed repentance may be safe, but the one who tries to cheat himself by not applying his time is a mean sneaking frog. The value of a student's work is not in what he did last night but what he did ALL the days and nights. What is accomplished later is largely determined by the habits formed in the first year of College life. The whole world is yours, and your success depends upon a prudent decision. If you will, you may score quite a number of runs from your own batting. The speaker concluded with these familiar lines:

"The human will, that force unseen
The offspring of a deathless soul,
Can hew its way to any goal,
Though walls of granite intervene."

Dr. Stevenson in his enthusiastic way used the third verse of the sixth chapter of Nehemiah. "I am doing a great work so that I cannot come down; why should the work cease, whilst I leave it, and come down to you?"

Nehemiah took the misfortune of his countrymen to heart. He could see the city, the place of his father's sepulchers, lying in waste, and he responded wtih a helping hand and a prayerful heart. He was a good leader. It could be seen in his face, and as is true of all good leaders, he never lacked for enthusiastic followers. So immediately a multitude was at his command.

Nehemiah refused to go to the conference of his enemies, who mocked him and plotted against him, by saying, "I am doing a great work so that I cannot come down; why should the work cease, whilst I leave it, and come down to you?" He had a mortality of his own, and just as he triumphed then among his fellow countrymen, so can we at this age and time, if we will, only be builders in God's name.

The thought of the text was divided into three distinct but closely related parts:

First, there is no cause, be it ever so holy, that can expect no opposition. Any good enterprise does not go long unchallenged. Do not be surprised in efforts to do good if you meet with opposition. You will find it necessary to fight always before a peaceful victory can be enjoyed.

Second, where are we to find assistance? The answer is found in the words of Nehemiah: "Now therefore, O God, strengthen my hands". If we seek for the high calling and put our hands to the building, when thoughtless persons invite you across the hall for merely a chat, we will be able to say, "I am engaged in a great work so that I cannot come."

Just here might be a good place to state that the speaker is a real practicer of what he speaks. Two years ago he left a good position in New York and volunteered his services to Maryville College free of charge. He could see the value of spiritual things as compared to material tihngs. What a readjustment of efforts there would be if men would only be persuaded that spiritual things are of much more value than material things!

Third, what was this work? The answer is plain. It was constructive work, and every constructive work is a great work.

The great fact to stimulate you is that you are a builder, and the building you are working on will remain forever. It is Character. And if you work right when temptations come you will be able to answer, I am doing higher and nobler tihngs so that I cannot come

MEANING OF LIFE DEFINED IN SECOND THURSDAY MORNING SERVICE

"What is the Meaning of Life?" was a very timely subject for the weekly service. Dr. Stevenson showed that some people become so engrossed in the material things of life that the soul is shamefully neglected. Many people are led astray by erroneous meanings of life. To merely live a long life will not satisfy man, for after ninety years he still wants to live and is not satisfied. The value of life is not to be found so much in quantity as in quality. The worth of life is not found in the accumulation of things of this world but in thhe significance of the life to come. Life with labor only is a lone thing, but with love life is worth living. Any life that is true must love and obey God through Jesus Christ, and this life is the only life worth living.

The idea that the Christian religion is concerned only with death and the other world to come is erroneous. The Bible says a great deal about life but a very little about death.

This religious life is the only life worth living if there was no hope for hereafter; it is the noblest, best, healthiest, happiest life. The Christian is never friendless or hopeless, for he trusts in the care of God. What is your idea of the meaning of life?

CONFESSION. SACRIFICE AND PATIENCE—SUBJECT OF SECOND VESPER ADDRESS

For the second Vesper Service of the year Dr. Stevenson used the last two verses of the eleventh chapter of Matthew. "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light". This life of ours is submissive, and there is a good deal of unnecessary whimpering and complaining about this fact. Some of us expect to be borne to the skies on flowery beds of ease. Can we expect it in any other way?

The yoke of Christ means an open and frank confession of Christ before men. Christ says: "Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in Heaven, but whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in Heaven."

The speaker made it plain that the Christian is the only being on Earth who is ashamed of his God, and this should not be.

The Yoke of Christ means also that we must give obedience to His commands. It ought to be easy for us to obey the will of God as it is for water to flow down hill, but there is within us this rebellious tendency to have our own way.

Again the yoke of Christ means that we shall submit ourselves to the will of God. To give up our ambitions those things which we like to do, but which Christ commands us not to do, is a difficult yoke to bear; but Christ our Master did it, and should not we, his servants? This yoke of Christ is not meant to be hard and is not if we are patient. The yoke is for love, and means effort, self-denial, and enthusiasm, but if we are patient it becomes easy to him because of the joy of doing it. so does the work of the true Christian become easy, and the burden becomes light.

GYMNASIUM REQUIREMENTS

1. Gymnasium work to the amount of two hours a week is required of all boarding students in the Preparatory Department, and for this work credit for one recitation hour will be granted.

2. In the College Department four semester hours of gymnasium work are required for graduation—one hour each semester throughout the Freshman and Sophomore years. Two hours of gymnasium work a week for eighteen weeks equal one semester hour.

3. Work in athletics or approved physical work certified to by supervisors of such work may be accepted by the Athletic Director and credited as a substitute for gymnasium work.

4. Exemption in any other case may be granted by the faculty only after a written excuse has been approved by theh Athletic Director.

5. All excuses for absences must be rendered to the Athletic Director.

NEW OPPORTUNITY FOR SELF-HELP IS OFFERED BY MANUAL TRAINING DEPARTMENT

This department will provide opportunities of work to such young men as desire it. Young men who need to work to earn part of their expenses and who would like, at the same time, to learn manual training may see Manager Pleasants of the department and Miss Henry, Scholarship and Self-Help Secretary, regarding such work.

The manager of the department may, with the approval of the principal of the preparatory department, at the close of the scholastic year, give credit to the extent of a regular unit to such workers as, in his judgment have done work worthy of that recognition, and, in the case of a college students, he may grant such credit as extra curriculum credit.

Y. M. AND Y. W. WELCOME NEW STUDENTS

Girls Frolic on Baldwin Lawn.

Boys Hie Away to College Woods.

Baldwin lawn was the scene of much fun on the first Saturday evening of the semester when the Y. W. C. A. entertained for the new girls. So thoroughly did the old girls mingle with the new-comers that it was difficult to distinguish one from the other. The games and contests were ably planned and well carried out. There was not an idle moment and all the girls seemed interested and amused by the various features of the program. The stunts given were new and of such a nature that friendly rivalry existed between the various groups partaking in the performance.

It was such a nice congenial bunch of girls that gathered together informally. They came dressed for a good time and they got it. And what a nice big crowd came out! It was a long, long line that filed by the refreshment booth. The eats were exceptionally good and just what appeals to hungry girls too. The snap shot picture afforded no little excitement but I think that the majority of the girls need no picture to impress on their minds what a good time the Y. W. gave them. Miss Stella McCall wishes to thank the girls for the cooperation in carrying out the contests.

Y. M. C. A.

"Daddy, You've Been a Mother to Me", "Beautiful Ohio", "Smiles", and other equally harmonious ballads were among the first with which the hilarious crowd that gathered for the Y. M. C. A. reception Saturday night rent the solemn stillness of the night air. Although at a first glance they seemed to be rather strangely attired for a reception, since khaki, blue shirts, and overalls predominated, yet they made up in good spirits whatever they lacked in appearance. Songs and yells passed the time away until all had assembled and the word was given to start. Then the band set out, and, guided through the darkness of the College Woods by a brightly gleaming bon fire they made their way in comparative safety, in spite of the fact that some became more or less intimately acquainted with a barb wire fence encountered along the way.

When all had arrived, they were seated upon logs arranged in a big circle around the fire, whose size and brilliancy was kept up by a stoking crew which undoubtedly Nebuchadnezzar would have prized during the fiery furnace affair.

The crowd was soon quieted down for the more serious part of the the program which was begun with prayer by Dr. Gillingham. Forrest Brown then introduced Dr. Wilson to the new fellows as one of the four who organized Maryville's first Y, a one-time pitcher on the base ball team, and in general a beloved friend of the students. Our President, in an address which followed showed himself to be one of the best of good fellows, and won for himself a place in the hearts of all those who heard him for the first time.

Dr. Stevenson was the next speaker, and delighted his audience with his wit and wisdom for a little while before resigning in favor of the "eats".

The latter made their first appearance in the form of ice cream cones for a cone-eating contest, in which representatives of the Preparatory Department, and of the Freshman and Sophomore classes took part. Despite the most frantic efforts on the part of the others, the cones of the Prep team vanished first, and they were declared victors. If you do not believe it ask Lee Moore!

After the excitement of the contest, the fellows settled down to "hot dogs" (which were consumed in a way that boded ill for the future of the canine species), buns and lots of ice cream.

The general good time was continued for a while longer, and when the time came to separate, the guests of the reception left feeling not only better acquainted with each other, but also with their host,—the Y. M. C. A.

STUDENTS—stop at the Fruit Stand next to Wright's 10c. Store, for all good eats, Cold Drinks ond Hot Lunches.

JOINT RECEPTION

Bainonian and Thetas Entertain New Girls.

Did we?
I'll say we did.
Did what?
Why had a good time.
Did when?
Saturday night of course.
Did where?
In college woods at the Theta-Bainonian reception.
Did who?
Everyone, both old and new.

But, all joking aside, the reception was one big success. It was good, good, good. Good eats. Good games. Good time. Three cheers for the entertainment committee and six for for the refreshment committee.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER BAND ORGANIZES

"Tommy" Loft Appointed Leader.

Thursday night, September 16th., the Volunteers met in Bainonian Hall and organized with "Tommy" Loft as leader. Grace Sydenstricker was elected secretary and treasurer. Committees were elected and appointed as follows: Grace Sydenstricker, finance; Hazel Cleveland, Program; Forrest Brown, Publicity.

In this year's group, fourteen different states and countries are represented. Great things are expected of this year's Band, and they hope to play no small part in "The Evangelization of the World in this Generation". The State Conference will possibly meet at Cumberland this year. Maryville should be represented by a large delegation.

Perhaps a word would not be amiss to the new students as to the place of the Band in college life. It is an organization of those college students who have definitely pledged their services to the Master in the foreign field.

ALPHA SIGMA CROWDED IN OPENING MEETING

Interesting Program Rendered.

The Alpha Sigma Literary Society held its opening meeting in the society hall on last Saturday evening, Sept. 25th. The purpose of this meeting was to get all the new men on College Hill interested in literary work.

A splendid literary program, which showed much thought and preparation on the part of the participants, was rendered before an audience of about one hundred men.

The title of the program was College Life.

After the program, refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed. The meeting was open for everyone to speak when the spirit moved, and several new men made interesting talks.

The meeting then adjourned, Mr. Huskey offering the closing prayer.

THE OWL LEAVES ITS ROOST

Athenians Launch Forth Upon A Year of Work.

Fellows did you go to Athenian last night? If you didn't all we have to say is, that you missed the time of your life. There are three things that Athenian is noted for: good programs, good times, and jolly good fellows. And Saturday night we had all three in abundance.

Red Hayes and Percy Buchanan in a vocal duet, with Sr. Arellanno accompanying—well you know the combination. Its bound to be good. Then we had a talk on the subject "What are You Going to Do?", by Charles N. Sharpe, and it was certainly worth listening to; every bit of it was right up to the high standards and ideals that Athenian always stands for.

Moss Farmer's "Athenian", and the humorous debate by Waltham and Vance were side-splitters. That boy Waltham is a born humorist. Senor Arellanno's piano solos are always good, and he didn't make an exception this time; they were fine, and you fellows who didn't hear him want to drop around next time and listen to that man "tickle the ivories", it will do your heart good.

Our President, Mr. Green concluded the regular program with an address of welcome to the new fellows, and then the meeting was opened for a "free for all" jolly good talk-fest and eating contest. During this time twenty-five new men expressed a desire to become members, (they all do fellows, better get in line) and were given the old Athenian welcome, then—in came the eats. Oh Boy! Of course Percy Buchanan had to serve. Whenever there are eats, that boy always gets on the job. Nevertheless he managed to leave some for the rest, so every one ate to perfection; gave the old-time yells for the Bainonians and Athenians, and the old society started off on the biggest and best year of her existence.

We are going to do some real literary work this year. Our members are alive and on the job, so watch us go. Most of the old members are back, and the new members are of the best material. Under the excellent leadership of our President, Mr. Green, backed up by the enthusiasm of the whole society, Athenian will be a powerful influence for good on the Hill, and the high ideals and standards handed down to us from the founders of our society will be upheld this year as never before.

The programs are going to be interesting and valuable this year, for Charles Sharpe was elected program secretary, so come out and enjoy them, fellows. Every Saturday night, don't forget!

FACULTY NOTES

Wilson Avenue is becoming infested with faculty members. Professors Knapp, Proffitt, and Hunter are now reisdents on that street and Professors McMurray, and Ellis will soon move into the houses which they recently purchased. Dr. McMurray bought from Rev. J. S. Jones and Professor Ellis from Mr. Ernest C. Brown. Professor and Mrs. Hunter have moved into the house owned by Miss Nellie Pickens.

Professor Orr and his family are residing with Prof. Walker on the Niles Ferry Pike. Both Professors have invested in Flivvers.

President Wilson and son took a 4250 mile motorcycle-sidecar tour through 16 eastern states and touched two different provinces of Canada during the past summer. Dr. Wilson reaped the benefits of the trip in the form of greatly improved health.

Miss Martha A. Darby, sister of Miss Lula Darby of the Boarding Club, has been secured as Matron of the Hospital; but as yet no nurse has been found.

Mr. E. E. McCurry and Professor Hyden are the Proctors of Carnegie Hall for this year.

President Wilson made his annual address on Rules and Regulations at Chapel Saturday morning, Sept. 18th.

Professor Orr is the "official" leader of singing at the Chapel services now.

The usual opening Faculty Prayer Meeting was held at the home of President Wilson on Sunday afternoon, September 19th.

Professor Hunter spent his "vacation" working in an office at the Aluminum Plant.

Miss Hale spent the summer at the home of Miss Buxton in Abbot Village, Maine.

Miss Buxton of the Expression Department has a year's leave of absence from the College. She is teaching in a College near her home so that she can be with her parents for the week-ends. Her mother is in failing health and Miss Buxton desired to be near her this year. All M. C. students wish for Miss Buxton a happy year, and are looking forward to her return next year.

Mrs. Ellis who was such a popular and efficient teacher in the Expression Department last year will finish her course at the Leland Powers School, Boston, Mass. this year.

Miss Mary Kate Lewis who for the past two years has been teaching Preparatory French now teaches College French. She succeeds Madame Dennee who has gone to a Women's College at Columbia, S. C.

Miss E. J. Smith, our Librarian, spent a pleasant summer touring through New England, visiting all points of historical and literary interest.

Professor Orr studied at the University of Chicago during the past summer.

Dr. Wilson and Dr. Gillingham atended the quarterly meeting of Union Presbytery at Holston College last Wednesday.

THREE ADDITIONS TO THE PREP FACULTY

Miss Jeannette Hibbert, Senior, will teach Vergil.

The services of Miss Helen Gamble have been secured as instructor of Preparatory French. This place was left vacant by Miss Lewis.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

The first meeting of the Ministerial Association was held in the reading room of Bartlett Hall, in charge of the president. Regular business was transacted as well as several committees appointed to further the spread of the gospel throughout Maryville. Plans are on foot to start immediate work in Alcoa.

An INVITATION is extended to those fellows who are considering the ministry to join our forces.

The harvest is Great but the LABORERS are FEW". Luke 10:2.

TEACHING PROFESSION APPEALS TO ALUMNI

Data of Class of 1920 Reveal Twenty-two Teachers

We thought perhaps the readers of the Echo would be interested in learning the fate of each member of last year's class. Out of the 38 about whom we were able to obtain information, 22 are teaching, 8 are in commercial or office work, 3 are taking University work, 2 are athletic directors. Mr. Holmes is in Y. work, Mrs. Cox is at home, and Mr. Chang is on his way to China. Many of those who are teaching are doing so in order to procure the wherewithal to continue their education in higher schools.

President Fred Cagle is in the employment of the Homer K. James Auditing Company in the vicinity of Knoxville, Tenn.

Robert Belt will study medicine at the University of Chicago this year.

Horace Brown has gone to Vanderbilt University to study medicine.

George Callahan has been appointed principal of a high school at Charleston, Tennessee.

Jessie Creswell is teaching at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Jason Deyton has accepted the superintendency of the Friendsville High School of Friendsville, Tenn., and Cerena Polk wlil teach and have charge of the music department of the same school. The Friendsville H. S. is one of the finest high schools in Blount County and a record year is expected.

Bessie Henry has gone to Duquoin, Ill., to teach in a high school.

Minnie Hunter is teaching in a high school at Huntington, W. Va.

Mary Kate Lewis takes Madame Dennee's place as teacher of French at M. C.

Tracy Knapp after a narrow escape from being entangled in pedagogical pursuits returned to Tate Springs, Tenn., where he has been engaged in office work during the past summer. He has been appointed general manager of the Tate Springs Hotel.

Andy Norgan is athletic director of Hanover College, Hanover, Ind.

Mary Thompson is working in the office at the Aluminum Plant.

Winston Newton has charge of the Department of Voice at Polytechnic High School, Maryville, Tenn., this year.

Catherine Ridgeway will continue her work in the Chemical Department of the Aluminum Plant.

Phil Sheffey is assistant paymaster at the Aluminum Plant.

Genevieve Tetedoux is teaching in a school of commerce at Cameron, W. Va.

Helen Tedford seemingly prefers a colder climate. She is now teaching in a girl's school at Grand Haven, Mich.

Aletha Purdy is in the employment of Newcomer's Department Store at Maryville.

Madrith Purdy holds down a position at the Maryville High School as head of the English Department.

Willodine McIver is teaching in a mission school somewhere in Kentucky.

Tom McConnell is engaged in commercial work at Johnson City, Tennessee.

Vera McCampbell has a position as teacher in Huntsville High School, Huntsville, Tenn.

Helen Lewis and Licia Johnson are together at Graysville, Tenn., but are following different lines of work. Miss Lewis is teaching in a high school and Miss Johnson is engaged in office and welfare work for some manufacturing concern of that place.

E. K. James is taking a law course at the University of Chicago.

Will Holmes is doing Y. M. C. A. work at Sommerville, Ga.

The Hayes sisters are teaching near their home in Alabama, (McCalla High School).

Mr. Chang has returned to his native land.

Maude Hite is teaching near her home which is at Franklin, Va.

Joel Georges has been studying Math. at the University of Chicago during the summer and intends to return to resume his course next summer. In the meantime he will serve as principal of a high school in Henderson, Kentucky.

ALUMNI

At the request of the Editor-in-chief, E. R. Hunter, '14, has undertaken the work of Alumni Editor of the Echo for this year. The Alumni will regret that the former editor, H. J. Basset, who received the Doctor of Philosophy degree at the University of Michigan in June, has accepted a call to the Classics Department of Evansville College, Evansville, Indiana. Alma Mater has, through his going, lost the direct service of one of her most valued servants. The alumni will wish the Doctor Godspeed to this new field of labor.

The Alumni Dinner, held on June 3,was a very happy occasion. It has long been the feeling among the alumni that the Alumni Association has failed to function in any really serviceable manner. Once a year the graduates of former years have met and eaten dinner together and that is all there has been to the Alumni Association. Consequently, a movement was launched at this last Alumni Dinner to secure for Alma Mater a greater and most active loyalty and cooperation from the alumni. Professor C. W. Henry, '01 was reelected president and the new office of corresponding secretary was created with Professor H. E. Orr, '12, as the incumbent. Plans and projects for the future of the association were left in the hands of the Corresponding Secretary who will soon be corresponding with all the alumni in the interest of a larger usefulness to the old College. Great enthusiasm was manifested by all present. Speeches, heartily endorsing the idea of an active alumni program, were made by the Hon. M. H. Gamble, '05, Dr. J. G. Newman, '88, and Dr. E. A. Elmore '77.

The Centennial Review made its first appearance on the Hill during the commencement esason. The Review is a bulletin issued by the Class of 1919. It contains items of interest concerning every member of the Centennial Class. This Class is still maintaining an active organization. If more classes maintained organization and issued bulletins the entire alumni problem would be far on the way to solution.

In acknowledging the receipt of the $400 Fred Hope Fund of last year Dr. A. W. Halsey of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, writing to Dr. Wilson says: "I just want to add my word of commendation and appreciation of the splendid work of Fred Hope, one of your graduates, for whose work this money has been spent. Hope is one of the best men we have ever had. You recommended him to me many years ago and you did a good piece of work for which I have been profoundly thankful for many years."

John A. Hyden, '14 has been called to the associate professorship of Mathematics at Maryville.

The 1920 graduation announcement of the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine contains in the list of graduates the name of Henry A. Calloway '16. Congratulations Dr. Calloway.

Don't be too modest! Send news items about yourselves and your classmates to the Alumni Editor, College Station, Maryville, Tennessee. Otherwise he will have to resort to fiction to fill this column.

Mattie Hamilton is teaching Mathematics in a high school at Mulvane, Kansas. She reports that "she likes it very much".

Irrovia Corry is teaching within a few miles of Mulvane, Kansas.

Mary Creswell is teaching school in North Dakota.

Mrs. Dexter Cox is living at Jenkins, Ky., while her husband attends seminary.

Mildred Campbell will be at Chattanooga this year teaching in the Central High School of that city.

Homer Weisbecker has a position as director of the Boyd Memorial Athletic Club at Harrisburg, Pa. It is a large and fully equipped men's club and an idea of its bigness may be suggested by the fact that they have a Sunday School in the Club consisting of 2100 members.

DID YOU EVER HEAR THE LIKE

It was midnight on the ocean, not a street car was in sight,
The sun and moon were shining, as it rained all day that night.
It was a wintry day in summer and the rain was snowng fast,
While a barefoot boy with shoes on sat standing in the grass.
It was evening and the rising sun was setting in the west,
The little fishes in the trees were huddled in their nests.
The rain was pouring up and the sun was shining bright
And everyone that you could see was hidden out of sight.
While the organ peeled potatoes,
lard was rendered by the choir
When the sexton rang the dish rag, someone safely hollered, "fire".
"Holy Smokes", the preacher shouted, in the rush he lost his hair,
Now his head, it looks like heaven for there is no parting there.

done towards the erection of a new athletic, open air stadium. A double football field, over which will run the baseball field, and a quarter mile cinder path encircling has been planned. Sufficient bleachers to seat hundreds of spectators outside of the student body will be erected on the northwest side near the College woods. Jumping and vaulting pits, hammer throwing alleys, shotput and discus space will be constructed so all branches of athletics will have a showing. Nothing is too good for the students of Maryville College and it rests largely with the student body as to whether or not this already launched project is carried out. Let's go Maryville!

INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATE FOR GIRLS

During commencement week the Girls' Forensic League met and elected officers for the ensuing year. Miss Edith Moore was made president, and Miss Janet Ensign editor. The introduction of a special course in preparation for intercollegiate debate it is hoped will make it possible for many more girls to undertake this work. Since Equal Suffrage has become nation-wide, it is necessary for women to think clearly and keep informed on current topics. Quite a few of last year's debaters are on the Hill and others it is expected will try out in the preliminaries and join their number.

Cumberland University, which position he held for two years. At the end of this time he was elected Principal of the Preparatory Department. This position he has held up to this year, when his decision to accept the offer from Maryville proved to be Cumberland's loss but our gain.

We are glad to welcome Prof. Hyden back to College Hill. As he was a student here for several years, we know that he has already learned to love the place, and we all wish him the sincere joy and happiness that comes from being connected with the wonderful work and ideals that Maryville College is noted for.

ANOTHER GOLD STAR IS ADDED TO M. C.'S SERVICE FLAG

James D. McDonald

James D. McDonald of Ethel, Miss., and once a student of Maryville College, died at Brest, France, March 9, 1919, in U. S. Navy Base Hospital, No. 1, of bronchial pneumonia, at the age of 33 years, 3 months and 21 days.

He had been in the postal service for several years when the United States entered the war. The postal authorities at Washington, recognizing his efficiency, ask him if he would serve as postal clerk in France. Though over the draft age, he volunteered, went over sea, where he faithfully served until smitten by death. His remains were brought back to his native land and given a Christian burial in Jackson, Miss., on July 26, 1920. He leaves a father and mother, one brother, one sister, and a vast number of friends to mourn his going.

The death of Mr. McDonald adds the twenty-first gold star to our service flag.

FACULTY MEMBERS ENTERTAINED

On last Thursday evening a reception in honor of the new and returned members of the Faculty was giver by Mrs. Alexander and Misses E. J. and A. B. Smith at their homes on the Tuchaleechee Road.

The guests of the evening were members of the Faculty and some of the elite of Maryville. Both the residence of Mrs. Alexander and the studio of Miss Smith were used in the reception of the guests.

In the studio Mrs. Florence Bartlett, piano, and Miss Caroline Belcher, violin, rendered several musical numbers which alone would have made the evening a success. After dainty refreshments were enjoyed, Miss Bewley gave several readings in her inimitable manner. The evening was full of enjoyment for both guests and hostesses.

VOLUME SIX — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, OCTOBER 7, 1920. — NUMBER TWO HIGHLANDERS LOSE FIRST GAME OF SEASON IN CONTEST WITH U. T.

M. C. WARRIORS SHOW THE OLD FIGHTING SPIRIT BUT LACK TONNAGE AND EX PERIENCE. SOME THREE HUNDRED LOYAL SUPPO RTERS FOLLOW TEAM TO KNOXVILLE. BRASS BAN D MAKES ITS DEBUT.

One of the cleanest and most sportsmanlike games that has been played with U. T. in a long time was staged on Wait Field at Knoxville last Saturday afternoon.

The weather conditions under which the players worked were just the kind needed to put "pep" into them, and to put life into the thousands of spectators, who were also grateful to Mr. Weatherman. The fans were more than pleased by the splendid showing the Highlanders made against their opponents, who had a decided advantage over the visiting eleven in both weight experience. Maryville played her first game of the season with a squad of men averaging 165 pounds, while the U. T. squad tipped the scales to an average of 190 pounds. This excess tonnage managed by years of experience on the gridiron, proved too much for the Highland warriors.

Line plunging and fake bucks were used by U. T. for considerable gains. Maryville put up a stubborn defensive game and showed up extra well in the warding off of the repeated onslaughts of the U. T. backfield. The offensive playing of the Highlanders was often broken up by the opposing squad, which did not measure up to the expectations of many, in either their offensive or defensive playing. But the incessant hammering and plunging of the U. T. lines and backfield enabled them to put the oval over for seven touchdowns, and Hatcher's toe netted five more points by place-kicking the ball between the uprights. The score being at the close of game 47 to 0.

Jellicorse hit it tough, and it was in a game against us! It happened in the very first part of the game. Holt took "Jelly's" place at full. Redick went in for Bradford, Burns for Striegal, Doak for Robinson, Evans for Campbell and Overby for Blair.

Ford, Drake and John Hendrick played every minute of the four quarters. That man Drake fought like only red headed men can fight,—split trouser legs or no. Ford called a well managed game, and that boy Hendrick just naturally went into the rear of U. T.'s line and cut 'em down before they got started.

That scrapping center, C. McLaughlin, receiving uncalled-for punishment, played the full game until the last three or four minutes of play. Beck, Cotton, Sullivan and Kirkguard played first brand foot ball all the while they were on the grid. Patrick, Davidson, Parrot and Middleton were substituted for the players mentioned above at different times during the fray. Other substitutes were Weincoop, McMurry, King and J. Hendrick who played their parts well. That anonymous "postal" to our friend Hicks did not in the least hinder his peppery playing, and in fact, it only augmented his fighting ardor.

Observations

With nearly three hundred Maryvillians, accompanied by the most welcome and efficient musicians, serving as escort to the team, and as bodyguard in general, the players could not help but put up a hard struggle. The cheering was helpful and the players showed their appreciation and interest for the school at large by putting out a clean brand of ball. Bystanders, friend and foe alike, had to give credit where due so it was not at all difficult to over hear many remarks of commendation showered upon the Highlanders for their splendid spirit and fighting qualities as football men. Even "Bending" Bender said that Maryville had a scrapping hard hitting team, and that it was more difficult for U. T. to defeat them than the Emory and Henry squad. He said also that he believed that the Maryville players would meet with stiffer opposition up in the "bluegrass state" next Saturday. A bystander was heard to say, "Maryville has a scrapping line, and every man in that front wall of burden played a clean, hard-fought game."

It seems nothing but proper that we should speak of the U. T. fellows, who cheered our men as they were leaving the field on different occasions, in an appreciative manner. As a whole there was a far better spirit of regard and understanding demonstrated by the more reasonable and loyal supporters of the Orange and White towards the Highlanders. For years this has been lacking and it seems that those things for which Maryville stands for and lives for in her sporting activities has come to be realized and appreciated by our "friendly rivals", U. of T.

The line-up was as follows:

Maryville		Tennessee
John Hendrick	ends	Haynes
McCall		Lane
Sullivan	Tackles	Sloan
Hicks		Hatcher
Drake	Guards	Robinson
Sullinger		Striegel
McLaughlin	Center	Bradford
Cotton	Halfbacks	Dietzen
Kirkguard		Blair
Beck	Fullbacks	Jellicorse
Ford	Quarter	Campbell

Officials of game: Wolfe, umpire; Mitchell, referee; Boyer, head linesman.

OPINIONS VOICED ON COLLEGE HILL

"Vandy is in for it it seems since U. T. has a stronger line and since Vandy has lost Cody and Zerfoss."

"Blair is the best man in the U. T. backfield. He is a quick runner and very deadly on forward passes."

"Sullivan is a spunky guy."

"However large the score between Vanderbilt and U. T. is, it will not exceed one touchdown either way."

"That fellow Kirkguard is still the broken-field runner that he was in the season of '16."

"U. T. should have beaten us by at least twenty-five points more, but they just couldn't do it because that fight was in the Highlanders to the bitter end."

"McLaughlin may be young but he is not without football experience now."

"Ford is one more quarterback".

"Yes, we go to Kentucky State next week and just you watch and see if that blue turf is not torn up when one of the Highlanders breaks loose for a long run and a touchdown."

"A much more experienced and better trained squad will go to Lexington this week, than went to Knoxville last Saturday."

BIG MAC RETURNS

The arrival of Frank McLaughlin, on Tuesday afternoon caused the football prospects to take on a still more roseate hue. Mac was our star center, and manager of last year's eleven. He has been in the employ of the Packard Motor Co., at Detroit, Mich., during the past summer, and seems to be in the pink of condition for gridiron activity. The Senior Class welcome him as the eigtheenth boy and the forty-sixth member of their class.

LYCEUM COURSE UNDER JOINT MANAGEMENT OF Y. M. AND Y. W.

Eight Numbers for Two Fifty.

One of the greatest attractions at Maryville, is the Lyceum Course given each year by the Y. M. C. A. This year however, this excellent series of entertainments is under the consolidated management of the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A., with an unusually large variety of entertainment, both musical and otherwise.

The Lyceum Course this year will consist of eight numbers, the first coming on the fifteenth of October, and the rest following at various intervals throughout the year, the dates not being known at present.

The numbers to be given are as follows: The Earnest Gamble Concert Company, presenting a most excellent musical program, will open the course on October the fifteenth. Later in the season, dates yet unknown, the "Merry Rondoliers" will present an original, high-speed, "Pep" program that pleases everybody.

The Schubert Trio, with plenty of fun, good music, light music, funny music, and just real music, will follow later, and Ralph Parlette, one of the most unique, best known, and best loved men on the platform, will give a lecture. The subject of this lecture is not known yet, but whatever it is, we can guarantee a good one.

Two more lectures will be given during the year, one by Dr. R. F. Griggs, on "The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes", and another by Dr. Edgar J. Banks, entitled "Digging for Lost Cities in Babylonia". Not least in this series will be the Clifton Malory Players presenting "Vanity", a modern morality play in four acts; and the Zedeler Symphonic Quartet, a company of brilliant artists with a musical ideal.

The series is an excellent one and is very well balanced indeed. Season tickets are now on sale at $2.50 each, or only a little more than thirty cents for each number. It pays to buy season tickets, for the single admissions will average at least fifty cents, and listen fellows, you who haven't been here before, you're allowed to moonshine,—just take a little tip from father—buy two tickets, she'll be tickled to death.

CHEER LEADERS

A committee composed of the presidents of the classes and student organizations conferred together last week and appointed the following cheer leaders for the year:

Prof. D. J. Brittain, Director;

Frank S. Minarik, George Howell, W. Young Hayes, August L. Johnston, Loren B. Montgomery, Martha E. Robison, Ruth M. Greenlee, Sally A. Kelly.

Mr. Minarik, who was so successful in the leading of yells last year will be here within a few days. Mr. Hayes and Mr. Montgomery showed last Saturday afternoon that they possess the stuff necessary for good yell leaders.

Y. M. C. A. HIKE TO LOOK ROCK

Be Ready Boys

At 7:30 Monday morning the crowd will start, from Carnegie Hall, for a hike to Montvale, a distance of eight miles, then an hour's climb up the mountain to Look Rock.

Each fellow must prepare and carry his own lunch, but will be back on the Hill for supper, after a day of tramping and a jolly good time.

For any information concerning this, see

Roy Buffatt or Porter Turner.

ORGANIZATION OF BRASS BAND

Sixteen Musicians Comprise First Real Band Since Days Of E. W. Hall.

Prof. Garratt Will Give Them Practice Each Week.

For the benefit of those who so unfortunate as to miss both the "Pep" meeting Friday night, and the U. T. game Saturday, let us first explain that M. C. now has a Band. Moreover she has a Band with a capital B.

Last year, and in fact for several years past, enthusiasm for this sort of thing has not been very high. Whether this was due to the fact that there was not enough talent on the Hill, or to lack of leadership we cannot say. All we do know is, that there is plenty of both here this year, and that the result is an A No. 1, M. C. Band.

Is there a Northerner so "cold" that he was not enthused over "Yankee Doodle"? Is there a Southerner who did not respond to "Dixie"? Is there a man on the team who did not play the better for the loyal suport he received during the game? Let us make it a point to tell the members of our Band and Prof. Garratt, who has generously consented to give them a practice each week, just how much we appreciate their work.

"Lest We Forget" 'Who's Who".

F. Greer Nichols, leader; Harry Bannister, Cornet; Carl Moore, cornet; William Wooster, cornet; B. J. Prichard, cornet; Hugh McAllen, clarinet; Thos. M. Driskill, clarinet; Theo. Parrot, clarinet; David C. Collins, clarinet; W. Cecil Frumblin, Trombone; M. B. Prichard, trombone; R. J. Perry, trombone; A. F. Nace, alto; Geo. Howell, alto; R. L. King, tuba; Leslie Poe, bass drum; David Noble, snare drum.

ERNEST KIDDER, A JUNIOR, HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Was Spending Week-end at His Home in South Knoxville.

(From the Knoxville Journal and Tribune)

Ernest Kidder and Willie Owens, of near Vestal, received injuries Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock, when an automobile in which they were driving turned a somersault on the Island Home pike, at a curve near the plant of D. M. Rose & Co.

The automobile, of the Chandler make, was owned by James Owens, of near Vestal and was being driven by Mr. Owen's son. The young men were driving west on the Island Home pike, when the car turned over and was damaged to the extent of $600.

Both occupants were hurled some distance when the car left the pike. Their injuries consisted of cuts and bruises. However, they were able to go to their homes after receiving attention from a physician.

Persons, standing nearby when the car turned over, said the wreck resulted from a blowout that occurred at the time the car was about to turn into the curve in the pike.

One of the car wheels was completely broken into fragments and other parts also were damaged.

LETTER FROM CATHERINE WILSON TO JUNIOR CLASS

Dear Classmates:

Your very kind and expressive token of sympathy in the way of a floral offering was deeply and gratefully appreciated. You have "said it with flowers", and it was beautifully said.

With a heart fragrant with sweet memories for the Class of 1922, I am,

Gratefully yours,
Catherine Wilson.

WEEKLY ADDRESSES BY COLLEGE PASTOR

"Students Should Desire to Excel" Thursday Morning Message.

"Stop! Look! and Listen!"—Gist of Vesper Address.

In the very beginning the speaker made it plain that anyone who is not willing to excel is not worth the beans he eats, and that all industry to be valuable must be untiring and patient.

An illustration of a young lad who was a mountaineer and could scarcely read and write when he was twenty years of age, began to climb, and being untiring and exercising patience, attained the position of an important Professorship in a large University. The achievements attained by the few reveal to us the possibility for all. Any kind of a fish can float down stream but it takes a live fish to swim against the stream. There is no short cut to learning any thing really good, but the true way to things of importance is through untiring and patient industry. We remain undistinguished not because we cannot, but because we will not. Coolerige remained a less distinguished man not because he could not, for no one doubts his ability to write all the books he ever planned to write, but because he would not; he was too lazy and lacked will power.

The hearers were exhorted to cultivate every day the habit of doing the duties of that day and doing them as well as they can be done. The habit of postponement is a bad one, and the thing put off is the thing hardly ever done.

Another illustration of the value of Patient Industry was given by the life of Kipling. It was not only talent that won honor and maintained it for him, but it was his willingness to toil and his untiring effort. Patient toil is the only sure way to victory.

All of the present surroundings which we are enjoying today are the result of patient toil and sacrifice of others. The person who would ignore this is an ungrateful traitor to the race and is nothing more than a dead beat.

"Let us, then, be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait."

VESPERS

Some of the errors in Samson's life which held him to his tragic end and which should be regarded by us as examples were pointed out by Dr. Stevenson on Sunday evening.

Samson never learned to take life serious. Life is a serious and earnest proposition: It is good to have joy and happiness mixed in with it and to give a good hearty laugh occasionaly, but after all life is a serious proposition.

Samson never cultivated the habit of persistence. He never stuck to any one thing long enough for good accomplishments; all his big deeds were done in a hurry, he lacked perseverance. If you are going to solve a math. problem you must sit down steadfastly and hammer away and delve with it until it is solved. You cannot work on it for five minutes and then on English a few minutes, then some thing else and expect to get your problem. The price of any thing worth while is perseverance, persistance, and the stick-to-it till you get it. Unless you acquire the habit of clinging to a thing, no matter what gifts you may have they will be largely wasted on you.

Samson always did just as he pleased. He started out with the object of gratifying himself and he

It is easy to live on love—between meals.

The horsehide will soon give way entirely to the pigskin—epidermatically speaking.

We have always wondered what was meant by the expression, "strong musical combination" until we read a few days ago of Garlick's Jazz Orchestra.

No doubt you were disappointed when you beheld this emaciated four page Echo after having received the issue of last week. However, if the present negotiations between the Business Manager and the Printer are successful, we will publish at least one, and possibly two, eight page editions each month throughout the year.

CUPID STILL BUSY

Hale—Susong

A wedding of considerable interest to many Maryvillians was that of Miss Selma Susong to Mr. George L. Hale, which was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Susong, at Morristown, Tenn., September 28. A large number of relatives and friends assembled on the lawn to witness the beautiful ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Lewis Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Hale left for a two weeks motor trip soon after the ceremony.

Mr. Hale attended Maryville College during the years 1916-1918 and was very popular on the Hill and in Maryville.

Carson—Griffith

The following handsomely engraved invitations have been received:

Mr. and Mrs. William Judson Griffith invite you to be present at the marriage of their daughter
Gertrude
to
Mr. William Edgar Carson
on Thursday afternoon the fourteenth of October, one thousand nine hundred and twenty at four o'clock
Cumberland Presbyterian Church
Oliver Springs, Tenn.

Miss Griffith attended school at Maryville during the years 1917-'19, and still has many friends here. Her sister, Norn Lee Griffith, also attended Maryville College in former years. Mr. Carson is from Harriman, Tenn.

Spickard—McNutt

Miss Laura McNutt and Mr. A. W. Spickard were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. McNutt, at Maryville, Tenn., on Saturday, Oct. 2. Mr. Spickard was a former student of Maryville College and is now working for the Aluminum Company of America at Alcoa. The bride is a popular young lady of Maryville and also has many friends on the Hill.

HERE AND THERE

Catherine Wilson who has been very seriously ill with typhoid fever at her home in South Knoxville, is reported to be recovering slowly. She would have been a member of the Junior Class this year had not sickness prevented her return.

George McKanna returned to Maryville last Saturday to re-enter college. He spent the summer in the employ of a silk manufactory at Fall River, Mass.

Denzil W. Moulton is in charge of bridge construction on the Tennessee State Highway near Jonesboro. He reports that he likes the work very much.

William M. Cox, a member of the Freshman class of last year, spent last week-end at Maryville. He was on his way from Detroit, Mich., where he has been working, to his home at New Market, Tenn. Did you notice his cute little misplaced eyebrow?

Grace Johnson, another Freshman of last year, is teaching in the public schools at Harriman, Tenn.

Van Hunter, who attended M. C. during the year 1918-19, has returned to resume his college work. He spent the 1919-20 working for the Republic Mining and Mfg. Co., a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America, at Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, South America. He enjoyed the year spent in South America very much, despite the fact that he was only two degrees north of the equator.

Edward R. Cullis, the fast halfback of last year's team, is attending the Macaulay School at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Overcoats and sweaters, bearing the strong odor of moth-balls and cedar, were smelled for the first time this season on last Thursday morning. The old gentleman, King Winter, sure blew a wicked wind through Maryville last Thursday and Friday.

Student assistants of the Librarian, Miss E. J. Smith, are Ethel Doctor, Addie Fine, and Henry Cox.

Former Maryville College students who are now attending the University of Tennessee are: Ralph Smith, '19, Lake Russell, Charles E. Jellicorse, A. Woodward Cullis, Horace Dean, B. Frank Patton, Karl Kirkpatrick, Tommy Haddox, Kleffmann Rueter, Emily Fowler, Vivian Everett.

Harry Wagner, who has been very unwell since his return to M. C. this fall, has been confined to the hospital during the past week. He is regaining his strength slowly, but in order to accelerate his recovery, he will spend a few weeks at the home of John Carson on the Tennessee River.

The recent cold snap has been the cause of a large number of bad colds among the faculty and students. Here's hoping that Old Man Flu has flown never to "refly"!

Stella McCall spent the summer at the Battle Creek Sanitarium in physical culture training.

Y. M. C. A. ENJOYS ADDRESS BY DR. GILLINGHAM

President Wilson Will Speak Next Sunday.

Another of the very helpful Sunday meetings of the Y. M. C. A. was held last Sabbath with Dr. Gillingham as leader. The story of the Rich Young Ruler was read and formed the subject of the address.

Dr. Gillingham told of three things present in the life of the man. The first was a great objective. He sought eternal life and, contrary to the general trend of his times, seemed to have grasped the true meaning of this gift. In the second place, the young man had a great opportunity. He was able to speak with Jesus Himself about it. And today, we were reminded, no man seeks eternal life without having an opportunity to find it. Finally, the Young Ruler faced unsuccessfully, a great obstacle—his selfishness. The speaker showed how the whole life of the young man was a failure because of this obstacle.

Every fellow misses something who does not attend the Sunday services of the "Y". The leader for next Sunday is Dr. Wilson—you know what that means. If you did not hear him speak at the reception in the woods, now is your chance. If you did hear him—you'll be sure to come.

Y. W. C. A. SONG SERVICE

On last Sunday afternoon the Senior Y.W.C.A. met in the Athenian Hall and spent a very pleasant hour together in singing, and in the discussion of the value of music. The devotional exercises were conducted by Esther Miller. After the quartet had rendered a selection, Miss Jessie Johnson, who was in charge of the meeting, made a brief talk about music and read an appropriate poem. Marguerite Sullinger discussed the uplifting power of good music and Aileen Rutherford gave some interesting facts about the lives of hymn writers and the conditions under which they wrote. All the girls present enjoyed the "Sing" and it is hoped that more will be planned for the future.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER NOTES

The membership of the Student Volunteer Band is steadily growing. Four new names were added to the roll on last Thursday night. Still others declare it their purpose to spend their lives laboring in foreign lands.

Thursday night was a fellowship hour at which a number of the Volunteers made short talks. The leader recommended to the members a list of books which they should read. Among the best of these was "The Foreign Missionary" by Brown which Mott calls the most complete book on the subject in existence.

Monday afternoon, the Social Committee prevailed upon Miss Molly to allow the members a picnic, which was held under the cedars. "Canned music", bacon, bread, pickles, eggs scrambled, and apples were served for refreshments. The afternoon gave sufficient proof that the organization was not devoid of wit and humor, or even a touch of the comical.

If you want to join a real live organization, and come within the purpose and regulations of the Band, enroll, catch the spirit of the missionary zeal, and volunteer! It is the Lord's command.

WILLIAM PERKINS IS STILL RECOVERING

According to the latest reports from William Perkins, he is very much better and the doctors expect a complete recovery. His parents, uncle and aunt are still remaining near him while he is in the Knoxville Hospital.

Miss Lucile Carter, a member of the Senior Class, was called to her home at Philadelphia, Tenn., Tuesday morning, on account of the death of her father. The sympathy of the faculty and students is extended to her in her bereavement.

Miss Mary Broady, a member of the Freshman Class of last year, is now teaching in the grammar school at White Pine, Tenn.

MISS CLAIRE McMURRAY TAKES CHARGE OF GIRLS' GYM WORK

Four Classes of Seventy-five Girls Each Reported Last Week.

Miss Claire McMurray has been secured as Girls' Physical Director for this year. She is especially qualified for this work, as she has had special training at Oberlin College in calisthenics, dancing, and swimming. She was for some time swimming instructor at Oberlin College, but at the present there seems to be little hope of any activity in natatorial lines here this year.

She has charge of four gym classes, with an average of about seventy-five girls in each class. She will have as her assistants Elsie Dawson and Stella McCall, who have each taken special physical training at Battle Creek, Mich.

FACULTY DOINGS

Prof. Orr is temporarily supplying the pulpit left vacant by Dr. Calvin A. Duncan at the Presbyterian Church of Harriman, Tenn. Dr. Duncan, a member of the graduating class of 1871, was forced to give up his church at Harriman on account of the poor health of his son, Calvin Jr., who, it is feared, has a slight touch of tuberculosis. Dr. Duncan has removed to Magdalena, New Mexico.

The McMurrays have moved into their home on Wilson Avenue.

Miss Alice Clemens has moved from Indiana Ave. to Miller St. Her home on Indiana Ave. was sold to Mr. Huff of Jefferson City.

Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson have had as their guest during the past week, Mr. Ayling, a lawyer of Syracuse, N. Y. On Thursday evening they entertained with a dinner party in honor of their guest. Those who spent the most enjoyable evening at the House in the Woods were: Dr. and Mrs. J. H. McMurray, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Webb and Mr. W. P. Hood.

Dr. Stevenson will preach at the Southern Methodist Church next Sunday morning.

It seems that Sr. Arellano has a fondness for calling the last names first and the first names last when calling the class rolls. Every day in a certain class he calls:

"King David"— and
"Tickle Mary".

In the account last week of Dr. and Mrs. McMurray, the Echo made a very serious omission. We hope to rectify that omission by now introducing to you the other members of the McMurray household, Misses Claire and Ruth, and Mr. Jean Claire is a member of the Senior class, Jean is a member of the Fourth Preparatory class and football squad and Ruth is attending one of the public schools of Maryville.

Prof. Ellis has been suffering during the past week from an attack of sciatica.

Prof. Brittain certainly deserves much credit for managing the pep meetings and yells in such a commendable way last week. However he received ample reward for his services when he heard three hundred Maryvillians out-cheer six hundred or more U. T. followers at the game on Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Gillingham spent four weeks of the past summer in camp with his family on Williams Creek near the Little Tennessee river. He said when asked about the camp, "We had a big time and caught lots of fish". He was called away from camp for a few days during July to attend the funeral of his aunt at Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. S. M. Matthews, who attended Maryville College during the years 1903-1905, visited his Alma Mater last week. He is now in the Railway Mail Service at Albuquerque, New Mexico. He is a brother of Major Matthews of the U. S. Marines.

BIRTH

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Horace Henry at Maryville, Tenn., on Thursday, September 30th., a ten pound boy who has been named Joseph Burton. Mrs. Henry was formerly Miss Olivia Brown and a student of M. C.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

Parlez Vous?

Among other new things on the Hill an entirely unique organization has very recently come to life. It is known as Le Cercle Francais, organized for the enjoyment and benefit of all who are interested in the study of the French language. It meets twice every month, and all persons who have had one year of College French are eligible to membership, provided that they promise to parlez francais only, and no English whatsoever while at the Cercle.

The first meeting was held last Tuesday afternoon at Miss Smith's studio. The path leading thru Mrs. Lamar's field was the scene of much animated conversation and gesticulation, anxious inquiry and fevered conjecture.

But after all, it wasn't such an ordeal. Each individual was pleasantly surprised at the facility with which he bid his hostesses Bon Jour, and offered his very original opinion concerning the weather. Soon everyone was carrying on a most elaborate conversation with his neighbor, punctuated here and there by little journeyings to the dictionary; but these deviations were rare, and the conversations, tho rather elementary in style, were quite natural, and anyone (provided he were not a Frenchman) might easily have thought that it was a gathering of French ladies and gentlemen. The many beautiful painting and interesting curios in the studio supplied excellent subject matter for those who were lacking in originality.

After a while tea and sandwiches were indeed timely, for many were becoming quite exhausted from excessive mental strain. As a fitting close for the afternoon's entertainment, Mlle. Alda, accompanied by the Metropolitan Opera Chorus, very graciously consented to sing La Marseillaise. Filled by the spirit and inspiration of this song, the members of Le Cercle Francais, in departing, succeeding in saying, without a mistake, and with genuine ferver, "Je me suis bien amuse'."

was gravely disappointed, and it might be well to note here that whoever starts out with the object of gratifying himself will always be disappointed.

Such lives are for warning to us act to take life so easy, but learn that life is a serious and earnest thing. The speaker gave an illustration here of the sign at a railway crossing—"Stop, Look, Listen", and advised that we always stop, look, and listen, and never hurriedly or carelessly rush on the railroad track lest we might be caught in a trap tht will pronounce our doom. It is a warning also to us that we cultivate the habit of persistence, and finally to remember that the supreme thing in our lives should not be Self, but God.

MARYVILLE ELEVEN MEETS IN WILDCAT'S TERRITORY

END RUNS BY LAVIN, KENTUCKY'S QUARTER, AND PUNTING BY J. HENDRICKS FEATURE GAME.

Highlanders Play on Home Grounds Next Saturday Against Roanoke College, Virginia.

The invasion of the Bluegrass State by the Highlanders resulted in a disastrous defeat, so to speak, for the Maryville eleven. Lavin, Kentucky's fast quarterback, circled the ends of Maryville's line many times for long cross-field runs, resulting at times in considerable gains for the Wildcats. The way J. Hendricks put his toe into play against the oval and sent it soaring down the grid kept the Kentucky fellows in their own backyard. In this way the Wildcats were kept on the offensive and the Maryville goal was made more secure.

Although the Highlanders did not win the game on counts the Kentucky spectators, like the Knoxville spectators, had to concede that the playing of the Maryville squad was far above the showing expected. Why some of those free-minded Kentuckians had picked their padded Wildcats to win with something like a seventy or eighty to notihng score! U. T. met with a stubborn bunch of players, but that same team went against an eleven predicted to give Maryville a tougher showing than U. of T., and held them to a thirty-one to nothing count. The showing was indeed a surprise to the spectators but a still greater surprise was handed the Lexington squad when they attempted to pierce Maryville's line. No appreciable gains were made through Maryville's line but Kentucky's fast quarterback succeeded in covering quite a bit of ground around Maryvile's end posts.

The first touchdown of the game was made in the first quarter as a result of a bad pass from center to Hendricks who found it difficult to balance the ball enough for a quick kick. The mix-up that followed resulted in Maryville losing the ball on their own eighteen-yard line. With criss-cross playing and a few line bucks the ball was put across the first chalk line for a count of six; goal was kicked netting Kentucky State a score of seven points, all told.

The second quarter was played with more pep and interest by both sides. Quick movements and shifts were used in order to flustrate the Highlanders who kept their head and played the Kentucky lads to a standstill. Then came another one of those end runs by Lavin which placed the ball on Maryville's twenty-yard line. The eagerness of one of Maryville's linesmen caused him to get offside just as the ball was put into play. Hearing the referee's whistle blow the Highlanders ceased playing to take the penalty for being off-side, but the Wildcats kept the ball in play and ran the twenty yards for the second touchdown.

During the third quarter Kirkguard broke loose for a long end run placing Maryville well towards the Kentucky line. One or two short passes were successful but the ball was soon recovered by the home team. The end runs of the Kentucky lads came into play again and a third touchdown was added to their scalp belt. Davidson in trying to intercept a pass brushed into an opposing player who was after the same ball—neither caught the oval and the referee ruled that Davy had interfered with the receiving of the pass. A gain of twenty yards resulted. By straight playing the fourth six-degree add was made and attached to the Kentucky score.

The Kentucky squad seemed to be going strong at the first of the last quarter but the Maryville boys held their own and recovered the ball two or three times on downs dangerously near their goal line. Beck intercepted a pass for a long run and repeated the stunt soon after. After keeping the ball in transit by air route for two or more punts the Wildcats recovered the ball and took it for their final touchdown making the score a total of thirty-one points. Goal was kicked only once out of the five trials.

McCall starting the game as right end man was relieved by Wyncoupe on receiving a bruised right shoulder. "Slim" Parrot went to center as a substitute for Big Mac, and judging from the way Ford grins when he tells how he (Parrot) went through Kentucky's line to Kentucky's sorrowful loss, Parrot must be a wildcat himself.

The other substitutes were McMurray for Davidson and Sullinger for Sullivan. The line-up for each team with positions played follows:

Maryville		Kentucky State
Hendrick	left end	Rice
Sullivan	left tackle	Murphree, C
Drake	left guard	Colpitts
F. McLaughlin	center	Fest
C. McLaughlin	right guard	Ramsey
Hicks	right tackle	Server
McCall	right end	Zerfoss
Davidson	right half	Fuller
King	quarter back	Lavin
Beck	full back	Pribble

Officials of game were: Marty (Kenyon) Referee; Hinton (Yale) Umpire; Phillips, (Vanderbilt) head linesman.

FIRST GRID BATTLE ON HOME GROUNDS

Rain or shine or whatnot, our boys will meet the padded warriors from Roanoke College, Virginia on next Saturday afternoon on the College Athletic field. A good game is promised. The Maryville squad will work hard the entire week in preparation for the battle.

The Roanoke team is composed of hard players who have on their slate of contest such games as the V. P. I. and the V. M. I. Roanoke won from our friendly rivals, Tusculum, last year, and the team is as strong if not stronger this season, so Maryville may expect a close game next Saturday.

Here is our chance fellowstudents to demonstrate to our team that we are behind them. The band is sure to be there with the goods, but let's not let the "windy fellows" furnish all the racket.

A Terrible Tragedy

She laid the still white form beside those that had gone before. No groan no sigh from her. Suddenly she let forth a cry that pierced the still air, making it vibrate into a thousand echoes. It seemed as if it came from her soul. Twice the cry was repeated, and then all was quiet again,—she would lay another egg tomorrow.

Prof. Garratt is enthusiastic over the prospects for this year's orchestra. Twenty-four persons "reported for duty" one evening last week. An Opportunity to Hear Real Artists is Afforded Students.

Monday evening was made a noteworthy occasion in Maryville's musical history by Mr. James Goddard and Mr. Frank Mannheimer. Mr. Goddard, whom we are proud to know as a Maryville man, is among America's most famous singers and Mr. Mannheimer, whom we only wish to claim, can scarcely be excelled at the piano.

It is seldom that we have the opportunity to hear real artists, and Maryville College is indeed grateful for the privilege afforded the student body Monday evening.

The program included the compositions of many leading composers of all time.

The Ernest Gamble Concert Party Gives The Opening Number.

Mr. Gamble came into prominence about six years ago at a Chautauqua concert in New York and since that time has filled more than nine hundred engagements exclusive of the time he spent abroad in study.

The party consists of three people: Mr. Ernest Gamble, basso; Miss Nelle Richeson, violinist; and Miss Marian Faville, soprano and pianist. Each one is a "star" and widely known. There are no "supporting members" in The Gamble Concert Party.

DEATH COMES TO CHARLES B. TEDFORD

Former Instructor of Violin In M. C.

Mrs. Myrtle Painter Lucero Passes Away.

On Sunday evening the sad news of the death of Charles Benton Tedford was received. Mr. Tedford left home on September 20th., to go to the Presbyterian Hospital of New York City. He was there operated upon last Friday morning for a spinal injury that he received in 1908. Apparently he rallied well from the operation, but sank suddenly on Sunday evening.

Mr. Tedford was born in Sangli, India, on September 14, 1887, and so was thirty-three years old at his death. His parents, Rev. Lyman Beecher Tedford and Mrs. Sara Silsby Tedford, were for thirty-five years missionaries of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in India. When eleven years old he came to the United States and began his education, attending schools in Alabama, and completing the Junior year at Maryville, taking another year in Kentucky, and studying architecture for two years at Syracuse University.

He married Arline Langdon of Syracuse on December 19, 1914. Two children, Beatrice Jane and Charles Benton Tedford, Jr., were born to them.

His father died in 1915, and his only brother, Arthur, died in 1916. He removed to Maryville in 1916, and since then has been engaged in architectural and building operations. He built a considerable number of houses in Maryville, and showed decided talent in designing and building them.

Mr. Tedford's artistic bent was seen also in his remarkable talent for music. He was proficient in playing the violin, the saxaphone and several other instruments.

Mr. Tedford was a man of great courage and nerve. In 1909 he submitted to a major operation upon his spinal column such as had never been attempted before, and it attracted the attention of surgeons all over the world. A few years later another similar operation was deemed necessary, and was successfully performed. Recently it was seen that a third operation was necessary; and with admirable courage he arranged his business affairs, and went bravely to his death.

The father of the deceased graduated from M. C. in the class of 1877 and his mother was for several years a student at this institution. Mrs. L. B. Tedford was the first president of the Bainonian Literary Society.

The funeral services were conducted by Dr. Graham at the residence of Pres. and Mrs. S. T. Wilson this afternoon at three o'clock. The College Mixed Quartet rendered a very beautiful and appropriate selection.

Mrs. Myrtle Painter Lucero, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Painter, died in a hospital at Chicago last week as a result of an operation. The body was brought to Maryville for burial, the funeral services being held in the Presbyterian Church last Friday morning. Mrs. Lucero leaves a husband, two children, father and mother, three sisters, and two brothers to mourn her going. Her brother, William, graduated from M. C. in the class of '17, and Erskine was for several years a student here. Her sister, Winifred graduated in '15 and Christine is a member of the present Freshman class. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Lucero at the time of Mrs. Lucero's death was in California.

Dr. Graham and Dr. Wilson officiated at the funeral, and a quartet of College boys furnished special music.

College Entertainments

On last Monday evening occurred the first entertainment of the College year. On Friday evening the first number of the Lyceum Course will be given. If you do not attend these public diversions you will truly let slip one of the most valuable opportunities offered by the College.

Attendance at these entertainments will be valuable to you in several respects. The educative value, the entertaining and diverting advantages, and the opportunities for social development, make it important that every one attend who can. Also our entertainments have considerable significance in the strengthening of our College spirit.

You are expected to attend, as the amusements are given primarily for the benefit of the students of the College. If you allow your studies to interfere with this College activity you are going to become one-sided. It is the aim of Maryville College to train young people to be well-rounded and well-balanced American Citizens.

But if the above arguments are not sufficient to convince you with the value of attending evening shindigs, consider the following: It stands to reason that one should at least give his or her evening clothes an airing once or twice during the entertainment season, even if they do permeate the entire auditorium with the aroma of moth-balls during the process.

EXCHANGE

We wish to introduce to you our Exchange Editor who will have complete and undisputed claim to this column each week. The gentleman is Mr. Stanley C. Lange, who hails from Cincinnati, and who is instructor of Bookkeeping in the Preparatory Department this year. Keep your eyes focused on this column, as it will contain some rare dope. We leave it with you now Mr. Exchange Editor, go to it!

We wish to acknowledge the receipt of "The Davidsonian", "The Bayonet", "Crimson Rambler", "Old Gold and Black", "Orange and Blue", "The Georgetonian", "The Athenian", and "Martha's Mirror". Through this column we wish to express our appreciation for their interest in us, and we hope that our exchange with them may be mutually hlepful.

HARD FOR HER

"Difficult? Why, she doesn't say a word."

"Well, isn't that difficult for Alice?"

TO BE OR NOT TO BE

I'd rather be a Could Be,
If I could not be an Are.
For a Could Be is a Maybe
With a chance of touching par.
I'd rather be a Has Been
Than a Might Have Been by far,
For a Might Have Been has never been,
But a Has was once an Are.

OHIO CLUB ORGANIZES

"We are from Ohio, the State [illegible] reports the Ohio Co-Ed's. The club organized on Tuesday, Oct. 4th, for good old Buckeye times. The following officers were elected for the year:

President - Miss Bernice Kimble
Vice-President - - - Mr. Stanley C. Lange
Secretary-Treasurer - Miss Esther Miller
Editor - - - Mr. R. C. Babylon

The matrons are at last convinced that school has begun in good earnest—for on last Saturday night that old pastime—feasting—was again revived. When walking through the halls, one was sorely tempted to break the commandment, "Thou shalt not covet", (unless she happened to be going to a feast herself) so overpowering were the aromas of frying ham, boiling chocolate, cooking candy, and so musical were the sounds of candy being beaten, and salad dressing being made.

Among those entertaining in true Maryville style, was Miss Dorothy Dickerson, who even included some Baldwinites (Harriet Green and Eugenie Hagood). After the feast was over, they got their ukes and guitars and sang—concluding of course with "Good Night Ladies"

At the opening meeting of the Chilhowee Club, held at the home of Mrs. Sam Franklin, October 8th., the following readings were given by members of the Department of Expression. "The Traveling Man" (a miracle play by Lady Gregory) by Grace Blank; "Ginger Cookies", by Susan Carson.

At the meeting of the Athletic Board of Control October 7th., 1920, the following managers were elected: Football Julian Sullivan
Boys' Basket Ball - John Hendrick
Girls' Basket Ball - Blanche Bailey

PERSONALS

Frank Minarik returned to Maryville a few days ago from an extensive trip in the interest of the Y.M. C. A. Immediately after the close of school last June he went to his home at New York City and from there started out on Y work. After spending three weeks in Quebec he embarked for Europe, where he traveled in Germany, Czecho Slovakia, France, Belgium, and Italy. He set sail from Naples on the return trip. He reports a wonderful trip.

Some of the former M. C. students who attended the U. T.-Vandy football game last Saturday are: Herbert Samsel, '17; Roy Anderson, '18; Tom Henry, Paul Dillow, Charles Bunch, '09, and William Cox.

A few of last Saturday's football results of interest to M. C. students:

At Bloomington—Mississippi A. & M. 0; Indiana 24.
At Knoxville—Tennesse 0; Vanderbilt 20.
At Roanoke—Randolph Macon 15; Roanoke 0.
At Blacksburg—V. P. I. 75; Emory and Henry 6.

Dr. R. I. Gamon was on the Hill again last Thursday.

Miss Porter Lyle of Dandridge, Tenn., who attended M. C. during the year 1912-'13, is now head of the music department of Polytechnic High School, Maryville.

Herbert Samsel, '17, when asked what he is doing now, stated that he is working in his father's bank at Tate, Tenn. Lest he might leave the wrong impression, he later went on to say that his father's bank is a clay-bank, or, in other words, an East Tennessee farm.

A certain Maryville co-ed, in response to inquiry, said, "I've got three brothers, two living and one married."

Lutrella Ahler, a Sophomore of last year, is attending the Moody Bible School at Chicago this year.

Patients of the Hospital during the past week are: Leslie Jones, William Woodfin, Harry Wagner, Emiline Headrick, Ethel Swindler, and Jessie Brown. Jessie Brown was operated upon for tonsilitis last Saturday afternoon and is recovering nicely. Miss Martha Darby is still filling the positions of both cook and nurse at the Hospital as the College has as yet been unable to secure the services of a trained nurse.

"Doc" Ruble was a visitor on the Hill Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cody are visiting friends and relatives in Maryville this week. Mr. Cody is supplying a pulpit at Sevierville, Tenn.

Ex-Govenor Hooper transacted business on the Hill Tuesday.

George Callahan was a visitor on the Hill last week-end. More specifically speaking, he visited "a friend" in Maryville last week-end.

We advise all fellows to refrain from inquiring the why and the wherefore of the "Old Ladies' Sewing Circle", which has its rendezvous in Miss Henry's office. You might get bit! Not being able to secure any information regarding this guild, club, clique, band, or whatever it is, we will call it for the time being the "Old Ladies' Sewing Circle".

Miss Jewell has been quite busy on fourth floor Pearsons this week.

The student body is unanimously of the opinion that the faculty will fall short of its duty if it does not attend Synod in a body next week. The Senior Class is particularly anxious that Dr. Gillingham go.

One Senior girl is hoping to major in Spanish this year.

Miss Marian Morton spent the week-end with her uncle in Knoxville.

The Misses Blanche and Marie Lowry, and Alice Hunt spent the week end at their homes in Madisonville, Tenn.

Miss Sarah Lackey who has been ill with tonsilitis is reported better.

Miss Reva Rankin's mother of Athens, Tenn., is visiting on the Hill.

FACULTY NOTES

Dr. Gillingham preached at Shannondale, near Knoxville, last Sunday morning. He spent Monday moving from his home on Indiana Ave. to the home on the campus left vacant by the Bassetts.

If a picture had been taken of Dr. Gillingham on the M. C. truck Monday could it have been called a moving picture?

Mrs. Elizabeth Dickinson of Charlottesville, Va., and a former matron of Carson-Newman College, is assisting Miss Caldwell at Pearsons Hall.

Miss Lillian Sheddan, who is teaching in one of the town schools, is assisting Miss Jackson at Baldwin Hall.

Miss Jones spent last week-end visiting Miss Nellie McCampbell at Shannondale, Tenn.

Prof. Proffitt was in Jefferson City last Thursday on business.

Miss Almira Jewell spent a few days last week in Pearson's Hall during the absence of her mother, Mrs. Jewell, who was called to Tellico Plains on account of the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Jewell Bradford.

Miss Gregg rendered a beautiful solo at the Presbyterian Church last Sunday.

A. F. Southwick, professor of social science and history last year, is now Field Representative of the Presbyterian Board of Temperance and Moral Welfare which has its headquarters in Pittsburg, Pa. The Board Officers speak very highly of the services of Prof. Southwick.

Prof. (to the fairest of the co-eds)—If you have time Miss Guesswho, I would like to hold you a minute after the bell rings.

The Executive Committee of the College held its usual monthly meeting last Tuesday.

Miss Bewley will give an entertainment at Wildwood Saturday evening.

Miss Irene Bewley had as her guest on Monday night, her mother.

SENIOR RESOLUTIONS

"WHEREAS it has pleased God to call to Himself the father of our beloved friend and classmate, Miss Lucille Carter:

BE IT RESOLVED, that the class of 1921 expresses its deepest sympathy with its bereaved classmate and her loved ones in their sorrow;

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that a suitable token of sympathy be immediately dispatched to the Carter home at Philadelphia, Tennessee;

AND BE IT ALSO RESOLVED that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to Miss Carter, and a copy be read to the student body."

Respectfully submitted.

MISS POLK AND MR. DEYTON SECURE MISS BEWLEY AT FRIENDSVILLE LAST SATURDAY

On the evening of October 9th. Miss Irene Bewley gave a recital at Friendsville, Tenn., at the Friendsville High School. Mr. Jason Deyton of last year's Senior Class is at the head of this school, and Miss Cerena Polk, of the same class, is one of the teachers. They must have studied the psychology of advertising—at any rate an unusually large and appreciative crowd heard Miss Bewley. However, should she consent to return to Friendsville no advertising at all would be necessary, so greatly did Miss Bewley please all who heard her.

GIRLS' FORENSIC LEAGUE

Those college girls interested in debating are urged to take advantage of the training offered in the Girls' Debating Society from which organization the members of the intercollegiate team are later chosen. On every Friday afternoon at five o'clock this bunch of girls meet for practice debate. If enough girls so desire a triangular debate may be arranged. At any rate every girl who so desires, will be given a chance to work on interesting subjects.

DR. WILSON GIVES HELPFULL ADDRESS AT Y.M.C.A.

Say, fellows, you don't know what you missed if you were not at the Y. M. C. A. last Sunday afternoon. Dr. Wilson was the leader and he gave one of his characteristic talks on the subject of "Preparation in College for Endurance in Life". The talk was built on the fifth verse of the twelfth chapter of Jeremiah.

Dr. Wilson classed the crises that a man must meet in life into three groups, physical, intellectual and moral. The first was the comparison of the man that faced life with a strong physique with the man that had not developed his body. The advantage of the clean man over the man that had sowed his wild oats. Many a man of high intellect has fallen because of a weak physique.

In the second place no man can be of greatest good to society, to church and to the country unless he has developed his intellect and the emphasis was placed on the opportunity of the college man that he make himself capable of meeting these crises.

The last and most important preparation for the crisis of life was the moral side of a man's development. The christian life has been proven to be the best way for achieving the highest moral character and the man that refuses to lower his principles and lives in the fear of God is the only man prepared for all crisis. Taking God as a friend is the only means of meeting and overcoming temptations. The best chance to go through life with success is with Christ as a guide.

Man is too weak to succeed alone and he must depend on a stronger outside support in order to live a life that will be worthy of his efforts.

The men of college that are not taking part in these meetings are missing one of the best things in the school life. Come out next Sunday, fellows, and we know you will come every Sunday.

Blue Ridge was the topic discussed in Y. W. C. A., Sunday afternoon. Miss Lola Beeler, who presided at the meeting talked on first impressions of the conference. Miss Grace Sydenstricker told of the splendid lecture courses at Blue Ridge and Miss Nannette Walker outlined some of the classroom work. Miss Elizabeth Moore sang a Blue Ridge song. Miss Helen Horton closed the meeting with a special plea for a larger delegation from Maryville next year.

HARD HITTING HIGHLANDERS CARRY ORANGE AND GARNET TO VICTORY

CO-EDS WILL DESERT HILL FOR MTN. TRIP

A Week-End Trip to Montvale Marks The Establishing of a New Precedent.

Suppose one of the strong and sterner sex should overhear a girl talking about closing all books for a week-end going to the mountains, sleeping in a wide and clean bed, cooking out-of-doors, watching the sun rise from a place where nothing could obstruct but nature in all her glory—would that gentleman think that the girl had lost her head, or even more fatal, her heart?

Let this be a fair warning! If you hear girls raving in this unusual manner, do not become alarmed because they are really sane and are not building air-castles—only talking about what is truly going to happen. Saturday afternoon the College truck is going to be filled with girls. We are going to Montvale! Moreover we are not coming back until Monday afternoon. The girls will sleep in the hotel but will cook out in the open. Saturday night there will be a big bonfire. Sunday morning all will climb to Look Rock to watch the sunrise. Sunday evening Vesper Services will be held near Lake Sidney Lanier. Monday there will be more climbing—and,— but wait until the girls return and they will tell the rest.

TEA AT THE HOUSE-IN-THE-WOODS

Mrs. W. P. Stevenson, Mrs. H. P. Huddleston and Mrs. J. H. Webb Hostesses.

The road to the House-in-The-Woods was a veritable Michigan Avenue, Friday afternoon when Mrs. W. P. Stevenson, Mrs. H. P. Huddleston and Mrs. J. H. Webb served tea from three to six at the House-in-The-Woods. About three hundred ladies were there during the afternoon—the elite of Maryville, Knoxville, Jefferson City and Dandridge.

The house, always beautiful, was unusually attractive with masses of autumn leaves and flowers—the rich yellows and reds, mingling with rare beauty in the mellow candle light.

The hostesses were assisted in receiving by Miss Jeannette Hibbert who showed the ladies upstairs. When they returned, they went to the front sun-parlor where Miss Edith Moore, Miss Frances Hickey, and Miss Elizabeth Whitlock presided over the punch bowl. From the porch they went around to the dining room where Miss Elizabeth Smith poured coffee, Mrs. Graham, tea, and Mrs. David Proffitt passed the sandwiches. Miss Margaret Shepherd, and Miss Blanche Moore also helped the hostesses.

The day was perfect, the guests charming, the hostesses ideal. What more can be said?

DEATH COMES TO MOTHER OF STUDENT

Sam Cross, a member of the Sophomore Class, was called to his home at Oliver Springs on Thursday, Oct. 7th., on account of the serious illness of his mother who died the following Sunday.

The Echo extends to bereaved family, and especially to Sam, the sympathy of the faculty and students of M. C.

FIRST GAME OF SEASON ON LOCAL GRID

VIRGINIANS ARE HANDED A 14 TO 0 DEFEAT BY MARYVILLE ELEVEN; STELLAR WORK OF McMURRAY AND HENDRICK LARGELY RESPONSIBLE FOR LOCALS' VICTORY; M. C. LINE HOLDS WHEN PUT TO TEST.

The Roanoke fellows have come and gone—and Maryville still retains her third football scalp. The other two?—Oh, you know where they are.

As shadows of the thin clouds above traversed the athletic field of Maryville College, the Highlanders were engaged in a guerilla foot ball game which proved the undoing of Roanoke College, Virginia. Displaying a brand of football that would satisfy any veteran of the gridiron, the Maryville boys whitewashed the Virginians to the tune of two touchdowns and as many place-kicked goals.

The splendid work of halfback McMurray featured the steady playing of the game. His sure and accurate passing to Beck, who was there with the goods when it came to receiving, netted gains for the home team that were strides down the field towards the front gate posts of Roanoke's territory. The passing of the oval overhead became so effective that the overhead route was traversed quite often, and the fun was not broken up but two or three times. McMurray shot a long pass to John Hendrick who caught the ball on the goal line, and stepping over was a small matter. That was a signal for cheering.

Cheering is right, for the girls and boys lifted their voices in noisy praise and encouragement, as the fighters for the Orange and Garnet held their own against the repeated and, at times, effective attacks of the Virginians, who put up a hard fought game through the four quarters. The "windy-fellows" were there with the goods as expected. Good work fellows, keep the bellows filled for the next fray.

That march, snake dance or crawl between the halves of the game was a sight to behold. "S"—ing over the field and finally surrounding Feeman and his men in thoughtful "confab", the happy and excited students gave vent to their feelings as only college men and women can under such conditions. The demonstration was beneficial for those fellows played like fire during the entire last half.

Both teams struggled and fought hard for four full quarters until the darkening shadows of evening advanced over the field of battle and made the playing more difficult —then the time whistle blew and the game ended with Maryville as victors.

THE GAME BY QUARTERS

Up went the coin and Maryville received.

Beck received first kick, returned ball to 40 yard line. First down was made, but Hendrick punted later to Roanoke. Fumbling the ball and receiving punishments for off-side playing featured the greater part of this quarter. Maryville, unable to put the go into her playing punted the ball to midfield as the whistle blew for the ending of the first quarter.

Second Quarter

Roanoke gained through line and succeeded in making first down. A flying tackle by Wyncoupe threw Virginia for a loss. M. C. off-side, 5 yards penalty. Ball went over on downs. Beck carried ball through for 5 yards. Two downs and an attempt at passing failed, the ball went over. Roanoke made first down. Ford threw a man for 5 yard loss. Hendrick intercepted pass and went down field for about 30 yards. Davidson gained 7 yards more on short pass. A line plunge resulted in a loss. Fumble recovered by McMurray.—A pass and a line rush put the ball over for the first touchdown. McMurray kicked goal. Score M. C. 7; Roanoke 0.

M. C. received ball and two penalties for off-side playing. Ball went over and back again on downs. Hendrick kicked beyond goal line, ball put on 20 yard line. Line buck and pass resulted in loss; the second quarter and the first half ended with ball in Virginians' possession.

Third Quarter

Roanoke received and later fumbled. M. C. covered ball but fumbled also and recovered, losing to Roanoke on downs. After seven minutes of hard line-bucking and of accurate passing M. C. took the ball down-field to Virginia's 25 yard line, and from there a McMurray-to-Hendrick pass tallied another touchdown for Maryville. Goal being kicked, made score 14-0.

Roanoke received and went down field for a short distance. Maryville recovered ball and stopped in midfield where a pass was attempted and lost. Lucas, Roanoke's fullback snatched the pass from the air and raced down the grid for 40 yards to Maryville's 10 yard line. A cloud appeared, but was thinned by hard playing and cheering. Maryville held the Roanoke fellows for downs and Hendrick's toe sent the ball towards the center of the field, thus freeing the M. C. goal line. The third quarter ended with the ball on Maryville's 45 yard line in Roanoke's possession.

Fourth Quarter

After see-saw playing for the greater part of the quarter Roanoke took a sudden spurt in Maryville's direction carrying the ball to the 15 yard line. Again the rooters rooted and the players played and Maryville recovered the ball on downs. Hendrick punted out of danger. Roanoke lost the ball on downs, Maryville forced to kick and Roanoke returned the ball for short distance, and the game ended. Maryville 14; Roanoke 0.

The line-up for each team was as follows:

THE VALUE OF X--GIVEN BY DR. MCMURRAY

Y. M. C. A. Hear Lesson In The Mathematics of Life.

It was not an enthusiastic class of Professor Knapp or of Professor Hyden, working overtime, that gathered in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium Sunday afternoon, although you might have supposed it to be such from the sight of the equations that were soon written on the blackboard. It was a "Y" meeting, and Dr. McMurray was illustrating in this way his subject—"The Value of X in a Man's Life".

We were told to let X equal that which the man would accomplish in his life. Then this equation was written: Body plus mind plus opportunity equals X. If anything is added to or taken from the known values in the equation, the unknown value is correspondingly increased or decreased. But these components are not enough to make X all that it should be. One more is added and the equation is Body plus Mind plus Opportunity plus Will equals X. Still this does not satisfy, for men with all these things have failed. So the equation is made: Body plus Mind plus Opportunity plus Consecrated Will equal X, then X receives its highest value; the life which contains all these things in the greatest degree accomplishes the most.

Following Dr. McMurray's very helpful and interesting illustration of the things that made a worthwhile life, there comes next Sunday an address by Dr. Stevenson. Watch the bulletin boards for the topic—it will interest you.

FRENCH LOVERS "PARLEZ BEAUCOUP"

Le Cercle Francois held the second meeting of its existence on Baldwin lawn, Tuesday, October 11. A large number of young ladies were present, but the young gentlemen were rather few and far between; this deplorable condition was no doubt due to the circulation of a rumor which was well calculated to have a dampening effect upon the enthusiasm of anyone who had a thirst for something else besides knowledge.

However, Le Cercle managed to get along without them, and the afternoon was most pleasantly passed in discussing such varied topics as Paris; Last Night's Concert; The War; Our Classes; etc. all en francaise of course.

Before disbanding the members made plans for studying one of Moliere's plays at their next meeting which will be on next Tuesday afternoon.

DR. WINFIELD SCOTT HALL AGAIN VISITS THE COLLEGE

On last Friday morning Dr. Winfield Scott Hall, head of the Social Hygene Department of the Board of Temperance and Moral Welfare, visited M. C. and delivered two lectures on "Social Purity" to the students. The first two classes were omitted and the time given to two forty-five minute addresses by Dr. Hall.

FIRST LYCEUM NUMBER GIVEN FRIDAY EVENING

Ernest Gamble Concert Company Entertains Full House.

The first number of Maryville's Lyceum Course was given Friday evening by the Ernest Gamble Concert Company. The Company consists of Mr. Ernest Gamble, Basso Cantante; Miss Nelle Richeson, Violinist and Miss Marian Faville, soprano and pianist. The program was of the highest class and if the remaining seven numbers of our Lyceum courses may be gauged by this one, we may be sure that they will be of the very best.

CLASS PARTIES

The usual Halloween class festivities will take place on Saturday evening, October 30.

Next month is the usual time for the semi-annual mountain trip. Let's talk it up!

"SENIOR PICNIC-SUPPER AND PICTURE SHOW PARTY"

It was almost as good as a truck ride would have been! Wasn't the show good! These and similiar expressions were heard uttered Wednesday night after our Senior picnic supper, and picture show party. It was all so different! The College Woods is an ideal place for a picnic, and the two big bonfires, together with all the good eats made it a picnic to be remembered by all the Seniors. Then with our popular chaperones, Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson, we took a trip to "Broadway" and the "Hippodrome", in other words Maryville's "White Way" and "The Palace". The picture was enjoyed by all as was demonstrated by the vigorous applause. Even though we could hardly accustom ourselves to the novelty—we would like to grow accustomed to it, and hope that we will have another soon.

PARENTS OF WM. PERKINS VISIT MARYVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Perkins, of Greensburg, Ky., parents of William Perkins who was accidentally shot several weeks ago, visited Maryville and the College on last Friday. They removed their son from the hospital at Knoxville to their home in Kentucky on Monday of this week.

William is reported to be greatly improved, having been able to walk about several days before his departure from Knoxville.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins requested that the Echo extend their thanks to the faculty and students of M. C. for assisting them during their sorrow by deeds of service, by floral offerings, by messages of sympathy, and by prayers.

Musical Organizations

Last year the Maryville College Glee Club demonstrated in a very convincing way what can be accomplished by a local organization. The students were almost unanimous in pronouncing the Glee Club Concert of last spring superior to any lyceum number of the whole year. This opinion of the students was coroborated by the assertions of many of the town people who were so fortunate as to witness that most enjoyable entertainment. Everyone is looking forward with eagerness to the staging of the next Glee Club Concert!

But why not take another step in advance, and by so-doing register our Music Department indelibly in the Hall of Fame? This year we have the largest and most experienced orchestra in the history of the College. We also have a first-class, sixteen-piece band. Neither orchestra nor band has ever been under more competent leadership than that of Professor Garratt. Cannot these organizations keep pace with the Men's Glee Club? One concert by each of the three musical organizations of the Hill would be of invaluable benefit to the members of those organizations, to the Music Department, to the student body, and to the College as a whole. An entertainment given by local talent invariably makes the biggest "hit", and also reflects the actual value of the school and the quality of its students.

Some may say, "It can't be done". Why can't it?

The man who misses all the fun
Is he who says, "It can't be done".
The world would sleep if things were run
By men who say, 'It can't be done".

TRIO TAKE MOUNTAIN HIKE IN INTEREST OF 1921 CHILHOWEAN

Forrest Brown, George Howell and 'Tex" Middleton made a week-end tour of the Smoky Mountains touching at Spencer's Cabin, Thunder head, Bald Mountain and returning through the jungles of Thunderhead Prong.

Though their principal object was to secure views for a wonderful 1921 Chilhowean the trip was worth the going in itself. At the start "Brownie" figured on wild hog or bear meat, (the trio had a 22 cal. rifle), but the chief cook, "Tex" had to feed the hardies on bacon the whole trip.

Once George spied a delapitated "piglet" on the trail and urged "Tex" to shoot it. When its owner, a grizzled mountaineer with a long barreled rifle, heaved into view, George advised that the poor little creature should live. If you have nothing to do boys be sure to take a hike to the "Smokies". "Back to nature" will do you good and don't leave this part of the U. S. without seeing the grand scenery of the East Tennessee mountains.

TENNIS FOR GIRLS

There are several weeks of good tennis weather ahead and the girls are eager to take advantage of the outdoor exercise while it is possible. As soon as the five courts claimed by the girls are put in shape, tennis will be the popular pastime of not a few girls. The athletic director and tennis manager for the girls have conferred together and agreed that credit shall be given for tennis. Now is the time to begin practice and get your form up for the inter-class tennis tournaments in the spring. There is no player but what can aspire to these tryouts.

Those girls interested in tennis shuld know that U. of T. (angered by her overwhelming defeat last Spring) has challenged us for a tournament and are now practicing for it. Our prospects are promising and all that is needed is practice.

Miss Jessie Johnson, a letter woman of last year is with us again but the college team is weakened by the loss of Miss Lucille Hodges. Available material seems plentiful since nearly all the inter-class players are back on the Hill. Then, too, there are the new girls who show promise. Tennis is a wonderful sport and any girl who goes out for it will never have reason to regret the time spent on the courts.

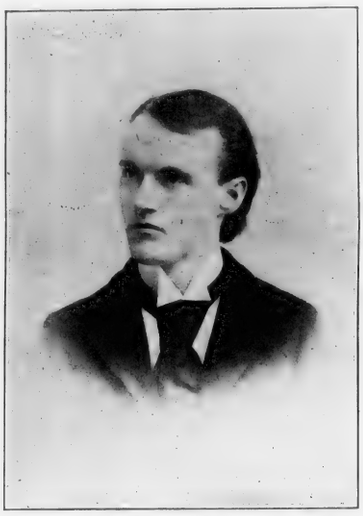
C. M. ALEXANDER, WORLD'S GREATEST EVANGELISTIC SINGER, DIES

MR. ALEXANDER SPENT SEVEN YEARS AT MARYVILLE COLLEGE.

He Made Two Evangelist Tours of The World, One With Rev. R. A. Torrey.



(By Martha Robison, Associate Editor)

People all over the world were grieved to hear of the death of Mr. Charles McCallon Alexander at his home "Tennessee" in Birmingham, England on October 13th. He was born near Meadow, Tennessee in 1867. He attended Maryville College from 1882 to 1887 and again in the year 1888-1890. He was one of the most popular students who has ever been on College Hill—jolly, full of good humor, always in a crowd even in his college days, a magnetic and transcendant leader. He had his first experience as a leader of song at the Maryville College Chapel Services. He also founded the first brass band at the College known as the McTeer Peerless Band. In 1890 the faculty recommended that he go to The Moody Bible Institute to study as a leader of song. Since then he has lead song in the United States, Canada, Hawaii, the Fiji Islands, Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, the Phillippines, Korea, China, Japan, Ceylon, England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, as well as in other countries. He first made the song, "Tell Mother I'll Be There" famous, singing it with with the Rev. Mr. Williams, later he made an evangelical tour of the world with Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, and still later a tour with Rev. R. A. Torrey. He once led a chorus of 4,000 voices twice daily for two months. This alone shows his great ability as a leader. He could make anyone sing.

He married Miss Helen Cadbury, daughter of Richard Cadbury, the well known Christian philanthropist, a member of the Society of Friends and one of Birmingham, England's foremost benefactors as well as a great manufacturer of cocoa. It was Mrs. Alexander who, when but a young girl, originated the idea of the Pocket Testament League and started it among her high school friends. In 1908 Dr. Chapman and Mr. Alexander decided to make it a world wide movement. Now at least two million people from all parts of the world belong to it.

His favorite year text, one which he used for a great many years, was 2 Timothy 2:15. "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth". He used to put the reference across the left-hand corner of his envelopes and sometimes included it in his signature as well. His zealous and untiring loyalty to his text called the attention of many people to it, and they, too, adopted it as their personal text.

And now after his studying at Maryville, at Moody, and in the world, he has at last come to the place where he can rightly divide the word of truth. The glory time of which he sang so much has come to him and he is near the dear Lord he adored.

CHARLES M. ALEXANDER WHEN IN M. C.

misgivings the first night, but finding that it appealed to all classes in a way that no other one song has ever done. "Jesus Is a Friend of Mine", is another song which Mr. Alexander has taught the world; another is "The Glory Song".

Mr. Alexander once said of his Alma Mater, "It was at old Maryville that I was taught to love souls and reverence the Bible, and was taught how to pray; and by the Godly, consecrated and unselfish lives of the professors I saw what it means to be a christian."

Mr. Alexander first went out

ALABAMA SIXTY STRONG

"Alabama, Alabama We Will Aye be True to Thee."

This was the sentiment of the sixty boys and girls from Alabama who met under the cedars Monday afternoon to get acquainted with each other and dream about the wonders of their state. After forming a circle each one told his name, nick-name and home address. Then each one was supplied with a piece of card board, a piece of chewing gum and a toothpick with which to make a map of Alabama. The prizes being won by Miss Darden and Mr. Austin. After this a business meeting was held and the following officers were elected for this year:

President - - - Charles Baxter
Vice-president - Geraldine Odell
Secretary-Editor - Lala Darden
Treasurer - - - - Lois Hayes

SECOND PREPS ORGANIZE

Last Thursday the Second Preps met for the purpose of electing officers. There was quite a number of fine looking boys and girls present and they all seemed to take much interest in the welfare of the Second Year Class.

Many old faces were seen that were in the lively bunch of First Preps last year. There were also many new ones whom we are going to try to make proud of their class.

The dinner bell interrupted us before all the business was transacted, but we succeded in electing the following officers:

Lee Moore - - - President
David Noble - - Vice President
Sallie Kelly - - Secy.-Treas.
Worth C. Gray - - - Editor

FOOTBALL

MANAGER SULLIVAN

Sullivan was initiated to the game when he donned moleskin for Central Hi of Cleveland, Tenn., in 1916. His playing at tackle was good and the team had him as captain in '18.

War killed the season's games and Sullivan went to the University of Chattanooga.

He landed in the territory of the Highlanders in 1919 and has been a standby of the team as tackle. You may now address him as Manager Sullivan of the Orange and Garnet eleven.

HURRAH FOR THE SNAP!

The football victory of Saturday was appropriately celebrated in the evening by the time-honored, Maryville game of SNAP. Everybody was out with lots of pep, and, needless to say, everybody had a ripsnorting good time.

Who says Lynn Ryburn can't prophecy futures? Did you notice how the fellows followed him around during the Cleveland-Brooklyn pennant fight?

NEXT LYCEUM

The next number of the Lyceum Course will be given on Friday evening, Oct. 29. Dr. Edgar J. Banks will lecture on the subject, "Digging for Buried Cities in Babylonia".

MAKE YOUR DATES EARLY!

ONCE OVERS ON PIGSKIN TOPICS

The prospects for "rolling old Tusculum on the sod" Thanksgiving day, now have a pleasing radiancy about them.

That lad, McMurray, can sure shake a wicked hind leg in the face of Father Time. "Fast" is his middle name! He filled the shoes of Kirkguard and he filled them to perfection!

With three of the hardest games consigned to the past, the Highlanders can well hope to hang a healthy string of scalps to their belts during the remainder of the season.

That score, Emory and Henry 49; Carson-Newman 0, proves beyond a doubt that those Virginians will be a formidable enemy to attack in foreign territory.

"Cap" Ford is usually pretty level-headed but just for a few seconds after doing a whirligig on his head he semed to have the idea that it was his duty to work as quarter for Roanoke.

"I'm a busy man", said Hobart Ford, captain of the foot ball team, "always doing something but it doesn't amount to anything". Foot ball fans have a different opinion as to what it amounts to, especially after that game Saturday afternoon.

A game has been signed with the Georgetown aggregation of Georgetown, Ky., for November 6. The clash will take place in the enemies' territory. Last year the Georgetown cohorts buried us under a 13 to 7 score on our own terra firma, and this year we intend to turn the trick.

The way that M. C. line held the Roanoke eleven within a few yards of the goal-line reminds us of the time when Maryville held Mississippi A. & M. to a 7 to 7 tie on the same gridiron. During the last few minutes of that memorable game the M. C. line held Mississippi within a few feet of the victory-line.—All of which goes to prove that when you run into a stone wall you've got to stop! !

IN DORMITORY LOBBIES AND ELSEWHERE

"I never saw such a set of papers in my life", said Miss Fanson of the Chemistry department. "The students this year are either unusually brilliant or unusually well prepared. The class average this year for the first test was almost as high as the highest grade usually is".

"It's a shame to live right here in the mountains and never know them", said Francis Hickey, the other day. "That's the reason I am so glad the Y. W. is giving a week end hike. It enables us to rest a bit, and at the same time do real mountain climbing. I don't see how any girl in school can afford to miss it."

Conundrum—If half the students of a college subscribe to the school magazine, what would the school say if the staff published half the magazine?

Magistrate—"You are accused of killing your best friend".

Prisoner—"He hit me, your Honor."

Magistrate— "I should have thought that that would have been the last thing in the world he would have done."

Prisoner—"It was, your Honor".

CAPTAIN FORD

Ford got his start in football on the Hill, and in 1914 he lined up with the regular squad. Playing in only nine quarters in '15, he did not get his first letter until 1916.

Is '18 and '19 he helped introduce America's "savage" game to the Polui. Ford was on the team contending for honors in the 2nd. Army overseas.

After fighting over there he returned to M. C. and is now quarterback and Captain of the team.

Red Hayes to Meade Johnson—"Come on, Meade, take supper with us."

Meade: "No thanks, old top, I'm a little hungry tonight."

"Watch your step, Miss", cautioned the street car conductor to the petite maiden as she mounted the street car steps.

"That is unnecessary, that bunch of sap-heads on the corner are doing it for me", was her vitrolic answer.

ROMEO AND JULIET

Unique Play With Dutch Setting Presented by Bainonian Literary Society.

Jeannette Hibbert and Irma Schwab Take Leading Parts.

Romeo and Juliet in a Dutch Garden was the feature program put on at the opening meeting of the Bainonian Literary Society October 1, 1920. Edith Moore, president of the society, called the meeting to order asking Hazel Cleveland to lead in a short opening prayer. Following the prayer, Miss Moore welcomed the new girls to Maryville and in behalf of the Society extended an invitation of membership to those who can learn to love Bainonian and work for her. Nor did she slight the old Bainonians who have come back to carry on the good work that has always been done by the society as a whole. At such a time as this, the business was dispensed with for more pleasant and profitable entertainment.

Before the curtains were drawn, the Bainonian quartette, composed of Winston and Ruth Newton, Myrtle Rendon and Ruth Gamble, sang the Society's song. Such music is always appreciated. Elizabeth Moore rendered a piano solo and, needless to say, it was good.

Now all girls have in mind an ideal Romeo—as ample proof of this assertion, we would cite the large number of girls, both old and new, who more than filled Bainonian Hall Saturday night in order to see Romeo woo Juliet in a Dutch Garden. All was dutchy from the tulips which grew by the stone wall to the wind-mill with the ladder leading up to the curtained window.

As the curtains were drawn Irma Schwab, as Juliet, dressed in the Dutch costume artistically made of green and pink crepe paper, was strolling in the garden sighing and yearning for her Romeo. How she did wish for him as she climbed the ladder leading to her room! Juliet had more than one Romeo for Martha Robison as a Dutch Serenader came out and gave an effective Dutch reading below the window where Juliet slept. He wooed in vain, but he did arouse Juliet and as she came down the ladder, Jeannette Hibbert, as Romeo, "schumped over der vall like a geese pird" and began to woo her. He even "schwore by dot moon". Now Juliet was vexed with him for "schwearing by dot moon—dot moon dot somedimes don't schine". Romeo was handsomely dressed in purple crepe bloomers and jacket to match; what a hit he made! Woman-like, Juliet could not give him her final answer but instead "moost on der ped go". Such would never do, so Romeo called in the help of his strollers. Miss Myrtle Rendon in Spanish costume played on the steel guitar singing in Spanish. Encores were called for and she was quite generous. Miss Bernice West in dutch costume read a beautiful story in her most pleasing way. As the last stroller, Miss Winston Newton sang "Love, Here is My Heart". Bainonian could not do without Miss Newton and her voice, so we are lucky in having her in Maryville.

But with all this persistent wooing Juliet is not willing to set the date but promises, as she mounts her ladder, to see Romeo again. Although Romeo did not win his fair lady he did think "it vas so schweet to standt dere". The program ended with "It's Tulip Time in Holland". sung by Irma Schwab and Jeannette Hibbert. The society was dismissed.

Bainonian has good and profitable meetings planned for the year; each program is going to be a feature program so do not miss any of them, girls.

GUILTY OR NOT GUILTY?

The future happiness of a certain young Freshman is entirely dependent upon the decision of twelve jurors who will sit Saturday night and hear the evidence as given by reliable witnesses. The charge is selling intoxicating liquors; and the trial will be held in the Alpha Sigma Hall. This mock trial promises to be an interesting program. Every effort is being made to make the evening one of fun and entertainment as well as one of instruction and literary work. The lawyers are busily engaged in the preparation of the case and a hard fight is expected.

The defendant, Armstrong, will be supported by lawyers Stanbery and Pearsons, while Poe and Stanton will represent the prosecution. Don't fail to hear the fate of this young culprit. Is he guilty or not guilty. The case will be settled Saturday night in Alpha Sigma Hall.

In spite of the fact that a great number of men were away from the Hill on account of two football games and a public speaking in town, the Alpha Sigma Hall was the scene of another good literary program on Saturday night, Oct. 9. The Junior Alphas met in joint session with the Senior section and helped in the program. The men are in earnest and the Society is going to keep up her past record of doing real literary work.

Now don't forget, at the Alpha Sigma Hall on next Saturday night at 6:30 o'clock.

DEBRIS

Several former Maryville students journeyed over from U. T. Saturday to see the football game. For instance, Ted Jellicorse, C. Raymond Griffitts, Emily Fowler and Ralph Smith.

Effie Erickson spent last week-end at her home in Athens, Tenn.

Robert W. Adams, staff correspondent of the Journal and Tribune "covered" the M. C.—Roanoke game last Saturday. Thanks, Bob, for the good write-up!

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sullinger, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wilson, Marguerite and Howard Sullinger, Ruth and Elizabeth Parham, Claire and Jean McMurray, and Bob Milling spent last week-end at Montvale Springs. A. W. Cullis, John Hendrick, Jarvis Cotton, "Cricket" Ellis, and Margaret Chandler also spent Sunday at Montvale.

Louise Duncum spent the week-end at her home in Knoxville.

Miss McSpadden was at her home in Concord over the week-end, and attended the circus at Knoxville Saturday evening.

The milk wagon being driven by James Brown last Thursday night, was struck by a speeding automobile on East Court St., damaging the wagon to a considerable extent and seriously injuring one of the horses. "Shimmy" and the boy who was with him escaped with only a few cuts and bruises.

The past four weeks of fair weather has enabled the work on the Thaw Memorial Hall to proceed rapidly.

Misses Jane Waller and Elizabeth Bassell entertained at the home of Mrs. Waller on High Street on Monday afternoon with a shower in honor of Miss Jessie Magill.

Mr. Curtis Brown, brother of Horace Brown '20, who attended M. C. during the year '15-'16, was on the Hill last week. He has returned to Roanoke, Va. where he has been working for some time.

Wonder why Dr. Gillingham's classes in Theism and Bible shed so many tears when he broke the news to them that he was going to be away for a week?

Misses Vera Ault and Leilla Simpson had as their guests last week-end, Misses Wetella and Margaret Ault and Elizabeth Simpson. A sumptious feast was given Saturday night in their honor.

Ethel Swindler, who has been very seriously ill during the past week, is reported to be improving slowly.

George D. McCurry, who was suffering from a slight attack of typhoid, was taken to his home at Philadelphia, Tenn., on Wednesday.

Mrs. Gorman, sister of Mrs. A. J. Stanbery of Maryville, has been serving temporarily as nurse at the College Hospital.

Lost, strayed, or stolen. The word "Defeat" which was supposed to be in last week's football headline. If you know where it went, please keep your mouth shut.

Miss Nellie Richeson and Miss Marian Faville of the Ernest Gamble Concert Company were entertained at dinner at the Boarding Club, Friday, September 15 by Messrs. Emory C. Fritz, Ralph Babylon and L. Bennett Montgomery. Miss Richeson lives in Covington, Ohio, the home town of the young men.

ELIGIBILITY IN ATHLETICS AND FORENSICS

In order that athletics and forensic contests may not militate against excellence of classroom work, but that they may become, in a measure, a direct aid in maintaining high standards of scholarship, the following regulations have been adopted, to apply to all athletic and forensic contests, except those that are intra-mural:

To be eligible to membership on any college team during the first semester, a student must enroll not later than the first Wednesday of October. To be eligible during the second semester, a student must enroll not later than the first week of that semester.

No person who is not a regularly enrolled student, carrying a minimum of fifteen hours of classroom work a week, shall represent the College in any athletic or forensic contest.

Whenever a student becomes a candidate for a place on any college team, the coach shall hand in his name to the registrar, who shall fill out the candidate's eligibility card to be submitted for the instructor's certification. On this card shall appear the name of the student, a list of all the classes for which he is scheduled, with blank spaces after each subject for the signature of the instructor in that subject. Every two weeks during the time that the student is a candidate for a position on any of these teams, the registrar shall present the candidate's card to his instructors for endorsement. The instructor shall attach his name to the card, provided that, during the preceding two weeks, the student has maintained a passing grade. The third Wednesday of the semester and every second Wednesday following shall be the dates for the presentation of the cards. Only those students whose cards have been duly endorsed by their instructors on any Wednesday designated for the presentation of the cards shall be eligible to participate in any athletic or forensic contest.

The Dean of the College shall give a copy of these regulations to the coach and to the captain of each team, and they shall be responsible for the enforcement of the rules.

At a ball game between a South Carolina negro team and a visiting team of similar nationality, a negro preacher was acting as umpire. The pitcher was somewhat wild and had allowed the bases to be filled. Another man came to the bat and the nervous pitcher shot one over.

"Ball one!" yelled the ump.

The pitcher tried again.

"Ball two", announced the ump.

Another effort by the hurler.

"Ball three!" greeted his efforts.

The pitcher saw his predicament and made one masterful effort to save the day.

"Ball four and the man's out", announced the ump.

"How come I'se out?" inquired the enraged batter.

"I'se repelled to put you out, nigger. Don't you see dar's nowhere else to put you?" reasoned the ump.

A STUDY IN ANATOMY

Queer ideas of anatomy newspaper reporters have if one may judge from the following statements culled from the columns of the Birmingham Press.

Colonel Hezaliar was shot in the ticket office.

The wounded man had been shot in the suburbs.

He kissed her passionately upon her reappearance.

She whipped him upon his return.

He kissed her back.

Mr. Jones walked in upon her invitation.

She seated herself upon his approach.

She fainted upon his departure.

I Doubt It

If a pair of red lips were upturned to your own,
With no one around to gossip,
Would you pray for endurance to leave them alone?
Maybe you would, but I doubt it.

If a tiny white hand you were permitted to hold
With a wonderful softness about it
Would you leave it and drop it with never a squeeze?
Maybe you would, but I doubt it.

If a tapering waist were in reach of your arm
With a womanly plumpness about it,
Would you argue the point 'twixt the right and the wrong?
Maybe you would, but I doubt it.

And if by these tricks you should win a heart
With a delicate sweetness about it,
Would you guard it and keep it and play the good part?
Maybe you would, but I doubt it.

ALUMNI NOTES

Dr. Edward Gale Evans Anderson '88, who was a student at Maryville for six years prior to his graduation, died at Knoxville on Tuesday, Sept. 28. He had been at work in his office only a few minutes before death came. Dr. Anderson was a half-brother of Lettie Evans Ensign who graduated at Maryville in 1883 and was teacher of Greek in the College for five years. Her husband, Charles E. Ensign, was a member of the class of '81. Two members of the present Junior class, Misses Julia Anderson and Janet Ensign, are neices of Dr. Anderson. Dr. Anderson was descended from a brother of Dr. Isaac Anderson, the founder of Maryville College.

Miss Almira Bassett '09 left Tuesday, September 28 for Ann Arbor, Michigan where she will spend the year in work towards the Master of Arts degree in the University of Michigan.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Mark May of Syracuse, New York, on September 19, a son, Samuel Casimere. Mrs. May was formerly Miss Ruby Patton '10, and Mr. May was a member of the class of '11. He is now a member of the faculty of Syracuse University.

Miss Carrie Sheddan '19 is teaching French and Home Economics in the High School at New Smyrna, Florida.

Perhaps the most responsible position held by any alumnus of Maryville is the position of Director of Education for the Philippines, which is now held by Mr. Luther B. Bewley of the class of '01. This position involves a far greater degree of responsibility and authority than is vested in educational directorships here Mr. Bewley has charge of every phase of the education of eight hundred thousand children attending five thousand schools. In this number are schools, forty grade schools, and school, forty grade schools, and more than a hundred agricultural schools.Mr. Bewley is a brother of Miss Irene Bewley of our Expression Department.

Miss Nellie Pickens, '13 left Monday, October 4, to take up teaching work at Lafayette, Illinois, near Chicago.

William A. Powell, '16 is entering Princeton Theological Seminary for his second year of work. He writes that he also expects to carry on work in Princeton University leading to the Master of Arts degree.

Mr. Fred H. Hope, '06 writes on September 23: "I soon start back for Africa, this time going alone. It is the hardest thing I have ever attempted, this going and leaving my family behind. However, I have seen enough of missionaries going and leaving their children so that I am convinced that what I am doing about it is the right thing. I or my children must do without their mother and I feel that it is my duty to do the doing without." Such heroism should make the old College proud.

Mr. Carl Victor Burger who was a student at Maryville from 1900 to 1903 was married to Miss Margaret Elmandorf Rothery at Wellesley, Massachusetts on September 18.

Miss Lena Aiken, '11 was married to Mr. J. Olin Waite at Malpeton, New York on June 26. Miss Aiken was in charge of the Biology department last year during Miss Green's absence. Her many friends among the students and on the faculty as well as her many alumni friends unite in congratulating Mr. Waite and in wishing for him and Mrs. Waite the greatest happiness.

Two learned publications of the past year by Maryville men, which have come to the Alumni Editor's notice are:

"Macrinus and Diadumenianus" by Henry Jewell Bassett, (Maryville, '04) a Dissertation submitted in Partial Fulfillment of the Requirements for the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the University of Michigan.

Resumo Da Geologia Do Brasil Para Accompanhar O Mappa Geologio Do Brasil by John C. Branner, President Emeritus of Leland Stanford, Jr. University. Dr. Branner was a student at Maryville for the three years immediately following the war, 1866-69.

Howard L. Wier, '13 formerly of Alpine, Texas has accepted a position on the faculty of Berea College.

Miss Mayme Maxey, '14 is teaching in the city schools at Jellico, Tennessee.

How Large is an Atom?

ATOMS are so infinitesimal that to be seen under the most powerful microscope one hundred million must be grouped. The atom used to be the smallest indivisible unit of matter. When the X-Rays and radium were discovered physicists found that they were dealing with smaller things than atoms—with particles they call "electrons."

Atoms are built up of electrons, just as the solar system is built up of sun and planets. Magnify the hydrogen atom, says Sir Oliver Lodge, to the size of a cathedral, and an electron, in comparison, will be no bigger than a bird-shot.

Not much substantial progress can be made in chemical and electrical industries unless the action of electrons is studied. For that reason the chemists and physicists in the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company are as much concerned with the very constitution of matter as they are with the development of new inventions. They use the X-Ray tube as if it were a machine-gun; for by its means electrons are shot at targets in new ways so as to reveal more about the structure of matter.

As the result of such experiments, the X-Ray tube has been greatly improved and the vacuum tube, now so indispensable in radio communication, has been developed into a kind of trigger device for guiding electrons by radio waves.

Years may thus be spent in what seems to be merely a purely "theoretical" investigation. Yet nothing is so practical as a good theory. The whole structure of modern mechanical engineering is reared on Newton's laws of gravitation and motion—theories stated in the form of immutable propositions.

In the past the theories that resulted from purely scientific research usually came from the university laboratories, whereupon the industries applied them. The Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company conceive it as part of their task to explore the unknown in the same spirit, even though there may be no immediate commercial goal in view. Sooner or later the world profits by such research in pure science. Wireless communication, for example, was accomplished largely as the result of Herz's brilliant series of purely scientific experiments demonstrating the existence of wireless waves.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER NOTES

Resume of Talk Given By W. T. Magill To Volunteers Thursday Night.

DAVID LIVINGSTONE

Livingstone was born at Blantyre, Scotland, March 19, 1813. His parents were poor and in humble conditions. His father, who was a tea merchant did missionary work as a colporteur while about his daily task. Thus the seed for missionary work was sown in the home.

David was forced to work in a factory while very young. With a Latin Grammar setting on the spinning-jenny, he learned to master Latin. At sixteen he was familiar with Virgil. Learning to think amid much confusion was invaluable to him when in the mission field. While working in the factory he was brought into intimate relations with his Heavenly Father.

He was very enthusiastic about going to China. But the Opium War closed this country to English missionary work. A year later he was stirred by the address of Moffatt, the pioneer missionary of Africa; with very litle persuasion he consented to give his life to the Dark Continent.

While waiting in Kuruman for definite orders to locate a station; he made a journey of seven hundred miles. Two years later we find him in the Tribe of Bakwains. Here he succeeded in converting the Chief, Sechele, who became of inestimable help to the religious welfare of his tribemen. Not satisfied here he pushes further northward, into the land of the Mabotsa. It was in this part of the country that he was attacked by a lion, the marks of which he carried to his grave. Just before entering the Mabotsa country he married Mary Moffat.

In 1848 Livingstone sent his family home to England because of his wife's ill-health. He, immediately began the preparation of a thousand mile journey. On this trip he was trying to find an outlet from interior Africa. In 1855 he discovered Victoria Falls, which surpass Niagara for beauty. He finally arrived at Quilvinave, a Portugese settlement. Livingstone was the first man to complete a cross-tour of the Continent. In 1857 he made a visit to England, during which time he published his "Missionary Travels".

Upon his return he brought with him a small steamer, the "Ma Robert". This steamer, however, proved to be a freak. Lake Nyasa was discovered in 1859. Two years later the English Government furnished him the steamer, "Pioneer". At the same time he purchased the "Lady Nyasa" which he intended to use in exploring Lake Nyasa. At this time Mrs. Livingstone joined him. They were together three months when she was called to her Heavenly Home. Words cannot express the grief of this tried "Soldier of the Cross".

In 1866 he began his last great journey. On this expedition he discovered Lakes Moers and Bangwelo. Livingstone had been in the depths of Africa almost two years and no word had been received from him. An expedition, financed by "The New York Herald", with Stanley as its leader, set out to find Livingstone. In 1871 these two white men met in the heart of Africa. At the time Livingstone was being wracked by the dreaded African fever. Recuperation was greatly helped by Stanley's arrival.

After Stanley's departure, Livingstone set out to explore the Lualaba River. This stream, he thought, would be the source of the Nile. We are thankful to say that he never finished his exploration because the Lualaba was only a tributary of the Congo. Fever was Livingstone's constant companion. In 1873 he passed to his Eternal Reward while upon his knees there in the little hut at Chitambo.

His heart was cut out and buried under a tree because his real heart was in Africa. His body was prepared for removal to his friends by his ever faithful companions, Susi and Chumah. In April, 1874, his remains were buried in Westminister Abbey. At last he was at rest after travelling 29,000 miles as a Messenger of Christ. This man who has made the History of Africa comes down to us as David Livingstone.

No account has been given in this short sketch of Livingstone's dealings with slavery, "the open sore of the world", because that part of his life would require volumes to tell the whole story.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER BAND HEARS MRS. BUCHANAN

Those who attended Volunteer meeting the other night were delightfully pleased to hear Mrs. Buchanan tell about the quaint customs and people of the beautiful land of Japan. Dressed in the costume of the Japanese girl, she told the story of the widow seeking peace in the religion of Jesus Christ and there found more than peace, the comfort of the soul.

Mrs. Buchanan passed around for inspection many household articles and novelties, unique to us Westerners but essential to the home of the Oriental. There were images of Buddah, prayer beads, ornaments, articles of clothing, and many other interesting things.

The great need of the field was felt as she told of the untouched districts, the demand for Christian ministers, teachers, doctors, business men, and statesmen. "The work of the Missionaries", she said, "is largely that of organizing." They go from locality to locality organizing and training, setting up here and there a congregation and leaving it to native leaders, then going elsewhere for the same purpose.

Anycne interested in Japan will find Mrs. Buchanan ready to help them in securing any information they desire.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

Prof. Jones spoke to the members of the Ministerial Association, Oct. 19th., on the subject of "Foreign Missions", emphasizing the peculiar needs of Siam. His message was greatly appreciated by all who heard him.

Regular business was transacted, and three new members taken into the organization. The chairman of the extension department of the Association reported that twenty-seven workers were in the evangelistic fields of Maryville and also holding services in Christian Endeavors, Sunday Schols, churches and jails. This work is growing and Yet There is Room.

STATE Y.M.C.A. REPRESENTATIVE ADVISES LOCAL CABINET

The Y. M. C. A. Cabinet met in Bartlett Hall, Tuesday at 12:10 to hear Mr. Comer, the State Y. M. C. A. Worker. Mr. Comer has had charge of Maryville work and is well acquainted with the field. He spoke on the phases of work the local organization could promote in order to cooperate fully with the State work. His strongest appeal was made for Hi-Y chaperones that would take charge of a Hi-Y Club. The importance of a Y. M. C. A. fellow living a straight, clear-cut, Christian life on the campus as well as off, was impressed on the men. The Hi-Y Clubs are organizations of Prep and High School fellows in clubs for self and school betterment.

DR. STEVENSON TALKS ON "THREE LIONS"

Dr. Stevenson, in Vesper services told the story of Samson slaying the lion, and brought out a lesson directed especially to young people who insist upon having their own way and disregard the advice of older people; for the roaring lion still is trodding the pathway of all such people.

One of these Lions which bars the way of young people is, "The Lion of Horrors"; but to all who overcome it, it is pleasure, sweetness, and joy. The wonderful achievements of Robert Louis Stevenson depend solely upon the fact that he conquered the Lion of Physical Weakness instead of yielding to it and being conquered.

Another Lion is that of Impudence, but it does not roar in your pathway any more dangerous than it does in the pathway of others. No man ever accomplished any thing who did not have any difficulties to encounter.

Again there is the Lion of Procrastination, and if you don't kill it, and kill it promptly, it is bound to get you, for he who does not what he can when he should, loses the opportunity.

The speaker concluded with the lines:

"I know of a land whose streets are paved
With things we meant to achieve;
It is walled with the money we meant to have saved,
And the pleasures for which we grieve.
Kind words unspoken, the promises broken,
And many a coveted boon
Are stowed away there in that land some where—
The Land of Pretty Soon.

The road that leads to that mystic land
Is strewn with pitiful wrecks;
And the ships that sail to its shining strand
Bear skeletons in their decks.
It is farther at noon than it was at dawn,
And farther at night than at noon;
O let us beware of that land down there—
The Land of Pretty Soon".

"TOUCHDOWNS" SCORED BY COLLEGE PASTOR

The world is better than it was fifty years ago because of the altruism and unselfish benefaction our fathers have added.

We are all bound to put back into the world as much at least as we get out, but shame on the man who gives to the world just as much as it gives to him.

Let the world be better because you have lived in it.

The object for which you are here is to fit yourself to back up what has been given you. Think of the inventions, the comfort, the liberty which has been purchased by the blood and sacrifice of others.

Fame and earthly renown are only shadows we cast.

There are many false trademarks on the outer side—don't be deceived.

Don't think that fortune is success.

Real living is not found in showing, but in being, and doing.

The qualities within us are what count.

Be honest, sincere, truthful, openhearted, just, and merciful—this is the type of man for which the world is seeking.

If life is necessary to make us noble, it is character that makes life.

Persistent hammering shapes the metal, and he truly lives who so takes the blows of daily life that they shape him into a noble life.

You cannot hope to attain the best of life here, but in the life to come.

If you stand above all earthly things you will possess the life that is life indeed.

YOU owe the world a debt.

The student body constitutes a class of highly selected lives.

The selection of Christ's apostles was not more definite than His call to you.

God has placed your opportunity in your hand; if you use it you will be a victor.

MIDDLE TENN. STATE NORMAL ACCEPTS CHALLENGE TO PLAY HERE SATURDAY

Coach Miles' Eleven Tuted to Be Strong, Experienced Machine.

Real Foot Ball Classic Expected Here Saturday Afternoon.

When a couple of well trained teams from the same state meet on an athletic field, and there match strength and skill in a football game, nothing less than a thrilling and close contest could be expected.

Hailing from the fair city of Murfreesboro, Tenn. is the well known football eleven of the Middle Tennessee State Normal School. A scrapping bunch they are, so we hear, and since our schedule was open for next Saturday the telegraph wires were kept hot by messages in transit between here and mid-state. Coach A. B. Miles was the recipient of messages at other end of wire, and he lost but little time in "sparking" back the answer that the challenging request for a game had been accepted.

The news served as a needed stimulus for the Maryville men. Yells, thuds and cheering pierced the air from the direction of the athletic field informing us all that preparations were being made for a game. Eager to hit the line again, the Highlanders will be in shape for the fray. A game as hard as the one with Roanoke College awaits our men, and for that reason a more strenuous training will be conducted this week in order that the Roanoke score of two weeks ago will look small in comparison to what is to be Saturday.

The Middle Tennesseans have a team that will make Maryville scratch the dust in order to win. This eleven from the middle of our state is said to be composed of men with three and four years football experience together. A team of men working together for three seasons should know the game well, and for that reason we say that M. C. is going to have a hard game next Saturday. Someone has it that this Normal School team went the whole season last year without meeting defeat. That spells something too since Vandy held the same squad of men to only a 35 to 0 score early this season.

Davidson and McMurray playing at right and left halfback for the Highlanders are expected to carry that old oval like they did in the Roanoke fray, and from all indications these two men will live up to our expectations. So will Beck and Ford, at full and quarter, play their parts in the movement of the football machine. We all will remember what Captain McMillin of Centre College eleven said about the "line". Yes it was the opponent's line that kept the Centre men from winning. All teams will be in strength largely what the line is in strength. With a group of offensive and defensive linemen like the Maryville fellows it is nothing but right that we should take on an optimistic air concerning the coming engagement. J. Hendrick and Wyncoup stationed on the outposts, Hicks and Sullivan pulling 'em down at tackle, C. McLaughlin and Sullinger or Drake serving as guards for the "big" Mac at center, make a compact line which will stand to the bitter end for the cause of the Orange and Garnet—the colors that will reign supreme on the grid-battlefield Saturday afternoon, rain or shine!

Who said we would step below the level and play the U. T. scrubs with our first team? Not yet do we, but a game may be scheduled for the second team in the near future. And when it is—look out U. T. scrubs!

A praying Politician is hard to find so they say, but a praying football team is another proving case that "Prayer Changes Things".

All football thought seems to take a trip towards the southland and the walloping the "Tec" squad will receive at the hands of Centre. (?)

"Funny isn't it? I wonder why the moonshiners don't moonshine more numerously to the football games—yeah I wonder?

The forward pass of opportunity comes your way often—do you make safe catches and net a gain towards a worthy goal?

YEAR'S FORENIC ACTIVITIES PLANNED

A Dual Debate With Wake Forest May Be Scheduled.

Prof. Hunter Will Again Coach All Debating Teams.

The Forensic League met last week to make some preparation for beginning its intercollegiate debating activities. At present it seems probable that the old triangle with Emory and Henry and Tusculum will be revised and that a dual debate may be scheduled with Wake Forest. This schedule will call for four teams or sixteen men, and the contest for the positions on the teams will be largely among the new men, as only six men of last year's teams are here.

There was never a better opportunity for new men to win these positions, so everyone is hoping that a large number of fellows will determine to try out in the preliminaries and make Maryville's forensic activities a great success.

The work is carried out under the efficient coaching of Professor Hunter. Nothing more need be said for him than that last year under his leadership Maryville won seven victories out of eight contests. And the contest that was lost was neither a discredit to him nor to Maryville's representatives on the team.

The questions for the first preliminaries will be given out in about a week so if you are thinking of trying out, hand in your name to Herrick Arnold, or Oscar Stanton, or Professor Hunter. The date set for the perliminaries is December 20th. Already several fellows have signified their intentions of trying out and we are hoping that many more will catch the Old Maryville Spirit and try out with the determination to make this a banner year for Maryville's debating activities. Whether you win or lose it will be a great experience and a wonderful training for you.

TO TELL OF HUNT FOR LOST CITIES

Dr. E. J. Banks, Noted Archaeologist to Speak Here on October 29th.

Illustrations Will Be Used to Picture Products of Ancient Cvilization.

Dr. Edgar J. Banks, noted archaeologist, will deliver his famous lecture, "Digging for Buried Cities in Babylonia", Frday evening, October 29th., at 8 p. m., as the second number of the Lyceum.

Babylonia, regarded by many as the cradle of the human race, presents many fascinating problems, none more fascinating than the unravelling of the story of civilization past and gone, and now revealed by the labor of such students as Dr. Banks. He was formerly a teacher in Robert College in Constantinople, and has had opportunity for for thorough research into the records of the past, hidden by the debris of centuries, the results of which are now available to the public through these splendidly illustrated lectures.

He is a leading authority on the ancient civilization of Western Asia. He is a pleasing speaker and presents in a most entertaining way the results of his investigations in the lands of the Bible.

Boys, just a word of advice, in the words of a well known speaker, "Shine, stag, or try".

KENTUCKIANS ENJOY AN AFTERNOON OF FUN

The Corn Crackers, all loyal to their dear old state, assembled out near the College Woods Monday afternoon, for a good old-fashioned time. In order to become better acquainted and to do it quickly the fun was started by each one telling his name, his exact age, and what part of the state he hailed from. Some were from Flax Patch, some from Goose Creek, some from Happy Hollow and a few of the elite praised themselves because of the fact that they were inhabitants of the Blue Grass section. To be more exact, near Lexington and Richmond. But whether from the Blue Grass or from the Sticks, they were well represented by such characters as King David, Elizabeth, Lee, and Moore—of 'em. Then they had music in the form of a Strong cornet and "led" by a Star. Not many clubs are thus represented and every one present on this special occasion enjoyed a genuine good time. Many games were played which were suggestive of childhood days in Kentucky. Last, but by no means least, the Farmer led them out for eats. A better feed was never seen in any other place except in Kentucky. The afternoon is a happy memory in the mind of each one who was present. There are other good times in store for this lively bunch. Watch them!

1871 GRADUATION CLASS WILL CELEBRATE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Charles E. Tedford of New Carlisle, Ohio, delivered an address at the Chapel Service last Friday morning. Rev. Tedford graduated in the class of 1871, and soon after his graduation was two years a pastor of the New Providence Presbyterian Church of Maryville. He has been in Ohio for the past forty years.

The only living members of the class of '71, Rev. Tedford, Dr. Duncan of Magdalena, New Mexico, and Mr. James A. Goddard of Maryville, are planning to celebrate the semi-centennial anniversary of their graduation here next commencement. It will be the first such celebration in the history of the College.

Y.W. WEEK-END FROLIC AT MONTVALE ENJOYED BY ONE HUNDRED GIRLS

Miss Green, Miss Jewell and Mrs. McMurray Are Declared Ideal Chaperones.

Group Made Early Morning Ascent to Look Rock.

(By Martha Robison)

On Saturday afternoon all precedents were broken and an entirely new one established when the first truck load of girls left for Montvale accompanied by boxes of eats and numberless suit cases. Miss Almira Jewell was chaperon for that crowd and a good one she made! Soon the campus was behind and the mountains drew closer and closer with their brilliant reds and yellows, and then Montvale and the hotel and cooking supper around the campfires.

In due time the other trucks chaperoned by Miss Green and Mrs. McMurry anrived, and all the girls registered and established themselves in the hotel. After supper they gathered around the campfire and sang. Susan Carson read a story about Matrimony, Bernice Kimble sang and Mrs. McMurry told ghost stories. If you want a new stock just go to her. Some of the girls had real ones which were as scarey as any ever read in books. Everybody rose at 3:30 in the morning to see the sun rise from Look Rock. The walk under the bright morning stars was wonderful; and then as night faded and morning dawned the purples that Ruskin tells about settled on the mountains, followed by pinks and reds and delicate golds and at last the full glory of the blazing sun. How impressive were "In The Garden", "Send Out The Life Line", and "Let the Lower Lights be Burning", up there, almost in the clouds. The day was one of rest, of stretching in the sun and sleeping and thinking. Almost at twilight the Vesper Service was held, Jennie Montgomery leading. The girls will not soon forget the story of the giant's garden as read by Ruth Quinn, and the Ninteenth Psalm will always stand out in memory as well did Mildred Kimble read it. After supper the girls were loath to leave the bonfires, feeling that the last night was too precious to lose a minute of it. They sang all the old favorites, beginning with "Now the Day is Over" and "Day is Dying in the West", and ending with "Perfect Day". Monday was spent in visiting the lakes, exploring the hills, and coming home—the last truck arriving in time for supper. The girls are unanimous in saying that they never had so good a time in all their lives, and that there must be another in the spring. The weather, the sun, the moon, the stars, the leaves, everything combined to make a perfect week-end.

ON THE HIKE

"Aren't the stars wonderful! Do you see the dipper? There's Polaris. What star is that just above us?"

"Don't you just love to lie here in the sun and sing and look and talk?"

"Isn't it wonderful to think that you don't have a thing to do, but do as you please?"

"Where'd you get that holly with berries on it?"

"Have you washed the dishes? Be sure to get them clean, the chaperons are to be our guests."

Louise Farrar fell into the Lake, but she wasn't drowned, wasn't even frightened and didn't have to be rescued.

Rebecca Calderwood and five others got lost on the way to Look Rock and on the way back and

CIRCUIT COURT & PRESIDENTIAL CONVENTION

Armstrong Found Guilty of Bootlegging.

Athenians Hold Mock Presidenial Convention.

If you were not in the Alpha Sigma Hall on last Saturday night, you missed one of the "snappiest" trials ever held. The trial was full of pep and interest from the very beginning until the verdict of guilty was pronounced.

Stanton and Poe of the State prosecuted Ralph Armstrong for selling intoxicating liquors to students, and Stanbery and Pearsons were lawyers for the defense. Stanton, of the prosecution, showed the jury where it would be a menace to let such a character go free. Poe showed that, by the evidence, the defendant was guilty, while Stanbery made an eloquent convincing plea and Pearsons appealed to the intelligence of the jury.

Although it bore the name of a mock trial, there was no foolishness nor comedy in it. Every one was seriously interested in the outcome and the lawyers plead the case as if it were a matter of life and death.

If you missed that program, be sure you don't miss the next one Let's every one come out on next meeting night and enjoy a good program.

ATHENIAN

Only two meetings of the Athenian Literary Society have been held so far this year, but already some good material is being developed among the new members of the society as well as the usual good grade of literary work among the old members.

Saturday night's program was particularly interesting in this period of political excitement preceding our national presidential election. The program consisted of a mock Socialist Convention for the purpose of nominating a Socialist candidate for the Presidency.

Mr. Forrest Brown was apointed chairman of the National Committee and made the opening address. The nominees were as follows: Waltham, Waddell, Bramford, and Beard. Most eloquent and fiery speeches were made by way of introducing each candidate and excitement reached a high pitch. Mr. Waltham however, was finally elected and duly appointed the Socialist candidate for the coming Presidential electors and his campaign men launched forth with great success.

It was only a mock convention, but this program brought out some good material in several new members. The program afforded an excellent opportunity to bring out the literary work of Athenian and, as always, it was right up to the usual high standard.

GREEN ROOSTER CLUB

The students from Greene and Cocke Counties met Wednesday, October the twentieth, and elected the following officers:

Eugene Stanbery - - President
Willie Bewley - Vice President
Hugh Maloney Allen - Secretary-Treasurer
D. F. Wadell - - - Editor

This is probably the first time in the history of the College that these two counties have been represented in one club, so there are no precedents to follow, but no doubt there are going to be some established by this club. This is "the club with a purpose."

Rumors drifting south through Maryville from the Old Dominion have it that Emory and Henry backers are already discussing appropriate ways in which to celebrate their victory over M. C. on November 20. Last year the Emory and Henry aggregation lost to Maryville 49 to 12, but according to advance dope on the Virginians, they have, this year a team far superior to any eleven ever turned out by their school. No doubt Emory, Va., will be the scene of much fur-flying on November 20.

Just because Tusculum have lost their immortal Campbell and have exhausted at last the long lineage of Doaks, is no reason for supposing that they will uncork a fight on Turkey Day with only a two and a half per-cent kick in it. VESPER SERVICE

Theme, "Workers" Text, Mark 13:34. The speaker, by way of introduction, spoke of the period of great prosperity which we have enjoyed the past few years in this country, and also of the dearth of laborers and the willingness on the part of employers to pay exorbitant wages, in order that they might secure workmen. The speaker then proceeded to parallel the situation in the business world today, with the situation in the religious and moral realm. The cause of Christ has been advancing too, but there is a scarcity of workers in christian activities.

This dearth in the ranks of Christian workers he attributed to three reasons, viz: some don't care to work, some are not fitted for work, some are too particular about the work they care to undertake.

Our Pastor then spoke of the nature of the work God expects us to do. First of all He expects us to present our bodies a Living Sacrifice, wholly acceptable unto Him. This necessitates scrupulous care of the body and the observance of common sense rules of hygiene. Impaired bodies mean deficiency in both quantity and quality of work. The body is the temple of the Holy Spirit and must be clean and function poperly.

Secondly, our minds and bodies are so closely correlated that to dwarf one, spells disaster for the other. We must be very careful what we feed our minds upon, for our minds are influenced by what we see, hear and read.

Then too, we must be careful in using time. If time is money, some of us are exceedingly extravagant. A ray of light travels 11,600,000 miles per minute. A minute may seem trivial, but life and death may hang in the balance in so brief a space of time.

The importance of personal work was emphasized by the speaker. Every young man and woman is called to do some personal work.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

Did you see that bunch of boys and girls on Baldwin lawn Monday afternoon? If so, did you guess the reason? It was a surprise birthday party given by Misses Rachel Higginbotham and Henrietta Jackson in honor of Miss Mabel Dougherty and Mr. Jimmie Jackson. And useless to say, the honorees were both surprised and pleased. The exclamations of surprise and delight were many as the little tokens of remembrance and love were unwrapped and brought to view.

The guests were: Misses Stella Combs, Gladys Ricks, Katyleen Alexander, Ethel Black, Annie May King, and Ruth Avery; and Messrs. Reuel Gorham, Jimmie Barker, Edgar Martin, Tom Vance, Ralph Armstrong, and Delemo Beard.

Miss Jackson came out and played "drop the handkerchief" with them, and didn't fall a time. It was a wonder, too, for nearly everyone else tried it once or twice. Jimmie said the grass was too slick for him.

After two birthday cakes and ice cream cones had been eaten, everybody expressed their delight and best wishes, and departed wishing that somebody else would have a birthday real soon. Who's next?

BO-HEE CLUB TAKES TRIP TO SMOKIES

The Bo-Hee Club is the only organization that returned 100 per cent strong to the Hill this year. They do not advertise themselves, herald their purposes, or solicit members. Only through the loss of an old member can a new one be elected. Their influence, exerted silently, is yet very powerful.

All organizations, like individuals need a change of environment, so Saturday afternoon each Bohemian betook himself to the great Smokey Mountains and dwelt with the Spooks, Elves, and other disembodied Spirits, communing with them and sharing their grapes, persimmons, haws, muskadines and other dainties prepared by the great I Am, eating just enough vulgar bread and bacon to remind them of their fleshy habitat.

We do not wish to dwell upon such things as blistered feet, aching bones and weary bodies that befall all mountain hikers, but rather to call our readers attention to the wondrous feelings that come to one as he stands upon the pinnacle of the mighty Gregory's Bald Mountain and beholds the wrinkled, rugged face of the earth that gave him his birth, the little river twisting and twining like a silver serpent thru the foothills, and the snow-white clouds that are driven by the ever-rushing winds.

The Bohemians advise that if you want to learn something of the bigness of the Creator, the pleasantness of Nature and the inner soul of your companions go to the highest of the Great Smokies even though it takes three or four days of your worthless, busy time.

had to go about five miles out of their way.

Alice Robison discovered that it is a good idea to roast your weiner black, then you won't notice such minor details, as dirt or ashes, should you accidentally drop it.

Harriet Green heard that charcoal is good for people, and so managed to get her toast slightly scorched just for the sake of health.

About fourteen decided to walk home, and walk they did. Yea they ran, loped, trotted and raced to see who would be first back on College Hill. When they struck a piece of rocky road, Margaret Willis who is studying chemistry said, "The road is just like a catalylie agent, it increases or retards our speed, without itself being affected."

The first of the "walkers" to arrive on the Hill were Mildred Kimble, Elizabeth Dumas and Martha Robison who made the trip in less and two and one half hours.

Bernice Jones, Stella McCall and Margaret McKinney slept out on the ground where they could get a taste of real fronteer life. A bear and all her cubs visited them one night and woke them up with their noisy grunts.

Since the hike Mary Mason is advocating a back-to-nature campaign in which she suggests that, when the boarding club serves either potatoes or weiners, it have a big fire and let each one roast his own.

Literature students found ample reasons for the greatness of Muir, Thoreau, Burroughs and Ruskin Some brilliant Senior even suggested that a hike to the mountains every week would doubtless have the effect of making Muirs or Ruskins of us all.

Dorothy Dickerson found ample chance for the correct use of "wonderful" and "grand", and cheerfully instructed astonished Seniors as to the only times when such words are appropriate.

Mrs. McMurry, Miss Green and Miss Jewell made the best chaperons imabinable. Even getting up at 3:30 did not phase them.

The singing was good early in the morning on Look Rock, in the parlor and on the porch as well as on the lawns in the day time, and around the fires at night. "She who hath no music in her—did not go on this hike."

Mr. and Mrs. Pflanze gave each girl a sweet potato to roast for dinner Monday! All the time they were doing things to make the girls have a good time—and they certainly succeeded.

"Everybody looks so rested and care-free" remarked one of the girls as she looked at the others in the group. And indeed, that was the effect of the hike. The strained, nervous look was lost and a happy, peaceful one took its place.

Edith Moore was the only one who found a spring on the way up to Look Rock in the dark, though everyone saw four on the way back.

Ask Margaret McKinney and Louise Sheddan how to make cocoa without water, sugar or cocoa. It is a rare art.

VOLUME SIX MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, NOVEMBER 4, 1920 NUMBER SIX

EFFECTIVE INTERFERENCE OF M. T. S. N. BAFFLES HIGHLANDERS

RECEIPT OF PASS AND 71 YARD DASH BY DAVIDSON, AND PLAYING OF NORMAL'S QUARTERBACK FEATURE GAME.

Maryville, Considerably Outclassed, Put Up A Stubborn Fight Throughout the Game. Score 40 to 14.

Both teams, confident of victory, sauntered onto the grid, called a few signals for light warming-up practice, tried a few placement picks and then the two Captains conferred with the referee in midfield. They watched a piece of Uncle Sam's mint flutter upward and fall to the ground—the eagle was "up". That meant that Middle Tennessee would receive the kick-off.

"Ready Normal?— Ready Maryville?" was asked by the referee and by the wave of a hand "yea" was given. Refreee Crawford blew his whistle and the game, which in its infancy branded the Highlanders as losers, was on in earnest. Normal's eleven tried to make a hole in the Maryville line two or three times, but of course failed. Then on the fourth down a sweeping end run by R. Smith, Middle Tennessee's crack quarterback, resulted in first down and a big gain well into Maryville's territory. In this run the splendid interference, furnished for the sprinting, experienced quarter, revealed to the Highlanders what was to last throughout the game. Another circling end run was attempted and seemingly was successful. But Umpire Henry seeing a State Normal man holding off a Maryville fellow, recalled the play and penalized the Normal squad fifteen yards from the place of tackling the man without the ball. A third run via the end post was attempted and resulted in the same thing. Realizing that tackling a man not carrying the ball wouldn't pay, the visitors broke through right end on a shift play and carried the oval across on a second trial. Jarrett attempted goal and failed.

Normal kicked off to Davidson who returned fifteen yards. Maryville achieved apparently little success in carrying the oval, and were forced to kick. McMurray punted to Smith who fumbled, Jimmy Hendrick recovering on Normal's forty yard line. On the next play McMurray heaved a mighty pass, which Davidson miraculously snaked in and carried to the three yard line. A few line bucks followed, and Ford put it over. McMurray kicked goal.

About the middle of the second quarter the man who starred for Maryville again came into light. The Highlanders received, and not being well stabalized as to the plays to make, were held for two downs on the spot to which McMurray had carried the ball. Signals were called for a third charge and then it happened. Our linemen made a hole, the low, charging form of halfback Davidson stepped in. Plunging though, he dodged a State Normal tackle, stepped over one of his own men, tucked the oval under his left wing and charged down the field for seventy-one yards to the rear of the goal. A "Normal" player gave chase all the while but was kept at a distance of three to four paces. That seventy-one yard dash created emotional excitement among the spectators who packed the sidelines to see the stunt well done. Sidelines, did I say? Right-o, but there were a few backers near the goal crossed, and one of the few was Dr. Wilson who gladly stepped forward and gave Davidson a hand-grasp he will never forget. To make the play more complete a goal was needed, and McMurray's toe did the work. The cheering led by "Chec" Minarik increased in volume because the score was 14 to 13 in Maryville's favor, and the Interference of the Tennessee Normal was not proving so effective after all.

Every one of the Maryville fellows played hard, hit hard and got hit hard. "Big McLaughlin and Sullivan received the hardest punishment and were relieved by Nagle and Sullinger who bore the burden well the rest of the game. C. McLaughlin played two parts according as the team was on defensive or offensive. He took Big Mac's place on offensive and guard on defensive playing. Beck, at full, played his part for results favorable to his team. The tackling of Hicks and Sullivan checked many gains that the "Smith Trio" insisted on attempting. The backfield and line alike played a good brand of football, and Captain Ford showed up well in the selecting and calling of plays needed to meet the occasion.

FIRST QUARTER

Jarrett of Normal carried the ball over for the first touchdown but failed to kick goal. Davy received and returned for fifteen yards. Held for three downs, McMurray kicked, and Hendrick recovered a fumble on Normal's forty yard line. A pass, McMurray to Davidson, put the ball on the three yard line. A few line bucks and Ford carried it across. McMurray kicked goal.

Middle Tennessee made first down after the kick-off and continued to gain consistently. The quarter ended with the ball on M. C.'s twenty-eight yard line in Normal's possession. Score— M. C. 7; M. T. S. N. 6.

SECOND QUARTER

A pass and an end run rushed the ball through Maryville's territory for Middle Tennessee's second touchdown.

McMurray returned the ball to the twenty-nine yard line. Davidson carried the oval seventy-one yards for M. C.'s second touchdown.

Score—M. C. 14; M. T. S. N. 13.

THIRD QUARTER

The ball was returned twenty-five yards by Davy. M. C. was held for downs and lost the ball on an intercepted pass. M. C. recovered the ball, kicked in her own territory, and the ball was returned by R. Smith for a touchdown.

Another pass of M. C.'s was intercepted for a twenty-five yard gain for Normal. Three end runs put the ball across for another six points, making the score—M. C. 14. M. T. S. N. 27.

FOURTH QUARTER

An intercepted pass and end rushes netted two more touchdowns for the visitors. Another pass was later snatched by a Normal man, and the quarterback carried the ball across. The game ended with the score—M. C. 14; M. T. S. N. 40.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL RESEARCHES DESCRIBED

Dr. Edgar J. Banks Speaks on The Subject, "Digging For Buried Cities in Babylonia"

Second Number of The Y. M.-Y. W. Lyceum Course.

(By Herrick R. Arnold, Associate Editor)

A lecture entitled "Digging for Buried Cities in Babylonia", because of previous experiences with other similar lectures, probably brings to the minds of most of us vague, uninteresting visions of dry, crumbling mummies and wierd, undecipherable hieroglyphics that resemble nothing more than the indefinite and irresponsible wanderings of an old hen and several chickens. It was with much pleasure and interest therefore, that we listened on last Friday evening to a lecture on this subject that swiftly dispelled all such visions and forebodings, and made even the confirmed moonshiner forget for an instant, to gaze ardently and admiringly, into the sparkling eyes of his adored one, and prick up his ears in real lively interest.

Dr. E. J. Banks, the speaker of the evening, was far from being the typical, dry, absent-minded, old scientist that we usually imagine as forever digging around musty, antiquated ruins, and chasing rare beetles. Instead he proved to be an intensely alive and energetic American, full of his subject, and holding the interest of his audience from the very beginning. By means of his vivid descriptions, supplemented by beautiful stereopticon views, he conducted his hearers on a tour through that birthplace of man known as Babylonia.

In a very short space of time he conducted his touring party to the sources of those historical rivers, the Tigris and the Euphrates, and thence in quaint old house-boats, down these old streams, through some of the most beautiful scenery in the world, and into some of the oldest and most historical spots. Places that figured in Bible history and in the history of the very beginnings of the human race.

By means of pictures he took his audience to the summit of Mount Ararat, at an elevation of more than seventeen thousand feet, a point so difficult to attain, that only fourteen men, including Dr. Banks, have ever been known to reach it. Dr. Banks has the distinction of being the first American to set foot upon this point. His description of the strenuous, nerve-racking climb to the snow-clad summit of this mountain was clear and vivid, and his pictures gave us a small conception of the rugged grandeur of this old historical monument.

He showed the picture of the oldest statue in the world, the image of a king that ruled ages ago, and told the interesting story of its discovery, by Abbas, one of his workers. Many other interesting phases of his work were discussed by him in his interesting style, including his description of the various peoples with whom he came in contact, especially his experiences among the Armenians. He has witnessed several of the horrible massacres of these people, in one of which some eighty thousand were killed.

Dr. Banks is a leading authority in the ancient and modern civilization of Western Asia, and his lecture proved a valuable and instructive part of our Lyceum Course. If the future numbers are to be as worthwhile as this one, we can look forward to much pleasure and profit from the series of entertainments to be given.

HALLOWE'EN FESTIVITIES STAGED BY ALL CLASSES LAST WEEK

WITCHES, BLACK CATS, GHOSTS AND GOBLINS OF SINISTER TYPES LURKING IN EVERY DARK CORNER; FORTUNE TELLERS IN VOGUE AT ALL PARTIES.

Juniors Stave Off Disaster to Refreshment Department; Claim Their Heads Upholstered Diferent from Seniors.

SENIOR

Who said the Seniors didn't have a Hallowe'en party? Why it is impossible to get ahead of this lively class. We rushed the goblins and witches up a day or so and celebrated Hallowe'en on last Wednesday night at Jeannette Hibbert's. The very thought of going two miles out in the country was in itself thrilling—and a joy to the hearts of moonshiners. We began to feel the spirit of Hallowe'en when we came in sight of the house, for from every window shone a Jack O'Lantern, and on the porch were apples on strings, apples in tub, and other Hallowe'en decorations. Progressive contests were played inside, at various tables. We also had the extreme pleasure of feeling bits of "Dick Worthington's" dead cat!—and in a dark room at that! Then Martha displayed her talent in photography and we would recommend her to Mr. Webb as assistant, so well did she portray our likenesses. Last but not least, there was ice cream all dressed up with marshmellows and cherries, and three kinds of cake. It was with reluctance that we bade the Hibberts goodnight. We had the best kind of a time, and the nicest part about it is they liked us so well that we are invtied out again for a lawn party when spring-time comes.

JUNIOR

And it came to pass in those days that the chosen ones of the Hill, even the Juniors, purposed in their hearts to stage a blowout, an joyful occasion, yea, even an party. Selah.

And when they found themselves seized of such an idea they forthwith set themselves about doping out the aforesaid function, yea even to the framing up of it.

Now there dwelt in the same land a ruler whose power extended to the limits of the land, unto the tribe of Pearson and unto the tribe of Baldwin and unto the tribe of Memorial, yea, even unto those who resided in Carnegie. Moverover, this ruler was a woman, which made the yoke borne by her subjects even the more tough to tote. Selah.

And it came to pass that this ruler commanded the Juniors saying: "If thou dost first take unto thyselves chaperons thou mayest go to it, but, behold, if thou dost not take unto thyselves chaperons it shall be that I will set my pedal extremity upon your scheme, yea even my foot shall be upon it." This law has endured through all generations and he who has disobeyed it is not Accordingly the Juniors gat for their chaperons two persons from the Facultite (very tite) tribe who were called, in direct address, Dr. and Mrs. McMurray.

And when the elect had gat chaperons they fell upon every kopeck, every bean, yea, every dollar which came into their paws, even into their mitts and swapped them for groceries that they might again acquaint themselves with the sensation of wearing the old feed bag, even the sensation of feeding the face.

And it was that when the multitudes were rearing to go a (tolerably) certain young man, a strawberry blonde called Rouge Caldwell, yea, even Red Caldwell, said unto them: "Behold thou hast found favor in my sight and it doth please me to ask thee to pull thy stunt in mine abode, that is, in the house of my father."

And when the Juniors looked upon the arrangements they saw that they were good.

An it came to pass that they arose and girded themselves with fancy scenery and journeyed to the dwelling place of the Caldwells. Selah.

Now there were in these same parts certain Seniors, known of all men for their knavery. And it came to pass that certain men snuck up to the back door, yea, even to the screen door of the house of feasting and made an effort to swipe, purloin, or otherwise procure, the eats. But it so chanced that the head of a Junior is upholstered differently inside from that of a Senior, and therefore the Juniors were able to mock the prowlers saying: "Wotto. Thou lookest hungry. Wouldst hook our ice cream? Nay. It cannot be did."

And behold, it was not did. And it came to pass that the Juniors made merry until a late hour, verily, they had an hot time. Selah.

And when the hour had come in which darkness was to be upon the land and the matrons upon the porches, they departed two by two, into their own land.

Moreover, even though they awoke the following morning with a first class headache and a dark brown taste per each, they say, even to this day: "'Twas an heck of a time." Selah.

SOPHOMORE

Hallowe'en, the night on which witches fly about the country, when black cats prowl around, and Jack-O'Lanterns grin on every fence corner, has long been a memorable night at Maryville. For, on that night, the classes have their parties. They, truly, appreciate the kindness of the faculty and desire to thank them for this privilege.

The Sophomore Class is especially grateful to Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson. Their beautiful home was turned over to the class and their gracious hospitality was extended to all. Everyone felt that it was good just to have been there.

And did the Sophomores have a good time? They surely did! From the time they started through the Woods until they arrived home, (five minutes late by Miss Molly's actual count), they were having a glorious time.

For some time, the boys were quite busy hunting girls who would consent to talk and be talked to for three minutes, and then the girls were supremely happy as they sought partners for each conversation.

The stunts were new and catchy. That old witch, brewing her broth, foretold many a youth's future—and whatever she prophesied will surely come to pass. There were few who dared to be lifted clear to the ceiling but they enjoyed the novel experience. The Dux family made many ardent admirers, and zoology students learned the most important parts of a cat. (By the

Dr. Barnes' classes wouldn't much care if election days came oftener.

Some people sing like nightingales while others sing like gales in the night.

At a Senior party last Wednesday evening:—After playing interesting games and singing popular songs, "a delicious ice course was served."

If you have something against a fellow-student, we would rather you would not try to take it out on him through the medium of the ECHO. We are short on space for such articles!

* * *

Judging from the accounts of the class parties held Saturday evening, there was no dearth of hideous witches, horrible spooks, and prowling black cats throughout Maryville on that particular evening.

* * *

Our team will depart for Georgetown, Ky., on Friday to meet the Orange and Black machine which came to Maryville and defeated us thirteen to seven last year. Let's give the team a rousing big "send-off" at the station Friday!

* * *

A variety of excitement was afforded the College fellows on Tuesday night in the form of election returns, soap-box orations, "rough stuff", etc. If you were not on Maryville's main thoroughfare Tuesday night you missed a lot of fun.

* * *

The program for the College's celebration of Armistice Day is being worked out by Dr. Stevenson. As the ECHO goes to press the program has not been entirely completed, but this much may be authoritatively announced: There will be special Chapel Exercises after which there will be no recitations.

* * *

True, the football season has been rather disappointing to Maryvillians so far this season, but we should not let defeat dampen our spirit of support for the team. The three teams which administered defeat to the Highlanders are very strong and obviously very much superior to our squad. Three games are yet to be played with teams of our own caliber, so that the credit side of our football ledger may show a balance after all.

SCANDAL

A girl has been rooming in Carnegie Hall. When this startling rumor came to the ears of the Ex. Editor he made immediate investigation. The rumor is well founded.

Born to Prof. and Mrs. Hyden, a baby girl—congratulations.

When Moses slept with his forefathers, were there five in a bed?

HERE AND THERE

Ruth Avery who burned her hand a short itme ago in her zeal for chemical knowledge is still having to wear it bandaged.

Mrs. J. B. S. Alexander took great pleasure in casting her first vote Tuesday.

Miss Willodine McIver, commonly known as "Billy", spent Sunday in Maryville. Billy hasn't changed a bit.

Miss Esther Miller has as her guest Miss Ruby Stone of Toledo who will be here for the week.

Miss Miller delightfully entertained for Miss Stone Monday afternoon.

Misses Esther Miller and Helen Morrow, it is understood, each received generous boxes from home recently.

Margaret Grooms who has been ill for several days is reported some better. Her many friends, especially at table 30 are longing for her to be up again.

Ethel Doctor who was in the hospital last month has recovered and is attending classes.

Hazel Cleveland has been suffering from an attack of old fashioned "grip".

Mrs. E. R. Hunter was an honor guest in 429 Pearsons Monday night, her hostesses being Helen Morrow and Grace Sydenstricker.

Mrs. J. N. Killough was likewise entertained in 401 Pearsons from 9:30 till 9:55 Monday night.

There has been an unusually large amount of visiting on the Hill this week end, due partly to the Teachers' Insitute which was held in Knoxville.

Miss Josephine Hamilton, a Freshman of last year, who is now teaching in Middle Tennessee, came over Saturday night. She is as full of fun as ever.

Miss Florence Oates of Knoxville made Pearsons girls glad by a visit. She had twenty new jokes and thought up twenty more absolutely original ones before she left.

Mrs. J. L. Whitlock and daughter of Jonesboro, were the guests of Miss Elizabeth Whitlock for the week end. They were delightfully entertained at the Mary Blount Saturday night.

Miss Anna Buffat, sister of our faithful Sport Editor, and Miss Lulu Wallace, both of Knoxville, spent Saturday and Sunday on the Hill.

Mr. Dudley Tanner, Superintendent of the Harriman City Schools, visited the College on Saturday.

Miss Mildred Campbell, '20 visited her many friends on the Hill last week.

Mr. John Montgomery spent last week-end with relatives and friends in Maryville.

Miss Mayme Maxey, '14, attended the Chapel Exercises on last Friday morning.

Miss Lucile Middleton, a member of last year's Fourth Preparatory Class, is engaged in community work for the Presbyterian Sunday School Board in the vicinity of Phoenix, Arizona.

Ralph Smith '19, Raymond Griffitts, Florence Oates, and William Cox drifted over from Knoxville last Saturday to see Maryville lose a football game to M. T. S. N.

Miss Rough calls herself a human dynamo, because everything she has on is charged.

"Down Fido", said Tex as he swallowed his Saturday evening sausage.

Misses Ruth Abbey and Thelma Adair spent last week-end at their homes in Harriman.

Another popular visitor from Birmingham was Mrs. J. N. Killough who came to see her nephews Carl Moore and Harry Bannister, and incidentally she arrived just in time for the Second Prep party. In fact the Birmingham crowd was in high spirits this week-end, until Tuesday when they contemplated turning indigo blue.

The girls had an unusual treat Sunday night when Mrs. J. N. Killough of Birmingham sang "The Holy City" at both Junior and Senior Y. W. Mrs. Killough is one of Birmingham's leading musicians, being an active member of the Music Study Club and similar organizations, as well as being constantly in demand for both chorus and solo work.

Sunday afternoon Miss Molly was quite alarmed by an unusual sound. On investigation she found that Margaret McKinney had just discovered her mother and father who had come all the way from Birmingham to surprise her. Mr. and Mrs. McKinney have a number of friends from Alabama on the Hill who were almost as glad to see them as was Margaret herself. They all hope that the next visit will be in the near future. Miss Mary Mason "chaperoned" Margaret McKinney to Knoxville Monday to bid Mr. and Mrs. McKinney farewell.

Julian Eltinge had better look to his laurels. An impersonator, none other than John Rodgers, has been found. She (he) and husband (Nuchols) certainly made a charming couple. Did you notice them at the Lyceum, Friday night? Costume by Bob Perry.

HALLOWE'EN AT BAINONIAN

Burns' "Tam O'Shanter" in Pantomine—Feature of Program.

Ghosts, Jack-O'Lanterns, witches, and cats made Bainonian Hall a veritable haunt for the spirits of Hallowe'en last Saturday night. The entire program intensified this feeling of weirdness. Miss Sullinger left the realm of classic music and showed what sort of "Ghosts" a well rendered piano solo can call to mind. Miss Blank warned her audience of goblins as she interpreted "Little Orphan Annie" in a most excellent manner. And then a splendid violin solo by Miss Messler followed by a solo, the "Haunts of the Witches", by Miss Gamble—how the ghosts did multiply and the witches dance as she sang! Miss Rutherford told us of Hallowe'en charms in a delightful story form. One more excellent number, a piano duet by Misses Waller and Bassel, before the feature act, Burns' "Tam O'Shanter" in pantomine. We all love Burns and now Tam O'Shanter means more to the Bainonians and to the many new girls present.

The characters were:

Tam - - - - Elizabeth Whitlock
Kate - - - - Jennie Montgomery
Landlord - - - - Ruth Greenlee
Landlady - - - Sallee Huffaker
Kench - - Florence Woodward
Witches - - Ruth Winton, Susie Copeland
Neighbors - Mary Tippet, Beulah Hatchet, Mary MacSpadden

Just another of Bainonian's excellent programs! Worthwhile, lacking interest at no place!

JUNIOR Y. W. C. A.

Junior Y. W. C. A. was held Sunday evening, Ooctober 31, at eight o'clock in the Alpha Sigma Hall. The meeting was a Recognition Service for the New Members, to show them that we appreciate their membership, and to unite the bonds of good fellowship.

Miss Christine Copelan, our Vice President, led the meeting, and read for the Scripture lesson a portion of the Gospels of St. Mark and St. Luke. Special music was rendered by Miss Mary Ridgway. Misses Jewell Stephens and Bernice Kimble favored us with a vocal duet, and to our great surprise and delight, Mrs. Killough of Birmingham, Alabama, who was visiting on the Hill, sang, "The Holy City".

The most impressive part of the service was at the last, when every "New Member" was presented with a candle and formed a semi-circle around the hall. The Old Girls completed the circle. With no other light save that of the numerous little candles, everyone joined hands and sang, "Blest Be The Tie that Binds". After a short talk by the President, the meeting was dismissed by the Mispah Benediction.

Y. W. HOLDS IMPRESSIVE RECEPTION CEREMONY

Senior Y. W. C. A. was held Sunday evening immediately after Vespers in Athenian Hall. Miss Edith Moore, chairman of the membership committee, was in charge of the "candle service". The new members dressed in white and bearing white candles made the reception ceremony very impressive. The Y. W. C. A. welcomes cordially its new members and hopes that those girls who have affiliated themselves with this noble organization will receive from it both pleasure and profit.

REV. DAVID C. CLEMENS VISITS COLLEGE

Rev. and Mrs. David A. Clemens, of Caldwell, Idaho, visited the College last week. Rev. Clemens graduated in the class of 1886, and has three sisters who graduated here, one of which is Miss Alice Clemens, a teacher in the Preparatory Department of M. C. Rev. and Mrs. Clemens have put four of their children in Maryville College. Their eldest son, Dr. Edward Lamar Clemens, was the class orator of 1908, later graduated in the School of Medicine of the University of Pennsylvania, and is now in the U. S. Medical Service. Rev. D. A. Clemen's wife was Miss Emma Newman, sister of Dr. John Grant Newman of Philadelphia.

HALLOWE'EN FESTIVITIES STAGED BY ALL CLASSES

way, someone found out how many feet may be concealed beneath one sheet. Guess!) Many students felt at home around the rook tables, and dominoes!

Of course, Old Mother Goose had to come down and make her presence known. Her torn photographs and manuscripts caused every admirer to hustle around in order to repair them. And the repairs were well made!

But time was slipping by, so refreshments were served. (Put the accent on refreshments). They were truly delicious!

Grinning pumpkins, big woodfires, gifted committees, ideal chaperones—these will make any class happy—especially when the class has caught the spirit of Hallowe'en.

FRESHMAN

Did we? I'll say we did! Did what? Go to the Freshman Party and have a good time.

The basement of the Presbyterian Church was the scene of much festivity and beauty last Saturday, the members of our class joined with witches and ghosts in celebrating the night of nights.

There were games and then more games and just when everyone was warm, tired and just ready for it—why IT came. It was refreshments consisting of salad, sandwiches, pickles, olives and last but not least brick ice cream and cakes.

Good things must eventually end so of course the evening passed away and, knowing that Miss Molly was expecting us, we dispersed so as not to disappoint her; all voting the party a grand success and thanking our lucky stars that we were Freshmen.

FOURTH PREPS

"We" went to the Fourth Prep Party Saturday evening and had a "bully good time".

Professor Jones' house was all decorated with orange and black crepe paper, black cats, bats, witches, and lots of other spooky things.

We had just found a couple of chairs when someone told us of the old Witch's arrival. Of course we had our fortunes told, but I'm not going to tell 'em.

There were lots of games to play and a contest that was more fun to guess. It was one of those, "Say it with flowers kind."

I had just begun to feel that something was about to happen and it did. Paper napkins fluttered to each person and girls flitted in from the kitchen, a plate in each hand, and very sweetly and very daintly placed one in each person's lap. There were sandwiches, a pickle, fruit salad and crackers on each plate. Then just as the last bit of paper napkins were disappearing, ice cream and cakes appeared, carried by the same starry eyed maidens.

I've always been told it was not polite to eat and run but Miss Molly rules, so we all had to start for the Hill much too soon to suit us.

MIDDLE TENNESSEE CLUB PICNIC

A picnic was greatly enjoyed by the Middle Tennessee Club on last Monday afternoon. The members met at two o'clock, and things began to happen right away. Good time? Who could feel otherwise with a victrola and a "uke" going? Then games, jokes, and eats. Oh those eats! Accidents will happen though; —just ask Shorty Sneed.

The time passed all too quickly and we had to separate, but not before giving several rousing cheers for the "Committees", "the Club", and "Do it again soon".

The East Tennessee Educational Conference which was held at Knoxville last week was attended by Dr. Barnes, Miss Green, and Miss Heron. Miss Green spoke in the College Association Department of the Conference on Friday.

We are proud to report that Mr. E. J. Frazier, who graduated from M. C. in the class of 1911, has been elected the president of the East Tennessee Educational Association for the coming year.

WOMEN

A woman is queer, ther's no doubt about that,
She hates to be thin, and she hates to be fat.
One minute it's laughter, the next it's a cry;
You can't understand her, however you try.
But there's one thing about her which everyone knows—
A woman's not dressed till she powders her nose.

Dr. Stevenson is some cheer leader! The most interesting thing about it is that the girls will do as he says—it may be because he is married!

Professor Hunter and Professor Hyden forgot all about English and History when Davidson sprinted down the grid for a touchdown.

Some former officers of the Normal School came over from the Teachers Association Meeting at Knoxville and "rooted" for the Middle Tennessee boys.

Mr. P. A. Lyon, acting President of the Normal School, was on hand to see the game also.

VOLUME SIX — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, NOVEMBER 11, 1920 — NUMBER SEVEN

Highlanders Lose To Georgetown on Kentucky Soil. Score 27 to 7

A GAME OF FORWARD PASSES, STAGED IN KENTUCKY MONTGOMERY OF GEORGETOWN, AND DAVIDSON OF MARYVILLE ARE OUTSTANDING PLAYERS.

Leaving College Hill and the send-off group to wait and live in anticipation for the best, the Orange and Garnet eleven took the first step of their journey towards Kentucky by railing into Knoxville about eight o'clock last Friday evening.

With only forty minutes to spare all baggage was dumped in one pile; Coach Feeman arranged for transportation accommodations, and then the only sign of a team having been in the station was the pile of luggage—and it was soon gone.

"Where in the Sam Hill are my shoes?", demanded sleepy-eyed Hicks about six the next morning.

"Porter", he persisted, "Did you shine my shoes?"

"To be sure, man look again."

Look he did, but not till Davidson "accidently" found the clod-breakers did Hicks enjoy their comfort again.

From Coach: "Hurry you fellows, the station is only three minutes away." Lexington to all meant ham and eggs—speed was did.

A couple of feeds with an hour or two of sleep between and then an interurban electric tram for Georgetown, a twelve miles distance.

"Hi-Mary! Hi-Vill! Hi-Maryville!" was a keen greeting from a gathering of the fair sex near campus entrance. Sullinger thanked the ladies for the cheerful greeting. Cheerful was right but a cloud full of doubt and discouragement hovered over the Tennesseans from Maryville.

Ford, who had been ill every since arriving in Lexington, somehow managed to get to Georgetown, hoping his condition would improve and that he would be able to play after all. The short of the matter is, he got worse and all of Bob King's insisting on him to pull through had no effect. Ford was "all in", and there was John Hendrick, F. McLaughlin and probably Cotton, who might have been there representing more strength and experience—but they were not. The cloud seemed to hang lower and dampen the spirit of the eleven.

Then came a parlez-vous with Coach Rhoton of Georgetown. He let his "hard luck line" flow and then all players donned moleskins for the approaching gridiron.

The game was interesting and full of surprises from beginning to end. Hard line and backfield work was handed out by both teams. Georgetown did not play a better brand of ball than Maryville throughout the game, but one thing is sure: their plays were more effective and uniform than those of Maryville's. Still, as some think, it does not discredit the work of King, who served as quarterback, and who played a splendid brand of ball under the circumstances.

Losers though the Highlanders were, they put up a line of scrimmage and handed out some first class playing that attracted much attention. A score of 27 to 7 is not such an overwhleming defeat, but realizing the fact that there is always a pang felt on losing a hard-faught game, we will pass over the wailing.

Davidson sure man can carry that old pigskin for gains. The line-men did their part well and Davy made good for them. Time and time again he went through and around the opponents' line for eight to ten yard gains. He and Montgomery, Georgetown's left half, made the majority of the gains for their respective teams.

The most interesitng thing about the game was the frequent passing of the oval. There were twenty-one forward passes shot across the line of scrimmage. Ten of these were Maryville's and six of them completed the air journey to find lodging in the arms of some Highlander, who was there waiting. The other eleven are credited to Georgetown with a completion of only three in their favor. One pass was intercepted for Maryville but none for Georgetown because "Tubby" (quarter) did not put them in reach of either his men or Maryville's.

A detailed report of the game follows:

GAME BY QUARTERS

A long kick returned to 15 yard line by Beck; after three hard downs with but little gain recorded, the ball was kicked 35 yards down field. Georgetown had two downs and no gain, then left half went around end for 7 yards making first down possible on next charge. Three more plays scored another first down and Montgomery carried the ball over on third down of next four privileged attempts; Jones kicked goal. Score 7-0.

Davidson received on 12 yard line, returned to 22 yard mark and on first down went through left end for 8 yards. McMurray was thrown for loss (Sullinger went in for Beck); King called on Davy again and 10 yards were annexed to the march, but the ball later went over on downs on M. C.'s 35 yard line. Montgomery pulled an end run for 25 yards and his teammates carried the ball to the 3 yard line where he carried it over for second touchdown. No goal. Score, Georgetown 13, M. C. 0.

Maryville returned pigskin to 28 yard line; Sullinger thru line for 5 yards. An end run was attempted but lost, and here is where Maryville began her atmosphere journeying. Sullinger passed the ball 30 yards to Hendrick who had little chance to carry on far. Again the Georgetown squad squinted at a second pass received by Wyncoupe 20 yard distance. Sullinger took the left post journey, fumbled the ball and recovered with loss. Sullinger free kicked and quarter ended as play began.

SECOND QUARTER

Beck returned to line of scrimmage and relieved McMurray. Gt. made small gains in three attempts and Beckley was forced to kick to King, who returned for eight yards. Beck was thrown for an end run loss. A pass failed and Gt. soon recivered ball on downs. A couple of forward passes did not make good connection. Why? Listen to Coach: "That's breaking them up Hendrick". Gt's. "tubby" quarter kicked to midfield, and Beck returned ball for 10 yards. 20 yards were measured off, by Davidson (12) and Beck (8) in rapid succession. Here the damper was placed on the morale of the team, which received a ten yard penalty. (Tough luck the referee couldn't see that both sides fouled, wasn't it?) Passing failed and Georgetown received kick. Fullback carried oval for 6 yards as gain for three plays, but King soon received a kick and returned ball to Georgetown's 30 yard line. 12 yards by Davidson; 5 yards by Sullinger, whose gain was lost on attempted end run. A fifteen yard parallel pass and a line buck by Sullinger recorded first down with only 5 yards to goal line. Backfield plunging for

ELABORATE ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION

Special Chapel Exercises; Miss Bewley Reads and Dr. Stevenson Delivers Address.

Student Body Joins in Maryville Town Parade.

(By Herrick Arnold)

Perhaps one of the most impressive chapel services ever held at Maryville College, was held Thursday morning in celebration of Armistice Day and as a Memorial to those from the College, who gave their lives for their country in the Great War. It was a meeting of solemn thankfulness and gratitude for that great victory of the cause of Right, that occurred just two years ago; and a meeting dedicated to those heroic men who made the supreme sacrifice, that this victory might be made possible.

The Chapel Exercises were opened with a scripture reading by Major Gillingham, his selection being the very appropriate victory song of Moses and Miriam taken from the fifteenth chapter of Exodus. Professor Orr then made the opening prayer.

An anthem, "Praise Ye the Lord" was beautifully rendered by the choir, and Dr. Wilson then took charge of the memorial services. He called our attention to the fact that a new gold star had just been added for Capt. Emmett Kilpatrick, one of Maryville's boys of the class of fifteen. Capt. Kilpatrick served during the war, with American forces in France and at the conclusion of the war, feeling that he still had a work to do, enlisted with the Lithuanian forces against the Bolsheviki. He was finally killed by the Bolsheviki while doing Red Cross relief work in Southern Russia.

A complete list of the names of those twenty-eight men who are represented by the gold stars on the service flag of Maryville College was read by Dr. Wilson, and at the conclusion of the reading the whole assemblage stood with bowed heads, in silent prayer while "Taps" was blown as a last tribute to those heroic souls who made the supreme sacrifice.

What could be more appropriate at this point in the program than that wonderfully inspired tribute to America's heroes, "You and You", read by Miss Bewley, in her

ALL OUT FOR SUNSHINE

The annual fall mountain trip for the whole school will take place next Monday. The place selected is Sunshine. The train leaves Maryville at eight in the morning, reaching Sunshine at nine-twenty. In the afternoon the train leaves Sunshine at three-forty, reaching Maryville at five. The cost for the round trip is one dollar and thirty-four cents.

Moonshining is in order! But be sure you provide yourselves with chaperones in plenty of time, so that you will not have to scratch one up at the last minute. Every group must have a chaperone! Believe us, you will miss a golden opportunity if you fail to go to Sunshine next Monday.

ENGLISH PRIZE WILL BE AWARDED

Established by English Teachers To Promote Literary Zeal Among M. C. Students.

The Echo Will Publish Prize Essays.

In order to promote literary zeal, augment the world's store of masterpieces, prove the presence of genius in our midst, and add to the perplexities of critics we, the English teachers of Maryville College do ordain and establish this never-aforesaid and herein-after-often-to-be-mentioned English Prize.

But, to lapse into phraseology distinctively unenglish, perhaps we had better can this constitution stuff and get down to business. The facts are these, the three instructors in the departments of English Literature and the English Language have put their heads reasonably close together with this result: Ten volumes of the works of Rudyard Kipling, handsomely bound, desirable outside and inside, will be given to the student of the College who produces the original literary composition which, in the judgment of a committee of competent judges, possesses the greatest merit. This competition is to be closed April 12. The prize will not be given unless there are at least ten entrants. Three typewritten copies of the manuscript must be submitted. Any one of the College English teachers will receive the manuscripts, which are to be submitted unsigned. The teacher receiving them will give them marks of identification in the presence of the contestant. The English faculty will not themselves serve on the committee of judges but will select the judges.

There are no other conditions. Oh, yes, about form, subject matter, length, and all these things? No, there are no conditions. Poetry or prose; story or essay; oration or argument,—there are no conditions as to form or subject matter. And as to length? Again, no conditions. Now seriously, the idea of all this isn't just to give away a set of books. There are a few books which even the members of the English faculty do not own which might be bought with the money. The idea isn't just to call some highbrowed youth or sedately featured damsel up to the chapel aisle some morning to receive an armful of books and the well done! of the President, either. Nay verily! The idea is set forth in the preamble at the beginning. There is real literary ability in our midst. If anyone has warrant to be skeptical on this point the English faculty is it. But here in good faith is proof that they are not. It is with this one desire, therefore; to bring out the literary ability of the Hill, and so arouse a real spirit of literary zeal, that this prize is offered.

The Echo, the kindness of the Editor allows us to say, will print the prize production and the two which are awarded honorable mention as the second and third in rank.

Two members of the English faculty are absolutely scot-free from any part in the actual composition of this article but the truth of all the statements of intention in it is heartily subscribed to by all

The English Teachers.

ONE OF SEVEN TENN. INSTITUTION LISTED

Council Made Up of All Great National Educational Associations of Our Country.

315 Colleges And Universities On Accredited List.

The placing of Maryville on its accredited list by the American Council on Education last April was a very gratifying event.

The American Council on Education was formed three years ago. Its constituent members comprised about all of the great national educational associations of our country. There were the Association of American Universities, the National Association of State Universities, the Association of American Colleges, the Association of Urban Universities, the Catholic Educational Association, the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations, the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, the Association of American Law Schools, the Association of American Medical Colleges, the National Research Council, the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, the National Educational Association, the N. E. A. Department of Superintendence, the National Council of Normal School Presidents and Principals, and the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association.

The Council's major projects are each in charge of a standing committee. There are committees on Federal Legislation, International Educational Relations, Education for Citizenship, Training of Women for Public Service, the College of Liberal Arts, and Standardization. It was this committee on Standardization, "composed of representations of the principal standardizing agencies", that prepared the present list of "accredited or approved institutions as having been based on definitions of collegiate standards and resources which represent the best American practise." The committee says of this list, "It is believed that foreign universities may safely accept a well-recommended graduate in arts and sciences of one of these institutions as qualified for entrance upon advanced study leading to the Doctor's degree or other higher degrees".

The Tennessee institutions of learning accredited in this list are the following: "George Peabody College for Teachers, Maryville College, Southwestern Presbyterian University, University of Chattanooga, University of Tennessee, University of the South, and Vanderbilt University."

The standard maintained by the College merits this classification among accredited institutions, and it is a matter of satisfaction that the authoritative American Council of Education has so ruled.

There are three hundred and fifteen colleges and universities on the Council's accredited list.

DATE FOR NEXT LYCEUM CHANGED

The next Lyceum which was announced for Dec. 2, has been moved up to Nov. 20. The Zebeler Symphonic Quintet will supply the bill.

The day of all days is a holiday!

Don't be a "Drifter" during your college days. Set for yourself some definite goal and keep that goal constantly before you.

This is the last issue of Volume Six of the Highland Echo,—for those who do not pay their subscription during this week.

Fortune has certainly failed to smile upon the Highlanders this season. In fact we are led to believe that the old Dame has completely deserted our hilly premises for regions unknown.

* * *

Of course we do not question the integrity of the students of the Education 2 class, but some of the tales told in that class last week reminded us of this little anecdote: A short time ago the lightning struck a garden, cooked a row of beans, and tore a row of ripe tomatoes into tatters, thus seasoning the cooked beans with tomato sauce.

* * *

Or this one picked up during the summer from a motorcyclist: "Between Albany and Pittsfield I passed a field of turnips, then a pasture of grazing cows, then a field of corn, one of potatoes, another of carrots and then a pond. I was going so fast the landscape looked like beef stew."

* * *

Maybe it was an optical illusion! No, there's no mistake, it says: "Carson-Newman 16; Tusculum 6." Howcum? The only explanation yet offered for the defeat of our Greenvillian antagonists is that their team must have been depleted to conform with the Volstead Act—it has lost its kick!

* * *

'Twas a little thing, yet we resent it! Last Wednesday the College truck refused (we will blame Mr. White Truck, for we know not who was responsible) to transfer the Reserves to Polytechnic School to represent our School in the first game that they (the Reserves) had had this season. Consequently they had to go "ahead afoot" the mile and a half to West Maryville, play the game, then drag home the best way they could, and take a shower bath in cold water. And yet men wonder at the increase of crime!

Thanks For The Publicity

In the Sunday edition of the Lexington Leader appeared an article under the head, "Maryville Foot Ball Team Not Allowed To Travel on Sunday, So Remain Here". We thought it was pretty rich, so we reproduce it in part here. It ran like this:

"The 'Praying Colonels' of Centre College have the 'Maryville Deacons' shaded as foot ball players, but the "Deacons" will tell the world that the "Colonels" nor any other aggregation of foot ballers and but few devout individuals have anything on them when it comes to observing the week's one day of rest.

"The world has not been told—and it has been intimated by those who are in a position to know, i. e., the boys themselves, that it will not be told—just how every seventh day is spent by the individuals composing the team, but it is a rule of long standing of Maryville College, which is a Presbyterian institution, that no foot ball team flying under the colors of that school shall travel to or from a game on Sunday.

"For that reason Coach "Doc" Feeman and his squad of sixteen players are spending Sunday in Lexington and will not leave for home until late tonight."

Basket-Ball

While the football season has only two weeks left in which to quaver out its dolorous swan-song, it will not be amiss to turn our attention for the space of a few column inches to basket-ball possibilities.

The captain of this year's varsity basket-ball is none other than his royal highness, Mr. Jarvis Cotton; and Sir Alphonso Hendrick will have charge of booking the games, supervising the details of all trips, "entertaining" the visiting teams, and attempting to squeeze simoleons out of the Treasurer of the Athletic Association. It is not difficult to perceive that each of these two doughty basket-ballers will be entrusted with very arduous tasks, but no one fears for the success of the season as far as leadership is concerned. For with these worthy gentlemen at the helm of the Ship of Basket-ball Court (No, not a Courtship, although they are also very proficient in that department!) there is no anxiety felt for its safe voyage upon the Sea of Opposition.

However, the loss of Wagner will be severely felt, if Dame Fortune decrees that he remain ill. If he recovers sufficiently, he will again take his place in the line-up.

According to the latest reports, Carter, the big scoring agent of last year's quintet, will arrive while the season is yet in its infancy and don the abbreviated basket-ball uniform. That sounds very encouraging, to say the least! Davidson is another old stand-by who is expected to figure prominently this year.

The schedule this season will be quite the same as that of last season. Our time-honored adversaries, Tusculum, Carson-Newman, Johnson Bible College, Emory and Henry, and U. of T. will very likely supply the local end of the basket-ball docket. A swing will be made into Kentucky upon which a few of the following teams will be encountered: Berea, Center, Union, Georgetown, University of Louisville or Kentucky State. Again the team from "little Maryville College up in the wilds of East Tennessee" will invade the capitol city and demonstrate to the Ramblers and to Vanderbilt just how wild a basket-ball gang from "up in the wilds" can really be. The Ramblers fell heavily last year, so they will no doubt be girded for a determined fight for restitution this season.

Also negotiations are under way for an invasion of North Carolina in order to prove to several Tar Heel institutions the superiority of Tennessee basket-ball tactics. A Maryville team has not intruded upon the privacy of the North Carolinians for many moons, so this new move is heralded as presenting a splendid possibility for a wider-spread publicity of our College.

Basket-ball practice will begin immediately after the digestion and assimilation of the Thanksgiving Dinner has been thoroughly accomplished,—which usually takes several days.

An announcement regarding co-ed basket-ball will be made soon.

Cats

A school boy wrote an essay on cats. The chapter on different breeds supplies the following information:

"Cats that's made for little girls to maul and tease is called Maltese Cats. Some cats is known by their queer purrs—these are called Pursian Cats. Cats with bad tempers is called Angorrie Cats. Cats with deep feelin's is called Feline Cats."

DEBRIS

Maryville College has at last secured a nurse for the hospital. Miss Eva Dawson, sister to Misses Edna and Elsie Dawson, has been engaged for the remainder of the school year. Miss Dawson attended M. C. during the years 1908-1913 and has spent the time since then in nursing. We welcome Miss Dawson to the Hill!

Some of those confined to the hospital this week are: John Rodgers, Emory Fritz, Hazel Cleveland, and Margaret Willis.

Harry Wagner, who has been suffering with ptomaine poisoning since he returned to Maryville this fall, became worse last week and was forced to return to his home at Portsmouth, Ohio. If he recovers sufficiently, he will probably return after Christmas.

Floyd Watt, a member of the Senior Class, preached at Greeneville last Sunday.

The Thaw Memorial Hall Building Committee met on last Tuesday following the monthly meeting of the Executive Committee.

Professor Johnson of Columbus, Ohio visited the College last Saturday. Professor Johnson was a former professor of Dennison University and is now an editorial writer for the Columbus Dispatch.. He came to Tennessee to spend a few weeks in our wonderful mountains, and selected Montvale Springs as the best place for such a vacation.

Elsie (writing home)—"Ruth, how do you spell 'financially'?"

Ruth—"F-i-n-a-n-c-i-a-l-l-y, and there are two r's in 'embarrassed'."

Those are attractive program-calendars just gotten out by the Senior Y. W. C. A. The cover is the blue triangle, the inside contains the dates, subjects and leaders for each meeting this semester, the back has a calendar of 1920-1921 on it. Just the thing for a book mark or to keep in the stationery box. If you failed to get one, see Grace Kern, Ivora McAllister or Ethel Doctor.

The economics class predicts a drop in prices soon. Put off the making of contracts for rings, invitations, etc. as long as possible if you would save your money.

"Have you seen Miss Molly's skeleton key?" is the salutation over in Pearsons these days.

Miss Grace Clabough went home for the past week-end.

A stranger would have wondered just where she was had she not known that she was in Pearsons Hall Saturday night. A smiling Japanese could be found almost any where, red faced Indians ran riot in the halls with their war dances and other ceremonies. Rebecca (Isaac's) again filled her pitcher at the well, Jephthah's daughter, Lady McBeth, Evangeline and Cleopatra were all chatting together and enjoying themselves thoroughly; quite a cosmopolitan atmosphere.

Speaking of wives, have you met Job's.

GEORGE HOWELL ADDRESSES VOLUNTEERS

The theme of a very interesting and inspiring talk made by George Howell at a recent meeting of the Volunteer Band, was Medical Missions and their place in Christian statesmanship. George is himself preparing for the medical service and his heart was in his message.

The service of the Medical Missionary to God is in three ways, he said. Besides healing the physical bodies, the physician ministers to the diseases of the soul, and while ministering, keeps these souls in contact with God. The dispensary is the usual method employed.

The first great Medical Missionary was John Kenneth McKenzie. He was born in England and educated at Bristol. As a student he was intensely interested in the outdoor sports as well as in the student activities. The great American evangelist, Dwight Moody, influenced McKenzie for his decision. Soon the young man found himself working among the poor classes in the slums of the cities. One of his best friends, Colonel Duncan, had a like influence on his decision. A pamphlet, "The Double Cure" did the rest of the work, and in 1870, we find McKenzie in the Bristol Medical School. He began his professional duties in a local hospital. Soon he sailed for China, to the port of Hanchow. His reception was not cordial for the western medical science was distrusted as much as "the foreign devil" himself.

An opportunity presented itself in the form of a native Christian deacon whom five doctors of the Oriental brand had been unable to cure. By prayer and skill the deacon was restored to health and friendly relations with the settlement was established. He joined with Mr. Johns in pioneer work but soon he was forced to change fields on account of failing health. The London Missionary Society negotiated the change.

Next we find McKenzie in Tientsin without funds, doing evangelical work. The blindness so prevalent in China aroused the doctor and an appeal was made to the Viceroy for help. Needed aid was promised. The Viceroy's wife lay deathly sick and McKenzie was called to treat the patient. His six terrible days of vigilance and suspence, prayer and ministery were rewarded.

The Viceroy established a separate hospital for McKenzie and employed him as royal physician. The government promised to support the medical work, all the old prejudices were overcome, China had been opened to the western sciences, but more than that, had been opened to welcome the Great Healer, our Christ.

WEEKLY ADDRESSES BY COLLEGE PASTOR

"ANALOGY OF THE LEAF"

Dr. Stevenson using the sixty-fourth chapter of Isaiah showed four distinct ways, without stretching the imagination, in which man resembles leaves.

First, the resemblance is found in the infinite variety of leaves. Just as every little leaf is different from every other leaf, so is every person different from every other person. Yet all people are alike in many ways. We all have one Lord, one faith, one hope, and many other modes of resemblance, and it is from this that we get the reason for charity.

Again we are like leaves because we are all subject to something higher and are dependent on something else for life, just as the leaf is subject to the tree and dependent on the tree for life.

Also we are like the leaf because we occupy different positions and places in life. The leaves about us are capable of teaching us many lessons. The trees of the forest grow and flourish according to their leaves—so it is with the tree of life. We are all obligated to fill our position in life no matter what that may be. The tree of life is depending on us just as the tree of the forest depends upon its leaves.

And again we resemble the leaf for "We all do fade as a leaf". Just as the leaf abides only for a season, and no matter how great and firm its hold on the stem it must let go; so we abide only for a season and there will come a time when we must let go of the tree of life. As one set of leaves is taken off year after year so one generation is taken away after another.

If God gives life, variety, beauty, etc. to a leaf, how much more will He give to us?

THE TROPHIES OF YOUTH

Dr. Stevenson touched the trigger Thursday morning when he told of the value of the Trophies of youth. The story was told of David as he returned an exile, weaponless, and got the sword of Goliath which was a sacred Trophy kept in a sacred house, and went forth to win new victories with the courage of his youth. The triumphs of youth are better than those of later life, for unless courage, vitality, and those things required to make up a man are stored up in youth they will be lacking in the later life.

One of these Trophies is Physical Strength. It is the law of God that makes physical weakness the result of some sin. If we store up vigor in our youth as did David, it will help us in later life.

Another Trophy is that of Intellectual Discipline. Power to do a thing is the result of discipline, and whoever acquires that in their youth will not have so much trouble in later life.

Again there are the moral Trophies one of which is Habit. The best things or the worst things you will carry away from tis Old College Hill will be Habits, and the habits you take from here will largely determine your life hereafter. Blessed will you be if you adopt the habit of reverence for yourself. The one who looks upon the things about him as divine will not be the victim of evil habits.

Another moral Trophy is Memories. Make all the memories for the future pleasant, and they will strengthen you. Later in life should you ever begin to doubt, it will be a great help to you if you can look back upon fond memories and say, God came very near to me then. The memories of youth become the treasurer house of later life.

Who of you will win the trophies now? They do not come easy, but as the result of labor and skill. Use the skill you have and do your best to meet the difficulties as they come. God's way is open and you will be victorious if you follow His way.

"THE DEPARTING ANGEL"

After reading the first part of the twelfth chapter of The Acts, Dr. Stevenson called special attention to the departure of the Angel. There are three things that might have happened: the Angel might have never come; the Angel might have come and always stayed with him (Peter); or the Angel might have come, helped him and then departed. It is plain that the departure of the Angel meant life. The things that are seen, either Divine or Material, are temporary, but the things we do not see are lasting. If a rainbow lasted for an hour hardly anyone would go out to look at it.

Also it is well to remember that the Angel did for Peter only what he could not do for himself. Let your visions hang a little over the horizon. The best parent cannot go over one or two streets on the personal journey of the child, and we must recognize that the Angel of home influence must be left behind. All the schools and universities in the world can do nothing but set you on the way, and your life depends upon what YOU do. After the Angel's duty is done it is your duty to choose your own way and walk home alone—alone! No, God is still with us. His closing words were:

"I know not where his Islands lift
Their fronded palms in air,
But this I know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care."

CALDWELL—JONES

On Wednesday evening Oct. 27 at eight thirty o'clock at the home of Mr. Theodore A. Caldwell near Rockford, occurred a beautiful and impressive home wedding when Mr. Donald Jones claimed as his bride Miss Ruth Caldwell.

Just before the ceremony, while the guests were assmebling, a musical program was rendered by Mrs. Frank Preston and Miss Ruth Reagan.

Promptly at eight thirty to the strains of "Lohengrin" the bridal party entered. First came the two groomsmen, Lynton Caldwell, brother of the bride, and John Hendrick, followed by the two bridesmaids, Aileen Russell and Beulah Kittrell. Next came Miss Nannette Walker, the maid of honor. Preceding the bride and her father were Luke and Marion Caldwell, cousins of the bride, as ring bearer and flower girl.

The bride was met at the altar by the groom and best man, Mr. Fred Orman of Alabama. Rev. E. W. Hall performed the ceremony which united the happy couple.

After the ceremony the bridal party passed to the dining room, which was beautifully decorated in white and green, where a dainty ice course was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones motored to Knoxville where they took the train for their future home in Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones were students of Maryville College last year, and their many friends join in wishing for them the greatest success and happiness.

HOWARD—MAGILL

A marriage of great interest to many students and former students of M. C. was that of Jessie Pearl Magill, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Magill, and Mr. John Zollie Howard. The wedding was solemnized Thursday, Oct. 26, at half past four o'clock at the home of the bride's parents on College Street. Rev. William Graham, pastor of the New Providence Presbyterian Church officiated, using the ring ceremony. Mrs. Bartlett played the processional and recessional, also several selections before the ceremony. Mr. Robert Clemens, a special friend of the groom, sang "At Dawning" and "Until."

After the ceremony an informal reception was held and a delicious ice course served.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard are well known on the Hill, as both have attended the College in former years. Mr. Howard is in the employ of the Aluminum Company at Alcoa and is highly esteemed by many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Howard will be "at home" on Wilson Avenue, Maryville.

The ECHO extends to the Jones and Magills the congratulations and best wishes of the Faculty and students of Maryville College.

In our opinion a stuck-up fly on tanglefoot is the height of conceit.

A VISION OF FAIR WOMEN

A Program of Unusual Attractiveness Rendered At Bainonian.

Hazel Bevan, as a Dreamer, Has a Beautiful Vision.

The program at Bainonian Saturday night was unusually attractive and decidedly literary using the "Vision of Fair Women" based on Tennyson's "A Dream of Fair Women" and Chaucer's "Legend of Good Women". Hazel Bevan, as the dreamer, had a beautiful dream but her audience was more fortunate in seeing the train of fair ladies. Each was costumed appropriately.

Mother Goose, Idella Hemphill, has charmed the hearts of many. We did sympathize with Little Bo-Peep, Geraldine Rousseau, as she sobbed and sighed for her lost sheep. Then there was little Red Riding Hood—Line Hodges. Irma Schwab was crowned Queen of the May by her attendants, Misses Higgins and Ellis. But the Gypsy Queen, Addie Fine, saw an early death written on her palm, so the May Queen and her mother, Louise Farrar, were left alone.

There were more still! Ruth Newton was indeed a Goddess of Night! We found a living Ruth in Blanche Bailey, followed by Joan of Arc, Mary Elizabeth Clements. Never could we have done without a Cleopatra, none other than Geraldine O'dell!

Shakespeare added Portia, Effie Erickson, and Lady Macbeth, Mary McSpadden, to this train of fair women. Esther Miller, as Mary Queen of Scots, and Beaulah Hatchett, as Queen Elizabeth, were so very real.

Everybody loves a blushing bride! Callie Speck was a charming Miseltoe Bride. Elizabeth McCord was a typical Grace Darling. Grace Sydenstricker as Evangeline and Elizabeth Hudson as Sister of Mercy filled their places. Never was there a sweeter Scotch lassie than Mary Tippet nor a dearer Aunt Samantha than Ethel Doctor. Treading close on the heels of Dame Fashion, Elizabeth Whitlock, was Minnehaha, Martha Robison. Frances Hickey as Fair Rosamond was indeed fair. Laura Stevens as Pocahontas and Margaret Fisher as Jepthah's Daughter could hardly be surpassed.

We were introduced to still more, Lady Clare, Nelle Baker; Una, Ruth Winton; and Cordelia, Bernice Jones. But when Morning, Marion Krespach, came the Dreamer was aroused from his slumbers.

Can anyone find lovelier women!

BATES PRIZE ORATION SUBJECTS

The Contribution of The Puritans to American History;

The Achievements of The British Grand Fleet In The World War;

South America, The Continent of Opportunity;

The Americanization of The Foreigner;

The Obligations of Citizenship in a Democracy;

Andrew Carnegie and The Romance of Business.

The above are the six subjects chosen by the faculty for the Bates Prize Oratorical Contest. This contest which is becoming one of the most attractive features of Commencement was made possible three years ago by the generosity of Rev. William H. Bates, D. D. of Greeley, Colorado. A change has recently been made in the conditions of the contest so that now it is a contest in which in one year the men of the Senior and Junior classes are the contestants, and in the next year the women of the same standing take part in the contest. This year the men are to compete for the prize. Six orations will be chosen from those submitted and these will be delivered at the final contest. The manuscripts must be submitted on or before the first Tuesday in April. The manuscripts are not to exceed 1500 words in length.

CAPTAIN EMMET KILPATRICK KILLED

Graduate of Maryville College Brutally Killed by Bolsheviki Troops.

Stripped of His Underclothes In Bitter Zero Weather

Reports reached the state department on November 9 that Captain Emmet Kilpatrick of the American Red Cross Society, had been captured in the soviet advance in Southern Russia and was brutally killed.

Kilpatrick was last seen, the advices said, at Novo Alexeiosh, October 30, stripped of his underclothes in zero weather and being led away by red cavalry raiders.

Kilpatrick graduated from M. C. in the class of 1915 and while here made many friends who mourn his sad fate. He was a newspaper publisher for several years after leaving Maryville. He served with the American Army in France as lieutenant of the Field Artillery and after the Armistice, as chief of the supply division of the American Commission to negotiate peace. He obtained his discharge from the army in Paris in September, 1919, and became connected as a civilian with the peace commission.

When the commission was disolved Kilpatrick joined the Lithuanian army as a captain along with a number of other Americans and saw several months of active service on the Lithuanian-Bolsheviki battle front. When the fighting ended, he asked for his discharge and returned to Paris to join the American Red Cross in 1920, and he was first ordered to Constantinople and then to South Russia.

In the records of the war department, Kilpatrick's nearest kin was shown as Lilda M. Kilpatrick, his sister of Camden, Alabama. His father was Captain J. Y. Kilpatrick of the civil war.

Stephen A. Venear, of Albany, N. Y., and James D. Heddinger, of Baltimore, Md., were with Kilpatrick at the time of his capture. The three were busy distributing supplies among Russian civilians, but Venear anr Heddinger managed to make their escape. Kilpatrick, however, being in a remote part of the town was cut off by Cossacks.

ATHENIAN NOTES

Did we have some lively times at Athenian last Saturday evening? I'll say we did. Ask anyone who was there.

The feature of the evening was the debate. Wilson and McClung defended the affirmative, and Corry and Queener, the negative, of the subject, Resolved: That the United States of America should assume a protectorate over Armenia. These men are all contestants for the College Debate team this year, while two of them, Corry and Queener, represented the preparatory department last year in debate. As a result, a spirited contest was staged and some excellent work was done.

A few minutes was spent, after the debate in a very valuable drill in Parliamentary law conducted by Forrest Brown. The effects of this drill was shown a few moments later when a spirited discussion was aroused over some questions of business, and several points in Parliamentary law were brought into practice.

However, that was not all of the program by any means, Ben Houston sang, accompanied by Arellano. Houston is going to be a valuable man in the society, and Arellano, well we can't get along without him. Of course, no meeting is complete without an Athenian to get the fellows to laughing, and no Athenian is complete without Leslie Jones to read it, so we had that combination to wind up a good program.

Our President, Mr. Green being sick, J. R. Watkins, recording-secretary presided. The meeting was a good one as always, but some of the new members who joined us during the first meetings failed to get there this time. Don't fail us, fellows, Athenian needs you and you need Athenian.

ALUMNI NOTES

Mr. Herman L. Caton '17, who is well on the way to becoming an expert accountant, reports that in addition to his work in accountancy he is doing work with the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Mr. Caton's address is 909 L Street, Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Myers announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Willie Myers to Mr. Luther R. McCurry on August 31. Mr. McCurry is a member of the Class of 1919. The marriage occurred at Bulls Gap, Tennessee, and Mr. and Mrs. McCurry are at present in Marlin, Michigan where Mr. McCurry has a position in the High School.

Rev. Robt. B. Elmore, D.D., 1900, writes very interestingly of his work in the Chile Mission of the Presbyterian Church at Valparaiso. He says:

"Chile is just about to pass a compulsory education law that will double the number of children in the schools of the country, and our mission together with that of the Methodist Church is just about to open a Normal School to prepare teachers for the schools we hope to open up, so it would seem that the prospect for the work of Christian education in this land is very bright.

"I know of no object more worthy of my efforts, than training up teachers that shall give to coming generations the ideals of Christian character that were given to me in Maryville College."

Rev. Mr. Elmore was given the degree of Doctor of Divinity last commencement. He is a son of Dr. E. A. Elmore, '74, the president of the Directors.

Miss Grace Bailey '19 is teaching at Greeneville, Tennessee.

The Scranton, (Pa.) Republicaan of October 19 contains a very interesting account of the Corner Stone Laying of the new edifice of the Suburban Presbyterian Church of that city. The Reverend Lorenzo R. Foster, '94 is the successful pastor of this church.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Fisher sailed for Persia on October 25 to undertake mission work there. Mr. Fisher is a member of the Class of 1916 and Mrs. Fisher was Miss Franke Sheddan '17.

Miss Mary Miles '18 is attending White's Bible School in New York City.

H. W. Threlkeld '16 is Dean of the Preparatory Department and Head of the Department of Science in the State Preparatory School and Business College at Tonkawa, Oklahoma. Mr. Threlkeld was the last of the line of Editors of the Maryville College Monthly and one of the prime movers in the launching of the Highland Echo.

Professor and Mrs. Deck C. Williams '18 report the arrival of a daughter in their home.

Mr. Herbert Kiger '19 received his Master of Arts degree from the University of Cincinnati last June. The day following the completion of his work at the University, while on his way to the railway station, he was struck by an automobile and both legs were broken. He has about recovered and expects to accept a position which has been offered him on the faculty of the University of Cincinnati. Mr. Kiger was Class Orator of the Centennial Class.

Reverend A. G. Hinkle. '14 reports a very pleasant and prosperous work as pastor of the Presbyterian church at Talequah. Oklahoma.

The Seniors who are taking theism all claim to be agnostics—(For the benefit of the Freshmen, agnostic means "to know nothing"). Some one has suggested that if they would study for an hour or so as hard as they do between the second and third chapel bells this might not be the case.

ARMY DEFEATS NAVY; SCORE SEVEN TO 0

FIRST QUARTER

Feeman kicked off to Hardin on the 35 yard line. Hardin returned 3 yards. Clemens made 5 around left end. Jackson no gain. Clemens attempted a punt which was blocked. Clemens recovered but the ball went over.

Kirkguard gained 2 yards off tackle. Feeman passed to H. Sullinger for a 25 yard gain. Feeman 1 yard around right end. Navy fumbled Army recovered. Jackson pushed through for 5 yards, and then failed to gain on the next play. Clemens punted 25 yards to Badgett who returned 3. An attempted pass was intercepted by Edwards who carried the ball to the 50 yard line. Clemens 2, Jackson 5, Jackson 2, Hardin 2 and first down. Hardin failed to gain. Two other attempts were made with no success. Pass from Clemens to Bond failed and the ball went over.

Kirkguard 5 yards, and then no gain. John Hendrick replaced Drake. Feeman netted 8 yards making first down. Pass from Feeman to Sullinger added another 5 yards. The first quarter ended with the ball on the Navy's 40 yard line in the Navy's possession. Second down five to go.

SECOND QUARTER

Kirkguard 2 yards off tackle. Badgett made it first down. Cotton went in for Hardin, but was in for only a few minutes on account of exposed tootsies. He was unable to find boots large enough to contain his dainty pedal extremities. Feeman no gain. Pass fell short. Badgett skirted the end for 5 yards. Feeman punted from the 50 yard line. Army's ball on the 20 yard line. Hicks replaced Cotton. Edwards 4 yards, Jackson 1 yard. Pass no good. Fourth down 5 to go. Clemens punted 45 yards to Feeman who returned to the Army's 45 yard line. Feeman passed to Badgett for a gain of 8 yards. Edwards a neck-wringing tackle for which he could have been ruled out of the game. Feeman was the victim. Army penalized 5 yards. A pass intercepted by Jackson and the half ended with the ball in the Army's possession on their own 25 yard line.

THIRD QUARTER

Sullivan went in on the Navy team. Greer kicked off 45 yards to Kirkguard who returned 17. Kirkguard no gain. An Army man intercepted a pass and was downed on the Navy's 43 yard line. Edwards no gain. Jackson was tackled for a loss by Ray Sullinger. Navy off-side, 2 yards penalty, making first down. Jackson lost one yard on end run. Clemens bucked center for 3 yards. Clemens' punt was blocked. Navy recovering on the Army's 35 yard line. Pass from Feeman to Kirkguard made 4 yards. Pass failed Kirkguard skinned tackle for 2 yards A pass was intercepted by John Hendrick. Hendrick punted 55 yards to Feeman who was downed on the 5 yard line. Pass fell short. Army off-side, 5 yards penalty. Pass from Badgett to Feeman accounted for 1 yard only. Feeman made a long end run, gaining 30 yards. Kirkguard 1 yard through center. Quarter up with the ball on the Army's 5 yard line in the Navy's possession.

FOURTH QUARTER

Feeman made no gain. Third down, goal to make. Feeman lost 4 yards on an end run. A pass failed, but the play was recalled and the Army was penalized half the distance of the goal on account of offside play. Kirkguard no gain. Say what's the matter here? Seems like an awful lot of playing with no increase in the number of downs! The Army thought so too and so did a lot of the spectators. Consequently a melee ensued but lasted for only a few seconds. The remainder of the fifteen minutes "intermission" was taken up in wrangling and in chewing the old rag in general. Finally an armistice was agreed upon and the play continued. Kirkguard jambed through center for 1 yard. Badgett showed some of his old varsity form and gained 2 more yards. The next attempt almost but not quite crossed the line. So the ball went over when it was within two feet of the goal line.

Hendrick punted 50 yards to Feeman who dropped the ball, an Army man recovering. A 30 yard pass from Clemens to Hendrick and a 30 yard run by Hendrick accounted for the only touchdown of the game. Clemens kicked a pretty goal.

Clemens kicked off to Feeman who returned to his own 45 yard line. Three passes failed. Feeman punted 45 yards to Clemens who returned 20 yards to his own 37 yard line. Jackson 3 yards. Army fumbled just as the game ended. The Army winners 7 to 0.

I know that the Lord don't love you, for none of you have died, and evidently He don't wish any of you nearer to Him. I know you don't love one another, for none of you have married. I know you don't love me, for you have not paid me my salary. I have already accepted a better place as chaplain of the penitenary. I take my text this morning from the second verse of the fourteenth chapter of John: 'I go to prepare a place for you'." Dr. Landrum does not give the name of the pastor.

WHAT ARE THE SIGNS OF SERVICE?

Vice-President of The American Legion of The Maryville Post Addressed Y. M. C. A.

All ex-service men who were present at the "Y" meeting were indeed grateful for the valuable talk delivered by Mr. Sims, a former Maryville College man.

"That one word, "service" has been brought to the forefront for 'it is being used now as it has never been used before'", declared Mr. Sims. For examples he gave the words, ex-service man, service, flag, etc.

There are the three tenses of Service: Past, Present and Future.

Past Service is ackrowledged by its rewards and recognition.

Present Service is recognized by the ability to do, power to accomplish and the attitude that the individual holds to the world and the world to the individual. Present service is also recognized by the intensity with which one enters into the service.

Future service is inevitable when one gives the best to others, and prepares to give better future service.

Genuine service to Christ is the best service, for one need not be concerned as to the reward, for God always provides and cares for those who serve him. This service must be whole-hearted, single service, for one cannot serve God and Mammon.

Robert E. Lee said that "duty" is the sublimest word in the English Language. Since Service is the fulfillment of Duty, it follows that Service is after all the sublimest word in the English Language.

No one could afford to miss this helpful talk. Do no let an opportunity go by, in not hearing the addresses given at the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday afternoon.

SENIOR Y. W. C. A. HAS MEETING ON THE SUBJECT OF "SERVICE"

Did You Miss It?

Too bad, because it was well worth hearing! It was a mission program—the Y. W. C. A. meeting in Athenian Hall last Sunday.

It was divided into three different phases. Bernice Jones outlined the kinds of service called for in the up-to-date world and told us just what preparation is necessary for service in foreign lands. Grace Kern brought in some real experiences with the Italians; the little children who came to Sunday School regardless of rain even if they almost flooded the church with the portion of the ranfall which they carried in their shoes. Sarah Lackey brought us face to face with the question of personal service. Are we facing it squarely, or are we half afraid to do that now. It was an appeal you could not forget. Of course there was much more to the meeting. We can't tell you all of it and we are very sorry if you missed it.

JUNIOR Y. W. C. A. MEETS WITH MISS SMITH

Junior Y. W. C. A. met last Sunday, just guess where—at Miss Smith's studio. 'Nuff said. But just to make every girl who was not there sorry she didn't go, we will just tell a little of what we did.

Miss Smith met us at the door with the sweetest smile ever. Inside were soft easy chairs and cushions and everythihg to make us "comfy".

After singing some songs and hearing some special music by Misses Jessie Johnson and Betty Faller, Miss Smith gave us a talk on "Silence", which we shall never forget. This verse shall always linger in our minds, "Be still and know that I am God."

After the meeting we had a social hour and looked at some of the wonderful curios and works of art which are in the studio. Have you ever held a statue in your own hand, that was four thousand years old? Have you ever seen hand-made jewelry, prettier than what you can buy? That isn't all we saw either! It was too good to be true.

Girls! You are missing half of your life if you are not an active member of the Y. W. C. A. Get in Now!

THE GREEN ROOSTER FLIES DOWN FROM HIS ROOST

What Makes The Green Rooster Green?

A little more than a week ago, on November the third, about two o'clock in the morning, roosters seemed to cease crowing, undoubtedly due to the result of the National election. And they will not likely be heard of very much for at least four years. But this is not necessarily true of the Green Rooster which may be seen and heard of frequently on the Campus. One such incident might be mentioned here. Last Monday afternoon on the Southern extremity of the campus, sixteen members of the club spent very happily the hours from two to four thirty in telling stories and playing games. The program was excellent and no dragging moments passed.

Another great feature of the afternoon was the menu. There were several kinds of sandwiches served. Also olives, chicken salad, fudge, and ice cream.

The program was more than successful. And the desire for more time and frequent parties like this one just mentioned was voiced by all.

BEAR HUNTERS FIND EVERYTHING BUT BEAR

"Say Beard, did you hear that panther?" This took place in Spence's Cabin on Thunder Head last Sunday night. There were five similar questions asked among the six fellows there.

Last Saturday, Delemo Beard, Ralph Babylon, Charles Dillworth, Dan Leach, Roy Nicholson, and Ben Montgomery picked up their beds and walked, hiked, scrambled or slipped up the hillsides to the Smoky Mountains to kill a few bears. The only "bear" that was seen was eaten by Beard and Babylon for supper on Sunday night. The return trip was made without any encounter with the wild beasts but did you notice how much those six ate at supper? And maybe those six beds didn't feel like two feather ticks. After all was taken into consideration, the trip was decided a big success.

GEORGIA CLUB PICNIC

"Not much has been heard from the Georgia Crackers", I heard someone say. Well we're here in full force and about the liveliest bunch on College Hill.

The members met Monday at 2:00 p. m. near the College Woods to enjoy the afternoon. Various games and contests were enjoyed, one of which was to write a telegram using the letters G-e-o-r-g-i-a to begin the words of the message.

The eats were about the most important part of the picnic. We shall never forget them; weiners roasted over a big fire, with buns and pickles, sandwiches, peanuts, and ice cream cones. Georgians don't tell how many "cones" we ate.

The afternoon passed all too quickly for us, but it was agreed that we would try it again soon.

Mr. Barker:—If brevity is the soul of wit, my outline will tickle Professor Orr to death.

SCRUBS DISPLAY FIRSTCLASS FOOTBALL

Best Maryville Poly on Polytechnic Grounds by Score of of 19 to 0.

Maryville "Tigers" Whitewashed Also By Score of 20 to 0 On Saturday.

Working and plotting in the interest of his own team, (naturally so) the athletic chaperone of the Maryville Poly squad had his way about the matter and Hicks, referee, gave the signal for the starting of a thirty-two minute game, eight minutes to the quarter.

Playing on a field which reminded a person of the rolling waves of a slightly disturbed ocean, the husky Scrubs set out to swamp the Poly game roosters under a smothering score. But allowing four minutes of play to get wound up for action, and three to begin playing in earnest, the would-be runaways were soon to find themselves well satisfied with about a fourth of the set score to their credit. Although the Scrubs put up a Scrapping contest from beginning to end, it was evident that the Poly boys were going to draw all the blood they could.

Working a few shift plays—eight out of ten plays were shift—the "Blue Ribbon" school fellows almost broke loose for a touchdown. Yes, the scrubs almost received a black eye, but thanks to King, who slowed up runner Davis, and to "Jinny" who tackled on 17 yard line. Davis attempted the same play but Sullinger pulled him down for a loss, and that ended their fun.

Let's take a squint at what took place in the actual playing.

PLAYS BY QUARTERS

Poly chose to take first try at carrying the old inflated hide down the field. First try it was, for on three straight downs and a lost pass the ball went to the eager Scrubs. Ryburn, who did the best work for the M. C. squad carried the ball for fifteen yards and his second, Sullinger came along with 5 yards more, and Middleton completed the task by carrying the ball over. Bob King kicked goal. Score was 7-0.

Poly was given another try but she soon surrendered on downs. A long parallel end-run was thrown for loss to M. C. and then came a "brake loose" by Tex, who evidently thought he had the feet of the "winged messenger" by the way he high stepped down that field towards a distant objective—the goal and a second touchdown. Yep, he thought he had left the Poly bunch behind in the shade for when he was downed by a Poly man Tex was heard to remark as he beheld the tackler with surprise and chagrin, "Well, I thought I had left you, boy." It was time for something to happen so "Hooks" announced the ending of the fast eight minute quarter.

SECOND QUARTER

The second half was short and snappy. M. C. kept on the offensive nearly all the while. Poly was putting up a stubborn fight for gains and downs, but the tackling of Maryville's men would not permit such a thing, and ball went over and over. The next touchdown for M. C. happened towards the last of this quarter. An end run by Tex netted 10 yards, and 6 yards more by Ryburn took the oval to within a foot of the line and Sullinger put 'er across. No goal. Score M. C. 13. Poly 0.

THIRD AND FOURTH QUARTER

There was no ending to the third quarter which was continued in order to save time and troubie. During this half Davis, Poly's right end, who was called back to punt and run with the ball, pulled off one or two clever plays which put the Scrubs on the hop and look-out. The goal line was almost reached but not quite. A miss was as good as a mile for the College fellows soon had the old pigskin well into Poly's back yard after a few plays only to loose it on a fumble. Peters went into the battle at this stage but was soon forced to leave due to the fact that his harness was not sufficiently intact to keep his moleskins from slipping off his graceful form. Out was the best thing, and he went, pulling them along.

Poly somehow got another chance and was apparently sailing along fine until Ryburn grabbed a hot pass like he does the Pearsons rolls and chased down the field, kicking up the turf for a distance of 70 yards. No goal was kicked. The honorable timekeeper, who was enjoying the game so much, called time a few minutes late (and later) so the game ended with M. C. victors by 19 points to Poly's none.

The same squad of college fellows who won the game from Poly on Wednesday also won a game on Saturday from a bunch of fighting Wild Cat pickups from over and around Maryville, and held them to a 20 to 0 battle. I said the line was the same, and it was, only different. Allow for the following addition to last week's warriors and you will have the whole bunch.

Yea verily, it was a corking good game. Eight minute quarters are not so bad if fifteen minutes of play would be allowed so the teams could get warmed up before starting the fray.

JUNIOR ATHENIANS

The Junior Athenian Literary Society met promptly after supper Saturday night with a large atttendance who listened with marked appreciation to the reading by Buchanan which was well delivered.

Next came an extemporaneous debate, Resolved, that apple-sauce is better for you than "hot-dogs". The affirmative Hayworth and McBride, put up a splendid talk as did the negative, Johnston and Jester.

The affirmative won two to one.

We are going to have a peach of a program next Saturday. Let's all be there.

EXPRESSION DEP'T. NEWS

Miss Jewell Stevens read a one act play, "A Pair of Frauds", Monday afternoon at a reception given at the Presbyterian church.

Miss Annarine Atkins read a cutting from "Seventeen", by Tarkington, at a reception given at the M. E. Church, Tuesday night.

Miss Irene Bewley returned Tuesday from a visit to Washington and Tusculum Colleges, where she gave recitals Saturday and Monday nights.

Miss Annarine Atkins has just returned from a visit to Carterville, Ga. Miss Atkins was summoned to that place to take the leading part in a play which was being presented by local talent in that town, directed by a representative of Alkahest Lyceum Company. The same play was recently staged in Maryville under the same management with Miss Atkins in leading part.

An ad in the "Palace of the King" read:

"Five thousand people,
Four thousand costumes."

And they had several funerals the next day.

HIGHLANDERS LOSE TO GEORGETOWN ON KENTUCKY SOIL

three blows put ball over line, but the honorable referee "riled" the boys again by saying the ball was pushed over, so what was there to do but Sullinger sift through the opponents and place ball two or three yards beyond goal line. Another point was added by kicking of goal by Beck and the score stood Georgetown 13; M. C. 7.

Georgetown worked up-field to 40 yard line and feeling safe, attempted a couple of passes which failed. Not being discouraged by failures "Tubby" (quarterback) arrowed another pass intended for left end but Davidson sacked the inflated hide and fain would have gone had he not been downed by the disheartened end. A play was on foot just as the blasted timekeeper scared team and spectators speechless "temporarily" by firing a blue-steel one, announcing the end of the first half.

THIRD QUARTER

Georgetown's kull returned ball 10 yards and 8 yards more were added after three line plunges, leaving the ball on 40 yard line. Heavy line work by Maryville boys caused fumble and M. C. covered ball. Beck to King passing was used a second time and was successful like the first. Hard playing by both sides followed and Georgetown got ball on downs. A swap fumble ensued, Bailey went through for 5 yards, a drawn out crescent end run by left half passed over only a two yard gain (Nagle went in for Parrot at guard). Cloar passed to Forwood, who made a good catch thereby completing Georgetown's first successful forward pass. Forwood passed around his backfield and pulled off what Wyncoupe later called "Our Statue of Liberty Play". Our own play pulled on us for a gain to within 5 yards of goal was another depressing blow to the team's co-operation. Third down saw ball over line; goal was kicked making the score 20 to 7.

Beck, who is a better man at halfback than full, returned ball to 33 yard line; 11 yards by Davidson, 7 yards by Sullinger, who played fullback from time he went in (first half) to end of game. Georgetown received Beck's kick, fumbled to M. C. A seven yard gain and one incomplete pass followed by two unprofitable downs and the ball later went over. Another piercing pistol crack and the third quarter ended with M. C. 7 and Georgetown 20.

FOURTH QUARTER

Georgetown netted three yards on first downs; 2 yards on second; 1 yard on third down and met the requirements on fourth. A flying high tackle by Hicks threw 'em for a 5 yard loss; a fake punt formation gave gain of seven yards and to kick was safest. King returned for 8 yards. Three downs with no appreciable gains; ball was kicked and receiver was downed in his tracks. "Tubby" tried to pass to one of his end men, who was not there to receive. So what does Tubby do but strike out for an end run himself. Hick's hold on Tubby's arm slipped and Wyncoupe got a waist hold which had to slip to ankle hold and great was the fall of Tubby. Hurt? Naw, he was too blasted dowey. Montgomery came into play again with a long end run, 28 yards. Goal was kicked and the score was: Georgetown 27, M. C. 7.

M. C. received and lost on downs. Line plunges by Georgetown failed and one man received such a jar he fumbled, but recovered. Adams, a left half sub, received a second pass completed by Georgtown. Wyncoupe tackled hard and low allowing but little gain by pass. A third and shorter pass put the ball on 5 yard line where a fumble was recorded and Sullivan returned from behind goal into field for 6 yards. Sullinger went through for 6 yards and Beck for 8 after which Mr. Ump began to beef about something but the pistol spoke louder than he, and the fourth quarter, incidentally the game, ended with ball on Georgetown's 18 yard line. Final score: Georgetown 27; M. C. 7.

own gripping, soul-stirring style. Miss Bewley is another of Maryville's graduates who, we remember with pride, did her bit also in war-work among the military camps, helping to bring smiles to many a homesick lad. With this experience and her close contact with the military life of America during the war, what wonder that she put such deep feeling and emotion into these lines,

"Where's the arch that's high enough——
Where's the eve that's dry enough——"

The men's quartet followed Miss Bewley's reading with "America the Beautiful", and then Dr. Stevenson made the address of the morning. After paying a beautiful tribute to those heroes who made possible the celebration of Armistice Day, he spoke of the important task that falls upon us as Americans today to protect and to uphold those principles and ideals for which they so nobly fought. He forcibly condemned those who, in the face of all the hardships and suffering that our heroic American boys experienced on the field of battle, in order that free government might be maintained, allowed themselves to remain indifferent to the rights of self-government.

Dr. Stevenson pointed out to us that those who have made the supreme sacrifice have taught us several things; first, that we should work to fit ourselves to maintain these principles, and that free government for which they fought. Second, that we should use our right to vote, not to encourage political scheming, but for the election of strong, honorable men who have the best interests of the people and nation at heart. Third, that we must stand out strongly, and fight heroically, against all that which is dangerous to the commonwealth and that each should feel it his own personal duty to stand up for law and order, and for the protection of our city and country from any injury whatever. Dr. Stevenson's address contained as always, the best of sound advice and instruction, and it concluded as has been said before, one of the most impressive services that has ever been held in the chapel.

Immediately after the Chapel Exercises, Major Gillingham took charge of the formation of the student body for the parade in town. The students were divided into three companies, A, B, C. Company A consisted of all service men, both army and navy, Company B consisted of all non-service men, while Company C was composed of the girls of the College. The College band led the march over to town and Oh Boy! how that band can play!

The parade was a great success, being undoubtedly the best ever pulled off in Maryville. The line of march was from the West Side School on Main Street down to the station and back up High St. to the Court House. The parade was well arranged and orderly throughout, and did credit to the management of the leaders and to Maryville.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

The Chemistry Club met Tuesday evening Nov. 2. The following officers were elected:

President - - Frank S. Minarik
Vice President - Charlotte Messler
Program. Secy. - - - Mike Parks
Secy. & Treas. - Joseph R. Watkins
Editor - Eugene W. Stanbery

It was decided that meetings should be held on the first Tuesday of each month.

Miss Fanson gave a very interesting address on "The Littlest Things in Chemistry", in which she very ably discussed the molecule and the atom, and their place in industry. If you are at all interested in Chemistry and did not hear this address you missed a rare treat.

MISS ATKINS PLAYS IN GEORGIA

Miss Annarine Atkins who so beautifully and efficiently took the part of leading lady in "The Microbe of Lobe", presented at Maryville and Alcoa recently, was asked by the lady who directed the play to come to Georgia and take the leading part again. "I never had any one who took that part so well", was the superb praise given Miss Atkins. She is one of the most promising members of the department of expression. Her many friends are glad that her talent is being recognized by outsiders as well.

DR. WM. T. BARTLETT WILL CONDUCT FEB. MEETINGS

Maryville College's annual twelve day series of evangelistic meetings will be conducted next February by the reknowned evangelist, Dr. William Thaw Bartlett. Dr. Bartlett conducted the February Meetings of 1912 and 1916, and it was with a feeling of great delight and satisfaction that we welcomed the authentic report that he had consented to come again this year.

Dr. Bartlett is a Maryville man through and through. In proof of this statement we cite you to the fact that he was born in Baldwin Hall and for some time resided within the sacred portals of that House of Mystery—to most of the members of the male sex. Dr. Bartlett's father was a former President of the College, and it is said that his mother, who was once a popular matron of Baldwin Hall, originated the Maryville College provincialism "moonshine". Dr. Bartlett graduated from M. C. in the class of 1901 and since that time has been very active in the service of the Master.

Since 1912 he has given his time wholly to evangelistic work. During this year his work has been for the West Jersey Presbytery of New Jersey, and it was only through a special concession by that Presbytery that M. C. was able to secure Dr. Bartlett for next February.

The annual February Meeting is the one function on the Hill for which everything else gives way, and all unite to work for its success.

As yet no leader of music has been secured for the meeting, but efforts to that end are being made which, it is expected, will result successfully.

Prof. Hunter preached at the Harriman Presbyterian Church last Sunday morning and night.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bourn of Yonkers, N. Y., have been the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Steveson at the House-in-the-Woods during this week.

Do you know that within the last six months the church boards have had to recall thirty-six missionaries from China alone to carry on in Christian America finance campaigns for the support of their own families in that heathen land? You students of America! !—What say you?

Can America not measure up to her past—what is her future to be?

VOLUME SIX — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, NOVEMBER 18, 1920 — NUMBER EIGHT

Y. W. MEMBERS HEAR DISCOURSE ON POLAND

Miss Frances West, National Y.W.C.A. Secretary Tells of Conditions in Poland.

Polish People Have False Ideas Of American's Wealth.

The large audience which was present at the joint meeting of the Junior and Senior Y. W. C. A. enjoyed the violin solo by Miss Sue Sugg and the very interesting and instructive talk by Miss Frances West. Miss West is a National Y. W. C. A. Secretary and has just returned from Poland.

In telling of her trip over there with twenty Polish girls, who, having been trained in America, were returning to their own country as relief workers, she said that there were some very handsome Serbian officers on board and that only the self-government of the girls warded off expected trouble.

Their journey from Paris to Warsaw was very trying. At one time they were in the midst of a revolution and for the first time saw people brutally murdered. They noticed that the women's faces were grave, lined and patient, and that the girls had lost their youth. They saw starving men, women and children, eating grass.

These Relief Workers establsihed the first Blue Center in Central Europe. It was made as cozy and attractive as possible. The girls flocked there in large numbers for there it was warm and there hot chocolate was served. Many girls and women had suffered so much that they lost their minds.

Two of the greatest problems of the workers were: (1) Convincing the people that the working girls had minds and would take an interest in their country. (2) Bridging the chasm between the two classes of people.

The Polish people have very false ideas concerning the wealth of the American and the conditions of America. They believe that Americans have gold mines in their back yards and that every American has plenty of money.

We complain more over little things than the Polish women, who have lost their sons, have seen their husbands murdered, and have watched their daughters suffer so much. When we think of how much they love their country, and how earnest they are, it makes us feel how big the world is, how little we are, and how great the need is.

THETA EPSILON

Shakespear's Heroines Are Brought to Life.

Shakespear's heroines were again brought to life in the Theta Epsilon program Saturday night. It is a popular belief that the classical and high standard program cannot be interesting, but any one who was at Theta can readily assure you that such is not the case. This combination is, perhaps, difficult to make, and the fact that it has been made in each of Theta's programs of this year is undoubtedly due to the talent and faithful work of the program secretary, Miss Jessie Johnson.

Saturday night's program consisted of a Piano Solo, Grace Majure Extracts from the diary of Mrs. William Shakespear, Janet Ensign; Heroines of Shakespear; Violin solo, Sue Sugg.

Miss Lois Franklin of Alabama entered school Tuesday. Still they come! She was accompanied to Maryville by her friend, Mrs. J. N. Killough.

"BE A MAN", ADVISES DR. BARNES AT Y.M.C.A.

"Integrity, Purity and Strength Comprise The Trinity of Character."

Dr. Graham Will Hold Discussion at Y Next Sunday.

What makes real Christian manhood? What is its worth? How may this ideal of every right-thinking man be attained? These questions and other equally important ones, were answered by Dr. Barnes in his address to the Y. M. C. A. last Sunday on the topic, "Be A Man". Dr. Barnes first emphasized the importance of character, which is considered before all else in judging a man. In the character of a true man is the element of integrity, which may be defined as "wholeness", lacking in nothing. In so far as we injure any one of the powers God has given us, we are not complete. Next to integrity comes purity. Purity not only of speech and action, but of mind and heart as well. As the speaker put it, "You know yourself best by the company you keep when alone."

Finally, in the trinity of character, strength is required, to make possible steadfast perseverance toward these ideals. In attaining this character, the first need is for prayer, not merely formal spoken prayer, but prayer that naturally and constantly arises as we go about our daily work. Prayer must be supported by our own efforts, however. If then, to our prayers is added the practice of these points we may acquire this character which is the prime need of true manhood.

The speaker for the next meeting is Dr. Graham. He will hold a round-table discussion of the race question. If you wish to hear a vital question, presented in a most interesting way, come to the "Y" meeting, next Sunday afternoon.

SENIORS ENTERTAINED BY THE McMURRAYS

Even though the night was "cold and dark and dreary" our spirits were not dampened in the least, and the prospects of a holiday on the morrow, and a good time ahead put everyone in just the right kind of mood for a party. So it was a jolly bunch of Seniors and their friends who partook of the hospitality of the McMurrays Wednesday night.

Progressive games of all sorts from Crockinole to "Jacks" were played at nine tables. "Tex" carried off the prize—and "Davy" the booby. The decorations were of a patriotic nature, as were the score cards. There was fruit salad, lots of it, with whipped cream and saltines. Dr. and Mrs. McMurray are ideal host and hostess. How fortunate we are to have Claire in the Senior class. We just hope they will ask us out again.

JUNIOR FORENSIC LEAGUE ACTIVITIES

Election of Officers for 1920-'21 And Selection of Questions For Preliminaries.

Forty Fellows Attend The First Meeting on November 3.

On November 3rd, a meeting of the Junior Forensic League was called, there being present upwards of forty fellows. At this meeting the following officers were elected, the President having been elected at the last meeting of League in spring of last year:

President - - - David Friedman
1st. Vice President - Charles Maye
2nd. Vice President - David Noble
Secretary - - - - James Brown

There remain two officers yet to be elected, namely; Editor and Treasurer, which will be done at the next meeting of the League, and with a fine selection of officers as the above will indicate, the Junior Forensic League is out for business proper this year.

On Tuesday evening, November 9th, a meeting was called in the Senior assembly room of the Alpha Sigma Literary Society, at which meeting, there were present something like forty students. At this meeting, the President and Secretary, under the guidance of Professor Brittain, got busy and put the respective questions before the candidates for selection for preliminary purposes. The following are the students trying out for the Junior Debating Team and the respective questions selected by them:

Resolved: That the Constitution of the United States should be amended so as to provide for the election of the President and Vice President by popular vote instead of by electors. Affirmative, Maurice Speck; Negative, Lowell Curtis.

Resolved: That the United States Senate should immediately ratify the Versailles Treaty including the League of Nations Covenant with the Lodge Reservations. Affirmative, David Noble; Negative, William Jester.

Resolved: That the United States should accept the mandate for the government of Armenia. Affirmative, David Heydenburk; Negative, Edward Cornelius.

Resolved: That capital punishment should be abolished. Affirmative, Louis Drake; Negative, Hayden Nichols.

Resolved: That a bonus of one dollar per day to each man for each day served should be appropriated by Congress for the veterans of the World War. Affirmative, Joel Ambrose Eidson, Horace Wolverton; Negative, L. E. Milling, Warden McMahan.

Resolved: That the Excess Profit Tax should be repealed. Affirmative, Joe Gamble; Negative, Van Hunter.

Resolved: That Congress should pass a law prohibiting the immigraton of foregners for the next three years. Affirmatve, Lee Moore, Nathan Hayworth, Finley McBride, Donald Buchanan, Jean McMurray; Negative, Joe Sixsmith, Carlisle Patrick, Cosmos Winters, Murette DeLozier, James Brown.

Resolved: That a compulsory school law should be passed in each state requiring compulsory school attendance of boys and girls under twenty-one years of age until they have completed a high school course. Affirmative, Julius Huffman, Walter Buchanan; Negative, Warner Gray, Nello Austin.

Resolved: That before reaching the age of twenty-two, every male citizen of the United States should be required to take military training, equivalent to six months' service in the army. Affirmative, Sherman Burson, William Prince, Robert Campbell, Charles Maye; Negative, Chester Karrick, Merlin Usner, Thomas Whitehead, David Friedman.

The above represents the questions as selected by the respective students for their preliminary tryouts for the Junior Debating Team.

Things are moving along quite rapidly insofar as a real he-sized debating team for the Preparatory Department and be it said that the different prep debating teams that meet us will have to go some if they can outwit and state their facts better than the teams which will be put forth into the field of argumentation by the Preparatory Department of Maryville College. In other words, watch us "Do it".

Local Music Lovers Have Opportunity to Hear Brilliant Zedeler Symphonic Quintet

Famous Concert Company, Headed by Nicolai Zedeler, Former Cello Soloist With New York Symphony, Has Popularized Music of the Masters.

Nicolai Zedeler, formerly cello soloist with the Stockholm, Sweden Symphony and later with the New York Symphony Orchestra, firmly believed that the masses really love the music of the masters. He organized his own company of artists to prove his theory. Today the Zedeler Quintet is known from coast to coast as a distinctively high-grade musical organization which always pleases—and interprets only the best in music. And it's all done with violins, cello, piano and an especially constructed organ. Miss Fortune the soloist with the Zedelers is a well known vocalist of wonderful artistry.

BAINONIAN

From The Land of The Sky Blue Water.

Hiawatha Dramatized.

Our Indian Summer is past and so is the beautiful Indian program put on at Bainonian Saturday night. But how pleasant are the memories when we think of both of them, the latter in particular.

The first part of the program was an interpretation of the American Indians' musical soul. Winston Newton sang, "By the Waters of Minnetonka". Nelle Baker and Sallie Huffaker played a duet, the "Scalp Danco".

When the curtains were drawn we felt as if we were in the Land of the Dakotas of Indian days. There were real live Indians in their war feathers sitting around the campfire before a wigwam of the forest. In the center was a handsome chief, Martha Robison, who told us the story of Hiawatha's childhood. A fit introduction well given, to the literary part of the program.

The following scene was Hiawatha's wooing. There sat old Nokomis, Rachel Higginbotham, and Minnehaha, Laughing Water, Agnes Lewis. By her side was the ancient Arrow-maker, Jennie Lequire. Hiawatha, Eugenia Hagood, came to claim the beautiful Minnehaha for his own and she was given to him.

The next scene was the wedding feast celebrating the marriage. Grouped in a semi-circle were Hiawatha, Minnehaha, Nokomis, Chibiabos, Elizabeth Moore; Paw-Puk-Keewis, Rebecca Calderwood, and Iagoo, Sara Lackey. Other guests were Francis Wilson and Henrietta Jackson.

As they sat at the feast Paw-Puk-Keewis, Rebecca Calderwood, gave the Indian dance for the entertainment of the guests. She certainly knows how our forefathers gave vent to their overflow of joy. Never did Chibiabos, Elizabeth Moore, sing sweeter the two Indian Love Lyrics. Old Tazoo, Sara Lackey, told us an interesting story.

When all was over we almost felt like saying "Best Ever". But we did not, for we realize it was just another one of the good programs for which Bainonian is famous. All praise be to Mary Mason our efficient chairman of the program committee. You are missing something girls everytime you stay in your room instead of coming out to Bainonian.

Maryville's clan of football warriors will make an expedition into the Old Dominion this week to meet our ancient enemy, Emory and Henry College. According to dope we have a slight edge on the Virginians, as history records an even break for them with Roanoke College last week, 7-7. Roanoke was vanquished earlier in the season by the Highlanders 14 to 0. But despite our being favored by this dope, there is nothing to warrant the belief that Saturday's affair will be in the nature of a pie social for Maryville. The Virginians are even picked to win by some dopesters, and rumors still have it that they themselves expect to come out on top. We hope however, that they will be jerked down a few notches on Saturday afternoon.

Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bourne of Yonkers, N. Y., were entertained with an informal picnic supper last Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Huddleston on Court Street. Mrs. H. P. Huddleston and Mrs. J. H. Webb were the hostesses.

Dr. Stevenson will speak this evening at a mass meeting for all the students of Knoxville to be held in the Second Presbyterian Church at 7:30 o'clock. The meeting is for the purpose of celebrating the National Week of Prayer among students of North America. The meeting will be under the auspices of the University of Tennessee Y. M. C. A.

A clipping from the Akron Beacon Journal: "Prof. Arthur F. Southwick, of Maryville College, Tennessee, is spending this week in Summit County visiting the High Schools, giving talks in the crusade against cigaret smoking. He, working under the auspices of the Board of Temperance and Moral Welfare of the Presbyterian Church, with headquarters in Pittsburg."

WANTED—To know who put a mouse into a certain Senior girl's pocket on Armistice Day. Also, where, when, and how? Curiosity killed a cat, and who knows what it might do to a Senior if this information is not supplied.

Miss Bernice West has had the honor of wearing amethysts— a great string of them—which formerly belonged to a princess of Europe. She was even so kind as to let some of her friends wear them for about two minutes each.

Miss Mary Mason had as her guests Saturday night, Misses Jeannette Hibbert and Marguerite Sullinger. Between 8:30 and 10 p. m Frances Hickey, Elizabeth Whitlock Edith Moore, Lois Hayes, Marguerite McKinney, Martha Robison, as well as the two honor guests, and Mary Mason enjoyed a wonderful "feed", around in 401 Pearsons.

Who was disappointed by not having the hike Monday? Surely not, Effie and Hicks, "Slim" and Elsie, Ruth and Gene, "Beckie" and "Shimmie", Ann and "Kitty", "Ignats" and Grace, Joe and Claire. Why not? Because of a certain party out at McMurray's where there were more eats and more sunshine (?) than could possibly have been found in the mountains.

Owen Henderson, one of the World War Veterans, celebrated Armistice Day with his folks at Cohutta, Ga. Such celebrations recall unpleasant memories of the battle fields so "Hooks" decided to be under the consoling influence of his mother upon this occasion. Other objects of his visit border upon secrecy.

The reason is now apparent why Harry Owen (better known as "Bumpus") left suddenly last Thursday for his Rural Retreat near Clinton. Not only was the "fatted pig" made ready but the head of Mr. Strutting Turkey was amputated for the nuptial celebration given to his "big brother" James Richard Owen, who took unto himself one Sara Maleta Humphries, whom he "picked" from the cotton fields of South Carolina, to be his lawful and wedded wife.

"Bumpus" was loathe to leave such feasting and revelry, but to the joy of his room-mate he returned to the "Hill" late Monday evening filled and loaded with delectable delicacies the like of which remains to be seen.

Two members of the Owen family have launched their matrimonial boat within the past year. Look out girls!

Howcum?

Some folks are wondering whether the "movie reporters" cast lots, roll dice, or flip coins to determine their victims.

JUNIOR ATHENIANS

The Junior Athenians met Saturday night with their usual pep.

After the opening prayer by Mr. Jester he read for us "A Romance in a Thimble", which made us laugh till we were so cross-eyed that the tears rolled down our backs and the good nurse had to treat us for bacteria.

Next came a firey, spirited and windy debate, Resolved: That the Democratic platform is stronger than the Republican. The first speaker for the affirmative was Mr. Noble who showed us what the Democratic platform has been, what it is, and what it will be. His colleagues, Drake and Friedman followed up his course with much force and spirit. The negative side was lead by "Shimmie" Brown. What it took in the way of hot air and gas for proof, he and his colleagues, Campbell and Headrick, surely had. The Judges gave the affirmative their decision two to one.

Three new members were sworn in, Messrs. Jester, Gamble, and Prince.

The critic's report showed that he had been paying close attention.

We also had a number of suggestions on debating by members of the audience, and the closing prayer was by Mr. Noble.

"MURMURING OF ISRAELITES"

The story of the murmuring of the children of Israel was the subject of our Thursday morning address. The children of Israel had been used to work while they were in Egypt and here they had nothing to do, so they began to murmur saying: Don't you remember what we had to eat in Egypt—O boy! the fish, the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlic! Who shall give us flesh to eat? We are tired of this manna. So their request was granted, and it must have seemed very providential to them when the quails began to fall; but was it for their good? Nay, "While the flesh was yet between their teeth, ere it was chewed, the anger of Jehovah was kindled against the people, and Jehovah smote the people with a very great plague."

Is there not a lesson here for us of selfish prayer? Many men suffer not because of want, but because they get what they want. How often have those long pleaded-for things from your parents turned out to be pain when you got them? There is a peril in getting what you want, how you want it, and when you want it. The story was told of a father who demanded the life of his son, who was not expected to live, in prayer, and who received his request. His son lived, but only to bring shame and disgrace to the family. He had selfish desires as did the Israelites and he suffered because he got what he wanted. There needs to be a wilderness between all Egypts and the promised lands. The unkindest thing that God could do to you would be to soften your work.

Besides the Selfishness of prayer there is the tragedy of unbelief When the children of Israel did not get all they wanted they began to think that the God of Moses was just a sham. The speaker said that he had stood by men in the presence of temptation and could see their faith begin to drag.

Again there is the tragedy of pleasure. "He that soweth to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption." Just as a ship that has al been burned but the shell, which i a horrible looking sight, is dragged to the shore, so many men have burned out all the good things of life for merely lust, and at last have only a blasted blackened shell t drag to the shore.

Sandy McPherson came home after many years, and met his old sweetheart. Honey-laden memories thrilled through the twilight and flushed their glowing cheeks.

"Ah Mary", exclaimed Sandy, "ye'er jist as beautiful as ye ever were, and I hae never forgotten ye, my bonnie lass."

"And ye, Sandy" she sighed, while her blue eyes moistened, "are jist as big a leear as ever, 'an I believe you jist the same."

Seventeen Apples Put Away.

Thru' the key hole of 330 Carnegie Hall last Saturday night came the sweet aroma of frying eggs, ginger bread, pies, apples, candy, lemonade, etc., etc. which made every passer-by sniff the air, lick his chops and groan.

There were seven present: the leaders of the mission study classes except one who saw to it that the rules and regulations of the hall were enforced.

After this monstrous feed the conversation turned to story telling and the tales they told on themselves would make one turn over in his grave; that is, if he was only there. It goes without saying that Brownie carried off the prize for eating the most apples, although he only got away with seventeen.

BIRTHDAY FEAST

Some people can have birthdays and Maryville College and the world are no better for it. Not so with Geraldine Odell for Saturday her mother, Mrs. C. L. Odell came all the way from Birmingham, Alabama for that important event.

Did anyone say chicken? Did any one say cake? Did any one say "good eats"? Well—I know of eleven girls who said many things about eats Saturday night. The girls who were fortunate enough to be present at the opening of the birthday box were, Helen Horton, Irma Schwab, Ruth Newton, Elsie Dawson, Grace Wattenbarger, Anne Alred, Rebecca Calderwood, Bernice Kimble, Effie Erickson, and Geraldine Odell.

Each flea believes that he lives on the most wonderful dog in the world—that's patriotism.

You can lead a student to lectures but you can't make him think.

To A Five Dollar Bill

Crinkle, crinkle, little bill;
Goodness gracious, you look ill!
Are you losing all your power?
You seem weaker every hour!
Now that prices are so high.
"I'm so tired that I could die.
I just circulate all day;
No one dares put me away.
When the evening board is set
With fruits of father's sweat,
My small voice is hushed and still—
I am in the butcher's till.
And, no matter where I go,
People disregard me so;
And I don't seem to count for much
'Mongst the profiteers and such".

Bill, take heart; your luck may change.
I'll admit that times are strange.
Though you're weak I love you still—
Crinkle, crinkle, little bill.

Gladys Nave—What studies are you taking?

Another little dame—Oh, French, English, Chemistry and Trig.

Gladys—Why, I thought you were taking Math. too!

TUSCULUM FALLS BEFORE MARYVILLE WARRIORS ON TURKEY DAY 28-6

HIGHLANDERS BEST VISITORS IN EVERY STAGE OF GAME.

60 Yard Run By Cotton and 50 Yard Run By Buchanan Features of the Contest.

(By Roy S. Buffat)

Turkey Day will long be remembered by every Maryville student and any other spectators who saw the football contest staged on Maryville's home grounds on that day. Sad moments, glad moments and bad moments were experienced by all at one time or other. Discouraged and disheartened indeed were the few loyal supporters who came to Maryville with the Tusculum boys expecting them to either repeat or do better than was done on last Thanksgiving Day, and also, these same folks were the very picture of joy and happiness when Buchanan, Tusculum's right guard, sacked a fumble and ran fifty yards for a touch down. Both teams pulled off some punk playing at times and the critical spectators did not hesitate to say so either. Nevertheless all enjoyed and praised the good playing, and were always kept on the lookout for "things to happen"—and happen, they did.

Probably you saw the game and probably you didn't. It matters not. Some will enjoy seeing, as near as possible, the thrilling moments of the game in print, and others may enjoy living it over again while reading this account of the greatest football game Maryville has waged this season. C. McLaughlin recovered a fumble towards the last of the first quarter and Cotton, Ford, Sullinger and Davidson carried the old ball through and around (always advancing) the opponents for a total gain of 69 yards, which placed the ball two yards from the goal line just as first quarter ended. Scrimmigaging was shifted to the other end of the field and the second quarter started in tension. After three hard downs the pigskin was placed within one-half foot of the goal, which was crossed through right guard by Sullinger. Cotton kicked goal, placing Maryville in the lead by seven points—for a while.

Tusculum received and "Tubby" Register attempted a short kick to infield. Beck, who had relieved Davidson, carried the ball for 15 yards and Cotton placed himself to receive the next center-passed ball but it was too swift for him and he fumbled. Here the Tusculumites were thrilled to a peanut, for Buchanan caught the ball on first bounce and left the Highlanders looking on as he raced down a clear field for a fifty yard dash and a touchdown. As it is necessary for all balls to pass through the goal posts (instead of crawling along the ground) before a goal can be scored, the Tusculum boys had to be content with six points. Score 7-6.

Maryville received the kick-off with fire in their eyes and blood. After returning the ball to Tusculum's 43 yard line Captain Quarterback Ford used his "bean" and called a play which gave Cotton a chance to make up for his fumble. Cotton accepted the challenge and tore through Tusculum's left end and soon took a standing position behind the goal posts. He made his play more complete by kicking goal. So a 60 yard run and a goal made Maryville a grand total of 14 to T's 6.

Sullinger's long kick-off went over line but a player who had touched, the ball attempted a return and got only 12 yards. Register kicked out of danger to Beck. Two plays and a 33 yard pass from Ford to Jimmy Hendrick soon had the ball near the goal line, which was crossed by Beck on a hard line buck through Tusculum's left end. A goal by Cotton made a count of 21 to 6.

At the beginning of second half, the same lines of scrimmage, which started the game faced each other, with the exception of Campbell serving for Britton who was knocked out. Maryville kept the boys from Greeneville on the defensive all the time during the third quarter but could not get the ball beyond Tusculum's 4 yard line, where a deadlock occurred and the ball went over on downs.

My, but that fourth quarter sure was a whirlwind—at first, and would have been at the last had not the rapidly advancing shades of evening interfered! On the first play a pass failed and on the second, Sullinger passed over seven yards. Beck went through for twelve yards but his excitement and eagerness got the better of him and he slugged his tackler. Naturally a penalty followed and Maryville's distance to goal was much greater, and it was fourth down to boot. But the difficulty was overcome by McMurray passing to Sullinger who crossed over for the fourth touchdown. A Tusculum man was "blinked" temporarily and Beck took advantage of the intervening time before McMurray kicked goal and hunted out the man he slugged. Here he showed the true observance of the football code and the true sportsman spirit. He begged the player's pardon, shook hands, and went to his line of scrimmage a better man. There he and his teammates played to the last of the quarter, which ended with scene of battle in midfield. The final score was 28 for Maryville and 6 for Tusculum.

Officials of the game were: Edwards, Umpire; Prof. Henry, Referee; Jackson, Timekeeper.

The line-ups were:

Maryville		Tusculum
Hendrick, John	l.e.	Lawson
Sullivan	l.t.	Dillard
McLaughlin, C.	l.g.	Register
McLaughlin, F.	c.	Norton
Drake	r.g.	Buchanan

Hendrick, Jimmy	r.e.	Broyles
Cotton	l.h.	Britton
Davidson	r.h.	Buquo
Sullinger	f.b.	Sturn
Ford, capt.	q.	Dugger
Feeman	coach	Doak
Substitutes
Beck (twice)		Campbell
Parrott		Bryan

McMurray		Swan

Numeral facts concerning game:

	Maryville	Tusculum
quarters	1—2—3—4—	1—2—3—4—
passes failed	0—1—3—2—	0—3—0—4—
passes completed	0—1—2—2— (83 yards)	0—0—0—0— (0)

Maryville received three penalties amounting to 25 yards. Tusculum received two penalties amounting to 17 yards. Long runs were made by Beck, Davidson, Cotton, Ford, Sullinger and Buchanan. Maryville called "time out" three times and Tusculum six times.

"Every Man Feeds His Face"

You felt rather sorry for the football fellows about dinner time the day of the game didn't you? Well allow us to say that that feeling was altogether uncalled for. Why? Just ask Mrs. McMurray and her splendid corps of workers and you will see why.

My, oh my, but how those scrapping fellows were repayed for the time and work and sacrifice they made in order to put up a good scrap. They put up the scrap, everyone of them both Tusculum and Maryville men, and they also did more than justice to that splendid feed handed them by the Domestic Science Department through the kindness of the Boarding Club. Most assuredly and most heartedly the fellows do express their appreciation. If you don't believe it, ask Coach Feeman.

Thus the season's football schedule was completed, and all, for the time being, were happy.

ALPHAS AND THETAS MEET IN CHAPEL

The Chapel Is The Scene of Much Revelry On Wednesday Evening; Large Numbers Throng Its Sacred Portals.

Vital and Momentous Question Eloquently Discussed.

Foolish question No. 99,998—was the Alpha-Theta meeting a success? Of course it was! Everybody was there and there was room for everybody, for we met in the chapel? Alphas and Thetas presided. Alphas and Thetas were on the program. Alphas and Thetas entertained and served Alpha-Theta eats. Dr. and Mrs. McMurry were chaperones—of course it was a succes.

The program came first, as programs have a habit of doing, and was a "wonderful thrill" (quoting a prominent Theta) from the opening selections by the Alpha-Theta Orchestra to the longed-for moment when Mr. Peters announced that a "social hour and refreshments will be served down stairs".

Every feature was good. There was an inspired address "To the Thetas" by Tommy Loft, an equally inspired "Response" by Nannette Walker, a reading by Susan Carson, a duet by Millicent Codding and Jessie Johnson.—Then, there was a debate—an eloquent debate on the most momentous of all questions "Resolved that moonshine is more beneficial than sunshine". Oscar Stanton and Esther Jarrold upheld the affirmative side with fiery eloquence. Both spoke from wide experience—straight from their hearts. Ralph Armstrong and Janet Ensign upheld the negative side with arguments cool, deliberate and practical. The affirmative side won.

The most novel feature of the evening was a "movie" which concluded the program.

The social hour "down stairs" was thoroughly enjoyed,—so was the music by the Alpha-Theta orchestra —so were the "eats", apples, all-day suckers and ice cream cones.

GIRLS FORENSICS GETTING UNDER WAY

Twenty-four College girls have entered their names for the big race December 17 and 18. These intrepid young ladies have already launched forth in several small competitions. They have shown much rivalry and no little skill in outdistancing each other in these weekly events conducted by the G. F. League.

Just at present the big leaguers are deeply interested in finding out first how strong their respective opponents are. After elimination evenings, December 17 and 18, the survivors will contest for first place with Tusculum.

Judges for the elimination event are Mrs. Alexander, Professor Davis and Professor Knapp. The manuals in which the strokes and counter strokes, not only useful but also necessary for those who wish to make a good showing, are located in Reserve Alcoves of the Lamar Library.

BAINONIAN-ATHENIAN JOINT MEETING

A Well-Balanced Program Followed by Social Hour and Refreshments, Enjoyed in The Gym.

"Had Two Good Times", Dopes The Writer of This Article.

All the mathematicians in the world have finally agreed that one plus one equals two. It is therefore possible, since this weighty question has been definitely decided, to reason that one good time plus one good time equals two good times. And we had positive proof of the truth of this statement last Wednesday evening at Bartlett Hall. When Bainonians get together there's bound to be one good time; and when Athenians get together there naturally occurs, another good time. Well, they both got together on Wednesday evening last, and by the intricate process of reasoning given above, you can easily see how these two Literary Societies had Two Good Times.

If any further proof of this statement need be produced it is only necessary to give a brief resume of the program that was carried out. This program was divided into three sections. First, a literary program was carried out which was undoubtedly one of the best ever given on the Hill. Second, the meeting adjourned to the gymnasium where games were played and prizes given the winning teams in the great game of "Occupation". Last, but far, far from least came the EATS. Oh boy! But wait, more of the eats in detail, in a minute.

To return to the literary program. The Athenian President, Mr. Greene presided. The meeting was opened, as is the custom, with prayer by Mr. Watt. The first number on the program was a piano solo by Miss Elizabeth Whitlock. You've all heard her play before for entertainments, and on other occasions, and you'll agree with us when we say that she's hard to beat. Following this number, Miss Alberta Frow read a sketch from "Seventeen" that inimitable book by Booth Tarkington. Truly Bainonians are to be congratulated on having such talent as Miss Frow possesses, in their society. We all liked her reading so well that she was called back another time, and only lack of time prevented her from being called back several more times. Miss Ruth Gamble came next on the program with a vocal solo, and that's the same as saying that the solo was of the very best. She also was encored for Athenians and Bainonians know a good thing when they hear it, and like to hear more of it. Mr. Carl Moore then gave two cornet solos accompanied by Mr. Arellano. That's a combination hard to beat and everyone knows it. Miss Annarine Atkins read "By Courier" by O'Henry. You've all heard Miss Atkins before, and you've all read O' Henry, before, that's all that is necessary, you know it was good. And by the same process of reasoning you know that Miss Rendon and Tex Middleton in a duet on steel guitars; and David Noble on his xylophone furnished two excellent musical numbers with which to conclude the program.

On the whole the program was well-balanced, and consisted of some of the best talent from each society. Those who worked up the program are to be congratulated, and those who took part are to be congratulated also.

At the conclusion of this first part of the program everyone adjourned to the gym where the exciting game of "Occupation" was played between several teams of ten each. The winning teams were rewarded with prizes consisting of the well-known and beautifully decorated boxes of "Checkers".

But now comes the perfect climax of a perfect evening. The "Eats". Delectable, delicious dainties, served by darling, dimpled damsels, produced a most happy and contented feeling in every one concerned. There were sandwiches, and there were pickles, there was potato salad, and there was punch, and if there was anyone who didn't enjoy all this, that person has a perverted appetite.

No one had the slightest idea that tempus was fugiting until Miss Green informed us that it was time to be homeward bound.

THANKSGIVING CELEBRATION AT CHAPEL

Special Service in Celebration Of The Tercentenary of The Landing of The Pilgrim Fathers.

Orchestra Makes Its First Appearance and Scores a Hit.

Economy is not an elective but a required with most Maryville students, and so, according to Dr. Stevenson, we economically combined a Thanksgiving service and a celebration of the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims on Wednesday morning. A great cause for thanksgiving was that the college orchestra made its first public appearance for this year. We have heard rumors of its wonder, but the half had not been told. Each member of the orchestra as well as the leader, Prof. Garrett, is to be congratulated on that splendid music. The first numbers of the program were rendered by this orchestra. Then the student body sang America, after which Dr. Wilson read the President's proclamation. Dr. McMurray then read a Psalm of Thanksgiving ——"Bless the Lord, oh my soul and forget not all his benefits". Prof. Hunter led in a prayer of gratitude and praise for the blessings of the past year. It was very fitting that the beautiful Thanksgiving Anthem sung by the choir should immediately follow this prayer.

Miss Annarine Atkins' reading "Thanksgiving" by Markham, was very appropriate—mentioning not only thanks for the skies, the hills, but friends and books, and all that proves that "life conceals a deeper merit than it reveals." That Miss Atkins is one of the best readers on the Hill, was proved beyond a doubt. After another well rendered selection by the orchestra the double quartette sang "The Breaking Waves Dashed High". This is also the first time we have heard this quartette this year. It boasts some new members, Millicent Codding, Everett, Jackson and David Noble. All Maryvillians are proud of this double quartette.

Dr. Stevenson then interpreted the occasion to us in a splendid address, reminding us that the first national thanksgiving, celebrating the adoption of the constitution by Congress was 131 years ago next Friday. That constitution is not one of the least of our causes for thankfulness today. We are thankful not only for such transient things as security, prosperity, bountiful harvests, health, but we have a permanent cause for thanksgiving and gratitude in the character of our Pilgrim forefathers. Let us review it and from it receive inspiration. Their lonely voyage with all its perils should stimulate our devotion to our country and make us anxious to serve our fellowmen. The motives which led to that voyage resulted in the American republic, for the Mayflower, led by Providence, brought a better civilization and a purer liberty to the world.

DEATHS

Nellie Alice McCampbell

The infant daughter of Mr. Harvey B. McCampbell and his wife, Alice Gillingham McCampbell, died at their home at Beverly near Knoxville on last Friday morning. Little Nellie Alice was eight months old, and a very bright and promising child. Much sympathy for the bereaved parents is felt on College Hill, where the father was once a student, and where the mother, for several years, was Scholarship Secretary. Mrs. McCampbell is Dr. Gillingham's only sister. The funeral was conducted by the College Pastor, Dr. Stevenson, at the McCampbell residence at Beverly on Sunday afternoon, November 21. The burial was in Greenwood cemetery.

Rev. William J. Trimble, D. D.

The news of the death of Dr. Trimble has just reached the Hill. Dr. Trimble was, for many years, the pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Chattanooga, the church of which Dr. Elmore is now the pastor. During those years Dr. Trimble was a director of the College, and on four different occasions —in 1887, 1894, 1898, and 1902— he conducted the February Meetings. His son, James Martin Kimble, Esq., who is is a practicing lawyer in Chattanooga was formerly a student of Maryville College.

Dr. Trimble was born in Pittsburg, Pa., eighty-two years ago. He graduated at Iberia College and Theological Seminary, and was ordained by the Presbytery of Central Ohio. He had charge of churches in Martinsburg, Ohio, Edwardsburg, Mich., Wiston, Ohio, Toledo, Ohio and Chattanooga, Tenn., and at the time of his death was still in active ministry, and was pastor of the Fourth Church of Camden, N. J., where he had served for ten years or more. He died on Saturday evening, October 30, of the infirmities of old age. His burial was in the Evergreen Cemetery of Camden. A large number of ministers participated in the funeral service.

And thus another worthy man who contributed much to the character-building service of our College has joined the large body of Maryville men who, after serving their generation, are now resting from their labors.

Joe A. McNutt

Mr. Joe A. McNutt, a prominent and very popular business man of Maryville, passed away at 10.45 o'clock on last Thursday morning after only thirty-eight hours of illness.

Mr. McNutt was one of the best known men of Maryville and was also a valuable friend of the College. He was fifty-one years of age at the time of his death. He is survived by a widow and six children, two of which are students of Maryville College.

The funeral services were conducted Friday afternoon at the McNutt home on College Street, Dr. Graham officiating. Interment was in the Magnolia cemetery of Maryville.

The Echo, in behalf of the faculty and students of M. C., extends to the family our deepest and sincerest sympathy.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Sophomore Class:

WHEREAS: God, in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call to Himself, the father of our beloved friend and classmate, Miss Grace McNutt,

BE IT RESOLVED: That the Sophomore class extends it's deepest sympathy to its classmate and her loved ones in their bereavement.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That a token of sympathy be sent to the home of the bereaved family.

AND BE IT ALSO RESOLVED: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to Miss McNutt, a copy read to the student body, and a copy published in the Highland Echo.

Respectfully submitted,
H. R. Arnold,
Geraldine Odell,
Lina Hodges,
Leslie Poe,
Committee.

Mrs. Fred Coulter

Miss Sarah Coulter, the Manager of the Co-operative Boarding Club, received the sad news a few days ago of the death of her niece, Mrs. Fred Coulter, of Bakersfield, California. The body was brought to Tennessee and the burial took place in the Pleasant Grove Cemetery, at Hubbard, near Maryville. Mrs. Coulter was Miss Zelda White, a citizen of Blount County. Our sympathy goes out to Miss Sarah Coulter, and to the other bereaved relatives, in this time of their great sorrow.

MISS LUCILE CARTER LEADS Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. last Sunday afternoon offered two big attractions for the girls. The Juniors heard Professor Knapp. The Seniors, had an unusually interesting program led by Miss Lucile Carter. Patience and Impatience as exemplified by Job and Job's wife was the thought brought out by the various speakers. Miss Blanche Moore told in a few words the outstanding facts in the life of Job's wife. Miss Addie Fine briefly reviewed some characters in the Bible who showed faith in time of trouble.

"La-Priere", a cello solo was played by Miss Madeleine Herizingu. Miss Lucile Carter spoke of the greatness of Job's character. Miss Jessie Johnson sang the "Lost Chord". Miss Callie Speck gave a short reading entitled, "Life". The meeting was well attended, the special numbers were good and the talks excellent.

THIRD NUMBER OF LYCEUM COURSE LAST SATURDAY

Another good opporutnity for moonshining was gratefully accepted last Saturday evening. We know that not all of M. C.'s students were in the chapel at that particular time yet we do know that a large number were there, and that they were amply repaid for the time spent, not only for the "exceptional" privilege of moonshining but also by the excellence of the program.

Laying all joking aside though, the program presented by the Zedeler Symphonic Quintet was good from first to last, and we may safely say that this third Lyceum number was by far the best entertainment given this year.

TOUCHDOWNS SCORED BY DR. STEVENSON

Just as a wart on the nose is apt to draw more attention than the nose so are many churches and many individuals in the church apt to draw more attention than the church.

It is not any church nor any individual in the church, but it is Christ Himself that represents the type of a manly man.

He or she that strives truly to represent Jesus Christ is a manly man or a womanly woman.

If you would do all that would become a man, follow at all times and at all places Jesus of Nazareth.

To follow Christ is to be made bold. Notice in the thirteenth verse of the fourth chapter of Acts how Peter and John were recognized as followers of Christ by their boldness.

What think you of Christ? Can we follow him and be cowards?

What do you think of a man who would say in the agony of death, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do?" Is there any thing interrogatory in following such a man.

Do you think that to be pious means to be weak? Then look at great men like Washington who counted not their lives dear unto them for the Kingdom of God's sake.

What other men have gained from communion and fellowship with Christ you and I may gain and possess too.

If all the Gospel can do is give us the faultless and blameless example of Christ we loose everything.

The message of Jesus Christ is not outside as a pattern. It is within us as a power.

Not one of the great men of Christ can impart power.

The true christian can say with the Apostle, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

MOUNTAIN TRIP

About seventy-five students took advantage of the opportunity to take the belated trip to Sunshine on Monday. Although the day was not ideal for a mountain trip, the spirits of the pleasure-seekers were not dampened in the least by the humidity of the atmosphere.

Miss Maude Story of Chattanooga visited her brother here one day during the past week.

Emory and Henry Win By 15 Yard Place Kick by Weaver.

Kicking by Sullinger, a Feature

Considerably strengthened by the addition of a couple of self-furloughed Varsity men to the regular line-up, the Orange and Garnet eleven ventured into the state of our friendly rivals, "The Virginians". There on the football grounds of the Emory and Henry College they played a big part in the staging of a closely played football game.

A year ago the Highlanders lined up against the Virginians on the M. C. football field and there staged a spirited game in which the aggregation from Virginia went down in defeat by the score of 48 to 12. This last game, fought on a different battlefield altogether and by a somewhat different brand of warriors, would in itself be expected to offer some change in results of both scoring and playing. The expectation, if had, was met by the score of 10 to 7 in favor of Emory and Henry.

It seemed as though the first quarter was going to end with only a few failed forwarded passes and one or two fumbles to keep the spectators in an excited stage. As all were getting somewhat anxious for something to happen, it did. Hendrick kicked down field and Harmeling, E. H.'s left half, returned ball for 25 yards and White, fullback, completed a pass with Ellis, left end, who carried the ball over for the first scoring of the game. Weaver kicked goal and the margin on the visiting Highlanders was 7 points to 0.

No team can call for "time out" over three times in a single half of a game. If time is called and the allotted amount is overrun the side which made the call is to receive a penalty of two yards. Such a thing happened in this game at Emory and Henry. M. C. received the first of such a penalty and the home team came in line soon after for the next one. Immediately following the overtime punishment, Weaver of Emory and Henry made the three points, which at the close of the fray, proved the Virginians winners. With the aid of his teammates he put a place kick from the 15 yard line between the goal posts just as the quarter was coming to a close.

In the third quarter Weaver failed on his second attempt at kicking a goal from placement, after which attempt the Maryville squad had the Virginians on the defensive. The ball was finally lost on downs at the close of the quarter.

Maryville, at the beginning of the fourth quarter, had the ball on E. H.'s 30 yard line. The backfield runners carried the ball for a couple of gains, and then it happened unexpectedly: Cotton received the oval, made a quick short run parallel to the line of scrimmage, passed the ball to Sullinger, who carried her over for a touchdown. Goal was kicked leaving Emory and Henry with only a margin of three points.

The line-ups and substitutions were:

Maryville		Emory & Henry

S. V. B. HEARS REV. JONES

Rev. R. C. Jones, one of Maryville's representatives in the heart of Siam, who is now on leave and teaching in the College, spoke very interestingly to the Student Volunteers Thursday night, Nov. 11. Rev. Jones has spent twenty years in Siam and knows well the needs of the worker in the tropical and heathen land. He gave many valuable hints to the preparing missionary.

We should not hold ourselves to one line of work or study. The duties of a missionary are varied from teaching and preaching to farming. Literary Society training is particularly valuable. The missionary on account of his training is often called upon to act as chairman of important meetings which require a thorough knowledge of Parliamentary Law. We should not neglect any opportunity to gather information.

"Cultivate a sweet disposition". The tropics affect the temper and an ill disposition destroys the effectiveness of work and results.

"Learn to sew". Clothes are not always to be had in the interior, and dressmakers are scarce articles. A knowledge of home science is almost essential to the missionary household.

"Be humble". Seek not position though honor will be yours. Christ wants His laborers to magnify Him rather than themselves. Pride will not reach the sinner, while Love will.

A general store of knowledge is useful to the missionary. Read general literature at least twenty minutes each day. We will be asked all sorts of questions and be expected to know them. Don't have a one-sided education.

"Master your English Bible". Over there your attention will be turned to the language and transfer of thought. You will not have time to study your English Bible as you have here. A thorough foundation in Christian Doctrine must be acquired here. In foreign lands, the man will find himself faced with other doctrines as logical to the heathen as his is to him. He not only needs to be safe for his own safe, but his results will depend on his ability to dethrone the other doctrines that oppose him.

Mr. Jones will be glad to talk with any students contemplating foreign work, whether in Siam or elsewhere. We hope he will give us some news about his own field soon.

THANKSGIVING CELEBRATION AT CHAPEL

neither literature nor art but an impulse toward God, while the Pilgrims gave the world a NEW impulse toward God. It is not strange that God should deliberately save this continent for them, or that they should gratefully give it back to Him.

This is indeed sacred soil. Since God has guided so marvelously the destiny of this country in past years, may we not believe that there is spiritual force within us still. May this force grow mightier and mightier until, chastened and purified, it again brings out God's purposes.

However, each of us has a real responsibility to bring this to pass. Let us each day strive to be better and purer men and women growing in intelligence, patriotism and Christian faith. May we get a new vision of our country's needs, then with nobler purposes, rekindled zeal, and more devoted hearts, let us meet those needs.

"Give strength and wisdom to us anew
Thy word to keep, thy work to do."

After this heart thrilling and soul stirring address, the orchestra concluded the program of the morning with a medley of American airs.

M. C.'S FOOTBALL SEASON BECOMES HISTORY

A Retrospective Of A Rather Hard Grid Season.

Scrapping Scrubs A Mighty Asset To Football Squad.

One of the first publications regarding football on College Hill came out under a caption something like this: "Rustling of the Pigskin is Now on in Earnest", and a subhead stated that forty candidates had donned moleskins as the first step in preparation for the initial conflict, namely with U. of T. The old pigskin was rustled and bustled and hustled from one end of the field to the other, and Coach Feeman soon had an eleven ready to try all against the changing rivals. Band and student body escorted the players to Knoxville—a real battle—Highlanders played hard—lack tonnage and experience—U. T. won.

Losing the first game of the season was not altogether encouraging but the temper of Maryville men is such that a defeat spells greater duties and tasks ahead. Every man, scrubs and regulars, prepared for, and performed as well as could be expected, (under the circumstances), the needed football tasks. Starting with a loser and winding up with a winner, which left all in a good frame of mind, was not so bad after all. The second scrap, played in the Wildcat's Territory, proved disasterous to the invaders of the blue grass state by a score of 31 to 0.

"Hard Hitting Highlanders Carry Orange and Garnet to Victory" was the nature of the headlines of the Fourth Number of the "Echo". It was the first victory of the season and incidentaly the first game played on the local gridiron. A 14 to 0 defeat was handed the Virginians by the Maryville eleven in perfectly good style and manner. Things took on a rosier hue for team and backers. Enthusiasm ran high, but ebbed when news rumored that only three more scattered games would be played and only one on the home grounds. Team members became negligent and "pep" started to die a slow but sure death. Sullivan, the manager-elect, saved the day by booking a game with Middle Tennessee Normal, which team made the fourth fray of the season go against Maryville. Contrary to what was thought, the Normal fellows appeared on our home grounds, leaving the field to be forgotten until the "Turkey-day Game."

There were seven games played during the season and only two of them were docked as victories. The University of Tennessee and Kentucky State University held our players scoreless while they piled up 47 and 31 points respectively. Roanoke was treated just about as bad by Maryville. Playing on the home field put our men at a decided advantage, and Roanoke found themselves outplayed in a 14 to 0 contest.

Among the surprises of the season was the hand-out at Georgetown by the seemingly dark horse football squad which that school put out. Hard luck tales are permissable at times, and it was at this stage that our fellows were called upon to summons all in order to keep the morale of the team and school at par. The summons was answered well and faithfully by every hard fighting grid warrior from College Hill.

The line suffered changes from time to time during the seven battles waged. Breaking in new or old men to take the places of losers or failures, tended to weaken the team's cooperative powers, and to add to the problem of producing a machine that would be practically

Y. M. C. A. BANQUET IS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Members Eat, Drink and Are Merry on Monday Evening.

Sixty Guests at "Gastronomic Marathon".

Last Monday evening, just at the time when less fortunate individuals were wending their way toward supper at Pearsons, there gathered in the Home Economics rooms of Science Hall about sixty guests, fully equipped for the "Gastronomic Marathon", as the toastmaster put it, which, in the shape of the Y. M. C. A. banquet, was soon to come. Savory odors floated into the hallway, bringing most delightful anticipations to those who waited. Fascinating waitresses in white caps and aprons tripped in and out; through the partially open door glimpses could be caught of the laden banquet table. In fact, the first impressions were enough to cause everyone to congratulate himself that he had come.

Presently the door opened, the guests entered, and the feast began. Below is printed the menu, but it, at the best, can only give an idea of what the "eats" prepared by Mrs. McMurray and her pupils really were. Truly it leaves the half untold!

Hot Rolls and Butter
Breaded Veal and Gravy
Sweet Potaties
Peas — Celery
Fruit Salad with marshmallows
Butter Scotch Pie a la mode
Coffee — Mints

When at last the festive board was cleared, the toastmaster, Charles N. Sharpe, arose and began the program for the evening with remarks both humorous and appropriate. Preparing the audience for the speeches to come, Mr. Sharp requested that no base, cowardly eggs be used at any time during the speeches. A base, cowardly egg, he defined, is one that "hits you and runs". In a more serious view, he stated that the purpose of the banquet was to make a "Bigger and Better 'Y'", thru the cultivation of a better spirit of fellowship among its members. The toastmaster then introduced the first speaker of the evening, Forrest Brown, the Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and the man whose efforts, to a large degree made the banquet possible.

"Brownine" spoke of the wide field of the College "Y", all the boys of the student body. Of these, less than one-half are "Y" members. The task of the Association is to prepare them to lead Christian lives, whatever their vocations in life may be.

Following Mr. Brown, James Jackson, chairman of the Mission Study Committee, was introduced. Although the toastmaster predicted for Mr. Jackson a sad fate if he should ever go as a missionary to a land of cannibals who have "to feed upon the Gospel" yet "Jimmie" did not let this danger deter him from urging the importance of studying the life of a missionary at the Y. M. C. A. Mission Study Class.

The applause that greeted the name of the next speaker, Dr. McMurray, bore witness to the friendship held for him by the "Y". In a helpful address, dealing largely with personal evangelistic work, Dr. McMurray advised us, as "Fishers of Men" to work as all true fishermen must, keeping ourselves out of sight. God's plan for our work is all that deserves regard.

Other equally valuable addresses were made by Cabinet members, each discussing his own line of work. Roy Buffat, chairman of the social committee, emphasized the importance of college-day friend-

GIRLS' SOCIETIES ARE STILL ACTIVE

Bainonians Put on Happy Mixture of Reading and Music.

Miscellaneous Program.

There is nothing better than a good miscellaneous program of the type that Bainonians put on Saturday night—a happy mixture of reading and music.

The very best introduction to such a program is a piano duet, well rendered by charming young ladies! Now Martha Turner and Lucille Strayhorn filled the bill. Did you ever hear Callie Speck read? Perhaps you have, but Saturday night she was at her best in "An Abandoned Elopment."

Mary Elizabeth Clements made us happy with a vocal solo, for 'tis only on rare occasions that she becomes a nightingale.

Martha Mae Boyer is one of our new Bainonians, but after reading O. Henry's "Love's Sacrifice" we couldn't forget her and the talent she passesses if we wanted to; not that we do.

We have heard Nelle Baker play before, but each time we enjoy her piano solos more—did you notice the applause?

And then Lola Beeler read one of those splendid Mason stories, "Marcia Mason's Lucky Star". Indeed Marcia was twice lucky in having Lola interpret her character in a most excellent and amusing manner.

Another surprise! Ruth Newton sang—how she did sing!! Now we know that she cannot be outclassed so you will hear from Ruth again.

As the closing number, Mildred Lowe and Katherine Buell gave the Schottish. They were in costume, so nothing could have been prettier or more appropriate with which to close this excellent program.

"FRIENDSHIP" IS THE SUBJECT OF JUNIOR Y. W. C. A. MEETING

Geraldine Odell Makes Very Helpful Talk on The Above Subject.

Every girl who attended the Junior Y.W.C.A. meeting last Sunday certainly felt thankful that she had the privilege of attending such a fine Thanksgiving meeting. Misses Newton and Kimble sang very sweetly "Teach Me to Pray", and Miss Odell made a very interesting talk.

This talk on "Friendship" was very fittingly divided into three parts. First she said that we must be friends with the world. This may sound odd at first, but when we consider that to be a friend means that we must understand our friends, it is made more clear. We want to become better acquainted with the world and learn to understand it better.

Then we must be friends with our conpanions. We need friends now a great deal more than we did when we were home. Each one that wants friends, must first be a friend. This means that we must be sympathetic, unselfish, and thoughtful of others.

We need some one to help us choose these friends. This is God. He is always willing to be a constant companion to us if we will but let Him.

Since we have been in school we have come nearer than ever before knowing what prayer is. We have never felt the need for it so greatly as we do now that we cannot go to our father and mother for help. There are some days when we feel as if we have no other friend but God. Whatever your conception is of an ideal friend, God is that and more.

Each day should be a Thanksgiving Day. We are especially glad that we have so many friends and above all that we have God for our best friend.

All girls who are missing these helpful meetings are doing an injustice to themselves because they are missing one of the best features of collegel ife.

This little rhyme was the beginning of a half-hour of genuine entertainment for Theta girls Saturday night.

Misses Maude Hite and Minnie Hunter, who graduated from M. C. last year, were visitors on the Hill last week-end. They came to Tennessee to attend the wedding of Mr. John Carson and Miss Alice Wright, which took place at the First Presbyterian church of Knoxville on the evening of November 29.

Miss Pleasants chaperoned a group of College girls to the Carson-Wright wedding on Monday evening.

HISTORICAL FACTS PRESENTED TO Y. M. C. A.

Life of Sir George Williams Founder of Y Discussed.

Maryville College Organization Reviewed.

It is rumored that last week there were some who read the subject for the next "Y" meeting, "The Heritage of Sir George Williams", and at once inquired who the gentleman was, but whether or not that be true, it is certain that no one who attended the meeting last Sunday will ever need to repeat such a question. Beginning with the birth of George Williams, the founder of the Y. M. C. A., and closing with a very interesting account of the organization of the first Association on College Hill, Forrest Brown, the leader told the wondrous story of the Y M. C. A.

George Williams was born in England in 1821. At the age of sixteen he was converted, and four years later he went to work in London. Williams was an earnest Christian, and began the practice of holding prayer meetings with his fellow apprentices in the building where he worked. At one of these meetings a society was formed. Its name, the "Young Men's Christian Associations", was suggested by Christopher Smith. It admitted as members all boys who were Christians or who showed signs of a converted character. The organization grew and soon came to occupy one of the largest halls in London. The spread of the Association thruout England resulted in changing the sentiment of the country toward young men and in winning many young men to Christ.

The movement soon spread to America. In 1851 an organization was formed in Boston. Others appeared in the large cities, and before long, in a convention at Buffalo, a confederation was formed. New departments were added, the value of the Association property greatly increased, and at Paris there was formed a world alliance. The importance of physical training began to be recognized. The first physical director of the Y. M. C. A. was the man who invented basketball. Student associations appeared and student secretaries were obtained. Conference grounds were procured which now number one hundred. Of these, Blue Ridge is established for the Southern Colleges.

At Maryville, following the February meetings of 1877, a few students, having no knowledge of any other such organization, organized an association. Among these students were Dr. Wilson, Dr. Silsby, tnd Dr. Porter. So much attention did this first Maryville "Y" attract that the International Committee sent a man here to investigate it. Out of the members of this first Association have come many ministers and missionaries.

In his latter days, the founder of the Y. M. C. A. was given every honor. He was knighted by Queen Victoria and was given the freedom of London. The association is a living monument to him, and according to one of his messages, it is left to "the young men of many countries to carry on and extend."

A class has been formed in Paris to teach one-legged men to dance. The only thing lacking now is to give hugging lessons to the armless.

There would not be nearly so many divorces if a man was always as fond of his wife as he is of his wife's husband.

Taken from the blackboard in Dr. Barnes' room: "L. L. D. Ph. D. marries M. A. Litt. D. and their son is Fiddle D. D."

We solicit contributions, suggestions, criticisms, and expressions of opinion from readers of the Echo

An Open Forum

There is a certain department which the Echo has, from its beginning been without, and yet should have in order that it may be more essentially a sutdent organ. It is an "Open Forum" from which the students of the College may voice their ideas or opinions upon any subject pertaining to college iife.

A student may sometimes have an opinion to voice, or some twenty-carat idea which he would enjoy seeing in print, or some valuable suggestion or proposition to present to the readers of the Echo, and yet refrains from writing such an article, either out of fear that it might receive a frigid welcome from the editorial staff, or because of the idea that it might appear out of place in a college "newspaper". But under the head, "Open Forum" such an article would be neither out of place nor inappropriate.

Just why the Echo has never had such a column, we do not know, but it is the desire of the present staff to establish the "Open Forum" provided the students will take sufficient interest to make it a feature column. The editor of this paper is fully convinced that there are many students on the Hill who are more adept writers than the members of the editorial staff, and it is with the view of encouraging such ones to contribute to the Echo that the "Open Forum" is proposed. We can see no reason why this should not be indeed a feature column.

In many college papers this section appears, and it is our hope that it shall appear in the Echo. The intent of this move is to augment the feeling that the Echo belongs to each and every student, and that each and every student should contribute to it. In other words, the Echo strives to be more truly an "echo" of student ideas.

Therefore we solicit such articles from the students, and while no promise can be made that they will be published in the four page editions, we do promise that they will be published in the larger editions. Of course, however, all articles must be signed by the writer and, after being received by the editor, must be approved by the Faculty Adviser, Prof. E. R. Hunter.

Unexcused Delinquencies

There still remain a few subscribers who have not, as yet, paid their subscription dues. Are you waiting for your name to appear in these columns on the "Delinquent List"? Or have you just been "putting it off" till a more convenient time? Now we know you love your college paper and wish to co-operate in maintaining its high standard, so by all means materialize those "good intentions" you have entertained so long. See the Business Manager personally or remit by mail at once.

BRILLIANT PARTY IN BALDWIN

Fifteen lucky girls were entertained in Number Four Baldwin, after society Saturday night. Harriet Green, Eugenia Hagood, Elizabeth Mitchell and Alice Robison, were joint hostesses to a few of their friends. After the thrilling mysteries of "Solemn Occasion" and ""Who-sir-me-sir", the hostess gave each guest a beautiful orange chysanthemum of fruit salad and some crackers—this was followed by quantities of sandwiches and jelly from home, and real sure-enough broiled ham. After demonstrations of mystic writing by Dorothys, and various tricks of mind reading, hypnotism was tried out with most wonderful results (two Seniors, who in their younger days took psychology, were present). Then came punch and cake—wonderful two layer cake with filling an inch thick! Alas, the lights had already flashed, and Mary Mason, Lou Hayes, Margaret McKinney, Lois Franklin, Grace Clabough, Elizabeth Moore, Ella Mae Walker, Dorothy Stivers, Dorothy Dickerson, Sue Veazey, and Martha Robison reluctantly went home.

THREE I PARTY

While moonshiners were busy Monday upon the campus and in the parlors of Baldwin and Memorial, and in the sequestered nooks of Pearsons, a merry throng met in Pearsons' parlor. Who were they and why did they meet? They were students from Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa, meeting to have a good time, and, yea verily, they had it.

It was the first party held by the Three I League, this year. But watch us! This party was only the beginning of the revelling that we plan for this year.

This party planned by the competent committee consisting of Helen Morrow and Alice McAnnulty, was a decided success and everyone had a good time.

The bell ringer, who helped make up the merry bunch, was tempted to delay the ringing of the moonshining bell.

We are glad to welcome any new members. We invite you to our next meeting.

ATHENIAN

Athenian met last Saturday evening as usual, with the following program.

Opening prayer

Parliamentary Drill, led by Mr. Greene

Debate: Resolved: That the right of franchise should be limited to those able to read and write. Affirmative, Martin; Negative, Clabough.

The Condition of America's Oil Supply Today, Wilson.

It is becoming the custom at Athenian meetings to devote a short period of time to a study of Parliamentary law. This is proving to be of no little value and is very interesting as well.

Messrs. Martin and Clabough both brought out some very strong and interesting points for both sides, although the decision of the judges was for the affirmative, the decision of the whole society was rendered for the negaitve. Athenians hope to develop some good debating material between now and time for the first preliminary.

Mr. Wilson's talk on "America's Oil Supply" was carefully prepared, and brought out some startling facts concerning our supply of petroleum as compared with the world's supply, and the individual supply of other nations. Those who have the question for debate in the first preliminaries would have done well to have heard Mr. Wilson's talk on this subject.

The evening's program, though shorter than usual was good and worth listening to. We have noticed however, that in spite of the good programs and meeitngs lately some of those members who began the year so well with us, show a tendency to drop out as the work continues.

Miss Grace Johnson, a member of last year's Freshman class, visited on the Hill for several days during the past week.

JUNIOR ATHENIANS

The Junior Athenians met Saturday night at the usual hour and had another of those good debates for which the coming orators of this society are noted.

The question for debate was Resolved: That the Prsidnt of the U. S. should be elected by popular vote instead of the electorial system.

The debators for the affirmative Messrs. Heydenburk, Jester, and Friedman put forth such a strong argument that the judges gave them their decision although the argument given by the negative side, Messrs. Gamble, McBride, and Milling was by no means weak.

Next week we will have a mock trial. Everybody out for the big display of gas.

Miss Jennie Montgomery was ill during the past week-end.

But of course we do not know—authentically,) Finder will please return to the Registrar's office as soon as convenient. Hope you have better luck than we did! We couldn't even find it in Webster's dictionary.

MARYVILLE'S FOOTBALL SEASON PASSES INTO HISTORY

constant for the season. This, we all know, was impossible and consequently a winning-fighting team, so far as actual scoring of points was concerned, was not forthcoming, but disregarding all the handicaps both financially and otherwise, we are confident in saying that all was done and managed well from the paying of the simoleons by Treasurer Proffitt to the practical coaching by "Doc" Feeman.

The scrapping scrubs displayed disciplinary football tactics on the old grid and just naturally showed a brand of ball that would be pleasing to any critical eyed spotter. These fighting fellows offered the ressitance which turned out better and stronger first team players. Had not someone been willing to try for a first birth and at the same time take all punishment handed a fellow in training, there would have been nothing like trained teams or groups striving for one common goal. Thanks be to every man who helped, even with his presence. The Scrubs won two out of three games and lost the third one on a very small margin.

All scoring in the seven games played amounted, for the opponents, to the amount of 161 points while the "fighting deacons", Highland warriors, or whatever you choose to dub them, clicked off only seventy marks. But it is not always the largeness of the score which counts. It is, instead, the spirit in which the game is played. Maryville received comparatively few penalties in her playing as compared to those received by her over-zealous rivals. Line holding by the dependable linemen and the effective, efficient work of the backfield easily made Maryville one of the strongest forward passing machines in the College Southland.

We must not close these remarks without referring to every man who did his part in the football work this season regardless of handicaping circumstances and other things. Let your eyes run this list and see if you know quite a few of these moleskin clad warriors.

Sullivan, Ford, F. McLaughlin, C. McLaughlin, Drake, Jimmy and John Hendrick, Cotton, Beck, Davidson, McMurray, McClung, Wyncoupe, Hicks, Sullinger, Parrott, Greenlee, Cloyd, Nagle, Ryburn, Gray, Peters, Joe Thompson, Crawford, Middleton, Janoviczky, Stephenson, King, Buchannan, Szilagyi. Ellis and any other worthy not mentioned here.

It is with appreciation and gratitude we glance back over the past three or four years and see what has been done by the three letter men and Seniors who are to leave off their Maryville football togs, probably forever. These fellows, Davidson, "Big" McLaughlin, and Cotton are not what you could justly class as allround athletes, but they can be classed among the strongest and best of those of their kind who have gone before through the graduate's door. And it is a just statement when we say that these men played their parts well on the gridiron. Big Mac in his headgea, looks more like a football man than any other fellow his size and temperament, while Cotton and Davidson are men in a class by themselves when it comes to playing the part of halfback. The three of them have been of service and help in placing Maryville on the football map she now dots. Playing and practicing the football code these and all other Maryville men have upheld the good name of pure, clean and sportsmanlike athletics.

WHAT'S COMING NEXT?

The football rush is generally followed by the basketball season. Many fellows of all kinds and types have been gracefully and otherwise, getting over the "Y" basketball court. There is room for many more to come out and try their skill at tossing the inflated spheres through the basket.

Several old men are back this year but that does not spell a thing. If you show yourself better fitted to take the place of guard, center or forward than any of the ship. Following his talk, Porter Turner told of the work of his committee on athletics, and reminded us of the basketball tournament to be held again this year. For the devotional committee Cazwell Johnstone spoke, telling of very interesting Sunday afternoon programs to be given in the coming meetings. Sam Franklin, Jr., discussed the work of the publicity committee and the Y.M.C.A. handbook which this committee plans to publish. Last, but not least in importance the budget of the finance committee was read by Reed Rowan. Although the toastmaster remarked that we need not be worried about our expenses, since we had plenty of them, yet Mr. Rowan showed that these expenses did need consideration, especially in the matter of paying Association dues.

Y. M. C. A. BANQUET IS VERY SUCCESSFUL

An open forum on better methods and needed improvements was then held. Plans for improving the "Y" in many ways were informally discussed. At one of these suggestions, to the effect that joint Y.M.C.A. and Y. W. C. A. meetings be sometimes held, it was observed that certain members became very much interested. Good stories were in order all the time, and many were the laughs that they gained. The mention of a pair of socks seemed to provoke especially humorous recollections. If you doubt it ask Mr. Turner or Mr. Berson.

Music was furnished at intervals during the evning by Mr. Moore and Mr. Noble. Mr. Moore's cornet solos were very much enjoyed, and so was Mr. Noble's xylophone solo. While these men rested, two "music boxes" were put to good use.

At the close of the banquet, the toastmaster's mention of our gratitude to Mrs. McMurray and her class brought everyone to his feet. Fifteen hearty rahs were given for "Home Ec". Afterwards the college song was sung and with thanks also to "Brownie" and Buffat, and whoever made the banquet possible, and to Mr. Sharpe, the very talented toastmaster of the evening, the "Y" members turned homeward. In a very real sense the banquet was succesful. Indeed, the spirit that prevailed in every thing that was said, seemed to promise the beginning of an era of even greater efficiency and usefulness for the "Y" and so we may say, in the words of one who was there "If banquets are like this, bring on the banquets."

PERSONAL MENTION

Have you been getting books from the Y. W. libraries in Baldwin and Pearsons? They have a fine lot of books, and you can get them out each night after supper and after Y. W. Sunday afternoons.

Mr. Horace Dean, who is attending the University of Tennessee, was in Maryville last Saturday and Sunday.

Dr. Delemo Beard, our religious editor, who sustained a broken jaw as result of a boxing match last week, is recovering rapidly.

Miss Beatrice Meyers, who was confined to the Hospital for several days with the Thanksgiving-dinneritis, is out again, well and happy.

Mr. Speck has recovered from a rather severe attack of tonsilitis.

"oldtimers", why you may rest assured that that place will always go to the better man. Work, train, and practice hard. To be frank with you, fellows, allow it to be said that none of you can expect to be a crack basketball man and violate the training rules as the Athletic Editor knows a certain fellow or two has done. If you are going to train for the place, train right and do not go sneaking around smoking coffin tack cigarettes as a means of killing the crave for the poison pills. Forget them through training and work, is the best policy. and you will add another strengthening factor to better and cleaner athletics. The place on the "five" is there for you if you can only prove your worth.

DR. STEVENSON SPEAKS ON THE "INFLUENCE OF PERSONALITY"

Some things persist in life, others pass on and are forgotten. That which we cannot avoid, and that by which we are judged, is our personality. By our personality we exhale influence. If we strive for high and noble ideals, our influence is strong, helpful, and wholesome. If our purposes in life are low and immoral, our influence is corrupt. The follower of Christ who goes about doing good, will seek to do all things for a high and noble purpose. His influence through the power of God will be helpful and full of blessing.

As the little acts of his army officers brought shame on the great Czar Alexander III of Russia, so our daily acts of carelessness, and our lack of using opportunities for the good of others, bring shame on our King, Jesus Christ.

If we give ourselves wholly like Peter, we will be blessed with an influence that will bring about peace, purity, and helpfulness.

Christ can make good out of us if we but give ourselves unreservedly to Him. As with the skill of an artist, He can transform our blemishes and remove our faults. By His power we may stand triumphant over our weaknesses.

By our personality we are daily influencing those about us on College Hill. May our influence lead to the highest, the noblest, and the best ideals. May we receive the power of Christ to impart to others.

VOLUME SIX — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, DECEMBER 9, 1920. — NUMBER ELEVEN

EXTRA! EVERYBODY SEES NOBODY

Everyman Sees Everywoman.

This statement may seem paradoxical to the unfortunate few who failed to see W. L. Savage's moral allegory, "Everywoman", which the Bainonian presented Monday night. If you will ask any moonshiner or moonshinette (terms not recognized by Webster's Standard), he or she will vouch for the authenticity of the above statement.

To describe scenery, costumes, and characters in full, would require more space than this column affords. Suffice it to say that the production of this play would have been entirely satisfactory to Mr. Savage himself, could he have seen it.

Being a firm believer in public opinion as a basis for criticism, the writer lingered about the lobby after the performance in hopes of hearing a casual remark or two. His efforts were not in vain for he heard as follows: "Wasn't Bernice West just wonderful in the role of Everywoman and wasn't she admirably supported by Youth, Beauty, and Modesty?" His (her) sophisticated companion said "You mean Red Hayes". (There now, a secret is divulged.)

Lack of space prohibits further elaboration; in brief, however, it may be said that the characters took their parts well, the scenery was spectacular, and the costumes gorgeous. The Bainonians in breaking the ice of the Midwinters certainly set a high standard for the other three societies and should be commended on the quality of the play, and upon the splendid presentation of it.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Nobody, Myrtle Rendon
Everywoman's Companions—
Youth, Annarine Atkins; Beauty, Alberta Frow
Modesty, Mildred Kimble
Everywoman, Bernice West
Flattery, Margaret Fisher
Truth, a Witch, Anna Sharp

Chorus Girls— Geraldine Rousseau, Nelle Baker, Dorothy Higgins, Mary E. Clements, Stella Combs, Eugenia Hagood, Alice McAnulty, Louise Farrar, Mary Tippet.
Time, a Call Boy, Bernice Jones
Wealth, a Millionaire, Martha Robisson
Witless, a Nobleman, J. Lynn McClung
Conscience, Everywoman's Handmaiden, Francis Hickey
Passion, a Play Actor, Callie Speck
Sneak, a Servant, Mary Mason
Puff, a Pres Agent, Hazey Bevan
Age, Elizabeth Moore
Society Women—Greed, Jeanette Hibbert; Self, Grace Dougherty; Vanity, Ruth Newton; Vice, a Gay White Siren, Elizabeth Whitlock; Charity, a Minister of the oGspel, Marguerite Sullinger.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

The second regular meeting of the Chemistry Club was held Tuesday evening at six o'clock in Science Hall. After a short business meeting a very interesting program was given.

Miss Fanson continued her lecture of last month on "The Littlest Things of Chemistry" in which she discussed the atom and the quantum, and the new and difficult problems which are developing as scientific investigation proceeds.

After a few well chosen remarks by our worthy president, the meeting adjourned until the next regular meeting, which will be on January 11, 1921.

THE SCRAPPING SQUAD

"Hail, Hail, The Gang's All Here". If it's not it should be. These are the men who bore the burden of attack and scrimmaging. Each and every man played some part in the winning of some game. The Scrubs are included in this picture and they occupy space just as well as the first stringers. Let us begin at the left and name them as they appear. Back row:—McClung, Ryburn, Gray, Parrott, King, Ford, Beck, Davidson, Coach "Doc" Feeman, Sullinger, Cotton, McMurray, Greenlee, Wyncoupe, Stephenson, and Szilagyi. Bottom Row:—Jimmy Hendrick, Hicks, Drake, F. McLaughlin, C. McLaughlin, Sullivan and John Hendrick. And the thing they rustled about—called the pgskn—is in the grip of Big Mac.

COLLEGE MEN'S DEBATE PRELIMINARY

Will Be Held Dec. 20 and 21.

Monday, December 20, and Tuesday, December 21, are the dates for the College Men's Debate Preliminary. Since the selection of these dates it has been decided that there is to be school work on Monday, December 20. This will cause a slight change in the program of the preliminary. Instead of having the debate work begin at 1 o'clock as was planned, the first part of the preliminary will be held on Monday afternoon from 1 to 5, the second part Monday night from 6:30 to 9:30, and the third part Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 5.

A large number of new men are to appear in this preliminary. The work done in this preliminary will go far toward determining the outcome of this debate season. This preliminary will, in itself, be a really interesting series of debates. These men who compete are just as truly working for the College as the men who are on the athletic teams. They are not out for their own development alone but because we have a name to uphold as a debating college and they purpose that

HI Y CONFRENCE TO BE HELD HERE SOON

Representatives From Leading High Schools of East Tennessee Will Attend.

A conference of the Hi Y Association of East Tennessee will be held here during the Christmas vacation, lasting from December 31 until January 3. This will be an "Older Boys' Conference" held under the auspices of the local Y. M. C. A. for the purpose of encouraging and promoting Y work among East Tennessee high schools.

Representatives will come from all the leading high schools of East Tennessee, and a few in more remote parts of the State have already signified their intention of coming. The delegates will represent the very best young men of this section of the State and it will be to our great advantage to see to it that they are favorably impressed with Maryville College. The principals and some of the faculty members of the several institutions will also attend the conference. Principal Morgan of the famous Morgan School of Middle Tennessee has reported that he will be in attendance at the conference.

An attractive and well rounded program has been arranged by the local Y committee in charge. A faculty committee consisting of Professors McMurray, Hunter and Hyden has been appointed to cooperate with the Y in providing entertainment for those in attendance.

The boys of Carnegie will share their rooms with the visitors, and board will be furnished them by the Cooperative Boarding Club. A delegation of about one hundred young men and teachers is confidently expected. All the meetings will be held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

The Y men are also making plans and arrangements for the East Tennessee Basket-Ball Tournament which will be held here on February 25 and 26. This tournament was staged last year for the first time, and met with such success that it was decided to make it an annual affair.

Mr. W. B. Holmes, who graduated from M. C. last year, has been in Maryville during the past week.

LYCEUM FRIDAY NIGHT

Dr. Robert F. Griggs to Lecture On The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes.

The fourth number of the Lyceum will be given Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. Robert F. Griggs, to whom belongs the distinction of having discovered one of the greatest wonders of the natural world, will be the speaker and his subject will be "The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes."

The volcanic region he describes is in Alaska. Katmai, which is the largest crater there, is said to be the largest active crater in the world. The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes is a place discovered and named by him, and in describing it he uses both beautiful colored slide and movng piictures.

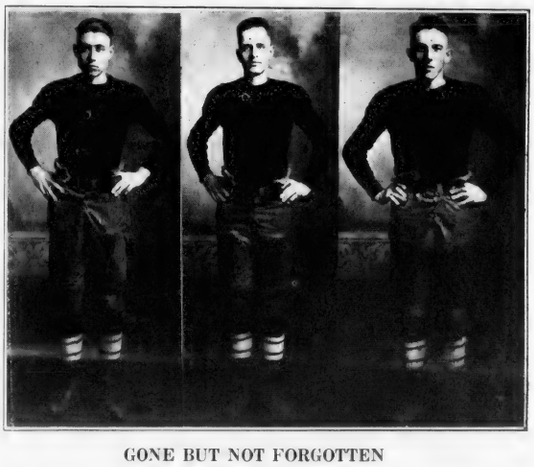
Dr. Griggs is not only well acquainted with his subject but he is also a very pleasing and forceful speaker. An evening spent with him here will be both entertaining and educational.

TRIANGLE CLUB MEETS

You who are from New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, surely missed a good itme if you were not at the "tacky" party last Monday.

The costumes, which were cleverly designed from bran-sacks, patches, and other costly materials by the designers of the triangle club, created much laughter. "Clap in and clap out", "barber", and some of the other games which are still the joy of our hearts, even though they are tacky for college students to indulge in, were played.

It may be tacky for two to eat ice cream from the same plate and for two to eat from the same piece of cake, yet it was lots of fun.



Since many of us will remain on the Hill during the Christmas holidays, it was with pleasure we accepted Dr. and Mrs. Gililngham's invitation to have a triangle party at their home during the holidays.

Those good looking Maryville Calendars, put out by Forrest Brown, "Tommy" Loft, and Harry Wagner, are sure some class! They still have several of the imitation leather calendars left which can be had for one willie per each,—while they last.

ALPHA SIGMAS PRESENT COMEDY DRAMA, "STRONGHEART"

The Alpha Sgma Literary Society has selected for its annual midwinter, William C. DeMille's great American Comedy Drama, "Strongheart". This play has won a high recommendation. It has been played in practically all the large cities and in every instance has met with success in popular audiences. Not only with popular audiences has this play been an attractive feature of drama, but it has been especially favored by college people and all lovers of real and valuable drama. It has been staged by the leading colleges of the country and in every case was given an applauding reception.

To miss this play means to miss an evening of real wholesome entertainment. Strongheart has all the qualities of a play that excite the admiration, that attract the interest, and play upon the humorous, emotional and intellectual feelings of the audience. It is a play of compelling interest and strong appeal. Don't fail to see "Strongheart", Monday night, December 13th., 8 o'clock in Voorhees Chapel.

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

Do you happen to know these men? It may be that you do not, for that reason we will tell you more than the pictures do.

It is indeed a hard task for a man to stand idly by and gaze into the blinking muzzle of the photo man's cannon, but nevertheless, it seems that Cotton, McLaughlin and Davidson stood the ordeal. Jarvis Cotton, the player on the left, hails from the state of Alabama; "Big" F. McLaughlin the "Center" man is from the Keystone state and Davidson is a Volunteer.

These three men are Seniors and football letter men. They have so far as we can tell played their last game of football for their Alma Mater. Big Mac played the role of center on the eleven and it was with pep and precision he passed the pigskin to the receiver. For Center he is the man. Cotton and Davidson have been the mainstays of the backfield for several seasons, and many scores and gains through the line and around the ends can be attributed to these fellows. They played the game from season to season always improving their standing as gridiron warriors. As they all three have played their last gme, and have given much for the glory of the College they served—the College, its students, and all thank them.

We have standardized our reputation with students of Maryville Colelge, by giving them honest merchandise at honest prices

A college education may not pay but the "old man" certainly has to pay just the same.

Any time between December first and twenty-second seems to be a very popular time for a boy to get mad at his girl. Wonder why!

When you see a college lad wearing a face which has the appearance of having been left in the ice-box over-night, it is a safe bet that some little maid has told him that she does not like dates with nuts.

On account of the copious amount of work flooding the Enterprise composing rooms lately the issuance of an eight page Echo, either last week or this week, has been impossible. However, the next issue, which will be the last published before the Christmas recess, will be eight pages. Please turn in material as soon as possible.

A few days ago we overheard somebody ask for the explanation of the difference between printing and publishing. Since then this little illustration of the difference has come to mind: You may print a kiss upon her lips but you certainly do not publish it!

The midwinters are off with a rush! The Bainonians set a standard on Monday evening that will be mighty hard to excell. The Alpha Sigmas will present next Monday evening a comical, tragical, dramatic allegory, which has been redis-covered, counterfeited, disinfected, weighted, sampled, and sniped by the Alpha Sigma midwinter committee. We dunno what all that means, but expect to find out next Monday.

The spirit with which the students as a whole, supported the football team throughout its rather disasterous season was very commendable indeed. Despite repeated defeats the enthusiasm of the sport-loving students always ran high. The basket-ball season is now being ushered in, and, if the basket-ball teams receive similar support, there will be no kick coming. Manager Hendrick is arranging a rather strenuous schedule for the boys' varsity, and the co-eds will also encounter some ancient and fierce rivals.

What is gone with the good old time class spirit that once prevailed among the classes of M. C.? As it appears now the only real opportunity to fully realize to what class one belongs is on Hallowe'en night. This should not be the case. The football season has passed, and not a single inter-class contest was staged. The basket-ball season is now in its embryonic stage and we should certainly not let it pass into history without its carrying with it the records of some hard fought inter-class contests.

TESTS OF AN EDUCATED MAN

Six traits distinguish an educated man from an uneducated one, according to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, speaking yesterday afternoon in the gymnasium at the first university assembly held this term.

"The first trait", said Dr. Butler, "is correctness and precision in the use of the mother tongue, gained only by association with good English The second is noted by those refined and gentle manners which are the expression of fixed habits of thought and conduct."

Sound standards of feeling and appreciation he ranked third in the list, with the power of reflection next and the power of growth fifth. The ability to do efficiently, without nervous agitation, which he found rarest of the six, was Dr. Butler's last test of the educated man.

Pants are made for men and not for women. Women are made for men and not for pants. When a man pants for a woman and a woman pants for a man, that makes a pair of pants. Even a dog pants. Pants are like molasses. They are thinner in hot weather and thicker in cold. There has been much discussion as to whether pants are singular or plural. Seems to us that when men wear pants it is plural and when they don't wear pants it is singular. If you want to make pants last, make the coat first.

JUNIOR Y. W. C. A.

The subject for the Junior Y. W. C. A. meeting was "Making Connections". The fact that we should make proper connections with God was illustrated by three talks. Miss Mary Robinson compared it to making connection in the telephone exchange. Miss Lois Hayes compared it to making connection on the trains, and Miss Rebecca Calderwood compared it to connecting our thought. Miss McClung read very impressively "The Mansion" by Van Dyke. Miss Heissinger favored us with a beautiful 'cello solo. The meeting was very helpful and enjoyable.

JUNIOR ATHENIANS

Promptly at six bells Saturday night we gathered in the Junior Athenian Hall and had another of those unusually good programs which our program secretary, Mr. Noble, is so expert in getting out.

First there was an excellent reading by Mr. Jester followed by a well rendered violin duet by the Messrs. Heydenburk and Johnson.

The society was then turned into a courtroom for the trial of Mr. Louis Drake who was charged with taking a girl to the movies on the night of November 25th.

The attorney for the state, Mr. James Brown took the case in hand and showed that the defendant was moonshining on that particular night with a fair, freckled-face, cross-eyed, red-headed but otherwise very handsome young lady in the movies. What it took to show that he (Drake) was there "Shimmie" certainly was all broke out with.

The defense also put up a very good argument, but could not prove his innocence. We all agree that Mr. Noble, who was the attorney for the defense, is a much better preacher than a lawyer, and we are thankful that he is.

Next Saturday the election of officers for the winter term will be held.

We neglected to say that the jury pronounced Mr. Drake guilty, fined him $3000, and sentenced him to a year in the pen. He invites all his friends to come and see him as they will always find him at home.

He—Why are you looking so mournfully at my bald head?

THETAS PRESENT "THE COUNTRY SCHOOL"

Did you ever visit or pass by a little one-roomed school house by the side of the road, with long pine benches, tiny little blackboard, a horribly, ugly old "cross-patch" of a teacher threatening about a dozen or so boys and girls ranging in age anywhere from five to twentyfive, and all so dressed up on this particular occasion, and, suddenly all of a sudden the Trustee comes in and some other member of the board, I suppose, just in time to see Samuel Riddle fishing in the water bucket?

Well we glimpsed in on just such a sight Saturday night in Theta Hall, and the Trustee was there and made us feel so at home with his opening remarks, "Words cannot express my delight at being with you this beautiful morning and looking into the faces of such an intelligent group of students". And after being aroused by a few bright pupils who always stay awake, they clapped loudly, and then they had a review in history and such brilliant recitations are scarcely equalled in—Maryville College even. Louis Donnerger, alias Grace Wattenburger, a bright looking lad of twelve, perhaps was paying more attention to his sore toe than to the question, but he was sure Washington was the first man, though Adam might have been if you were speaking of "furriners". Samuel Cross (Virgie Nicely,) who must have been boxing for he carried a black-eye- knew Adam and Eve were the only people living in America at the time of its discovery, and Pricilla Dean thought the cootie made the nearest approach to man.

Then came the spelling class and of course Jessie Johnson got the head mark because she spelled pleasant, p-l-e-a-s-a-n-t. She was such a bright child. Then they had a program and the little girl with long curls, and all dressed up, recited very beautifully "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star", and didn't forget a word. There were songs and Declamations and the like, very much enjoyed by all, although some of the audience was rude enough to laugh all the time.

Of course the program was not complete without congratulations from the Trustee, who elucidated at length on the merits of the pupils. What if he could have heard what we did—the music furnished by the White Sisters. But since he did not, and since the pupils, though perhaps brilliant along some lines, cculd never understand Grand Opera the Thetas drank it all in and felt sorry for their backwoods kinsfolks.

PROFESSOR ORR ADDRESSES Y. M. C. A.

What is the real meaning of bearing with each other? How may we best face the faults, peculiarities, and weaknesses of those about us and help them bear these burdens? Such were the questions answered by Professor Orr in his hlepful address at the "Y" meeting last Sunday afternoon.

It is necessary that we bear these weaknesses, Professor Orr reminded us, if we would be like Christ. He met the faults of others patiently, and when he rebuked, it was always in a helpful and uplifting manner.

At all times we should consider our own failings. When we realize how many we have, then we will not be so harsh in our criticism of others.

Again, we should seek the good in everyone. It is foolish to choose the weeds from the golden grain, or to see only the worm in the beautiful flower. A supreme example of bearing the faults of others is found in the ever-sympathizing mother. Seeing the good amidst the bad, she realizes that the good can triumph, and her sympathy and patience with failure make this triumph possible.

The "Y" meeting next Sunday afternoon will be led by Mr. Charles L. Smith, a well-known and popular young business man of Maryville. Come, and make a good meeting better by your attendance.

Ruth Newton demonstrated during ticket-selling campaign for the Bainonian midwinter that she is some saleswoman. We don't doubt at all but that she could sell Fords in Venice!

BAINONIAN IN MUSIC AND DEBATE

Bainonian Hall was crowded and just lots of people enjoyed the splendid program last Saturday night. The posters had prepared everyone for—Music and a Humorous Debate. Misses Stella Taylor, Ruth Allen, and Sarah Witherington did the Music part excellently in piano and vocal solos.

The question for debate was,

Resolved: That Mother Nature should have placed the Rocky Mountains on the eastern side of the United States rather than on the western.

The speakers for the affirmative Misses Marion Krespach and Margaret McKinney, pointed out how the United States would have been benefited morally, socially, and financially; how her history would have been more glorious, her present more attractive, and her future more bright; how wars would have been prevented, and Utopia established had the Rocky Mountains only been placed on the eastern side.

The speakers for the negative, Misses Ethel Dehaven and Esther Miller, with equally convincing powers, showed that this country would never have been settled; that we would be scattered all over the Eastern Hemisphere speaking various languages, even German; and that there would have been no Tennessee, no, nor any Maryville College. (There were few dry eyes in the house at the mention of this probability.)

Two of the judges decided for the affirmative, and one for the negative.

Bainonians! You can't afford to miss such good programs!

HERE AND THERE

Dr. and Mrs. McMurray had as their guests for a few days last week Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Becker of Massilon, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Becker were enroute to Miami, Florida where they will spend the winter.

Dr. Gillingham was unable to meet his classes yesterday.

Smallpox seems to be quite prevalent over East Tennessee. If you have not been succesfully vaccinated within the past few years, see to it now before it is too late.

Dr. Stevenson made a trip to Knoxville on Tuesday to visit John Rodgers, who is very critically ill with double pneumonia. According to the latest reports from the Knoxville Hospital, Mr. Rodgers is very low but still has a chance for recovery. His mother returned from Bonham, Texas in order to be with him.

We were very glad to hear the letter from William Perkins which Dr. Wilson read in Chapel on Tuesday morning. In part, it was as follows: "I hope that it won't be long until I shall be able to be back on the Hill with the ones who are largely responsible for my seemingly complete recovery. Mother and Father unite in sending thanks for all that was done for their comfort during their sorrow."

Mr. Alvin Sharp and Misses Harper, Toole and Frow, of Knoxville came to Maryville on Monday in order to attend the Bainonian midwinter.

Mrs. E. A. Johnson of Kentucky spent Monday night with Miss Anna Sharp.

Miss Clyde Watkins, a member of last year's Freshman class and orchestra, is attending the University of Texas at Austin.

Patients in the hospital yesterday were: Messrs. Martin, McBride, and Jones, and Misses Ault and Russell.

Nicknames sometime become permanent fixtures. The Knoxville Journal and Tribune recently referred to "Tommy" Loft as Mr. Thomas Loft.

"Lord" John—Dearest you are the first girl I ever kissed.

College Maid—Good night then Kid—I don't run a prep school.

One of the most difficult tasks of a M. C. fellow is the getting of dates, but there is a certain boy in Carnegie who boasts that he has never yet experienced any difficulty in that respect. He says that he has them shipped from Cuba where they are raised.

Woman is a thing of beauty and an expense forever.

Excerpts taken from a letter received from Dave Buchanan, one of Tusculum's football men, which we believe voices the opinion of the entire squad and Tusculum College:

"We were certainly treated white while down there, and that turkey supper surpassed my wildest hopes and dreams".

"I wish you would look up the fellow who played left guard for Maryville (Cecil McLaughlin) and tell him that I said he played the cleanest game of any man that I ever played against."

The Highland Echo

VOLUME SIX MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, DECEMBER 16, 1920. NUMBER TWELVE

MANY DEFY ELEMENTS TO SEE MIDWINTER

Alpha Sigmas Present William C. DeMille's Modern Comedy Drama, "Strongheart".

William Magill Takes Leading Role in Play.

No matter how high we may set our expectations when we go to midwinter entertainments we are sure to receive a pleasant surprise. "Strongheart", as presented by the Alpha Sigmas Monday night, very quickly jogged our senses with the fact that we are being given an unusually splendid program this year. Although we had to wade water to get from the hall to the chapel, we had no regrets. The play was well worth the wade. It is a pity that some dared not take a chance on getting a little wet in order to see this play.

From Strongheart to Siegfried, with all the different characters that lie between, they deserved and won the praise of those who attended. Certain it is that William Magill enabled us to see the real Soangataha. He well interpreted the character of this man whether as student or whether as a "chief" making the decision to return to his people. Every one entered into the spirit of the play contributing his or "her" part towards the making it a success.

We have not seen two lovlier girls since Everywo[man] played, (we mean on the stage), and congratulate the successful wooers of these dimpled darlings. And since we have heard several remarks about the length of the kisses, we suggest that, perhaps, a close range courtship may have somewhat deadened the ardor of the lovers. We were glad, however, to see Miss Molly react so favorably to moonshine. But how could she help herself with such an irresistible lover as "Billy" Saunders.

Who could have picked better representatives from the four Columbia classes, than those men who tried, and made such "dreadful" tea for the party? Some great poet has said, "Some people are born Freshmen, some become Freshmen, while others have Freshmen thrust upon them." How does this apply to "Freshman" Ross? Where can we find another "Grind" Reade? There is no other. Inimitable he is, and the only one we know of who can explain the "Nebular Hypothesis".

One's imagination were not called upon to supply a thing in the setting of any act. Whether it was a room at Columbia or a library of a New York home, both were realistic without a fault.

We are indebted to all who gave of their time and talents to make this play possible. The Alpha Sigmas have not only added honor to themselves but have also added honor to the College in upholding the enviable standard in midwinter work set by the Bainonians last week.

A good chaperone is hard to find,
You always get the other kind.
Just when you think that she is a sport
She opens both her eyes when you begin to court.
And then you rave
And then you crave
To see her lying in her grave.
Or if your "chap's" that kind,
Take a tip in rhyme,
Give 'er a box of candy,
Fill her up on dopes,
Have some popcorn handy,
Feed her till she croaks,
For a good chaperone nowadays is hard to find.

LIVELY MEETING OF JR. FORENSIC LEAGUE

Selection of Judges and Dates For Preliminaries Definitely Set.

On Wednesday evening, December 8th., in Alpha Sigma Literary Society Hall, the Junior Forensic League met to decide upon the judges for the preliminaries and the definite time these preliminaries are to be held. Also, the election of an editor took place, the selection of the League being unanimously in favor of Van Hunter, who has been acting in the capacity of Editor for the past two months.

The selection of judges for the preliminaries was left to a committee of three, as appointed by the President, Mr. Friedman; they being Mr. Charles Maye, Mr. James Brown and Van Hunter. The result of the decision of the committee brings to us the following judges for the preliminaries: Professor Hyden, Professor Orr and Mrs. Alexander. The committee is to be commended for its efforts in securing the above competent persons to act as judges for the approaching preliminaries.

The preliminaries are to be held on the afternoons of Monday, 20th. and Tuesday, the 21st of December. They will occur in order as to the number of the respective question.

It is not known who is "who" on this debating team proposition, only two old members being back this year,—Mr. Friedman and Mr. Maye. But it is wagered that the team that goes forth to uphold the honor of old M. C.'s Preparatory Department this year will carry the real stuff along with them that is required to win. "Time will tell", as the old proverb goes, but to relieve any lurking anxiety on the part of students, may one who knows venture to say that we will live up to past performances and then some.

There are more athletes in this world than those who perform on the athletic field and one of these classes of athletes are those who excell in the art of calisthenics of the English Language and we will pass it up as a foregone conclusion that Professor Ellis and Professor Brittain are going to expose a goodly number of these tongue artists ere the debating season is upon us.

President Wilson is in Chicago this week on business for the College.

FOOTBALL TEAM TAKES TRIP TO WALLAND

The following invitations were issued by Coach Doc to the members of the squad:

Deacons:—

The season's over and its time to rest, in victory or defeat you did your best. So I feel I'm due you some reward, and planned to hike you clear to Bald. But your strenuous days are put behind, so guess I'll have to change my mind. And hike away to the same old haunt to hold our annual football jaunt. Walland's the place where we will go, and we'll have some fun that you all know. Capt. Ford will lead the way, so don't be tardy and don't delay. Get your lass from Miss Caldwell, one that's pretty but hikes as well. Gather one that's nice and sweet, but don't forget that you must eat. At eight o'clock we leave this town, and won't be back till the sun goes down. A candle or two may help you out, when in the cave you stumble about. After the searching and exploring is done, we'll settle down to have some fun. Johnnie and Jim will both be there, and each will have his lady fair. Perhaps they will sing or maybe play, just which it will be I cannot say. Cecil might sing and Frank may dance, that is, I mean if you give them a chance. In Cleveland they say boys don't dance or sing, but they sent us a manager who is the real thing. And he'll tell you a story of moonshining life that will send you right out for a wife. Tubby and Beck two old running mates, watch these boys play on their dinner plates. Capt. Ford I'm glad to state, was never known to hesitate. He'll play you a tune on his old banjo, but that will be when it's time to go. Wyncoupe, Jean and Parrott too, will lend their wit to tickle you. Cotton you know is big and long, I'm sure that he will sing a song. Lots of others will be there too, all good fellows and all ring true. The scrubs, I'll stop to say, will be the heroes some later day. Then as we tread our homeward way, it'll be a good time for me to say. Things aren't always as they might be, but remember boys its for old M. C. We win like men and lose with a smile, that's the M. C. spirit and really worth while. The Highlanders code you all know well. It rings out o'er the Hill clear as a bell. So DECONS BIG AND DEACONS TALL! LET'S GATHER HERE AGAIN NEXT FALL.

There was rain, rain, rain and then some. But of all the fun with Mr. and Mrs. "Doc" Feeman as "chaps", the foot ball men and their girls hiked it to the Second Mammoth. Not a hotel could they find but still there was a cave and a barn. (In this barn there was some hay, so they say.) And what a time they did have! The curl came out of one girl's hair and the powder was washed off, but that's a small thing between friends. It is enough to say that the boys and the Coach had the old time pep that they had at all the games because that spells a wonderful time and that's what everybody had.

SPORT SPIRIT STILL SPARKING

Basketball Squad Practicing For Early Game; First Game With Knoxville High School.

Co-eds Demonstrate Ability in Court Ball.

You have heard of the old "Lizzy" refusing to spark and losing all signs of life haven't you? Well it seems as though the sporting activity machine on College Hill has lost all sparking power. Is that so?

Probably you who have not seen or heard of the many hours of practice being spent by the basket ball trainers, have made such an unfair statement as the above. Yes it is unfair because boys and girls have been training and working hard in order that the dormant sporting energy and life of our average student may soon be revived on seeing or hearing a lively cheer-rousing game.

To stand on the track above the gym court and watch the fellows match strength to strength, and skill to skill in competition for a place on the "big five" is like watching a game being staged between Maryville and one of her long standing rivals. The playing of the tryouts is seemingly pleasing to the Coach, who is not inclined to make any definite statements as to who will or who will not cop the bacon of honor and distinction of "first". Types of men like unto those of last year are out showing their metal, and it seems as though a strong true-steel machine will be forthcoming.

"Slim" Carter of last year probably had the height, but Slim's shadow will not stretch before the same sun as great a distance as some of the shadows of one or two of the try-outs this year. There are players on the court from time to time who seem to have the sureness of shot like smooth-running Wagner and the pep and alertness of Cullis, while Bill Montgomery has one or two would-be seconds trying to fill his shoes this season. One or two, even so, there are three old men on the court of trial again this year and it looks as if there will be a lot of hustling on foot in order to keep these old standbys from coping their old places.

So many aspirants to the five thrones are out that Coach Feeman has selected certain men to appear at certain hours for practise. The plan is tworking splendidly, and in a few more grinding practices the "select few" will soon be booked, and then the fun begins in earnest.

Some fair damsel who may perchance read these fleeting remarks may say that the time and energy spent by the girls in their efforts to turn out a winning team are not appreciated. Not so, thou member of the fair sex. There is a reason. Words cannot be summoned by a person with a limited vocabulary to portray the exact picture the "bloomer lassies" present while on the varnished floor of a basketball court, displaying a true brand of Maryville Basket Ball.—If the above may truly be considered a good enough reason there will be no need to mention the fact that the lassies will not practice while a sympathetic, kind and inquisitive sort of a guy noses around for "Echo' news. Nevertheless leaks are not all stopped so we are able to say that of all the teams Maryville ever had, she has a good chance of having one of the strongest girls' team yet. That's straight dope too. Practice is proving it.

Boost The Orchestra

Do you know that we have an orchestra? Do you know that we have a REAL LIVE orchestra?

At that some one shakes his head. In all probability that "some one" was at the Alpha Sigma Midwinter and if that was the first time he had heard "said" orchestra we will have to admit that he has grounds for doubt, but if he had only been at the rehearsal Wednesday night he would certainly have changed his mind.

Really, though, this is a serious proposition. Most people do not stop to think how much hard practice and sacrifice is required of the players and what a thankless job it really is. We now have a "paid" choir in Maryville College. Why not a paid orchestra?

The choir rehearsals require perhaps forty-five minutes time each week while the orchestra rehearses about two hours, to say nothing of the outside practice necessary to keep up an instrument. Therefore, on score of time, the orchestra wins. Then—and here we are sure that we shall have the moonshiners on our side—no program at which the orchestra plays can be fully enjoyed by its members.

Professor Garrett cannot be excelled as a director but he is unable to be on the Hill at all times and so cannot keep in touch with this phase of the work. What the orchestra really needs is just a little encouragement.

That the enthusiasm for the work is here, was demonstrated Wednesday night. The material for the best orchestra in Tennessee is on the Hill. Can we not find some means by which these two factors may be united? This should be an apneal to each and every Maryville student and to each and every Maryville instructor. If you can play an instrument offer your services. If you cannot play an instrument—Boost! !

—B. D. K.

Maybe you have heard it before but it is worth hearing again: A strange woman entering the church had gone to the wrong pew. Nervously the young usher approached her. "Mardon me, padam, but you are occupewing the wrong pie. Allow me to sew you to another sheet."

LITERARY

NEW GIRLS' PROGRAM DRAWS LARGE CROWD TO THETA HALL

First Year Thetas Display Talents Galore.

One of Year's Best Programs.

And still they come to Theta!

Theta Hall was crowded to overflowing Saturday night to hear the talent of our new girls, for the new girls' program is always looked forward to as one of the best of the year and those who were there can testify that this one was no exception.

The new girls were welcomed into the society first by a Toast to the New Girls, by Minnie Hamilton.

Rose Wooten, Sidney Sherod, Mary Beber, and Thelma Adair, each responded with "Why I Joined Theta".

Elizabeth Dumas sang, and she can sing, as the hearty applause and encores proved. Gladys Nave gave "Moonlight Mayuraka", followed by two selections from the new girls of the Theta Orchestra. Last but not least came an Alphabetical Romance presented by Claire McMurray and Grace Wattenburger.

Rose Wooten is not half bad when it comes to piano solos, in fact we think she will pass any day, but as for Theatrical ability we'll hand it to Willie Bewley, Mary Robison, Dixie Lee Lewis, and Anne Tickle who staged "Lord Ulin's Daughter" as the closing number. Yes, they have talent and we are glad to welcome them to our society. We hope they will like Maryville and love Theta.

JUNIOR ALPHA SIGMA

Are the Junior Alpha Sigmas still in the ranks? They sure are! You would have thought so too if you had been at the Alpha Sigma Hall, Saturday evening at six-thirty and had heard the excellent program which our expert program secretary, Mr. Delozier, puts out.

The program was opened with a reading by Charles Maye. This was followed by an interesting and helpful talk on the subject, "How to induce every boy on the Hill to attend a literary society" by Mr. Walker. Mr. Winters delivered a speech on the "Value of elevated car lines in a city", in his usual interesting and forceful manner.

The climax of the program was reached when the well known question, Resolved: That moonshine is more beneficial than sunshine, was debated by Mr. Gray and Mr. Patrick. Mr. Gray representing the affirmative, clearly showed why moonshining is so essential to the college student; especially in order to keep Miss Molly busy. Mr. Gray kept the society in a roar of laughter.

The negative speaker clearly showed that he can deliver the goods when it comes to debating. He held his audience in complete awe while he pointed out the evils of moonshining, through cost and physical danger; through heart-failure if your partner should happen to balk. The decision of the judges seemed to favor Miss Molly for the decision was unanimous in favor of the negative.

After an interesting discussion on the above question by other members of the society, and some helpful criticisms and suggestions by Mr. Huskey, a visitor from the Senior section acting as critic, the meeting was adjourned with prayer by Mr. Winters.

If you want to be assured of a real good time, come to the Junior Alphas' Hall next Saturday evening.

BAINONIAN'S FRESHIES DEPICT SCENE TWENTY YEARS HENCE

Midnight Feasts Inevitably Attended by a Certain Guest.

Seniors' Future Plight?

When a bunch of Freshmen get their heads together something will surely happen. Well, this something happened in Bainonian Saturday night. On the other hand, when a body of intelligent, deep-reasoning Seniors hear that the Freshmen will furnish entertainment, they soon reason that this youngest of college generations will certainly aspire to be Seniors.

And the Seniors reasoned correctly, for when the curtains were drawn on a college girl's room one by one they began filing into Marion Krespach's room. After each one had arrived and good times were in order, Ruth Greenlee and Lois Hayes, had an idea! A class reunion in twenty years—a capital one it was and agreed upon immediately. But girls, what is a midnight feast without Miss Molly with the old familiar words: "I am so disappointed in you, as Seniors, where is your honor? To think that Martha Robison would be into such!" And then those words (only sweet music when falling on the other fellow's ears) "Now go to your rooms". Thus the feast ended.

In order that the twenty years should speed by (more quickly), Annie May Holland sang, and Annie Mae King played. These are two more of the precious gems discovered in Bainonian's treasure house.

But the years passed and we were again with Marion Krespach as all of the old Seniors of 1921 walked in. A happy reunion of Mrs. and Misses! Of course there was a Junior or two. We dare not tell all we saw there, but here is a sample or two: Ruth Greenlee got married but couldn't keep him (or he her) but two weks; Martha was dressed like a fashion plate lady! Mrs. Howell and Magill were missionaries, and Irma—well she had a little trouble trying to testify to her life after she left college. Miss Molly came back as Mrs.— just tickled to death!

The Freshmen are generous so as the final part we saw each little Rugle dressed in his best, sitting in a row, receiving etiquette from Mrs. Rugles before they left for the Bird's home.

Surely this was a delightful and well given program. Three "rays" for the peppy Freshmen!

JUNIOR ATHENIAN

The meeting was opened with prayer by Mr. Noble after which came the election of officers for the coming term.

The following gentlemen were elected to fulfill these respective offices: Mr. James Brown, president; Mr. Louis Drake, vice president; Mr. William Jester, program secretary; Joe Gamble, recording secretary; Mr. F. Hayworth and Mr. L. E Milling, critics.

The president, Mr. Cornelius read a letter from Mr. Parks in which he again offered the prize for the debate by the society.

The meeting was then adjourned and the members repaired to the Senior section where they listened to a well conducted mock trial.

Mr. Q.—I notice that the humidity is rather low this morning.

Mrs. Q. (innocently)—Gee whiz, are we out of that stuff again?

A Memorial Sketch of Prof. Thomas Jefferson Lamar by Dr. Samuel T. Wilson

Recently published by Mrs. Martha A. Lamar. Dedicated to Maryville College, the Most Enduring Monument of Prof. Lamar.

PROFESSOR THOMAS JEFFERSON LAMAR

Editor's Note:—We wish to make this public statement of our thanks to Rev. John M. Alexander who so kindly consented to write the article printed herewith. As Rev. Alexander is one of the few men yet living in Maryville who were intimately acquainted with Professor Lamar, we consider it good fortune to have secured his services for the Echo in this regard. On this page appear two picture reproduced from Dr. Wilson's book. On the following page are shown the two Lamar Memorial.

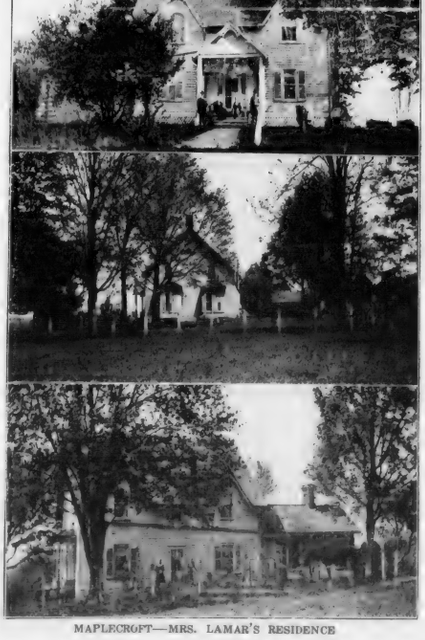
The aim of the author in writing this biographical sketch of Professor Lamar is stated as follows:

"And now, thirty-three years after his demise, his widow is publishing this biographical sketch, lest the later generations of Maryville College people should forget the manner of man it was who rebuilt for them the college which they now see in its strength and helpfulness."

Although Professor Lamar was a hero, and although Dr. Wilson is a hero—worshipper, yet this little volume is not a panegyric. What Boswell said of his own work may be also said of Dr. Wilson's:"I profess to write" he says, "not his panegyric, which must be all praise, but his Life; which, great and good as he was, must not be supposed to be entirely perfect. To be as he was is, indeed, panegyric enough to any man in this state of being". Dr. Wilson, it is true, while he does not regard the subject of this sketch as "entirely perfect", says nothing of his faults, because those of us who knew him saw very little, if anything, in him that deserved criticism. On every page of this booklet, we seem to see the true Thomas Jefferson Lamar.

One marvels that the life of such a man as Professor Lamar should be condensed into a small volume of scarcely ninety-six pages, for, as Dr. Wilson intimates, he was a thaumaturgus, a wonder-worker. But the reason is that Professor Lamar "wrote no diaries, made no genealogical researches, left practically no personal memoranda that would be of service in the preparation of such a story as is here attempted. The work had to be constructed from the memories of friends who knew him as he was a generation ago." Later generations of Maryville College people will be deeply indebted to Dr. Wilson for rescuing from oblivion what little is now known of its Re-founder.

In this brief sketch the life of Professor Lamar is carefully traced from his cradle to his grave and is presented in successive chapters from every possible point of view. The headings of the chapters are: "The Boy and His Lineage, The Student and His Teachers, The Theologue and His Training, The Minister and His Ministry, The Teacher and His Teaching, A Christian Statesman, A College Builder, An Endowment Founder, A Home Loving Man, and A Typical Maryville Man". In these pages Maryville men will recognize the true Thomas Jefferson Lamar, as they saw him in the class-room, in the pulpit, in his home, or on the street, quiet and modest; patient, resolute, and independent; just, but gentle, kindly, and sympathetic; taciturn and apparently cold, but warm-hearted; devoted to his family and taking a fatherly interest in his boys and girls; courageous, full of faith and hope; loyal to the church, to the college, and to Christ; busy everyday, often doing the work of more than one man.



After Professor Lamar's graduation from the Union Theological Seminary in New York City, he went to the Home Mission field in Missouri, where he labored for three years. Then came the unsought call to a professorship in Maryville College, a position for which he was well qualified both by natural endowment and by thorough education. Here he labored incessantly for the remainder of his life. His great work, however, was that of refounding the college, which had been laid waste by the Civil War, and of establishing it upon a permanent basis. What remained of the college after the close of the war was only a scrap heap, which is described by the autor in graphic words, as follows:

"Surely no more unpromising outlook for a college builder could have existed than was that before Professor Lamar as, at the close of the war, he looked out upon Maryville College to take stock of its resources. Those resources, at the best, before the war were limited enough, but now were almost non-existent. The original seminary building had entirely disappeared, while the main building was a mere skeleton, with no door or window frames or even window casings. The library and, indeed, the wreck of the main building and the land it stood on, and all else, had been sold at sheriff's sale in 1864 to satisfy a judgment against the Directors."

His next great task was that of raising an endowment of one hundred thousand dollars to meet the ever-increasing expenses of the college. When it became evident that he must undertake this work, which, like the refounding of the college, was in those days an almost superhuman task, "he turned ashy pale", but would not shirk the work. His diffidence and misgivings are thus described by Dr. Wilson:—

"In his shrinking self-depreciation, he said that he did not have the qualities needed by a financial agent of a college. He certainly did not have the self-assurance and dash and egotism and callousness to rebuff, and similar traits, if such qualities are requisite to make an ideal endowment-founder, but he did have a quality, which, joined with Christian fidelity, God can use to work miracles with, and that su-

Rev. W. L. McEwan, D. D., Pittsburg, Pa., "I read it through at one sitting, and the patient, modest, heroic man was very real to me."

Rev. Dr. Percy Dickerson Cowan, Summit, N. J. "Professor Lamar was certainly worthy of such a memorial, and his beautiful Christian life, and his heroic and self-sacrificing but wonderfully successful efforts in behalf of Maryville College should be an inspiration to every Christian worker of later times."

Hon. W. Leonidas Brown, Philadelphia, Pa. "I have always held the noble character of Professor Lamar in highest esteem since my first acquaintance with him in 1859, when I was a student in Maryville Colluege. Patient and painstaking, he was an ideal instructor."

Rev. Lyon Townsend White, D. D., San Francisco Theological Seminary. "My father's funeral is probably being conducted this day in Knoxville by your husband's pupil, Dr. E. A. Elmore. The arrival of this Memorial Sketch at this time has awakened many precious memories of the days when I went to Maryville."

Rev. Edgar A. Elmore, D. D., Chattanooga, Tenn. "I have read it with deep interest, and with a growing sense of how much we owe to his self-sacrificing life. The reading brings back many memories of those days of anxiety and care on his part when in New York. We owe you a debt of gratitude for preserving and handing down to the coming generations these facts relating to the life of one whom we shall always reverence and love."

Herald and Preshyter, Cincinnati, Ohio. "The story of his life and work is here well and beautifully told, and the volumne is a tribute love."

James A. Anderson, Fountain City, Tenn. "Professor Lamar was one of the grand men of Tennessee. My father esteemed him highly, I learned to love him, though I was young in those days.

Horace P. Chandler, Philadelphia, Pa. "It is most interesting, and its message inspiring."

Dr. A. B. and Mrs. C. M. Tadlock, Knoxville, Tenn. "We wish to express our warm appreciation for this interesting book on the good and useful life of our dear friend, Prof. T. J. Lamar."

Rev. C. E. Tedford, New Carlisle, Ohio. "It will be a standing inspiration to similar noble spirits in their self-sacrificing devotion to Christ and and His kingdom."

Miss Martha M. Bogart, Philadelphia, Tenn. "I appreciate it more than words can express. We were always glad to see Mr. Lamar and he seemed to enjoy being in our home."

Rev. Roy E. Vale, Knoxville, Tenn. "As this splendid memorial sketch of the truly great life of Professor Lamar is read, the thrill and passion of it will inspire even those who were not privileged to know him in the flesh, and so it will be again true that 'he being dead yet speaketh'."

Dr. John C. Bramer, President Emeritus of Leland Stanford Junior University. "I read the book through at a single sitting, for I could not let it go, once I had read the title page. * * * * Professor Lamar was, as you so well point out, a remarkable self-sacrificing man. He was the salt of the earth."

The following letter comes from Mr. S. G. Heiskell, lawyer, historian, and former mayor of Knoxville. It is indeed a very excellent commentary on the biography:

September 20, 1920.

Mrs. M. A. Lamar,
Maryville, Tennessee.

Dear Madam:

In reply to your letter, I write to express my very great appreciation of the book sent me, namely a Memorial Sketch of your husband, Prof. Thomas Jefferson Lamar, written by Dr. Samuel Tyndale Wilson, President of Maryville College.

My appreciation of your book will be evidenced by my statement that I began reading it in about an hour after it was received and did not stop, except for supper, until I read it through, which was exactly twelve o'clock, midnight. It is a delightful book to read and very valuable from every standpoint. I think that, while Dr. Wilson eulogizes Professor Lamar in a fine, cordial way, he does not make the mistake of excessive eulogy. The tribute Dr. Wilson pays your husband is splendidly written and holds the attention of the reader from the first page to the last. The picture that is made of Professor Lamar is attractive, sympathetic, noble, and in places pitiable. What a grand character a man must have been to have opened Maryville College after the wreck caused by the Civil War, in a dilapidated old house with a few students present, and the waste of the Civil Strife everywhere around! What an iron will and supreme courage Professor Lamar must have had! What a grand character he must have been! Such men as he and Dr. Isaac Anderson are among the great men of the earth, though there is no place fixed for them in the Temple of Fame anywhere in America, either by State Governments or by the Federal Government. In the real manhood that was in them, in their supreme devotion to the educational interests which they voluntarily undertook and pushed successfully forward, the value of their services to humanity cannot be over-estimated. I have read hundreds of books in my life, but it affords me sincere pleasure to say that never before did I read of a man whose personal pretensions in life were so modest and yet who could claim for himself all the traits and characteristics of a great man.

Maryville College with its more than a century of existence has been a green spot in a weary land. When the college was born, the primeval forest and the Red Man were visible everywhere. Civilization was just beginning to put up its head in the valley of East Tennessee. To establish an institution of learning in such surroundings carried with it a faith that could move mountains. There were grand men in those days and grand women, and it is to the eternal historical honor of Eastern Tennessee that among the very first there was planted here the White Man's civilization in the midst of the Red Man's supremacy That was done by the pioneers of our valley and mountains, who carried with them the torch of enlightenment, representing the church, the school house, and the home, and the flag of the Union was carried in front of their marching troops and they fought to add another star to that flag.

Maryville College has been modest in placing its claims before the world as one of the torch bearers of enlightenment in the years long ago. When the history of Tennessee is written, a luminous page ought to be devoted to describing the service of this college. President Wilson is delightful in the modest way he tells of what the college has done and he holds the interest of the reader as with hooks of steel from the first page to the last, when he tells of the services of Anderson and Lamar and of the donations of Wililam Thaw. William E. Dodge, Preserved Smith and John C. Baldwin.

As stated above, parts of his picture of your husband is pathetic, but beautiful in its humble, magnificent, glorious, and modest devotion to the mental progress and social development of the people of the wilderness, as well as the more advanced people of a later day in the valley of East Tennessee.

I wish that, while I was writing my History of Andrew Jackson and Early Tennessee History, I had had this sketch of your husband, for it would have afforded material to set forth one of the strongest agencies for bringing mental and social life out of the savage darkness of the earliest days of Tennessee, and it would have been a pleasure to record the grand work done by Dr. Anderson and your husband, Professor Lamar.

I thank you again for the very great pleasure of reading this book, and congratulate you on the foresight of having it printed, as well as on the fine judgment of securing Dr. Wilson to write it.

With the very best regards, and wishing you many long years of life and happiness, I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,

S. G. Heiskell.

preme and vital quality—faith in God—he had in a large degree."

Three years were required to raise this sum, and the nervous strain on Professor Lamar was very great. "His constitution", says Dr. Wilson, "had been broken by the many years of intense care and anxiety, with their climax in the dread three years of the endowment campaign. When he laid aside his text-books after the examinations in May, 1886, he laid them aside forever." The end came on Sabbath morning, March 20, 1887.

When the chariot of fire and horses of fire came for Professor Lamar, he cast his mantle over the shoulders of his young disciple, who is now himself the embodiment of the Maryville spirit, who has carried forward the work of Professor Lamar in successive drives to increase the endowment of the college, and who has now written this life of his friend and teacher, lest future generations of Maryville College people should forget what manner of man he was.

"The Waif" To Be Given Next Sunday Evening

Sunday night, instead of the usual Vesper Service, the Y. W. C. A. is to have an open meeting to which the public, both masculine and feminine is cordially invited, and at which the girls of the dramatization class will present a little Christmas morality play entitled 'The Waif". This also takes the place of the usual Y. W. services just after dinner. The choir and the double quartette are to furnish special music, and all in all, it is thought that this will be one of the most interesting services of the year. Remember—"The Waif", at the Chapel, Sunday evening instead of the usual Vesper Service.

LETTERS FROM SYRIA RECEIVED BY S. V. B.

Students who were on the Hill last year will remember with pleasure the words of Miss Lois Wilson, our President's daughter, as she spoke to us on the eve of her departure for Syria. We recall her struggle against the call for foreign service, and her happiness when at last she accepted. She had determined before going that she would be happy in her work. Read these extracts from her letters and you will find that she is happy, and finds as much pleasure in Syria as we find here.

April 6th, 1920.

——— Syria.

In writing of the trip between Tricstate and Venice, she says, "Then we came into Monfalcone itself, nothing but devastation met our eyes. Hardly a whole house was standing except a few newly built ones and some which bore evidence to the fact that they had been patched in many places. Around the stations were people of the town, some with traces on their faces of what they had passed through and most of the men were in uniform. Throughout the town as far as we could see were workers (men and women) among the ruins, rebuilding and getting ready to rebuild. Beyond Monfalcone for several miles we continued to see traces of war with crosses marking rows of graves; then we passed beyond the war zone and through vineyards and cultivated fields for the rest of the way."

"It was like starting a journey along a new and strange road when I came to Syria, but now I have reached the first milestone along my new way. After two months and a half, I find myself contented and happy, well and strong, and as a result of some hard work, having made a beginning in Arabic. But oh! the interesting things I have done and seen, and the funny things I have tasted and smelled since I came! And how I have wished you folks could see the beautiful views of mountain and valley and ocean that I have looked at here.

"I like the Syrian people immensely. They are as a rule, bright and pleasant and exceedingly likable.

"You should have heard a little Syrian boy give a reading in English at Chapel on Friday. It was very good. The Syrians love to speak in public and are natural born orators. Their gestures are profuse and as natural and graceful as possible. They are by no means backward bout letting their voices out and some of them can be heard far, far away.

"I hear a regular concert going by, in the form of donkeys covered with bells like sleigh bells. They all have them and, too, you always see a string of blue beads around the necks of donkeys. The blue beads serve to keep off "the evil eye". The blue beads look especially out of place when they decorate a camel's neck which they sometimes do.

March 13th, 1920.

Translation of the proclamation of the King of Syria, recently crowned at Damascus.

"GOOD NEWS"

"People of the Coast.

"This is a glorious day for the Syrian nation. In it the Syrian Conference has declared the unity and complete independence of Syria with its natural boundaries, with his Highness, the great Emir Faisal, as King.

"Jeople of the Coast,

Today is the day of joy and victory to all of Syria and all of the Arabic nation. Syria now has the right to rejoice because the declaration of its independence is the establishment of its rights and existence in the League of Nations. And Syria today from the far north to the far south is proud of its life and independence and she is fully aware that today is the beginning of the new era and glorious life.

"People of the Coast.

This independence does not belong to one part of Syria only nor to a special sect of its people, but it is an independence for all the country of Syria and for all its people. And as today the bones of our noble ancestors rejoice in the sacred Syrian soil, so should all the Syrians, whether Moslems or Christians, rejoice now with one spirit and one heart.

"People of the Coast,

The declaration of our independence is nothing but the establishment of our life; and so every Syrian should be proud of it, and every friend of the Syrians should be glad and rejoice; and the one who does not wish to rejoice is considered as an enemy to the Syrian nation. All the people of Syria (especially you of the coast) are able to show to the whole world that those who do not consent to our independence today should in spite of them acknowledge it tomorrow. Your Syrian brethren, the Arabs, hold public gatherings in all parts of Syria rejoicing in this happy feast, so close your shops, leave your work and go out in processions, glad and happy; the Moslem shaking hands with the Christian saying:

Long live the complete Syrian independence!
Long live His Majesty Emir Faisal Ibe al Husein, King of Syria!
Long live the free independent Syria with all its parts!
Long live free Syrians!
Long live the noble inhabitants of the coast!

THE BLACK DOZEN

Mysterious Order Hikes to Chilhowees.

For the knowledge of the ignorant, the satisfaction of the curious and out of benevolence for the rest, I will try to put out to the Maryville College and all the Echo readers, as much about our Organization as I can without getting black balled from the Black Dozen which is the name of our order.

We are now in our infancy being born this term, but as our age increases our activities enlarge. It will be impossible to go on and elaborate on this wonderful subject, as much manuscript will have to be censored at the next meeting; however, since the writer is the cook, he feels that it will be perfectly safe to say most anything as the cook is the greatest asset of any institution. However, it will not do to rave too much, for there may be another cook who has not been heard of so far.

But as there are no restrictions on telling of our last outing which was enjoyed by only a few of our boys and some of their acquaintances. This outing was nothing less than a tramp to the Chilhowee mountains and to Maple Springs.

One bright sunny afternoon we took the sudden notion to hit the trail for the week-end. At 3:45 we bade College Hill farewell, tramped twelve miles and reached camp at the precise hour of 6:30. Immediately the fire was kindled in an old house; the cook "fell to" and our first course was dished out at 7:30. Courses continued until ten bells, after which the Jazz Orchestra (consisting of a french harp, a five gallon oil-can for a drum and some whistling) aroused the ambition of the crowd so high that the cook and captain hit the floor with a jazzing shimmy which couldn't have been beaten on Broadway. This and other entertainment lasted until twelve when we were ordered to bunk by the C. O., as we had a strenous day before us.

The watches being divided, things went on peacefully for about an hour, when one of the fellows pulled some cover from another fellow, which caused a general free-for-all bunk fight. After the watch quieted the combat, things went peacefully for another hour when all of a sudden footsteps were heard in the next room. These steps were caused by a brick drawn by a string and operated by one who had pretended to be asleep. Of course the crowd was not only curious but frightened. The two who were involved in this frame-up volunteered to go and see what the commotion was, but when out of sight, staged a big fight. Finally one of the duet fell to howling like a mad man. His yells pierced the very soul, and even caused the cold chills to race up and down one's back-bone. When the wounded had been carried in and the joke explained, every one drew up around the fire and remained until breakfast, which was served just before day-break.

At day light we took to the mountains for the day but as some of the fellows had moonshine on their brains we returned early in the afternoon, prepared ourselves and went to the Bainonian midwinter.

KETCHEM—WILSON

In the years 1906 to 1908, the Ketchem brothers—Carleton Griswold, George Herman, and Lester Kenneth—were in atnedance upon Maryville College. George was secretary to President Wilson during the first Forward Fund Campaign, and was very efficient in his work. Friends on the Hill have just received from Mrs. Charles J. Wilson, of Pittsburg, Pa., the announcement the marriage of her daughter, Thelma June Patton, to Mr. George Ketchem. The wedding occurred on Tuesday, December seventh. At the outbreak of the war, Mr. Ketchem was secretary to Chancellor McClintock of the University of Pittsburg. He served in the aviation department during the war. The best wishes of the Echo to the newly-weds.

A REGULAR TIME

Doesn't it make you feel good to meet a striking example of good old Southern hospitality? Well, "Hooks", "Bumpus", and "F. A." found it raised to the nth power in the Owen home at Clinton during their week-end visit. Should you desire to be in a "real home", associate with most likable people, eat at a table noted for both quality and quantity, and at the same time feel perfectly free and welcome, visit at "The Maples", near Clinton, where you will find Mr., Mrs. and Miss Owen, and no doubt Professor and Mrs. Jim Brittain, to welcome and entertain you in a manner never-to-be-forgotten. Ask "Hooks"; he'll tell you.

Just think, too, of a "regular party" where you play games, tell tales, "moonshine" (this term has a different meaning in Clinton) eat, laugh, and "cut up" in general! The following will testify to the genuineness of the fun produced and enjoyed at Miss Owen's party given Saturday night:— Misses Nelle Owen, Bess Carden, Mary Moore Underwood, Edna Lee, Nelle and Jane Sawyer, Louise Hicks, Mrs. W. L. Owen and J. F. Brittain, Messrs. Owen Henderson, Harry Owen, Allen Hendrickson, Frank Hobbs, and F. A. Greene.

But the most thrilling experience of all came Sunday noon, when the "chauffeur" lost control of the Ford (due to nervous excitement or personal absorption—see "Bumpus" for details) and six hitherto hilarious lads and lassies enjoyed (?) a period of quietness after the storm, broken finally by someone venturing, "Is anybody hurt?" followed by half-hearted laughter from Bess. In a jiffy all had extricated themselves from beneath mangled tin, shattered glass and folded canvas, clamored to terra-firma and looked down with compassion and amazement upon the remains of poor "tin Lizzie" that now lay helpless upon her side in a six-foot ditch. Although thrown violently from their accustomed place, "F. A.'s" glasses were not even broken! Suffice it to say that Mary Moore, Bess, Edna, "Bumpus", "Hooks", and "F. A." had plenty to talk about the remainder of the day.

While the half has not been told yet, I think you will agree with the writer that week-end trips may be—and in this case was,—immensely enjoyable and exciting.

RELATION BETWEEN TRUTH AND LIFE

Religion is a life. Some look upon truth in the light of being in a book; some in the light of a tool that will be of financial value; others in the light of an imaginary thing; yet these are all secondary. The principal function of truth, knowledge, and education is to make men more alive and alert. The real reward for your efforts in getting an education here is not found in culture or wealth, unless it enables you to live more influentially, and more effectively.

The principal function of religion is that we might have life and might have it more abundantly. The definition of religion is summed up in the story of the Samaritan. "This do and thou shalt live."

"If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine." "If any man thirst let him come unto me and drink". What earthly difference will it make whether you are educated or uneducated unless you believe that there is a God and that the eternal life before you is eternal weal or woe.

WANTED—To know why Miss Mollie cannot invent some kind of aparatus whereby she can detect any unlawful moonshining during the latter part of the evening meal and consequently finish her supper in peace.

Bob Milling—I was over to see her the other night, and someone threw a brick through the window and hit her in the side.

Inquisitive—Did it hurt her?

Bob—No, but it skinned up three of my fingers mighty bad.

ALUMNI NOTES

A very interesting wedding occasion in which three brothers, all alumni of Maryville College, were concerned occurred at Los Angeles recently. Reverend Frank M. Cross '16 was married to Miss Mary Ellison. Reverend L. L. Cross, '14, who is pastor of the Euclid Presbyterian Church, Los Angles, was the officiating minister. The bridegroom was attended by Reverend R. C. Cross '13, who is assistant pastor of the Euclid Church. Reverend Frank Cross was honor man of the Class of 1916.

Mr. William Arthur West '06 is living at Visalia, California, where he has a fruit ranch. He married Louise Clarkson Deadrick. They have one child. Mr. West greatly enjoys the climate of California, though his heart is still in his native state, Tennessee. Misses Eva and Sara Louise Morelock, now in college, are Mr. West's nieces.

William B. (Bill) Holmes '20 has been seen on the Hill for the past week. Mr. Holmes is leaving the service of the Y.M.C.A., with which he has been working in Georgia, and expects to take up home mission work in Middle Tennessee.

Arkansas Cumberland College of which Reverend Hubert S. Lyle '07 is president has recently been renamed The College of the Ozarks. President Lyle is just now working hard for the completion of a forward fund for his college. Two new buildings are in prospect. The attendance is growing rapidly. This college is serving a large field and has a great future of service in its ministry to the young people of the Ozarks.

During the past synodical year the following maryville College graduates have gone to foreign fields: Reverend J. E. Kidder, '16 of Knoxville to China; Miss Lois Wilson '15, of Maryville to Syria; Miss Mary Alexander '08 and her mother, Mrs. Thomas T. Alexander, '75, of Maryville to Japan; and Mr. C. B. Fish of '16 and Mrs. Fisher '17 and baby of Lewisburg, Tennessee to Persia.

Reverend Victor C. Detty '14 has removed from Huntsville, Tennessee to White Rock, North Carolina.

At a meeting of the Blount County Agricultural Council on Saturday, November 20, Mr. Henry R. Duncan '11 was elected president for the coming year.

Reverend William T. Bartlett '01 is conducting evangelistic meetings in the vicinity of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Just now he is at Blackwood, New Jersey. Mrs. Bartlett is spending the time in New York City. Dr. Bartlett is to conduct the February Meetings on the Hill this winter.

Reverend John Grant Newman '88, of the Chambers-Wylie Church, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, finds time from his own work to give help to his fellow pastors. During this fall he has conducted evangelistic meetings for one of the churches in Norristown, Pennsylvania, and for the Schulkill Church, Philadelphia.

Mr. Fred R. Whalin '16 of Middlesboro, Kentucky was a visitor in Maryville during the early part of last week. In connection with this visit the news received circulation that twin daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Whalin some three weeks ago. The young ladies are to be called Jane and Francis, or Frances and Jane which ever way you will. Mrs. Whalin was formerly Miss Alma Adams, who was also a member of the Class of 1916.

One afternoon in the middle of the night,
Two dead boys got in a fight.
A deaf and dumb policeman, hearing the noise,
Beat the life out of the two dead boys.

MRS. BUCHANAN TELLS OF Y.W.C.A. FIELD IN JAPAN

Says Japanese Girls Have Great Need For Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. is an international association and its branches reach out to practically all parts of the world. On Sunday afternoon, Dec. 5, Mrs. Buchanan, a member of the board of directors of the Y. W. C. A. in Kobi, Japan talked to the Senior organization about the progress of the association in Japan. When the Y.W.C.A. was first organized in Kobi there was difficulty in securing a place for meeting, due to the scarcity of houses and the lack of adequate funds. Everything would have been made easy if the directors would only omit Christianity from their program. The Y. W. C. A. secured a small room above a Christian restaurant and began to conduct their classes. Mrs. Buchanan told us further that the millions of Japanese girls need the Y. W. C. A. Japanese girls, like girls everywhere, are eager, bright, pleasant, and interested but also subject to temptation. The three classes of girls in the large city of Kobi that need the Y. W. C. A. most are the business girls, the factory girls, and the immigrating girls. The business girls want the Y. W. C. A. classes, especially those in English. The factory workers, usually very ignorant country girls bewildered by the city, need the Y. W. C. A. most of all. The girls who are planning to immigrate to the Americas are hungry to learn of American customs, dress and money. They are hungry to know about us. That American girls, too, are eager to learn about Japanese girls was shown by the good number present at the meeting and the close attention given to the speaker.

As a musical number Miss Millicent Codding was heard in a sweet solo.

BIBLE STUDY AND DISCUSSION GROUPS TO START AFTER X-MAS

Immediately after the holidays, a number of Bible Study classes will be organized to succeed the Mission Study classes. These studies will not be strictly Bible Study although they will be based on the Bible and should be a great help to such as enlist in them.

Each of these classes will have a different subject to study. some of them taking up the study of the lives of the great Bibical characters, others the life and teachings of Jesus, while still others will deal with the great problems we face today.

The Committee has secured some very competent and interesting leaders for these groups who will do their utmost to make these studies as practical and as helpful as possible. These groups are to be primarily discussion groups where each fellow can voice his own opinion and where different ideas can be exchanged. In this way the study will furnish more real good.

So fellows, let's all line up in one or the other of these classes. You may choose the one which you think you will like the best. Get something which will make it possible for you to lead a better Christian life.

These groups will meet every Wednesday night from six to seven in rooms in Carnegie. The rooms and leaders with courses will be announced later.

QUITE A CHANGE

The subject for the girls' Intercollegiate Debate has been changed to the Jananese Immigration Question and the preliminary has been postponed until after the holidays.

VALUES OF SALESMANSHIP PROPOUNDED

Dr. McDermott, Head of U. T. Law Dept. Will Address Y.

"Salesmanship" was the subject of the address given at the Y.M.C.A. last Sunday by Hon. Chas. L. Smith of Maryville.

Mr. Smith, in the beginning, said that he had chosen this subject not only because he himself is a salesman but also because a study of salesmanship is valuable to every one of us in our daily lives and furnishes us a lesson in rendering Christian service. We may think of Christ as our great Salesmanager; and of ourselves as His salesmen, bringing the message of the Gospel as our article for sale.

If we are good salesmen we must first possess the article which we are to sell, and then we must have a thorough knowledge of it. A good salesman also has certain qualities. He should have the ability to judge his customers to determine correctly the nature of the men with whom he deals. He must have faith in the article which he sells. He must make his claims for it honestly, and, having done this, must patiently persevere in spite of failures.

At the close of Mr. Smith's very interesting address, Mr. Johnson, the chairman of the devotional committee, announced that Dr. McDermott, head of the law department of the University of Tennessee, would lead the meeting next Sunday. An unusually good meeting is promised and every fellow is urged to be present.

MISSIONARY MUST BE IN "FIGHTING TRIM", SAYS PROF. ORR

Professor Orr sounded a very vital message and warning to prospective missionaries at a recent meeting of the Student Volunteer Band. He had himself long looked forward to the time when he would be able to carry the message to heathen who had never so much as heard of our Saviour.

But it was on a fateful Sunday in 1916, whne he and Mrs. Orr were attending the conference of newly appointed missionaries in New York, that his rejection occurred. In conference with Dr. Speer, he was advised to see the Board examiner for a final physical examination. To their bitter disappointment, the decision was "No". Then came the necessity of readjustment. Perhaps many now planning for similar work have ahead of them the same answer. It therefore behooves any such to check up on themselves.

There are only two things to watch. Maintain your health. Perhaps you are not aware of any disability and you may never have been ill but just the same there may be some minor defect which if not corrected now may some day stand between you and your purpose. Be very solicitious about the care of the body. Your physical endowment is your greatest asset. Keep yourself not only in fighting trim and fit to work but put on weight. No Board will accept a candidate below par. Be physically perfect as nearly as lies within your power. You owe it to your work.

MRS. STEVENSON ENTERTAINS S. S. CLASS AT HOUSE-IN-THE-WOODS

Last Friday afternoon about three dozens girls were seen making their way toward the House-in-the-Woods There were many who envied them when they were told that Mrs Stevenson was entertaining her Sunday School class. There is no need to say more, for anyone who has enjoyed Mrs. Stevenson's hospitality knows she cannot be excelled as a hostess. After playing some interesting games, the guests were served with delicious refreshments. Then some one made the startling announcement that it was five o'clock, and, reluctantly they started homeward, hoping that they might have the opportunity to return again.

JUNIOR Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Snodgrass Talks of "Foundation Stones."

Junior Y. W. C. A. was held in Alpha Sigma Hall, Sunday afternoon, December 12. The meeting was opened by a piano solo by Miss Anna Mae Holland, and a vocal solo by Miss Elizabeth Dumas, after which Mrs. Snodgrass talked to us on, "Foundation Stones".

The first foundation stone she gave was "magnanimity". We should all have "magnanimity", for Christ said, "If you love only those who love you, what thanks have ye?" "Love your enemies." We should also have a Christ-like spirit of forgivenes, for forgiveness is a noble virtue.

The second foundation stone was "loyalty". No character was ever counted loyal without sincerity. "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart." We must live a thorough, genuine life, for notihng can be right in a person's life if he is not sincere.

The last foundation stone was "fearlessness". Are you living a life that is on the average plane, or are you living up to your highest ideals? The one who lives up to his best is most respected by those whose criticism counts.

THE RIGHT OR WRONG WAY

After reading the miracle of Moses smiting the rock and bringing forth water at Meribah, Dr. Stevenson pointed out clearly the way God told Moses to do, and the way Moses did. It was a very trifling thing to smite the rock instead of speaking to it, but, as in most trifling things which we are apt to overlook, it led to a disastrous result. Many of us by giving away occasionally to little things prevent more good than we succeed in so doing.

It is our duty always to do a thing in the most kind, grateful, and pleasing manner possible, for many times we do a very good thing in a very ungrateful way, as Moses did here, and mar all the good we do. It is not enough to do things that are right, but they should be done in the right way. Some one has said he could gain more friendship by refusing to help others than some could gain by always helping. It is not enough to be generous—let us be genial too. Would all the joy be taken out of doing a thing if someone else was getting the credit?

The difference seems so trifling between doing things in a right way and doing them in a wrong way. This is the deception. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man but the end thereof are the ways of death." We never wholly get away from what we do.

JOKES AND JESTS

Prof. Davis, translating: "And there was not much mind left in me."

Edgar Martin, awaking: "There wasn't?"

Miss Green in Zoology: What is the particular peculiarity of the skeleton of the Sea Cucumber?

Mr. Waltham: It's absence.

Prof. Hyden: On the medaeval manor the serfs could not marry without the consent of the owner.

Miss Whitlock: Oh wasn't that awful?! !

A STRONG HABIT

Winsome Miss (sadly)—No, no, I could never marry a street car conductor. They are too fickle.

Handsome conductor—Come, come, dearest, you know that you are the only woman I shall ever love.

W. M.—George, don't lie to me. You know you'd change anything for a nickle.

THE HUMAN BISHOP

A bishop was crossing the Atlantic when one day during a storm he became so frightened that he looked up the captain. The captain led him to the hatch over the forecastle and said, "Listen to the crew cursing and swearing down down there bishop. Do you think they'd go on like that if there were any danger."

During the night the storm grew worse. The waves rolled mountain high. The bishop's fears returned and, getting up, he slipped on a raincoat and stole softly to the hatch again.

He listened at the hatch a minute or two, then smiled and murmured—"Thank goodness they're cursing and swearing worse than ever."

A WOODEN WEDDING

A real "wooden" wedding took place in Washington, N. C. recently, when the Pine-Oakes nuptials were celebrated. Here is the cast of characters:

The groom—Walter Pine.
The bride—Miss Ade Oakes
The best man—Robert L. Birch
The bridesmaid—Anna Lee Laurel

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Oscar T. Wood. The bride and groom left on the midnight train for Hickory, N. C., to spend a week with the groom's aunt, Mrs. E. W. Shingle.

Lady: But why do they make the apartments so small?

Real Estate Agent: That, Madam, is so the tenants will have no room for complaint.

Cecil: I don't like that piece that the orchestra is playing, it's no good.

Elsie: How do you know it's no good? You never composed any musical pieces.

Cecil: No, and I never layed an egg either, but I sure know when one is no good.

He: Darling, my heart is a seething volcano.

She: Say, that's luck, the furnace isn't working tonight.

That a trip through the zoo is a beastly experience?

That the ossified man in the sideshow is a bona fide freak?

That a Chinese laundryman is a man of iron?

That a man who stutters speaks broken English?

That a boy who goes in like a lion and comes out like a lamb at Pearsons has been mollified?

That a man at a dance of mutes swings dumb belles?

That a man who is taking the last puff of his cheap stogy has come to the end of his rope?

That a man who burns his unpaid bills is making light of his troubles?

ALAS!

There was a young lady named Florence
Who for kissing professed great abhorrence,
But when she'd been kissed
And found what she'd missed,
She cried till the tears came in torrents.

Counsel—Now where did he kiss you?

Plaintiff—On the lips, sir.

Counsel— No! no! You don't understand. I mean where were you?

Plaintiff (blusihng)—In his arms, sir.

Wig—Our prof's sick in bed, to-day.

Wag—Thasso? What's the complaint?

Wig—No complaint; everybody's satisfied.

FIGURING A MAN OUT

"I'll give it up", said the girl trying to figure a man out. "If you call a man a gay dog it will flatter him: call him a pup, a hound, or a cur, and he'll try to alter the map of your face. He doesn't mind being called a bull or a bear, yet he will object to being mentioned as a calf or a cub."

"Yes", said the Cartoonist, "and women are odd, too. Call a girl a chick and she smiles; call a woman a hen and she howls. Call a young woman a witch and she is pleased; call an old woman a witch nd she is indignant. Call a girl a kitten and she rather likes it, call a woman a cat and she hates you. Women are queer."

THE HYPNOTIC BUGLER

During the war two darkies in a negro regiment were boosting their respective company buglers.

"Go 'long wid you, boy!" said one. "You ain't got no boogler. We is got de boogler. When dat boy wraps his off lip 'round dat horn and blows paycall, it soun's jes' like the Boston Symphony Oxchestry playin' de Rozary." "Yeah' I hearn you", replied the other. "Talk on boy, talk on. You is wadin' deep into trouble."

"And when he soun's tapoo, de angel Gabriel himself is lendin' a ear, boy. A ear is what I say."

"Well if you like music, dat is all right, but if you is yearin' for food, you wants a boogler wid a hypnotic note like we'se got. Boy, when I heahs ole Custard-Mouth Jones discharge his blast I looks at my beans and I says, 'Strawberries, behave yourselves! You is crowdin' de whip cream out o' my dish!"

King: Old Lady what is that coming thru the ceiling?

Jody: Oh, that is just Gaswell broke loose again.

What Is Air?

BEFORE 1894 every chemist thought he knew what air is. "A mechanical mixture of moisture, nitrogen and oxygen, with traces of hydrogen and carbon dioxide," he would explain. There was so much oxygen and nitrogen in a given sample that he simply determined the amount of oxygen present and assumed the rest to be nitrogen.

One great English chemist, Lord Rayleigh, found that the nitrogen obtained from the air was never so pure as that obtained from some compound like ammonia. What was the "impurity"? In co-operation with another prominent chemist, Sir William Ramsay, it was discovered in an entirely new gas—"argon." Later came the discovery of other rare gases in the atmosphere. The air we breathe contains about a dozen gases and gaseous compounds.

This study of the air is an example of research in pure science. Rayleigh and Ramsay had no practical end in view—merely the discovery of new facts.

A few years ago the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company began to study the destruction of filaments in exhausted lamps in order to ascertain how this happened. It was a purely scientific undertaking. It was found that the filament evaporated —boiled away, like so much water.

Pressure will check boiling or evaporation. If the pressure within a boiler is very high, it will take more heat than ordinarily to boil the water. Would a gas under pressure prevent filaments from boiling away? If so, what gas? It must be a gas that will not combine chemically with the filament. The filament would burn in oxygen; hydrogen would conduct the heat away too rapidly. Nitrogen is a useful gas in this case. It does form a few compounds, however. Better still is argon. It forms no compounds at all.

Thus the modern, efficient, gas-filled lamp appeared, and so argon, which seemed the most useless gas in the world, found a practical application.

Discover new facts, and their practical application will take care of itself.

And the discovery of new facts is the primary purpose of the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company.

Sometimes years must elapse before the practical application of a discovery becomes apparent, as in the case of argon; sometimes a practical application follows from the mere answering of a "theoretical" question, as in the case of a gas-filled lamp. But no substantial progress can be made unless research is conducted for the purpose of discovering new facts.

VOLUME SIX — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, JANUARY 6, 1921. — NUMBER THIRTEEN

COLLEGE HOPEFULS TIE K. H. S. QUINTETTE

"Bum" Tallying Causes Score Dispute.

Schedule Not Complete.

Playing the first non-scheduled game of the season on the home court, and shifting from the regulars to the seconds at the beginning of the second half of the game the Maryville fellows were held to a 28-28 score by the scrapping wonders of the Knoxville High School.

The Hendrick brothers, McMurray, McGinley, and Delozier started the game against Shanton, Dean, Wickham, Keister, and Woods, the Knoxville five. Wild passing and careless goal shooting was performed by both teams at the outset, but the fever of nervousness soon passed away and both squads were making it more difficult for the other to accomplish anything for some time. The better experience and height of the Maryville boys soon broke the tie of non-goal shooting, and then it happened in regular thrilling basketball style. The Deacons piled up a dual or two for a beginning but the Tigers came back with a spurt and were soon running neck and neck with the would-be runaway Deacons. This method of procedure lasted but a short while for the accurate shooting of John Hendrick and the easy passing of the ball by McMurray and Hendrick the second, made the gap between the scores to widen till at the close of the first half Maryville had almost double the score of the Knoxville five.

Opening the second half with a new line of men for the Highlanders and with the regular quintet on the court for Knoxville, proved to be to Knoxville's advantage. Passing the old ball from one end of court to other and shooting at the goal from all angles and distances, the Tigers just naturally played a ring around the new bunch of College men for a short while. Different players were substituted from time to time by Coach Feeman but that did not seem to stem the tide of the advance of the visitors. As one of the men who began the second half stated after the game, "We went in for a defensive game and not to shoot goals at random. It seems that the Coach wanted to run the risk of losing goals to our opponents for he replaced us with men who played both a defensive and offensive game thus allowing more goals to be sacked by Knoxville and lessening our grasp on what gain we had."

That is rather plain speaking, but the truth won't hurt anybody. Nevertheless, with hard scrapping and heavy playing the score was held to a tie.

Let it be repeated: the score was a tie. Bum tallying did prove so bad but that it was very obvious the visitors could lay claim to nothing more favorable than a tie score.

Since both men who kept the tallies had never done it before, and since accurate accounting proves a fact contrary to the above, it seems best to get out of the difficulty by blaming it on the right fellow (?)

Shanton and Deane were the best men on the Knoxville squad which was well coached by "Pete" Siler a former football and basketball man of Central Hi of Knoxville.

It was suggested that probably another game would be staged between the same teams sometime in the distant future. That will come soon enough, for it seems that present conditions of the looked-for hopeful bunch on College Hill does not speak well towards that end.

"THE WAIF" PRESENTED AT LAST VESPER SERVICE

Beautiful Christmas Service Under Auspices of Y.W.C.A.

Unusually Good Music.

One of the most beautiful Christmas services of many years was held at the chapel on the last Sunday night before the holidays. The choir sang a special Christmas processional and recessional, and after Dr. Stevnson had offered the invocation the double quartette chanted The Lord's Prayer. This was followed by the usual responsive reading, one peculiarly appropriate being selected. The double quartette sang a beautiful Christmas anthem, "Shepherds Hail the Wondrous Stranger", after which Miss Walker, Miss Hale, and Mr. Noble played "Silent Night". What could have been more impressive? Then Mr. Hayes sang "On the Birthday of the King". After this the dramatization class gave a little Christmas morality play in which the Christmas spirit disguised as a Waif (Martha Robison) sought to again be loved and cherished but was rebuffed by Greed (Callie Speck), Vanity (Goldie Niceley), Sorrow (Anna Sharp), and Pleasure (Myrtle Rendon). When he was in despair he found Faith (Grace Blank) and togther they sought the Christmas star. Service (Mildred Striplin) at last led them to it, and they knelt in worship and adoration looking at the star and listening to the heavenly music of "There's A Song in the Air". The Waif then threw off his disguise and was once more the Christmas spirit bright. Then he and the audience had a vision of the Star and the Angels (Alice McAnulty, Minnie Hamilton and Gladys Nave) and heard the wonderful words, "Glory to God in the Highest" as sung by the double quartette. Miss Lola Beeler who directed the play and Mr. Burson who directed the lighting are certainly to be congratulated; as is also Miss Bewley the teacher of the dramatization class The music and expression departments working together can do wonders.

It is hoped that a beautiful Christmas service like this will be given at Maryville every year. A precedent has been established—let's not break it.

BAINONIANS' LAST MEETING IN 1920

Dickens' Christmas Carol Dramatized.

1920 is gone but many pleasant memories linger when we think of Bainonian and her programs. Especially is this true of the last program of the year, a Dramatization of Dickens' Christmas Carol. What could have been more appropriate when we were all getting the Christmas spirit than to see Old Scrooge turn from his old ways. Martha Mae Boyer was particularly good in this part; excellent when the nephew, Hazel Bevan came in to wish him a Merry Christmas; splendid when the ghosts were teaching him the Christmas spirit. These ghosts were none other than Edith Moore, Beulah Hatchett, Mary McSpadden, and Aileen Rutherford.

It was good to see Bob Cratchet, Alice Robison; Mrs. Cratchett, Hazel Cleveland, and all the little Cratchetts scrambling for the turkey bones; and it was still better to know that Tiny Tim gave Old Scrooge his closing line "God bless us all".

Such a program is worth while from a literary standpoint. We are a literary society and as such try to live up to our name.

THIRD MIDWINTER MONDAY EVENING

Theta Epsilon Presents "The House of Rimmon".

Played By All-Star Cast.

The annual midwinter of the Theta Epsilon Literary Society will be given on Monday night next, January 10, at 8:00 p. m. in Voorhees chapel. They have chosen the "House of Rimmon" by Henry Van Dyke. A wiser choice could not have been made, for the mere mention of Henry Van Dyke's name is sufficient to convince us of that. This drama in four acts has been especially favored by people who appreciate a good drama, and Theta promises to "do her bit" toward making the presentation of it a success. The "best" of Mrs. West's class have been called forth and conscripted to play the part of his great characters. Who did not enjoy those short readings by Susan Carson one morning not long ago in chapel? Watch for her on Monday night.

If you love beauty you will find it in most of his characters. In every good play nowadays there is a pretty girl, a handsome man, a crook, a good Samaritan and some one to make us laugh. In this play we have all of these. We will see a love that paused at no hazards, the result of deception and a "Fool" who will laugh with us.

If you miss it you will regret it, for it is an opportunity which may not knock again at your door. So come and bring your friends!

CAPT. KILPATRICK SAFE AND WELL

Previously Reported Killed by Reds.

Miss Irene Knignutch, an interpreter for the American Red Cross, who was captured by the bolsheviki with Captain Emmet Kilpatrick on October 29, has arrived in Constantinople after escaping from her captors. When Miss Knignutch last saw Capt. Kilpatrick, he was in good health and was being taken to Moscow. The bolsheviki planned to transport him northward from Moscow for release in return for Russians whom the bolsheviki alleged are being held by the United States government. Kilpatrick expects to leave Russia by way of Vibroy, Finland, in a few weeks.

Mr. Kilpatrick, who graduated from M. C. in 1915, was previously reported to have been brutally killed by a detachment of Budenny's cavalry. We rejoice to learn that he is "safe and well."

Dr. Wilson is in New York this week attending to some of the interests of the College.

Dr. Barnes represented the Southern Society in the Council of the American Association for Advancement of Scientific Education which met in annual session at Chicago, during the Christmas holidays. He also attended a meeting of the American Psychological Association at the same city.

Opportunity Extraordinary

Dr. Vale, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Knoxville and a speaker of great reputation, will address a joint meeting of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. next Sunday afternoon at one-thirty o'clock in Voorhees Chapel.

This will be your last opportunity to hear Dr. Vale before he leaves the South to take the pastorate of the Oak Park Church at Chicago.

Don't Fail To Hear Dr. Vale.

The New Year Brings Renewed Forensic Activity as Time Approaches For Debates

COLLEGE DEBATE PRELIMINARIES HELD

Sixteen Men Chosen In First Preliminary.

Girls Will Debate Japanese Question With Tusculum.

The first preliminary for the College men's debate teams was held just before the holidays, on December 20 and 21. Sixteen men were chosen in this preliminary and these sixteen together with five veteran debaters from former years will compete in the second preliminary for places on the teams. Thus there will be twenty-one men in the second preliminary and fourteen of them will be selected to make up the personel of the teams.

There had been numerous disturbing and distracting factors just previous to the first preliminary but in spite of these things the work done in the debates presented was of such an order as to augur well for the success of this year's debating. None of the men in this preliminary have had collegiate debating experience and yet there was some excellent work done. None of the men who were not so fortunate as to be selected in the final choice of the judges needs to feel any discredit but rather that he has secured valuable experience and more than that has contributed to the spirit of competition without which there could have been no such display of debating talent as was called forth.

The list of men selected in the first preliminary is given herewith in alphabetical order: D. N. Arnold, D. L. Beard, R. S. Buffatt, H. C. Clabough, F. Corry, A. L. Johnston, D. King, W. T. Magill, B. Montgomery, A. F. Nace, V. Queener, E. J. Rohart, E. W. Stanbery, C. N. Sharp, R. A. N. Wilson, W. C. Wilson.

R. A. Armstrong, H. R. Arnold, F. S. Minarik, O. Stanton, and T. B. Vance are the veteran debaters who will appear with these men in the second preliminary. The date for this preliminary is January 24. The questions which will be used in this program are the questions which are to be debated in the intercollegiate debates. One debate is to be a dual debate with Carson-Newman College on the question: The United States and Great Britain should form a formal defensive alliance. The other debate is to be a dual debate with Tusculum College with a possibility that Cumberland University may be included as a third member of a triangle. In this debate the question is to be: The form of government of the United States should be so modified as to provide for a system of responsible executive government.

GIRL'S PRELIMINARY

The preliminary for the College Girls' team is to be held January 14 and 15. Twenty-two girls are entered in this preliminary, eight of whom will be selected for the team which is to debate Tusculum. The question which is to be discussed in this preliminary is to be the intercollegiate question. It is stated thus: All Japanese, except diplomatic and trade representatives, students in colleges and Universities, and tourists should be denied admittance to the territory of the United States.

INTERCOLLEGIATE ORATORICAL CONTEST

The intercollegiate forensic organization which was initiated last year has recently undergone a slight reorganization. In the beginning it included colleges in Virginia and one North Carolina college. At a recent meeting of representatives of the colleges concerned in the matter which was held in Knoxville, it was decided to make it a state league and include Tennessee colleges only. The league is now to be known as the Tennessee Intercollegiate Forensic League and it has already as members Carson-Newman College, Cumberland University, Lincoln Memorial University, Maryville College, Milligan College, and Tusculum College. One or two other schools will probably enter the league within the year.

The chief function of the league is conceived to be encouragement of intercollegiate forensic relations. With this idea in view the league proposes to conduct an annual contest in oratory to which each member is to send an orator. A liberal prize, either in the way of a medal, or a cash prize is to be given the winner. This year one set of judges only will judge the orations and this judgment will be rendered at the time of their delivery on the double basis of literary quality and presentation. The contest is to be held on Friday night, April 1, at Carson-Newman College, Jefferson City.

Now the real idea of this writing is to call the attention of Maryville men to the fact that we must send a representative to this contest with the view of winning the decision. The preliminary for the selection of the orator should be held early in March, perhaps March 5 or 12. Men who are interested in their own development in public speech and in the credit of Maryville's forensic reputation should go out for this contest. Interested men are urged to report to Mr. Stanton the Presiednt of the Forensic League or to Professor Hunter before January 15 as to their interest in this matter.

PREP DEBATERS WILL MEET K. H. S.

Preliminaries To Be Held Not Later Than January 24-25.

Debates Being Arranged For Spring.

It is a known certainty that the Maryville College Preps are going to have an opportunity to have it out with Knoxville High School in a debate sometime in April. It has been definitely decided and agreed upon by both schools that there will be a debate, but as yet, the details of said debate are lacking. It is assured however that this debate will be between the boys and girls, both in Maryville and in Knoxville. Therefore, in order to carry away the honors, the only thing to do is "WORK" and there will be plenty of said work in progress in the ensuing three months on the part of debaters in order to uphold past records, laurels, etc., of Maryville's Preparatory Department and to increase the prestige now held by our fellow collegiate students on account of their ability shown in years past to win debates.

There are also three or four other debates talked of with well-known East Tennessee schools, and one probably with Asheville High School, Asheville, N. C. If these debates come through, as is expected, then the music will begin sure enough and students will then have an opportunity of seeing the juniors in action.

I used to think I knew I knew,
But now I must confess,
The more I know I know I know
I know I know the less.

We have standardized our reputation with students of Maryville Colelge, by giving them honest merchandise at honest prices

Back To The Old Grind Again!

* * * *

At this time we would say to the Preps, "What's well begun is half done", and to the college students, "All's well that ends well."

* * * *

A noiseless soup spoon and a dreadless examination are among the inventions not yet perfected, but which, let us hope, the future has in store for us.

* * * *

In this issue appear accounts of no less than six marriages which occured during the latter part of December. As a probable explanation for this unusual phenomenon has it occurred to you that leap year will not come again until 1924?

* * * *

The next issue of the Echo will be a special Y. M. C. A. number in which will be contained a detail account of the Hi Y Conference held here during the holidays. Copies will be sent to every school represented in the conference and to many points in the South. Sam Franklin, Forrest Brown, and Delemo Beard, members of the Echo staff, are now hard at work preparing for the special "Y" issue. Let's make it a record number!

The College Parasite

We have deferred the writing of this article as long as possible, hoping that a change in the order of events on College Hill would render it unnecessary. But that change has not been forthcoming and hence—this article.

A few lawless students in Maryville College make it necessary that this public protest be made to their malicious actions. During the fall term there disappeared from the Y. M. C. A. reading rooms pictures from frames, magazines, magazine covers, books, and phonograph records. Whether these articles were "swipped" or stolen the guilt lies none the less heavily upon some one or few in M. C. The guilty ones have not been found and hence none of the "lost" articles have been recovered.

The "Y" reading room and all that is placed therein is for the use of every fellow on the Hill, and every fellow should take pride in guarding and keeping in good condition the "Y" property. Therefore, suffice it to say that anyone who takes this property for his own or who otherwise purposely destroys the magazines, books, etc., is a college parasite of the lowest type.

Constructive Reading

Too many students act as though college iife was an existence apart from the world, free from its cares and responsibilities. The one student out of ten, that one who later in life makes good, is the same one who while in school maintained a live interest in the outside world. Whether in Maryville or in the nation's metropolis, the student has little time to travel or hold personal contact with men of affairs. His knowledge of industrial, political, social, and religious progress must come through reading. Imagine the student going into a progressive locality and being unable to discuss intelligently the issues of the day! We must not spend our days in isolation.

Permiscuous reading would be no better than no reading at all. The student who thinks that he keeps up with the current events by merely stopping at the library before meals to read the jokes and crimnal docket out of the daily paper is fooling himself. Every student should be on familiar terms with at least six important national weeklies, as many monthlies, and quarterlies. He should certainly have an intimate acquaintance with half that number of magazines.

In a suggestive list of weekli, we would include THE NEW REPUBLIC, THE NATION, THE OUTLOOK, THE LITERARY DIGEST, and THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. Of these the first two are quite radical but conducive to constructive thinking. By reading these magazines more carefully we would be better able to understand the course of events. For those interested in social work and to all forward-looking business men, THE SURVEY is an indispensable weekly.

Important monthlies which should be on your reading list are THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY, ASIA, ASSOCIATION MEN, REVIEW OF REVIEWS, HARPERS, and THE AMERICAN. The book reviews of The Atlantic and Harpers will keep you in touch with the best in recent publications. Asia brings you all the news of the Far and the Near East, Siberia, and India. Its articles are very popular and readable. Association Men brings the latest news from religious organizations the world over. By following its columns, you will be able to know the news of the student world as perhaps by no other means available to you on the Hill. The Review of Reviews of course brings the higher toned business forecasts. The American contains much of the inspiration so needed by young people of today. Its stories of real life should be read.

All of these magazines are in the library or in the Association's reading rooms, so there is no excuse for not having an acquaintance with them. Besides keeping in touch with the current news, you will be reading some of the best literature. This broadening out is absolutely essential to the forward-looking student.

THE PARABLE OF THE WISE STUDENTS

Now it came to pass in those days, that the students of Maryville College in the town of Maryville of Blount County in the state of Tennessee, being very tired from their arduous labor in the chemistry laboratory and the theism class as well as in other places, decreed that it would be well to take a vacation and so they did. Now some of these students were wise and some were foolish. And the foolish said, "Let us now pack our trunks and go even unto our homes and pass the time away." But the wise said, "Not so, it is far better to remain here". And those who remained soon proved the wisdom of their words, for there was a Snap Wednesday night, a picture show party Thursday night, and a Christmas tree at the House-in-the-Woods Friday night to which Santa Claus did come. Yea, he came and gave each one gifts, dolls, cooking spoons, games, nut crackers, and all good things. And all this time the moon shone both day and night, and Miss Molly seeing that it was good said, "Joshua commanded the sun to stand still, and it did so. Lo, I will command the moon to stand still from 7:30 a. m. to 9:30 p. m., it shall not go down upon my darlings unless they so desire". And on Saturday a little play was given at the House-in-the-Woods, and it was called "Queen Christmas".

Now when the Sabbath Day was come they said one to another, "Let us now go to church", and as it was dismissed at 11:30 and dinner was not until 1:30, the moon shone brightly for two hours. And after vesper that night, Dr. Stevenson remained for a while and with him some boys and the moon shone on.

And every night the moon shone at the picture show and Miss Darby was a popular chaperone, yea she was very popular. And so the days passed, the Wonman's League entertained for these wise students and it was a delightful affair. The Hi Y Conference came with one hundred more boys; there was a Watch Party in the gym where there were four times as many boys as girls, and thanks to Roy Buffatt and Forrest Brown, every one had a wonderful time; staying out till after twelve, yea and moonshining home.

Good dinners and breakfasts and suppers were served in the dining room, yea, turkey, rabbit, hot cakes, rolls, wonderful biscuits, mince pie, became very common things; and coffee and milk were served at every meal. And when the foolish students returned, they said one to another, "Let us never depart again, but stay and see these wonderful things which have come to pass."

"I wish I wus a rock,
A sittin' on the Hill;
A doin nothin' all day long,
But jest a sittin' still.
I wudn't eat, I wudn't sleep,
I wudn't even wash;
I'd jest sit still a thousand years,
And rest meself, Begosh!

SENIOR CHRISTMAS PARTY

The last and one of the very best parties of the year was on the night of the twenty-first at the "House-in-the-Woods". Those who did not already possess the Christmas spirit soon caught it—how could we help it with a sure 'nuff Christmas tree, holly, mistletoe, and other Christmas decorations? Then we all sat around in the firelight and listened to Martha read in her charming way a story for us. Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson delighted us all with some beautiful Christmas stories. Afterwards we tried our hand at making old Santa with chewing gum and tooth picks. Such chewing! Why our poor mouths were sore for a week, from the exercise. But some wonderful caricatures were made of "His Highness Old Saint Nick". Numerous other contests were indulged in—then a concoction of food for the gods, with whipped cream and cherries and all accessories greeted our eyes. My it was good! After singing some Christmas songs we departed with hesitancy.

Second Annual Hi Y Conference Held at M. C. During Holidays

Seventy-five Delegates Representing Seventeen East Tennessee High Schools Attend Conference; Accommodations and Entertainment Provided by College and Local "Y" Men.

(By Sam Franklin)

Seventy-five delegates representing seventeen high schools of Eastern Tennessee were present at the Older Boys' Conference which was held at Maryville College during the Christmas holidays, on December 31, and January 1 and 2. Aided by the College Y.M.C.A. and ably directed by Mr. Kerr, the Tennessee Boys' Work Secretary, the conference was able to present a program unusual and of far-reaching effect in the short time afforded. Plans for the entire time had been carefully laid; the program was planned beforehand even to the minute. As a result practically every feature was successful.

"The World Outlook" was the motto of the conference. Beginning in this spirit, the meeting was characterized by a great broadness of vision. The conference numbered among its speakers Dr. Inzler, National Chaplain of the American Legion and the pastor of the First Baptist Church of Chattanooga, Dr. Stevenson of Maryville, Prof. R. K. Morgan, Headmaster of the Morgan School, Col. F. M. Massey, Commandant of the Massey Military School, Mr. Barnett of Vanderbilt University, Mr. O. R. Magill, "Y" Secretary of Kinn, China, and Dr. S. W. Glasgow, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Knoxville. Each of these men brought burning messages to the high school boys and each address fitted in peculiarly with the spirit of the whole conference. The practical side of every theme was not forgotten. From the "mountain top of inspiration" after each address the delegates would descend into the "valley of practical experience" in an informal discussion group at which they applied the theories which they had learned to the problems of every day life.

The program began with the banquet Friday night in the College dining hall. This was followed by a social in the gymnasium. Saturday morning Dr. Stevenson and Professor Morgan were speakers, and Saturday aftrenoon Col. Massey delivered an address. From three o'clock until supper time recreation, in the form of basket-ball games and fun in the swimming pool, was enjoyed. Saturday night the boys heard Mr. Magill. Sunday morning they attended church services in town, and Sunday afternoon, at the closing session, Dr. Glasgow spoke.

The conference was fortunate in having as a speaker Mr. Barnett who conducted the devotions at each session. The boys will also always have a warm feeling for Mr. Kerr who advised, directed, and encouraged them through their work.

The Older Boys' Conference will be remembered among the other great deeds of service which Maryville College and the Maryville "Y" have accomplished. The idea of holding the conference at a college, though new, proved very successful at Maryville—thanks to the work of Forrest Brown, the Secretary of the local "Y", Roy Buffat, who directed the social activities, W. P. Magill, who secured the loan of rooms and bedding, John Hendrick,

EDWIN CROUCH
President of Hi Y Conference

who supervised the athletics, and the other Maryville men who took part in preparing for the conference or in aiding its progress. Although the Hill had quieted down for the holidays, these high school boys seemed to glimpse the meaning of real college life, or, as one expressed it, they "caught the spirit."

THE BANQUET

Friday afternoon Maryville "Y" members met the trains and escorted the newly-arrived delegates to Carnegie Hall where they registered and were assigned rooms.

At six-thirty the boys gathered in the College dining room with the students who had remained on the Hill for the holidays. Here took place the banquet which began the conference session. The menu, on which fried chicken held the place of honor, had been prepared by the culinary artists of the College Boarding Club and the manner in which the food was annihilated under the attacks made upon it, did full justice to their ability.

The toastmaster of the evening was Edwin Crouch, a Senior from Johnson City High School. The program was begun by a call for songs, yells, or speeches from the various delegations. A hearty response was made; the theme of the short speeches was that everyone was glad to be present and meant to do his best towards making the conference successful. High school yells were given and a quartet from the Knoxville delegation sang. The entire crowd then joined in the songs which were led by Mr. Kerr. A French-Canadian boating song which Mr. Kerr endeavored to teach with the help of a few delegates who knew it, was perhaps the most popular of all the musical numbers.

After the fun had subsided, the toastmaster introduced Dr. McMurray, who brought the greetings of Maryville College to the visitors. Dr. McMurray assured the boys of their welcome on the Hill, and emphasized the greatness of the work that lies before them. In closing he related a story of an Englishman who dug for a treasure on the plains of York. The man after he had dug a long time found a box containing copper coins, and on the box were the words,

'Dig deeper where this stood Lies another twice as good."

Following this advice, the treasure seeker was rewarded with a box of silver coins, but on it was the same inscription. Again he dug until, deep in the earth, he found a box of gold coins. The speaker compared the results of the conference to the treasure. The physical good, being the least valuable, corresponded to the first, then came the social and mental benefits, and finally, deepest

DR. ROY E. VALE ADDRESSES STUDENTS

Power of "Redeeming The Time" is Quality Most Needed by College Students.

Dr. Vale Will Leave Southland Soon.

The Rev. Dr. Vale of the Oak Park Presbyterian Church of Chicago addressed the joint meeting of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. on Sunday afternoon at one thirty. Dr. Vale will leave the Second Presbyterian Church of Knoxville during the latter part of this month.

The subject of the address was "Redeeming the Time". Dr. Vale discussed this along three lines: Intellectually, Socially, and Religiously.

In the first place a student has as his duty the redeeming of his time so that he obtains the best intellectual advancement out of time in college. The great sin of the college students is the wasting of time. The man that finishes college without learning to use his time to the best advantage is at sea when he starts on his journey in the world's work.

In a social way the large part of a man's usefulness in the world depends on his ability to mix well with the people he comes in contact with. The niceties of life and the correct etiquette will determine your future in contact with the world.

In a Religious way the redemption of time greatly determines the success a man has in meeting the great battles of life. The men that stand pat on the big questions of life will be the men that hold the line of defense in the battles of life. The world does not want the man that wastes time. The world asks, "what a man can do in a certain time?" It does not ask how much do you know?

Although the weather was not favorable a fine audience heard Dr. Vale and all thought that the address was one of the best that had been delivered in Maryville this year. The few that missed this meeting should make use of the principle taught in the address and come next Sunday to the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. meetings along with those that will take the address to heart and redeem their Sunday afternoons by attending the meetings.

HI SCHOOL TOURNEY WILL BE HELD AT M. C.

Information and Rules Concerning East Tennessee Basket Ball Tournament.

Appropriate Trophies Will Be Presented to Winning Teams.

(By Porter Turner, Manager of Tournament)

After one successful tournament, the Second Annual Basket Ball Tournament to decide the High School Championship of East Tennessee will be held at Maryville College on Friday and Saturday, February 25-26, 1921.

All the leading High School teams of East Tennessee will be represented. An appropriate trophy will be awarded to the winning team, accompanied by individual trophies, while the team finishing second will receive a smaller trophy in recognition of its success.

Games will be played in the College Gym. Friday afternoon and Saturday. Friday night an intercollegiate game will be played. The final game of the tournament will be between the two teams who after a series of games have eliminated all other teams. These two teams will play Saturday afternoon in the final game for first and second places, or for champions of East Tennessee. A team will be eliminated from the championship as soon as it has lost one game, but will be allowed other consolation games before the tournament is over, thus giving it opportunity to meet other teams in the tournament and win a consolation series. The time of halves will be fifteen minutes, except the final game, which will go the regulation twenty minutes.

The College will provide sleeping accommodations and supper at the College dining hall on Friday evening. Other expenses will fall upon the visiting teams. They would cover railroad fare for the round trip and three meals while the men are in Maryville—these at convenient hotels or restaurants. Travel by auto-bus or train is possible now between Maryville and Knoxville at almost any hour of the day. Teams would be expected in Maryville by noon Friday as the tournament opens at 1:00 o'clock and they will have a chance to leave Saturday afternoon as the final game of the series will start at 2:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The following is a list of the rules made last year by Principals and Coaches of the teams represented in the tournaments:

1. All participaitng in these tournaments must be carrying at least fifteen hours of high school work per week as prescribed by the State.

2. All participating in the tournament must be required to make an average grade of at least seventy-five percent during the portion of the term preceding the tournament.

3. All participating in any of these tournaments shall have been students in the schools they represent from the first week of the term in which the tournament is held.

4. No one shall participate as an official in any tournament who has been a student or in any way connected with any school represented in the tournaments.

5. No one shall represent his school in these tournaments who is over twenty-one years of age.

BAINONIAN

The Bainonian's Rejuvenate A Few of The Faculty Members In Dr. Quackem's Wonder Machine.

Miss Molly, who was wearied by reprimanding the noisy third and fourth floor girls in Pearsons and watching the moonshiners, and Miss Jackson who was ready to do whatever Miss Molly wished, were the first applicants for their youth again. The wonder machine emitted groans and was choked by the double portion, but after being oiled, turned out two happy, hilarious girls, dancing and skipping about.

Dean Barnes' Psychology classes were becoming so monotonous that he preferred youth also. The machine turned him out as a rollicking boy. He aimed his cap at the wall, as would have been supposed, and missed the nail.

Dr. Quackem advised Miss Hale all she needed was just to begin over; to get away from the tedious routine of music students. The wonder machine must have thought the same for it turned her forth with her long braids and short dresses. She tripped daintily over to the piano, where she gave us a beautiful selection.

Mrs. Alexander was remorseful because she feared she was not doing as much for the world as she should and that her life had been in vain studying Chaucer and Browning. If she should regain her youth, she knew she would take a different course. The Wonder Machine heard her and she stepped forth, a short, chubby, bob-haired, free-thinking orator, who gave a very clever and amusing speech.

Miss Darby was tired of teaching negligent girls to wash dishes and serve, so she insisted in taking her cat and going into the machine. Dr. Quackem pleaded with her not to take her cat but she had never been without it and she knew the dogs would hurt it, so she took the cat. Presently she stepped out lamenting and weeping for on her arm was hung a string of weiners.

Miss Heron was so anxious over the vocabularies of the Freshman English classes that she also preferred to enter the machine. When the machine gave a twist, out came a little Miss Heron with curly hair and short dresses hunting her dolly.

Woman must have a career but Miss Fanson was willing to become young if she could take along her bottles of carbon. – potassium, sulphuric, magnesuim, chloride, dearer to her than mere man. Dr. Quackem pleaded, warned and cautioned but Miss Fanson would take her chemicals. After she entered the machine, there was an explosion and three different lights flashed from it. When Miss Fanson stepped out she had been burned black by her chemicals, so she entertained us by a Negro dialect reading.

Maryville College's Y. M. C. A.

Maryville College prides itself in the fact that it has the oldest college Y. M. C. A. organization in the United States. The local Association was established forty-four years ago immediately following the February meetings of 1877, and while some few such organizations were extant at that time in the cities of our country, it has not been shown that there was a single college Y. M. C. A. organized prior to that time.

The honor of preconceiving the idea belongs to three men, John A. Silsby, James B. Porter, and Samuel T. Wilson. These men were directly responsible for the holding of the first meeting of the M. C. Y. M. C. A. in the College Library in Anderson Hall on March 5, 1877. The Association as first organized on the Hill, consisted of fourteen charter members, eleven of whom later entered the ministry, five going to foreign fields. The three founders, who were also the first three presidents of the Association, became foreign missionaries after leaving M. C.

During its first decade of existence the Association grew rapidly in numbers, strength, and usefulness. But with such men as founders, is it any wonder that such a worthy organization should flourish even in its early days? And with such a richness of history, need we be surprised at the continued success and growth of the Association on the Hill?

In 1888 Maryville received an invaluable asset in the form of a seventeen year old boy—Kin Takahaski. With an ancestry of Shintoists on one side and Buddhists on the other, he came seeking the light of Christ. Setting service as his goal he became intensely interested in Christian activities. And it was due to this interest and to his sacrifice and service that Maryville College now has Bartlett Hall, the College Y. M. C. A. building. This was the first college Asociation building in the South, and is still one of three in Tennessee.

Since the erection of Bartlett Hall the Association has continued its rapid growth until we now have one of the strongest college Associations in the South. But it remains for the Maryville men of today to continue the work so nobly begun, and strive for a more accelerated advancement, so that the pioneer student Association may keep pace with the other college Y. M. C. A. organizations.

ALUMNI POSSIBILITIES

(By an Alumnus)

(The Alumni Editor has long been wishing that he knew how to say the thing which the anonymous alumnus who contributed the following article has said so forcefully and appropriately. Taking our alumni as individuals the list is a worthy and honorable one. Taking our alumni as a body,—can we say so much? Why not make this column an open forum for an interchange of ideas from alumni as to how the Alumni Association of Maryville College can become more than a name?—The Alumni Editor).

A certain preparatory school in Middle Tennessee recently raised $30,000 among its alumni and old students to erect a handsome building which was much needed for this school. This institution was founded only nineteen years ago. One cannot but admire the spirit of the alumni of such a school for their noble achievement. A few days ago the Alumni of Cumberland University held a banquet in the Tutwiler Hotel in Birmingham, Alabama to marshal all of their forces for the campaign to raise a half million dollars additional endowment for their Alma Mater. Three cheers for Cumberland alumni! Would that the same fervent spirit of enthusiasm was being shown toward all of our great church schools which are the bulwark of Christian civilization. The alumni of any college have it in their power to do great things if they organize in a business-like way. Who can estimate the full extent of the good that Maryville's alumni might do if they would only marshal their forces for some constructive campaign for the old College? How many boys and girls have gone out into the world with grateful hearts for what Maryville gave to them in equipment for the big game of life? How many would gladly pay that debt of gratitude if they only had a chance? No one feels that he can do anything worth while alone, but in a general, concerted movement to do something for the College, Maryville's sons and daughters would rally with all the martial enthusiasm of a great army mobilizing to defend its country.

The rank and file of the students who have gone out from Maryville have entered fields of service that do not bring their reward in this life. In truth, their treasures are above. For this reason it would be hard to find many individuals who could contribute large amounts of money to some great program of the College. However, all the money that is raised for worthy things is by no means collected from the wealthy. The Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church of New York City raised over $10,000 for foreign missions at one service and most of that was given by girls and boys who were earning a mediocre livelihood. The most liberal givers are those who give till it hurts. While Maryville perhaps has not turned out great financiers, still she has not turned out a horde of paupers. There are hundreds of old students, if not alumni, who are engaged in reasonably lucrative positions.

A move in the right direction was made at the last Alumni banquet held on Commencement day last June. We have at least the outline of an organization, but if we stop where we are now, as alumni, we never will be a real asset to our Alma Mater. At this last Alumni banquet there was a pronounced sentiment among all present, to organize for some constructive program for the College. But like everything else, we have not as yet harnessed this enthusiasm into a workable and efficient machine. Just as there is unlimited power in the great mountain streams of East Tennessee if it was only harnessed, so is there great power in us if we would only get together in the right way and organize for a real, constructive campaign. All over the Southland, the alumni of our leading Colleges and Universities are putting their Alma Maters on the map. Why cannot Maryville's alumni do the same? As a matter of fact we can, and that effectively, if we only WILL.

Surely we do not have to question the fact that there is a NEED now for our efforts. The white hairs of our President are a living testimony to the needs of Maryville. The student body has been increasing more rapidly than the facilties for taking care of the student body for many years. There is a great need for increased endowment for teachers' salaries, for the new agricultural department, for better facilities for physical training and other things too numerous to mention. As alumni what have we ever done for Maryville in the way of adding to her material equipment? Let us revive the old Maryville Spirit that has always characterized the College and follow the example of the alumni of other institutions. Whether it be a new gymnasium or dormitory or athletic field or agricultural department, let us marshal the old gang and as alumni make a substantial contibution to the ever increasing demands of our Alma Mater.

Let us hear from other alumni or old students on this subject. Express your sentiments in the columns of the Highland Echo for this is our best channel for publicity.

On Christmas morning the stork played Santa Claus and left at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Waggoner at Morristown, Tenn., a little baby boy. Mrs. Waggoner, nee Miss Blanche Proffitt, graduated from M. C. in the class of 1911, and Mr. Waggoner was a member of the class of 1914.

ATHENIANS WILL PRESENT "FORTUNE HUNTER" MONDAY EVENING

A Wonderful Play Will Be Given By a Wonderful Society.

ARE YOU A FORTUNE HUNTER?

Yes, of course, you are. Well suppose you were "dead broke", down and out, and a complete failure in life. Then suppose a friend of yours came to you and said, "If you will follow my advice and the rules that I set before you, I'll guarantee that you will be worth a million within a year."

Would you take him up on it?

You're at the end of the rope, everything to gain and nothing to lose. What about it?

Well there was a man so they say, who faced just such a proposition. He accepted his friend's proposal and lived up to it for almost a year. He made good. The million—and a girl, were his to take if he chose.

But he didn't. Why?

It was a chance that comes but once in a lifetime, and he turned it down.

Foolish, you say? Well perhaps, but maybe he was wise. Maybe he had learned something during that year that he didn't know before. It's not every man that would refuse such an opportunity.

Then WHY did he do it?

I can assure you, that his reasons for refusing the million—and the girl, are well worth knowing, and the Athenian Literary Society will make it possible for you to find out.

Next Monday evening at the chapel, at the hour of eight, the answer will be given in the very interesting play, "The Fortune Hunter".

Now in order not to be outdone in generosity and altruism by the other literary societies on the Hill, the Athenians are presenting this play for your benefit, instruction and pleasue.

ABSOLUTELY FREE! !

Even the tickets will be free!

But when you get your tickets, a nominal fee of twenty-five cents will be collected from each person who sees the play, to cover the expense of writing this article telling you of the wonderful opportunity and plasure that is to be your's on next Monday evening, for NOTHING.

Now of course if the moonshines (and it will, even if it is cloudy) it will cost you fifty cents instead of twenty-five. But who cares for fifty cents when the moon shines?

NOBODY!

We should worry. Let the moon do it.

All right then, every thing is lovely. Pay that insignificant fee to cover the expense of writing this article, then come over to the Chapel with that fair vision of etherea' loveliness and charm softly gazing into your eyes, and prepare to enjoy the evening to it's fullest extent.

MR. VINCENT HAMILTON RECEIVES HIGH HONORS

Mr. Vincent Hamilton, a former student of M. C., and now a Senior in Ames University, has recently achieved very high honors in agricultural branches.

The highest awards in swine judging in the U. S. and in Canada were recently won by Mr. Hamilton. This is indeed a very high honor, for it places him first in swine judging in the world.

So excellent are his abilities in this respect that he has been made instructor of a class in first year stock judging at Ames. He is the only undergraduate instructor in the University.

He has received a flattering offer from a six-million dollar cattle raising corporation in Iowa to assume, immediately after his graduation, the leadership of a large agricultural proposition which will involve hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Mr. Hamilton visited in Maryville on last Thursday.

Merry Rondoliers Enroute This Way With High-Speed Program Guaranteed to Make a Wooden Indian Sing.

Five talented young artists they are—the Merry Rondoliers—and they thrill with widely varied vocal and orchestral combinations, and with more clean, wholesome fun and real action than you would ever imagine could be crowded into an evening's entertainment.

Music—why bless your soul, yes! Literally, bushels of it! The trumpet quintet for instance, the saxophone trio, or the trombone duet; the Rondoliers' orchestra; the violin solos of William Larson and many other instrumental arrangements. And then might be mentioned the vocal solos, duets and ensemble singing of this happy, peppy bunch of talented folks. Every minute there is something new—a real program of action—a "pep" program which has won for them the appelation, "Lyceum's Liveliest."

UNLAWFUL WEARING OF THE M

Should anyone and everyone be allowed to wear the College emblem of athletic prowess? Should any student consider it an honor to wear a letter which they have not won?

The real right to wear a letter comes as a result of hard work and honest endeavor. The letter does not come alone but is accompanied by many bruises and strained ligaments. At the end of a long, hard season the athlete, boy or girl, is very justly proud of his or her letter. As a college diploma is reserved for its graduates so also, to be specific, should the Maryville M be reserved for those worthy of the honor of wearing it.

THE RESULT OF CAREFUL PLANNING

By Clarence E. Whittaker of Bristol, Vice-President of The Conference.

The Story of The Conference From a Delegate's Viewpoint.

The Older Boys Conference, held at Maryville, Tenn., on Dec. 31, Jan. 1-2, 1920-21, was a great success. I enjoyed the entire program most heartily and feel that every other boy did also. I heard some boys remark that the first day's work was a success and well worth the cost of the trip.

From my point of view, I feel perfectly free to say that every boy present fully enjoyed every lecture and address that was given.

From the time of the first address, which was given on Friday night, until the last, on Sunday afternoon, every boy listened with enthusiasm and tried to grasp every point that was brought out in the address.

There were also between the addresses, amusements of various kinds, such as games conducted in the gymnasium, and some fun in the pool.

During the leisure hours of the day the boys met Mr. Kerr and talked over such subjects as could not otherwise be worked out. He gave examples of what other schools were doing and every delegation promised to go back home and put on some kind of campaign for the betterment of their school and community.

The boys went into everything with pep, and meant business. Some High Schools had a large delegation while others had only one, but in spite of this, every one meant business and was down to work.

The fact that the boys took such great interest in the work is due to the fact that the speakers were the best that could be obtained in the entire State and everyone had a message that interested the boys and kept them spell-bound for the time being.

The entire body of delgates was in the finest kind of spirit and the best of humor that I have ever seen at a meeting of this kind. Every fellow made himself sociable and seemd at home, and seemed almost like an old pal. Even on the train the boys seemed to know where the fellows were going and at once began to talk about the good times they would have at the meeting, and I think every fellow certainly had the good times he expected.

Not only does the thanks for the entertainment of the boys go to the students and faculty of the College, to Mr. Kerr and his followers, but also to the people of Maryville for the way they received us. Everyone seemed as merry as if it were Christmas Day.

I feel certain that every boy was well pleased with the addresses and could have listened to them for two or three hours if necessary. I was greatly interested by all the addresses given and especially by the devotional services which were held just before each address, by Mr. Fred T. Barnett.

I believe the address which interested me most was the one given by Professor R. K. Morgan on "COMRADESHIP", not withholding the fact that every address was splendid.

During the meetings the boys were called on to give their opinion on some topic of discussion. They were also called on to make a report of what their school was doing along the lines of Hi Y work, and different campaigns that are being put on in high schools all over the State.

When Mr. Kerr brought up the subject of what we could do for other boys all over the State and also the world, every boy saw his duty, and after the meeting each delegation had a short conference and decided what they thought they could give to the boys of the world.

During the stay the boys made themselves at home at the "Y" and made use of the books and magazines which were put there for their use.

On Monday when it came time to depart the boys hated to leave as badly as they were glad to go there. But yet they were anxious to get back to their home town and put to action some if not all that they had learned and taken notes on at the conference.

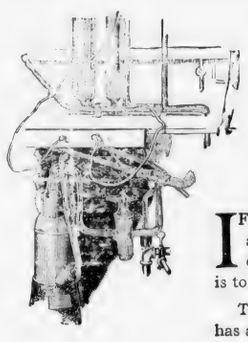
When we arrived in Knoxville on Monday we found some of the fellows that had been at the conference. They were very glad to see us and also Mr. Kerr, the leader.

All the boys wanted to go to the next conference and expressed their thanks to Maryville and the College.

They said that they would show Mr. Kerr next year that they had not missed anything that would be of help to them and their organization in the least.

THE CONFERENCE IDEA

(By Mr. Kerr, State Boys' Work Secretary)



Y. M. C. A. Editor's Note:—The success of the conference is largely due to the efforts of Mr. Kerr, the State Boys' Work Secretary. Mr. Kerr is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, and has had over six years experience in Boys' work. His friendliness and sincerity, his knowledge of the problems of boyhood and his eagerness to serve the boys make him a welcome guest wherever he goes.

One of the members of the Resolutions Committee said the other day, "We'll get together and resolve and then we'll desolve!" It is just because there is so much of resolution which is followed hard by dissolution that we have tried in this second Eastern Tennessee Older Boys' Conference to outline a program which would not only include the theoretical and inspirational but the practical as well. And in doing the latter we have aimed in at least two departments of school boy interests to give the boys some very definite things which they could carry back home with them.

As to the reason for having a "World Outlook" conference for boys, there is this to be said. It is an assured fact that if a man has not received a vision of the possibilities of the world service, world friendliness, and world responsibility when he was a boy, there is but little chance that he will ever get such a vision. And further, while the vision of such world wide interests is all important, yet that vision will be only a mirage unless there is closely allied with it some means of making that vision a reality.

So much for introduction. Dr. Inzer's address on "Personality plus" was intended to develop the idea that men of completely developed lives are needed to assume places of leadership in the world. The special addresses on Saturday morning, along the lines of Intellectual, Social and Physical development were followed by discussions as to how the different schools could raise the Mental, Social and Athletic standard of their respective student bodies. In addition, the party which was given for the delegates by the College Y. M. C. A. on Friday night, and the recreational program on Saturday afternoon were intended to be practical demonstrations of activities which might be introduced in the schools represented. The pledges of funds for the extension of boys' work at home and abroad which were made after Mr. Magill's talk on Saturday night gave opportunity to translate his message into terms of life service, and the brief decision period which followed Dr. Glasgow's fine appeal of Sunday afternoon, gave the proper opportunity for boys to indicate what they personally had gotten out of the conference.

The manner in which the boys entered into the discussion period showed that they were vitally interested in getting something to take back home. The report of the Findings Committee, which is printed in full elsewhere in this paper indicates that they did get several valuable suggestions from which to build future programs.

What Is Vacuum?

IF THE traffic policeman did not hold up his hand and control the automobiles and wagons and people there would be collisions, confusion, and but little progress in any direction. His business is to direct.

The physicist who tries to obtain a vacuum that is nearly perfect has a problem somewhat like that of the traffic policeman. Air is composed of molecules—billions and billions of them flying about in all directions and often colliding. The physicist's pump is designed to make the molecules travel in one direction—out through the exhaust. The molecules are much too small to be seen even with a microscope, but the pump jogs them along and at least starts them in the right direction.

A perfect vacuum would be one in which there is not a single free molecule.

For over forty years scientists have been trying to pump and jog and herd more molecules out of vessels. There are still in the best vacuum obtainable more molecules per cubic centimeter than there are people in the world, in other words, about two billion. Whenever a new jogging device is invented, it becomes possible to eject a few million more molecules.

The Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company have spent years in trying to drive more and more molecules of air from containers. The chief purpose has been to study the effects obtained, as, for example, the boiling away of metals in a vacuum.

This investigation of high vacua had unexpected results. It became possible to make better X-ray tubes—better because the X-rays could be controlled; to make the electron tubes now so essential in long-range wireless communication more efficient and trustworthy; and to develop an entirely new type of incandescent lamp, one which is filled with a gas and which gives more light than any of the older lamps.

No one can foretell what will be the outcome of research in pure science. New knowledge, new ideas inevitably are gained. And sooner or later this new knowledge, these new ideas find a practical application. For this reason the primary purpose of the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company is the broadening of human knowledge.

SECOND ANNUAL HI Y CONFERENCE HELD AT M. C. DURING HOLIDAYS

and most valuable, the spiritual blessings. He urged that the boys be not satisfied with a part, but to seek until they had obtained all that the conference offered.

Charles Sharp, of the local Y. M. C. A., then welcomed the boys in behalf of the College "Y". His address was full of humor and occasioned many laughs, which began as he prefaced his speech by consoling the boys because they were unable to act in their accustomed roles as "Woman's Home Companions" on New Year's eve. However, he promised that the College "Y" would endeavor to show them as good a time as possible, and invited them to make themselves at home in the Hall and on the campus. The Maryville Association, he said, was ready to do anything it could to help them.

The two speeches of welcome were very fittingly answered, in behalf of the conference by Swan Haworth of Knoxville. Mr. Haworth expressed the thanks of the boys for the welcome to the Hill and for the good-will which the delegates had found among the students.

A few words of very helpful advice from Mr. Kerr were next in order. Mr. Kerr spoke of the impotance of punctuality at the conference sessions, and advised the boys to accompany all their work with prayer. He called their attention to the absence of one of their friends, Charles Klinger of Greeneville, who had been seriously injured in an accident during the year, and asked that he be remembered in prayer.

The principle speaker of the evening was Dr. Inzer who delivered a stirring address on the subject, "Personality Plus"—a n address which gripped the attention of his hearers from the first to last. In introduction Dr. Inzer spoke of his own college days and the memories which the college atmosphere called forth. To the boys he promised that, as he talked, he would honestly try to say to them what he would have wanted said to him in their place.

In the first part of his address he called attention to the change which the world has of late undergone. Today we do not face what our fathers or grandfathers faced; it is a different world. He told of changes in the world's heart and mind which have come about, in social, educational, religious, industrial, commercial, and political fields. "And the end", he exclaimed, "is not even near". As a climax to the struggle responsibile for the changes, came the World War bringing with it the dawn of a new day.

The speaker told of a vision in which, he said, he saw an angel who, since the beginning of time, had sat overlooking the universe, never to leave his seat until he could report that men were beginning to live as they should. Before his eyes kingdoms rose and fell, Egypt, Greece, Rome, Judah, and the Reformation. But always they come so high, and had then fallen to pieces. Then came the war with its new birth for the nations. Across the sea and over the top went our soldiers, "asking nothing, giving all." And then, on November 11, 1918, was heard the glad cry of the angel to Heaven, "It is the dawn, man is to know God."

So, Dr. Inzer showed, the question which every boy must answer is, "what kind of a boy am I going to be in a world like this?" Old aristocracies have come and gone; the aristocracy of Birth, of Royalty, of Wealth, of Power, of Learning, and of Politics—all have disappeared. In the new world it is to be an aristocracy of service. "You shall be great according to your real service to God and man."

Such a program, such a new world, demand Personality Plus. Personality, the speaker defined, is the property of being a person, not an abstraction. Personality Plus implies individuality and character, the possession of good reason, self-consciousness, and self-activity. "In fact", he concluded, "it is an unusual personality. To develop sanely and religiously into the four-fold man of body, mind, spirit, and heart, means power and love and service to God and humanity. It is for everyone to meet his duty, first to God, second to self and humanity, and thus to become fitted for citizenship in the new world with its aristocracy of love and service rendered to God, man, and self by a foul-fold developed man."

THE SOCIAL

At nine o'clock in the College gymnasium the boys again assembled, prepared for the games, stunts, and social good times that were to follow. Roy Buffat, chairman of the social committee of the Maryville Y. M. C. A. had this feature in charge and is responsible for its success. Although the girls on College Hill had all been invited to the social and had accepted the invitation, the boys outnumbered them about two to one.

Mr. Buffat began his program by summoning all the girls present to the gymnasium floor and dividing them into four equal groups. To each group he assigned one corner of the room. The boys were then allowed to come upon the floor, count off in military fashion, and, they also had been divided into four parties and instructed to take their places with the corresponding groups of girls. Since this impartial treatment left no room for complaint from anyone, the games were allowed to begin.

The games were of a competitive character, each one calling for representatives from the different groups. They first elected captains, who in turn picked the contestants for each event. Interest from the first was keen, as was shown by the enthusiastic "rooting" with which each party supported its men.

When finally, the contests were concluded and the division having the most points was declared the winner.

The crowd was then seated about the gymnasium and hot chocolate and saltines, presented by the Maryville "Y", were passed. Soon after, when hymn books had been distributed and a piano rolled in, a short watch-night service was begun.

Mr. Kerr read the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians and commented on its fitness as a chapter of counsel for the New Year. Shortly before midnight another song was raised, and the New Year began for the members of the conference as they sang, "Joy to the World". With this service the first evening of the conference closed, and very soon afterwards, it is safe to say, several beds in Carnegie were creaking under the weight of new occupants.

SATURDAY MORNING

Saturday morning the conference sessions were held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. A business meeting was first held, at which Mr. Crouch, the President of the conference and toastmaster of the previous evening, presided. Elections to fill vacant offices took place. Clarence Whattaker of Bristol was elected vice-president of the conference and Swan Haworth of Knoxville was elected secretary.

A solo by Mr. Roehart, of Maryville College, followed the business meeting, after which Mr. Barnett took charge of the devotional services.

Mr. Barnett began a very helpful series of short talks, with which he opened each of the remainder of the meetings of the conference. After emphasizing the importance of Christian leaders in the high school, Mr. Barnett entered into a discussion of the personal qualities that go into the life of a true leader.

The first of these qualities which he spoke of during the morning service, was Purity. The falseness of the "Devil's doctrine" of the necessity of a life of immortality was very vigorously attacked. He showed that to live the life which the Master intended we should live, it is absolutely essential that we have purity of mind and body. Put away impure thinking, make a record so clean that you are not ashamed to look back upon it. One who would do this, he concluded should have personal acquaintance with Christ through prayer.

At the conclusion of the devotions Dr. Wm. P. Stevenson, Pastor of Maryville College, was introduced.

Dr. Stevenson's impressive and helpful address was entitled "Brains". In beginning, he explained that his subject stood for two things, namely, "an enlightened vision, and a capable leadership." To gain one and be fitted for the other, he declared, is our absorbing task. The instinct toward right in the average man needs vision, which is supplied by those of trained minds who receive guidance from on high. The test of the value of any man's education, said the speaker, is whether he is pushed along by public opinion or chooses for himself.

The quality of leadership, we were told, is a gift. However, by education we train the original faculties with which we have been endowed. Everywhere the need of leaders, of men of brains, is manifest. Dwelling at length on this fact, in conclusion, Dr. Stevenson depicted in a very striking manner this need in politics, in education, and in religion.

The first of the discussion groups followed Dr. Stevenson's address. In these "labratory sessions" questions of very practical bearing were discussed. The following, as examples, were taken from this session. "What can the Hi Y Club contribute to the scholarship standards of your school? What can the Hi Y Club do to encourage its members to go to college? How can the Hi Y Club stimulate intellectual standards outside of regular school work?" These queries met a ready ersponse, and many new ideas and suggestions were jotted down in notebooks to be "tried out" back home.

The other speaker of the morning was Mr. Morgan, Headmaster of the Morgan School. The title of Mr. Morgan's address was "comradship", which, he told in opening would be taken to mean the comradship of men and books.

Another title which he suggested was "Why I read the Bible". The successful life, said Mr. Morgan, is the life that meets the rigid standards of two worlds. He described the two classes of men who attain to only a part of this standard. The first, the men who meet or attempt to meet the demands of the other world while ignoring the demands of this; and second, those who think of this world wholly to the exclusion of the other. There are three fundamental questions which come to every man, and which men and books may answer. The first of these questions is "Who am I?" We know tnat whatever man is, that I am as may be. The only book that tells us what men are is the Bible. From it, and from the study of other men the answer to the question comes, "I am the master of the universe."

The second question is, "Where am I going?" We learn that we may go either to Heaven or to Hell. We must choose. God reveals the way to us.

The last question is, "Who is God?" In answer we learn that He is One who cares for us.

Mr. Morgan's talk was spiced with humor throughout and held the attention of the boys perfectly. Aside from the fact that it was very interesting, one was impressed with its value in solving the many problems which confront everyone, and in particular, the boys of the age of those who heard him.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON

The conference was opened Saturday afternoon by Mr. Barnett, who made the second of his talks on the personal charactistics of leadership. "Honesty" was the theme this time. He showed that leadership based on dishonesty has always failed. Gambling, betting, and cheating at examinations are forms of dishonesty and alter one's sense of moral values.

The dishonor of these things, he said, is an insult to God himself, and they call for a new standard of honor which must be carried back to the high schools.

The speaker of the afternoon was Col. Massey, commandant of the Massey Military School. Col. Massey spoke on "Physical Fitness and Self-control." His address was an inspiration for stronger manhood and worth-while work. He reminded us that the world has always been one of strength and achievement, and told of the many tasks that lie before us now. The need of the world, its sick, its unconverted,—all these call for aid. Greatest of all is the task of saving men from their sin.

(Conintued from page four)

Because of this he appealed to the boys that they live lives which would make them fit and able to meet these duties.

The usual discussion group followed Col. Massey's address. The social standard of the high schools and the ability of the Hi Y Club to raise them was dealt with.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON RECREATION

After the meeting of Saturday afternoon all the conference boys adjourned to the gymnasium where they were subject to the wise and able conductor, John Hendrick. While the Basket Ball boys were donning their uniforms the remainder of the boys were divided into teams, and a variety of games were played—such as, an old country ball contest by the use of the indoor baseball; a racing contest; a hop-scotch contest; a life made wheel-barrow race; rolling ball contest; the ring and the circling shoe contest and a snappy two round bout. Following these series of games there was played two lively games of basket ball; the first game was between the Knoxville delgation and Lafollette High. In this game the teams were evenly matched and there was some good team work shown on both sides, but Lafollette High School boys showed their dexterity by making the last goal in the last minute of the closing half. The score being 13-12 in favor of Lafollette High.

The last game was between the Copper Hill High School and Jellico High School. These teams were well matched and during both halves some good teamwork was shown on both sides, but more so on the Jellico side. Jellico High displayed their skill by scoring an extra goal in the closing minute of the last half. The score being 15-12 in favor of Jellico.

Following the basket ball games the boys retired to the swimming pool where they all enjoyed a good swim.

SATURDAY EVENING

Mr. Barnett, in the devotional exercises, again stressed the importance of prayer, and took up another element in the life of a good leader, that of "Courage". He cited some instances of courage on fields of battle and in places of physical danger that are worthy of much commendation. But what the world needs most of all in the leaders of today is moral courage. He told of many courageous deeds, made so by the moral principle involved, showing that such acts were justified by the later history of the persons concerned. God needs boys who, at the very beginning of their careers, have the courage to stand ever true to their convictions, even under the hardest circumstances. Victory can be gained, hardships overcome, success accomplished, only thru courage. Jesus Christ is the only source of courage. So it behooves us to take Christ into our lives; for then only can we hope for courage to LIVE.

Mr. Barker, of Maryville College, sang a solo: "We've a Story to Tell to The Nations."

The address of the evening, "The World Outlook", was delivered by Mr.O. R. Magill, who has done Y. M. C. A. work in China for several years past. Mr. Magill made an elegant plea for our aid in giving the world, especially the Orient, the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The students of China, with whom the speaker has been doing missionary work under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., are willing, even anxious to do their part in spreading the Gospel. They are awaking to the demands of the new age, and can see where China is falling far short in keeping up her end of the line. And they have a desire to do their part in the upbuilding of China. The country is about to be ushered into a new day, as is shown by these three facts. First, the young men of China are becoming more patriotic and loyal to the support of their country. Second, a great philanthropist, realizing the needs of China and her apparent carelessness concerning it, has erected some marble shafts in Peking, with inscriptions showing the feelings of the people as a whole. One of the shafts bears the motto: "Shame". Third, an ex-president of China, though not a Christian himself, has stated that "China Needs Religion."

The speaker told of a student conference held for ten days in an old Chinese temple. The theme of the conference was: "Jesus Christ, the only hope of China today." China has no longer an open door. The door is off its hinges, and there is no possibility of its being shut. China stretches out her hands to the world to bring her Christianity. It is our great opportunity to help. And we can help most by giving our personal service, if possible, our money, and last but by no means least, our prayers. Thus can we hope to give China a chance to become one of the great powers of the world. Will we do our part?

After the address, Mr. Curry made what he called a double-barrelled propsition. First, he plead that those present would consider seriously the work of a missionary as a calling. The world needs men; and as the students of today are to be the men of tomorrow, it is our duty to begin now to prepare ourselves for a great service. The second propsition was this: That the different delegations present get together and determine what they could give to the support of "Y" work. Five delegations reported a total subscription of four hundred fifty dollars. The other delegations did not turn in a report.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON

(By Delemo Beard—Religious Editor)

Mr. Barnett, conducting the final devotional exercises of the conference dwelled on the fourth essential to any leadership—"Unselfishness."

It does not matter how good a football, basketball, or baseball player you may be, or how good you may be in the classroom, you will not be influential to your classmates unless you are unselfish. It is not enough to be brilliant, to be clever, and to be able to put on big stunts without having the quality of unselfishness. You cannot substitute anything for real love and a desire to help others. The spirit of Napoleon is not the spirit of Jesus Christ.

The men who have made the greatest contributions to the world are the men who were big enough to give unselfish service to the world. There is no other pathway to greatness other than the pathway of unselfish service. You cannot be a Christian and live a selfish life. It was the secret of William Booth that he gave his life unselfishly to service for others. The law of greatness is the law of unselfishness.

Some things are impossible but it is possible for each one of you to open your life and let Jesus Christ come in and be the ruler instead of that big self you have, and then it will be possible for you to take back home with you a spirit that will be influential to all those about you.

The speaker then told the story of the college boy who kept the following motto tacked up in his room, "Willing to be Third." The boy did this because his mother had told him to be willing always to be third, putting Christ first, others second and himself third. In striking epitome, this is exactly what Jesus did, and this is the essence also of the Master's teaching for those who would follow after Him. The "mind which was in Christ Jesus" led him to consider first and always the will of God the Father. then the need and condition of those to whom He was sent, His own welfare always receiving last consideration.

Concluding, the speaker told the story of a Japanese who made the remark that if the Christians love Christ as the Japanese love their emperor it will not be long before Christianity is the world religion.

"Jesus Christ is worthy of your admonition and may you have a vision of Him so that you may carry an influential life back with you. My prayer is for you—that you all may live unslefish lives."

Dr. Glasgow, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Knoxville, giving the final address to the conference of Hi Y fellows, used as his theme "What a Christian's life can be". His scripture lesson was a part of three verses found in three differnt parts of the Acts. Acts 9:6—"Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" Acts 9:16—"For I will shew him how great things he must suffer for my name's sake." Acts 26:19—"I was not disobedient to the Heavenly vision."

Paul was at first strong against Christ with great ambitions and a position in life to carry out his ambitions, but when Christ transformed him and he found out God's plan for his life, all his ambitions, his energies, and his strength began for Christ, and his life began to be a success. Pharaoh was a mighty man in his day, but was without God's plan in his life, and now his empire has crumbled and we see no more of it, but Moses, who was just a babe found among the willows by Pharaoh's daughter, and who took God's plan for his life, still lives and influences our lives today. The first step is: "What wilt thou have me to do?" and to this Christ answers: "I will shew him how great things he must suffer for my name's sake." If you are going to follow the Lord Christ it will cost you something. The speaker using a personal illustration said that not many years ago he was just like many of us with great ambitions, and a will at least to try to carry them out, but he soon found that he could not go into business and make a success of it and face Christ alone. He had to sacrifice his ambitions for the will of God.

The third step is: "O king Agrippa, I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision." Many men see the heavenly vision but side-step and slight it. It is this heavenly vision that holds a man true, and it is his obedience to it that gives him power and strength.

The speaker brought the theme closer home by illustrating the three "Looks" on life. The first was the "outlook", and to Christ the outlook on life was like sheep with their fleece torn and bleeding. Look out on the world and what does it mean to you? Some one looked upon London as a great city for plunder—his "Outlook" on life. Do you look upon life as an opportunity to get or to give?

Another "Look" on life is the "Inlook", and when Christ looked on the inside He said: "I lay down my life." Everyone of you will reach a place when you will take a look within and reflect, and the speaker added: "I am trying to forewarn you so that that look may be one of joy."

The third of these "Looks" is the "Uplook", and the Psalmist said: I delight to do thy will, O my God." Can we look up to God and repeat the latter with the Psalmist?

Strive to say later in life when you look God in the face, I have not been disobedient to the heavenly vision.

RESULTS OF CONFERENCE

It was not without some misgivings that the College Y took over the responsibility of the entertainment of the Hi Y Conference. The Association had never in its past history attempted a similar task, except possibly the Basket Ball Tournament and the State Student Volunteer Conference of last year. Neither of these however came at a time when most of the students were absent.

The loyal cooperation of the committees in particular, and of the

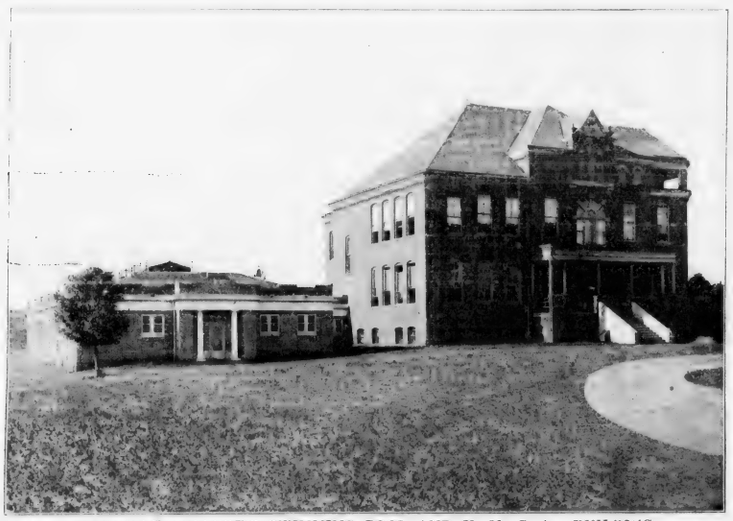
WHAT THE "Y" MEANS TO MARYVILLE COLLEGE

The President of The Local Y. M. C. A. Tells of Advantage of Being a Member of "Y".



Have you ever stopped to consider that the "Y" is not an association of "dead heads" but one of real live men. If you say it is a dead head organization then you condemn yourself, for on "College Hill" you are the "Y". It is your "Y" and the "Y" stands for you. If the "Y" is a dead head organization, it is because you are a "dead head" and don't make it a live organization. However, this is only a supposition to be proved. According to the Association Men, the tests for a good Y. M. C. A. which its officers "should from time to time apply" are as follows:

1. Does it effect the religious attitude of the College itself?
2. Could the present work be carried on by other organizations?
3. Are more men thinking of giving their lives to Christian callings?
4. Are an increasing number of the leaders keeping morning watch?
5. Are leaders coming to be known as those to whom men in trouble can go?
6. Can you have prayer with the whole cabinet?
7. Are foreign students surrounded with friendly contagious influence?
8. Do Christian men on the campus help make the whole college atmosphere really Christian?

These are the "questionaire tests" that determinte whether the Association is a success or a failure. But candidly, these questions are questions upon which much thought should be placed. Does the "Y" really effect the religious attitude of the "Hill" and do Christian men on the campus help make the whole College atmosphere really Christian? Whot would you say to that? We know that the "Y" does measure up to these standards, if it did not, or does not, then we are disappointed in ourselves, because the organization is ourselves and we do not measure up to the test.

What is the purpose of our "Y"? It is to make "College Hill" fit for Jesus Christ, to promote in ourselves good clean moral bodies and strong healthy spiritual lives, so that we might not be ashamed if Jesus should suddenly come among us. Then too, we must keep fit for life aside from the "Hill" as well, and that's where the fight comes in. It is not hard to keep fit here on the "Hill' but it does take a man—a real sure 'nuff man.

We are offering you every day something that is essential in helping you to keep fit. Besides offering you clean, whole-hearted amusements that can be had at the reading rooms in form of books, magazines, games and music, we offer you the real solid things of life in our devotional meetings in our mission classes, in our Bible classes and in our fellowship meetings at social gatherings. Sure that's what we're here for, to help the other fellow, to be on the square; to help fulfill the needs of the future, and that is what we want to do. We can do it too! Let's stick together on this proposition and make our "Y" a bigger and better "Y". It can be improved, but improvement lies in you, because it is you who is the "Y". Come around and see us, make yourself at home and be a regular fellow, giving us your opinions. We want to be useful and we want you to be useful. Come on! Help us out. Give yourself to helping the other fellow, it will mean more to you in the end and you'll be the better for it.

HANDY HANDYBOOK

To Be Published Under Auspices of Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.

(By Stanley C. Lange—Exchange Editor)

I challenge anyone, young or old, weak or strong, good looking or otherwise, to find a worthy substitute for a real, handy, hand book. Fellows, think what it means to be able to reach into your jeans, vest pocket, or coat pocket, and draw forth a World Almanac in miniature form. When some "would be" sport tries to feed you some incorrect dope on athletic records, refute his arguments instantaneously by citing the official record of world athletic records as contained in the Maryville Handy Hand Book. Girls would you appreciate a fore-knowledge of "moonshine" events in order that you might either reject or accept the ardent invitation of a Beau Brummel, if so consult your Handy, Hand Book. Remember girls, "forewarned is forearmed."

To mention all the niceties and conveniences which this hand book is to contain would be an overwhelming task. Suffice it to mention a few. There will be a complete record of all moonshine events for the ensuing year, a generous space for the names and residences of friends (Montgomery suggests 25 pages be allotted for this purpose), a page on which to make a memorandum of your program of studies, a space provided exclusively for a record of "cuts", and many other new and novel features which will be disclosed when the book itself appears.

The committee realizes the enormous task which lies before it and solicits your hearty cooperation. Remember, gentle readers, its your handbook, each and every new and prospective student of Maryville will be the recipient of one, you may be asked in the near future to contribute something to the success of this handy-hand book. If so please do so with that altruistic, cooperative spirit which is a predominant characteristic in dear old Maryville. If you have anything to contribute voluntarily please give it to any of the committeemen named, Janet Ensign, Sam Franklin, Bennet Montgomery or the writer.

The committee can make no predictions as to when the book will appear, but remember "now is the accepted time" to hand in handy articles for the handy hand book, in order that they may be compiled as quickly as possible.

THURS. MORNING ADDRESS TO STUDENTS BY COLLEGE PASTOR

For the first Thursday morning of the New Year Dr. Stevenson, after reading First Peter the second chapter, gave a receipt to be a gentleman and some benefits of being a gentleman.

It is true the term "gentleman" is not found in the words of the Bible, but the qualities are. To be a gentleman does not depend upon your bank account, birth, training, or education; but upon courage, gentleness, patience, longsuffering, humility, and character.

The word "gentleman" is more binding than all the documents in the world. The story of Fox and his debtor well illustrates this. When the man who was debtor to Fox received a large amount of money, more than enough to pay Fox, he was hailed by Fox who presented a note and asked for payment. "Not yet" said the debtor, "for I must pay those who do not have my note first". The story ends with Fox tearing up the note. This shows the strength and sanctity of a gentleman's agreement. Since Christ is a gentleman and we want to be gentlemen, should we not trust Him as gentlemen trust in honor of one another? Will we ask God for a bond? We have the pledge as from a gentleman.

Let us all resolve this New Year to be gentlemen and ladies with one another and with God.

Owing to the unusual brightness of this year's Senior Class, especially in theism, Dr. Gillingham was compelled to get a complete set of new shades for his class room.

REPORT OF FINDINGS COMMITTEE

Committee Recommends Activities For Coming Year.

The Findings Committee desires to make the following approvals and recommendations:

1. Place of Conference: The idea of holding the Conference is heartily approved because it has given us the chance to get better acquainted with the boys from other towns, to pay closer attention to the Conference program and to have a better time in general.

2. The plan of combining inspirational talks with the practical discussions is approved because it has given us not only a vision of the service which we can render but has combined that vision with methods of doing the work.

3. Recommendations: The Committee recommends that the following sorts of activities should be emphasized during the year:

1. That in schools where there is no good library of magazines, the Hi Y club should raise money and subscribe for several such magazines which can be used by all boys in the Hi School.

2. That the Hi Y club shall endeavor to have an Honor System inaugurated in each school.

3. That a Clean School Campaign, which will endeavor to enlist every boy in school in a pledge to stand for Clean Speech, Clean Athletics and Clean Scholarship, shall be held in every school.

4. That such a Clean School Campaign shall be followed by an effort to enlist larger numbers of boys in the Bible Study Discussion groups.

5. That the larger Hi schools should assume the responsibility for organizing Hi Y clubs in the other Hi schools of their own counties.

6. That a determined effort shall be made to have all Hi school good times ruled by a fine Hi Y spirit.

7. That the Hi Y club shall work hard to get Grammar school boys interested in High School, and to get High School boys interested in going to College.

8. That every Hi Y member get and wear a Hi Y pin.

Signed for the Committee,
James H. Robison, Bristol,
Chairman.

PARAGRAPH TAKEN FROM "THE SOUL OF AMERICA"

In the book by Charles L. Thompson, D. D. entitled The Soul of America, which is a lucid, clearly defined statement of what has been done on the North American continent, in the Home Mission field by the Presbyterian Church, appears the following paragraph:

Rev. Isaac Anderson, D. D. The name of a hero who sought a daring way to increase the number of missionaries for the West must be recorded. The Rev. Isaac Anderson, D. D., was a missionary pioneer to eastern Tennessee. The religious destitution appalled him. Taking a long journey to seven-year-old Princeton he pleaded for help. But the students there had no vision. He went home discouraged but not dismayed. If eastern boys would not go West he would raise them up on the field. He founded at Maryville "The Southern and Western Theological Seminary". That school of the prophets has not much mention in modern Christian literature; but that pioneer educator had the joy of seeing a hundred and fifty of the graduates of his school enter the Presbyterian ministry.

It is said The Edinsburg Review was founded "on a little oat meal". There was not much more than oat meal in the founding of that western seminary. It is a question whether later richer institutions can present a better record. Within those humble halls, and by the one-man faculty, were trained men who moulded a growing empire when the material was plastic.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON RESOLUTIONS.

Extends Thanks For Cooperation of M. C. Men.

WHEREAS: The authorities of Maryville College, thru the President, Dr. S. T. Wilson, as represented by Dr. McMurray, Professor Hunter, and Professor Hyden, have been most generous in granting to the Second Annual Eastern Tennessee Older Boys' Conference, the use of the buildings and equipment of the College, and

Whereas: The College Y. M. C. A. men, especially Mr. Forrest Brown, Mr. Roy Buffat, Mr. John Hendrick, Mr. M. T. Magill and Mr. Sam Franklin have rendered such completely efficient service in making preliminary arrangements for the conference, in carrying thru the splendidly enjoyable social program on New Year's Eve, in directing the recreational period on Saturday afternoon and in giving fine publicity to the whole conference, and

WHEREAS: Dr. Inzer, Dr. Stevenson, Prof. Morgan, Col. Massey, Mr. O. R. Magill and Dr. Glasgow have rendered us an invaluable service by coming to inspire us with great messages, and

WHEREAS: Mr. Fred T. Barnett, of Vanderbilt University, has given us great personal help in the conducting of our devotional periods, now therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED that we extend to each of these institutions and men our hearty thanks for the complete co-operation which has made possible to us the new visions of service to our fellows which we shall carry back to our homes from this conference.

Signed for the Committee,
Millard Hughes, Jellico, Chairman.

THE SATISFACTION OF THE CONFERENCE

(By Mr. Kerr, State Boys' Work Secretary)

In everything which may be said about the satisfactions of this conference, it must be borne in mind that this is but the second of such conferences which have been held in the eastern section of the state. The first conference was held at Knoxville in 1919. It should also be remembered that there were but six towns and cities in which there were full fledged Hi Y clubs at the time of last year's conference, and further that this year's conference was distinctly a Hi Y conference, whereas, last year there were present several delegations from some of the prep schools as well.

The perfect co-operation which was given the State Committee of the Y. M. C. A. by the Faculty and College Y. M. C. A. was a source of real gratification. The men who represented Faculty and College "Y" took all suggestions as commands and forthwith carried them out in a most practical manner.

Securing entertainment for conference delegates is always a terrific strain upon those in charge of the conference. That worry was entirely averted by using the College dormitories and dining hall for the entertainment of delegates. The use of a bit of system enabled us to take care of seventy-five delegates, assign them their rooms and get them nicely located within three quarters of an hour after they had arrived. And this was the second source of satisfaction.

The quality of the speakers and the virility of their messages as well as the fact that every person scheduled to appear on the program as a special speaker was right on hand when time came for his contribution to the conference, was a third source of gratification. It is to be sincerely regretted that Charles Klinger, the popular Secretary of last year's conference, was unable to be present, but we owe our thanks to Knoxville for supplying such a clever substitute as Swan Haworth proved to be.

And finally, two other things stand out as reasons for congratulations: The keen interest in the practical side of the program, as evidenced in the report of the Findings Committee, and the resolve of the delegates to this conference to see to it that there are two hundred delegates at the one which will be held next year.

faculty committee made the arrangements comparatively easy.

The College Y benefited from the conference in the fine fellowship engendered, in the spirit of cooperation manifested, and in a practical bit of service rendered to younger boys.

To any man present at the Sunday afternoon session, addressed by Dr. Glasgow, there is no doubt as to the results on the boys. The animated faces, the forceful testimonies of renewed determination to make Christ count for more back at school, the personal pledges and reconsecrations all bore evidence that Christ had been in the midst of the sessions. On Friday night, Dr. Inzler presented the vision of a new world in a new era; Saturday morning and afternoon, the speakers dwelt on the necessity of "Brains", "Comradeship", and "Physical Vigor and Self-Control" in this new world. Saturday night, Mr. Magill presented the needs of other boys under-privileged in foreign lands. Sunday afternoon the call came with the results so pleasing. The high tone of the conference was of itself pleasing. It was indeed a "world outlook". If all the schools could catch that vision, the next generation would be awake to the "Dawn" that is breaking.

Let not high noon find us still asleep! Arise, it is day. There is work for you to do. Find it! Do it!

BATES PRIZE CONTEST

According to the change in the conditions of the Bates Prize in Oratory, this year the men of the Classes of 1921 and 1922 are to compete for the prize. These men are urged not to let the time slip by until too late to get an oration ready for entering the contest.

The subjects are posted in the College Bulletin Board. The manuscripts are not to exceed 1500 words. They are to be presented at the President's office on or before Tuesday, April 5, 1921. Six typewritten copies of each oration must be submitted, five signed with a nom de plume and one unsigned. The manuscripts are to be accompanied by a sealed envelope containing the contestant's name and his chosen nom de plume.

This contest should call forth the best effort of the men of the two classes. Remember no one is to profit by this contest in the degree that the men will who enter it.

THETA EPSILON

Theta met Saturday night of course. There's nothing unusual about that; no more than the ringing of the rising bell, but there is something unusual in the varied talent displayed on that night, as was agreed by all who heard the following program:

Cello Solo - - Madeline Heizenger
Reading - - - Minnie Hamilton
Piano Solo - - Nannette Walker
Composition (written by a school boy) - - - Bergetha Claycomb
Piano Duet - - - - White Sisters
New Year Resolutions - Viola Smith
Poems - - - - - - - Helen Ott
Patty's Courtin' - - Gladys Nave
- - - - Margaret Newell

Yes, it was all good but as we listened to Minnie Hamilton representing a young black lassie telling her friend Mahalah about Evelina's weddin' over the phone, we knew we could not have heard a better example of the dialect of the colored race, for Minnie is from down in "Gawgia" herself; and then when we heard Madeline Heizenger we felt we were fortunate indeed.

We also believe that we can safely wager that some of the resolutions drawn up by old as well as new members will not, as in the usual way of new year resolutions, be broken, as for example, Elsie Dawson has resolved, "To conquer her shyness and say at least two sentences during meals" and Sidney Sherod, "To devote more time to study and less time to curling her hair". Many others just as worthy were read.

We are grateful not only for the ability displayed by participants of these enjoyable programs, but also we are grateful to "Peg" Huston our program secretary for her diligent search for those who possess said ability. Theta programs are always a source of surprise and pleasure. Why miss them?

At a recent religious census taken among 2,000 students at the University of Chicago by the Board of Christian Union, it was revealed that among the 2,000 there was only one atheist, only two agnostics, and that more men go to church than women. —Crimson Rambler

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

In the course of a recent test, the pupils were asked to name five of Shakespeare's plays. Among the titles received were these: "King Liar", "A Merchant of Venus", "Old Fellow", "McBeth", "Omelet." —Univ. of Dayton Exponent.

Only one in forty of the Freshman class at the University of Texas was found to be physically defective, announced university physicians after completing physical examinations of the new students. This percentage was declared to be unusually low. —Crescent

ATHENIAN MIDWINTER ACCLAIMED GREAT SUCCESS IN EVERY RESPECT

DAVID NOBLE AND WILLIAM JESTER TAKE LEADING PARTS IN THE "FORTUNE HUNTER"; FAIR FEMININE CHARACTERS DRAW FORTH HIGHEST PRAISE FROM ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE.

An eager, expectant throng was at the Chapel Monday night, for it was reported that the Athenians were to present their annual midwinter and furthermore that eminent authorities had pronounced that "it is one of the best chosen amateur casts ever selected."

Every minute from the first drawing of the curtains to the final scene where Mr. Graham held the umbrella over the happy lovers who did not even know that it was raining, was ample proof that this statement was correct.

Who but David Noble could have taken the difficult character of Nathaniel Duncan and have portrayed him with such absolute veracity in all his changing moods? A discouraged, down-and-out who hated work—hated it so much that he fell in with Henry Kellogg's plan, though he had the grace to ask God's pity on the future Mrs. Duncan,—then the man who was glad to be a drug store clerk and work for nothing, even paying off the owner's debts. He felt that to abide by the rules would be torment, and yet he arrived at the place where smoking made him sick; he forgot to swear and could find comfort only at church. Indeed, the real Nat Duncan lived before a thrilled and admiring audience Monday night.

He was ably supported by the other members of the cast. Roy McCall as Henry Kellogg was indeed a very convincing young financier who, when it came to work, just ate it up. Cazwell Johnstone as Burnham the promoter was exactly what every one thought such a character would be. Bert Jody and Verton Queener Kellogg's friends were debonair young aristocrats of the first rank. Was Roscoe Watkins once a butler? How else did he so thoroughly learn Robbin's duties? David Heydenberk was a splendid speciman of New York newsboy and an equally efficient village errand boy.

Edward Cornelius certainly starred as the small town druggist who was always inventing something,—so kind and generous and yet he could not make money. At least, not until Nat "came from heaven" and made some for him.

Delemo Beard was a typical, close-fisted, money loving, hard-hearted old banker. (Who'd have thought it of Delemo?) While as for Tom Vance the henpecked sheriff—he feared nothing but his wife. Hugh Clabough as the enterprising young salesman would have recommended himself to any firm, and Floyd Watt the tailor was a typical product of the small town. Lee Herndon of chemical fame as Hi the old inhabitant was the exact counterpart of those aristocrats of the country store whom we have all seen.

Poor Tracey Tanner (Charles Wathen)! He learned all the rules and won his lady love, the entrancing Angie (J. Rod Armstrong), and yet he was interrupted exactly five times when he was valiantly trying to propose. James M. Brown as the bank clerk was so splendid a dresser, so ardent a lover and so good a bluffer, that he at last won Josie, the heiress (Virgil McClung). How vampish she was and how beautiful! But Betty Graham (William Jester) was so sweet and charming and altogether lovely, that no wonder Nat fell in love with her. The girls' parts were so well taken that the audience feared Bainonians had been borrowed for the occasion—, but investigation proved that they were the aforesaid loyal Athenians.

Mrs. West and Miss Bewley are to be congratulated on their coaching, for the entire cast from David Noble to David Heydenberk presented a play which marks an epoch in Maryville history.

But not only was a thrilling play given but a splendid musical program as well. The orchestra was out full force and surpassed all foreign productions in the quality of its music—nor was that all. The College quartette, or it might with equal propriety be called the Athenian quartette sang "Little Cotton Dolly" in a most pleasing way. Carl Moor and Harry Bannister played "The Sextette from Lucia", as a cornet duet. It was a real musical treat. Percy Buchanan sang "Duna", he was encored again and again. J. Alvin Keen rendered a beautiful violin solo. He too received many encores; and music lovers are looking forward anxiously to his next appearance in solo work. Athenian is fortunate in possessing such talent.

The members of the Athenian Literary Society and indeed the entire student body are very grateful to those who made such an evening's pleasure possible. Chief among them are: Freeman Green, Owen Henderson, Lee Roy Middleton, Forrest Brown and Herrick Arnold. Not only are they, the cast and Athenian to be congratulated, but the College is to be congratulated on possessing men of such ability.

"PRIVILEGES OF SERVICE" DISCUSSED AT Y. W. C. A.

The Junior Class had charge of Y. W. C. A. Sunday afternoon. Miss Jane Waller played a piano solo. The subject was divided into seven heads and short, helpful talks were given by various members of the class on the following topics:

S-trength, Laura Stevens
E-xperience, Ethel Doctor
R-ecreation, Stella McCall
V-oices, Elizabeth Moore
I-ntellect, Janet Ensign
C-haracter, Anna Culberton
E-ntire Self, Bernice Jones.

The last speaker summed up all these preceding thoughts and showed in addition that real service is dependent on all these attributes.

DR. WEATHERFORD TO COME TO MARYVILLE

The Y. M. C. A. announces that Dr. W. D. Weatherford, President of the Southern College of Y. M. C. A. and formerly Executive Secretary of the Blue Ridge Association, will speak at Maryville on March 6. Dr. Weatherford is the author of several books, a life-long Y. M. C. A. worker, and a man who will never be forgotten by those who become acquainted with him. Students who have heard him speak at the Blue Ridge Conferences are looking forward to his visit with much pleasure.

Nowadays as the politician sees her: "A rag, a vote, a hank of hair."

AT LAST!

The "House of Rimmon" will be presented next Monday evening by the Theta Epsilon Literary Society. An announcement of this entertainment was made in the Echo two weeks ago, but, on account of the failure of the costumes to arrive, the play was postponed indefinitely. The costumes have arrived and the play will certainly be presented next Monday evening—unless the Chapel burns down, or the leading lady dies, or some other unforeseen tragedy befalls the "House of Rimmon."

The admission will be twenty-five cents, and the hour eight o'clock.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING

Rev. French Wampler, pastor of the Southern Methodist Church of Maryville, led another interesting and helpful Y. M. C. A. meeting last Sunday afternoon. Taking as the scripture lesson the story of Christ's appearance to the two friends who were on their way from Jerusalem to Emmaus. Mr. Wampler spoke of the importance of our college work, of the need of Christ's presence with us as we perform it, and of two dangers which threaten the work of every college student.

He emphasized the importance of spending leisure time in the right way, for it is at this time that our temptations are often the strongest. "The Devil does not come to us while we are busy". We should learn to spend some time apart from others. "We are not alone when in the company of good thoughts."

Mr. Wampler warned his hearers against the lack of energy, the "tired feeling" which often tempts us to neglect our duties. Another menace to our work is discouragement. "Stay with a hard job", advised the speaker. "If you fail once try again." He showed how men have "came back" and succeeded in the face of the greatest difficulties and discouragements.

In conclusion, Mr. Wampler reminded us that "not failure, but low aim, is crime." The most unworthy thing a man can do is to set out to accomplish only an ordinary thing. And, just as the two men, walking along the dusty highway found themselves in the presence of the Great Companion, so we, in the toil and hardships of life can always have Him with us.

Next Sunday Mr. Pat Quinn, a well-known young lawyer of Maryville and a former student of the College, will lead the "Y" meeting. A worth-while meeting is in store.

COLEMAN—MATTHEWS

Mr. Frank Coleman and Miss Mary Matthews were married at the home of the bride in Vandalia, Mo. on January 19. Mrs. Coleman was a student of Maryville College during the years 1913 to 1915, and Mr. Coleman is a resident of Maryville. Both are well known and have many friends in M. C. Mr. Coleman is connected with the firm, Ellis-Proffitt Co. The congratulations and best wishes of the faculty and students of M. C. are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Coleman.

STUNG

The train had stopped at a small country station. After a few minutes the conductor, with his hand on the signal cord, yelled out, "All ready back there?"

A musical feminine voice rang out at the rear end of the car, "Wait till I get my clothes on."

There was a sudden rustling throughout the car as all eyes were turned expectantly towards the rear.

A lady got on with a basket of clothes.

SLOW GAME ENDS IN HIGHLANDERS' VICTORY

Rough and Free-for-All Playing Feature First Basketball Game With Tusculum.

Co-eds' Game With Carson-Newman Postponed.

To be sure that the Maryville Rooters had not lost the volume of voice displayed last year on occasions similar to the one of last Friday night, the right honorable "Checko" Minarik led the try-out cheer of welcome to the visitors who had to hear, for the volume and pep was still living. "Victory" and "How-we-How" yells still rang in the air as the competing teams placed themselves ready for action in response to the referee's whistle.

It seemed almost impossible to the most of the spectators that such a whopper as Register, who played guard for the visitors, could manage to get over the court with such ease and weighty effect. However, the latter performance was not visibly so imposible because he made his weight count. It looked as though Cotton was going to be smothered to death while concealed under the anatomy of such a basket ball tosser, but thanks to Register's rolly-polly movement our guard was saved. Register played his part well and made his presence felt in more ways than one. His teammates were Dugger and Ramsey (later relieved by Norton) as forwards, Lawson tipped the ball at Center against McGinley, Maryville's man. Sturm played guard for the visitors while he and the rest of the five were being critically surveyed from the sideline by Coach Doak. Doak's men fought hard but lost to Maryville by a count of 21 to 28.

Doubtful rumor had it that the team would not be as strong as the first team, due to the fact that two or three of the brightest prospects had been eliminated or otherwise refrained from donning the abbreviated pants and jerseys usually worn by the basket ball tossers. But sister rumor, mostly as usual, had the unruly member working overtime. With the exception of Jimmy Hendrick, who appeared in the latter part of the game as a Tusculumite forward, the M. C. five appeared as they were slated in the first contest of the season.

"Fellows, a job awaits you—watch your man—defensive playing—break loose—keep 'em covered—, and play fair, remembering that we must win." These are a few charges overheard as Coach Feeman instructed his men before the game, and I believe that they had weight on the squad.

Care-free shooting for the goal was not practiced to any great extent because the guarding of both teams was very effective. McMurray, McGinley, Delozier, Cotton, and John Hendrick all played a good game and kept pace with their opponents in whatever style of playing was offered. Although Hendrick and McMurray sacked about twelve points each, and McGinley and Cotton the remainder, it does not mean that Delozier or any other member of the Maryville squad did not play the game. If you shower your cheers upon the man who "puts" the ball and ignore the man or men who made it possible for the goal to be made you are urging individual work and giving credit where it does not wholly belong.

Delozier played a steady, cool-headed game and made it possible for some of the most exciting and thrilling plays to be completed; McMurray showed extra good ability and agility in midair, often passing

DEATH CLAIMS MARYVILLE COLLEGE STUDENT

Hugh John Rodgers of Bonham, Texas Died in Knoxville Hospital.

Operation and Long Illiness Preceded Death.

Hugh John Rodgers, a brilliant young man of eighteen years, belonging to the Freshman Class died January the tenth, at nine forty-five a. m.

John was attacked by appendicitis November the eighth. He was taken to the College Hospital where he remained for a week. His mother, Mrs. Pickens Rodgers, on hearing of his illness came from her home in Bonham, Texas to the bedside of her sick boy. He seemingly recovered the attack in a few days. His mother urged that he should return home with her, but John wanted to finish his school work here and was permitted to stay.

He again began the pursuit of his studies. About the time his mother reached home John became seriously ill again, on Sunday morning, November twenty-first. He was taken to Fort Sanders Hospital at Knoxville and operated on for appendicitis in the evening at eight o'clock. He willingly submitted to the operation, but his case proved to be of a very serious nature. It was found that he had gangrenous appendicitis and his chance for life was about one in one hundred.

His mother and brother hurried to him. He gradually improved until it was thought he was out of danger. Then his many friends were startled by the news that he had double pneumonia, which held him in its powerful grip. Again his life was in the balance. With the aid of the best physicians and medical attention, he again had hopes of recovery. But the pneumonia failed to clear away until suddenly he became worse and passed away January tenth at nine forty-five a. m.

His sorrow-laden mother, who had faithfully remained at his bedside during his sickness, took his body to Bonham, Texas for burial.

John had many friends in Maryville College. He entered school here last September as a Freshman. He was a clean, Christian young man. His death was a shock to Maryville College.

The Echo extends the sympathy of the faculty and students of Maryville College to the bereaved family.

The Freshman Class has adopted the following resolutions:

WHEREAS: God, in His mercy and wisdom, has called to himself our beloved friend and class-mate, Hugh John Rodgers,

Be it Resolved: That the members of the Freshman Class extend heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved mother and brother;

Be it further Resolved: That the Class send a token of sympathy to his home.

And be it further Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to Mrs. Rodgers, a copy read to the student body, and a copy be printed in the Highland Echo.

Signed for the Class,
Lawrence Kennedy,
Hazel Bevan,
Sam Franklin, Jr.

George Howell, president of the College Y. M. C. A., and Forrest Brown, Secretary of the Association, leave Thursday for the State Y. M. C. A. Conference at Nashville. These delegates expect to return with many new ideas for "Y" work on the Hill. They will give their report at a Sunday afternoon meeting of the Y. M. C. A.

On account of the examination ghosts which continually haunt us at this time—even in our dreams—we have not a very lengthy line this week.

* * * *

It seems that Chapel visitors are rather scarce this winter. It does look as if somebody from somewhere would make his appearance every now and then to explode for an hour or two and consequently shorten the morning hours.

* * * *

It is noticed with a great deal of satisfaction that the dreaded epidemic which almost inevitably follows the Christmas holidays has failed to show up in Maryville College this year. When it is not measles it is mumps, chicken-pox, "flu", or some other such contagious malady. But we are proud to say that during the greater part of the past two weeks there has been no more than one patient in the College Hospital at a time. Here's hoping that we have not bragged too soon!

MISCELLANEOUS

Rev. William Arthur Freidinger, who graduated in the class of 1906, visited his Alma Mater for a few days this week, and made a short address to the students Wednesday morning. Rev. Freidinger is a missionary in Syria and is at present on a short furlough in this country.

Dr. J. V. Stevens of Lane Seminary was a visitor in Maryville during the first part of this week.

There is always three sides to every question: my side, your side, and the right side.

Mr.Charles Doughty of Knoxville visited his sister and attended the Athenian midwinter on last Monday.

Miss Anne Samsel of basket ball fame was on the Hill last week-end.

Red haired girls seem to stand the best chance of getting married. According to a certain English authority a red-haired old maid is practically unknown in England.

Miss Nellie McCampbell of the class of 1909 visited on the Hill this week.

Mr. Charles Edgeman, 1920, who was an assistant to the Treasurer of the College last fall, is in the employ of the J. Lutz Insurance Company of Knoxville.

A man's clothes reveal his taylor, a woman's herself.

When a man lends you his umbrella he is expressing Faith, Hope, and Charity in an exalted degree.

Mr. Watt, a member of the Senior Class, preached at Loudon last Sunday.

Mr. McGrath of the Sophomore class preached at Hendron's Chapel near Knoxville last Sunday. Mr. McGrath is filling the pulpits of four country churches in addition to carrying on his regular college work.

The many friends of "Bill" Montgomery, who was a student here last year, will be interested to learn that he is a violinist of the Glee Club at Wooster College, which he is now attending. The Glee Club recently made a ten day tour, spending three days in Washington City.

Dr. Barnes says that the reason we imitate slang expressions more readily than good language is because of our primitive instincts. Therefore, about two-thirds the instincts of most of us must surely be very primitive.

It is rumored that Gamble and Rice were disappointed on Monday evening. For further particulars consult them.

Miss Irma Shirley was the only "inmate" of the hospital during the first part of the week.

Fellows have been known to fall from grace in many instances, but if the word "for" be substituted for the italicized word, it is said that you will have David Friedman's condition expressed exactly.

It is noticed that "Army" is not singing "Sweet Adeline" as he did in former times.

Life is one darn thing after another. Love is two darn things after each other.

The End of a Perfect Day—he found that he had a tube of shaving cream in place of his tire cement and a nail hole in each of his back tires.

In ancient times men used to sing beneath their sweetheart's windows. The modern man gets better results by blowing his auto horn.

Luke McLuke says that many a young fellow who has a dozen college pennants on the walls of his room uses four s's to spell necessity.

What he meant to write was this, "Dearest: There are five pretty little windows in my room"—but he left the n out of windows.

The girl who used to exercise to improve her complexion now has a daughter who is afraid to sneeze for fear she'll blow it off.

The Maryville College Hospital is again without a nurse. Miss Dawson who was here in the fall was forced to stay at home with her mother on account of the ill health of Mrs. Dawson's father. An effort is being made to secure the services of Mrs. Gorman who served as nurse in our hospital for a few days during an emergency last fall.

THURSDAY MORNING SERVICE

We are not responsible for the faces we carry along with us. We cannot change the color of our eyes, width of our forehead, size of our mouth, or alter the shape of our chin; but we can change the potent influences on our face by the ideas we have, was the thought used by Dr. Stevenson by way of introduction Thursday morning. The world is dropping the thought of ancestry and holds each one of us responsible for his face and gives its approval or disapproval according to our character.

The speaker gave several helpful suggestions, the first of which was not to shut yourself up with books exclusively from other people. If you want to be of service to people you must go where they are. It is not so much the message you tell, but it is the message you carry that counts. Do not give yourself exclusively to just a few. Acquaint yourself with as many people as possible and be as one among them. You will rarely find anyone that is not your superior in some respects, and you can learn something from them.

Again the speaker suggested that we are not so much bestowing a favor as paying a debt. We are all debtors to humanity, for humanity has done more for us than we can or ever hope to return. Consider the things we have. They are given to us as tools are given to a workman, but not to do with as you please.

the ball from airy positions; McGinley manned the post of center as only tall guys can; Hendrick finished many well executed plays as one having experience; these all worked together and made it possible for the Orange and Garnet to be Victorious.

It was intended to have a double-header but on account of some small, "technical" misunderstanding or blockade, the game was cancelled and all had to content themselves by accepting the laddies' output for the time being, and live in hopes of seeing the lassies in action soon.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER

B. L. Glascock and Rev. W. E. Perry Address Band.

Maryville Volunteers have been privileged to hear some very inspiring addreses lately. We have been inspired not only to reach higher but to reach out and take hold of the practical things of life.

Mr. B. L. Glascock, Superintendent of the Aluminum Plant at Alcoa, spoke before the holidays on "Building Ships". We are all of us building ships of which Christ should be captain and ourselves helmsmen. The durability of our ship will depend on the materials—our outlook on life. The first important part of the structure is the keel. The superstructure of the vessel will hold together only as the keel is constructed.

More than that we must add a plank every day. We must be constructing continually. Our plans, the blue print, must visualize the whole structure before it is built. We build only on what we plan for. The plan of our ship will likewise depend on the purpose to which it is to be put. All depends on what we do today and how well we do it. Deeds, not words, count today.

The future is founded on the present. The salvation of the world depends on us today. We must consecrate our time, money, and life to the one goal of life—that of serving Christ. We must die unto ourselves. The supreme joy comes to that one who is in Christ and from whom Christ shines. Be busy in personal work. You will meet with no rebuffs if you take Christ with you. The hardest sinner is the moral man—he it is who is nearest to Hell. Be not like him.

REV. W. E. PERRY SPEAKS

Rev. W. E. Perry, who for the past nineteen years has been pastor of the Peoples' Tabernacle in Knoxville spoke at the first meeting after the holidays. His message was taken from Luke's account of the feeding of the five thousand.

We have Christ's command "Give ye them to eat". The Master was moved with compassion when the people murmured among themselves "How shall we be fed?" The same murmur and command comes today from many lands. What is necessary that we may be able to answer the call?

First, we should know the Lord. We must be born again. Our hearts must be full and overflowing with love and sympathy.

Again, to answer Christ's command, we must have power. Once when Christ returned from the mountain, He found the disciples attempting to cast out a demon from a man but unsuccessfully. They lacked the power. "Ye shall receive power after which the Holy Spirit will come upon you."

The third thing necessary to be able to answer the call is prayer. Dr. Perry told from his experience some wonderful stories of remarkably answers to prayer, to the common needs of life. Perseverance is none the less necessary.

Sudden and Subsequent Soliloquies of a Softhearted Spectator on a Snowy Day.

A fascinating crimson flush,
Where chilly blasts her piquant face
Have rudely bit. With lissome grace
She overcomes its sudden rush.
See that trim ankle as she trips!
That living hair that writhes and slips!
What pretty tempting parted lips!
(Must have a date with her right scon.)

Mirabile! her nose is blue,
Her face is mottled white with cold;
Disgusting how her hair is rolled,
See how it strings,—and what a hue!
What awkward reaching when she trips,
No grace when on the ice she slips.
What loose and poorly shapen lips.
(I had that date and she's a prune.)

IN APPRECIATION OF GIFTS FOR EUROPEAN FUND

What have I done in harmony with the Christmas Season? Yes, I have given so and so a piece of Jewelery; gave her this and that but in return I got these things. This is the usual Christmas talk. Yet it is entirely un-Christmaslike to give just because you expect something visual in return. True, the law of compensation even works in Christmas presents and the people who contributed to the European relief fund—clothes fund and money fund—really did something of which they should be proud.

Quite a sum of money and much in the line of clothes were contributed to the fund as a Christmas present to those students of Europe who have the ambition to go to school, yet are in dire need of things to wear and eat. Those students realize that a generation of people cannot neglect their education without a serious effect upon the world. The students of America realized it too when they contributed not only in our State but in every state of the Union.

The law still metes out its reason here. The students have given to a worthy cause—they will be repaid by a better world to live in.

THANKS

Extract from "Hi Y Announcer" published by Knoxville Hi Y Club, regarding the Conference: "Every student (College) seemed to feel that he had an especial responsibility to see that we had a good time.

"The rooms were very comfortable and the food was above the ordinary, it being both delicious and plentiful. We were especially attracted by the beautiful campus, which was a little town in itself.

"We enjoyed our stay and wish to assure the College authorities that we will remember it with pleasure."

THE MOTIVE AND AIM OF THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY

This is the first of a series of articles to be published in the Echo regarding the Foreign Missionary, his life work and purpose. The object is to give the reader a more general understanding of that phase of work and to clear up within his mind many of the growing misconceptions of the crusade of Christianity. The subject matter owes its form to Dr. A. J. Brown, author of "The Foreign Missionary" and "New Forces in Old China".

"Why do missionaries go forth?" What is their motive that they should be led to pass their lives among uncongenial groups of humanity far from home? There are three primary motives possibly: First, there is "The Soul's experience in Christ". Propogation is the law of all life, and a deep spiritual experience will give out to others. This internal motive led Paul to exclaim "Woe is me if I preach not the gospel!" Men who do not believe in missions usually indict their own spiritual experience—they have nothing to give.

A second primary reason is "the world's evident need of Christ". He who has gained knowledge useful to his fellowmen is under stern obligation to convey it to others. These others are our fellowmen throughout the world. The larger our vision the better we can see this need. To the ignorant, and to the self-centered there is no call of unselfishness, no call of service, not even at home. A world in sin, the wages of which is death, and a soul's experience yearning for expression sights this need, fulfills this need. He who has the light must show the way.

Motive and Aim of The Foreign Missionary

Again, we have the "Command of Christ". "Go ye therefore and teach all nations". "Ye shall be a witness unto Me—unto the uttermost parts of the earth". Christ's supreme thought was the evangelization of the world, and still is, for He is "the same yesterday, and today, and forever". He acknowledged no race, no caste, no bounds. His message to the Christian was centrifugal as well as centripetal; "Go ye"—"Come ye"—"His blood will I require at thine hand". If we believe in Christ we must believe in foreign missions. Belief means support.

In addition to the primary motives of missions, there are numerous secondary motives which play an important role. We may think of the philanthropic motive. The relief of suffering and ignorance throughout the heathen world is a worthy cause. The intellectual motive might be considered since much is added annually to our knowledge of geography, zoology, and history by the missionary. Many of the greatest missionaries have been those famous to the world as explorers. Commerce is largely aided by the missionary, he is the representative of a higher civilization. The articles of his household are duplicated by the natives. The missionary marks time by a clock: the business firms soon find a new and limitless market for their articles. Thus the missionary creates new demands and extends trade. No one is blind to the civilizing influences of this strange white man, Slavery, polygamy, cannibalism, child-marriage, infanticide, and other infamous practices give way before his presence. He inculcates and exemplifies social and civic virtues.

"THE HOUSE OF RIMMON", GRAND FINALE OF MIDWINTER SEASON

HENRY VAN DYKE'S CREA TION DRAMATIZED BY THETA EPSILONS; ACTING OF MISSES JEWEL STEVENS AND SUSAN CARSON, AND OTHERS OF CAST A CREDIT TO THEIR SOCIETY, TO MRS. WEST, AND TO THEMSELVES.

Is there not a proverb which says, "Hope deferred maketh the heart sick"—yes, but there's more to it and it reads, "But when the desire cometh it is the tree of life."

After an anxious waiting of two weeks, for the arrival of costumes, the hearts of Thetas were indeed sick, and there was nothing to do but to say that, "The House of Rimmon" would be postponed. At last however, the glad news came that they would arrive "today", and the news was confirmed by the arrival of said articles. To say the least their hearts were made lighter, and at last it is the tree of life to them, for "The House of Rimmon" is now a pleasant reminiscence and in looking back, all will say, it was a pleasure well worth waiting for.

When the curtain rose on the opening scene, gasps of surprise and admiration rose from the audience. It was night in Naaman's garden in Damascus, and a full moon shone down on stately palm trees and damp mosses, showing in its mellow light the hideous face of the pagan god of Rimmon, and was caught and reflected in a bubbling fountain. Before one had time to drink in the beauty of the scene, a richly gowned woman appeared on the scene, and was soon joined by a man, who from his personal appearance one judged to be of priestly rank. It was at once detected that these two, Tsarpsi, wife of Naaman, and Rezon, the High Priest (Helen Horton and Jonnie Trotter), had met before, for they talked of Naaman and soon a conspiracy was formed against him. But there was another in the garden that night, and soon Ruahmah, the captive maid of Isreal, with all her sweet childish beauty and simple trusting faith, comes from behind the palms. She does not understand the meaning of it all, she knows only that her master is in danger and when he appeared, and speaks kindly to her, she warns him of his danger and begs him not to go to the council of war. But Naaman strong and brave, with all the impetuosity of young manhood thinks little of her warning and declares before the King that Damascus shall be free. He must seal his pledge by drinking to it, and taking the poison draught from the hands of his wife he seals his fate.

Everywhere we have heard it said that they, the cast, were all so good that it is hard to say who was best, but the author usually gives the highest praise to the hero and heroine, so we had best introduce to you first the hero and heroine in this play. The part of Naaman, captain of the King's army at Damascus, was taken by Jewell Stevens, and Ruahmah, the captive maid was Susan Carson. The King of Damascus to whom they all paid homage was Troy Haddox. The others we will introduce to you later, and for the present go back to our story.

Naaman returns conqueror, and the treacherous Rezon proclaims him a leper. Overtaken in this misfortune, he is forsaken by all, save two, Saballidin, a nobleman (Neile Hamilton) and Ruahmah whom he thinks is his wife. She, like Naomi of old, refuses to leave him, but stays by to comfort and if possible to heal him. She sends him to Elisha, the Prohpet of Isreal (Lucile Carter) thinking, with a little pang of heartache, that when he is cured he will return to a faithless wife. Can it be that Ruahmah cares, and that Naaman will never know? Stories always end happily and so it happened that after Naaman was healed he returned to the court, but he sought not his wife who fain would have welcomed him now, but the little maid of whose goodness he had been made aware of Saballidin who loved her not a little himself, and tearing her from the altar on which she was to be sacrificed, he claimed her forever as his own. This is the story. Add to it perfect acting, superb costumes and beautiful scenery and you have the secret of its success. It was all that we had hoped for and our expectations were high.

MARK BARNES ADDRESSES CHEMISTRY CLUB

The Chemistry Club held its monthly meeting on last Tuesday evening. Mr. Mark Barnes, Chemist of the Aluminum Plant was the speaker of the evening. He gave a very interesting address on "The Qualifications for Chemists in the Chemical Industry". He emphasized the importance of a strong character, and the development of the ability to apply fundamental facts to the problems at hand. His lecture was interesting to all those taking Chemistry, but was especially directed to those who expect to make Chemistry a life work.

Maryville Will Play U. T.

The Highlander quintet will encounter our ancient adversaries, the University of Tennessee team, on the Knoxville Y. M. C. A. court Saturday evening. It is expected that a delegation of local backers will accompany the team and lend their support to bearers of the Orange and Garnet.

MR. PAT QUINN EXPOUNDS ON "THE MISTAKES OF MEN"

The meeting of the Y. M. C. A. on January 23, was led by Mr. Pat Quinn, a member of the bar in Maryville.

Mr. Quinn first showed how numerous have been the mistakes which men have made. He spoke too of their consequences and finally of the best way to avoid them.

From his own experience as a lawyer Mr. Quinn gave interesting examples of men's mistakes which come to the notice of members of his profession. "In the University of Chicago" said he, "are ninety thousand volumes recording the mistakes of men". He also illustrated the way in which a small act, little regarded at first, may prove to be one of the biggest mistakes of a life time.

Young men, he reminded, are the ones to whom the fact of these mistakes and the attending disasters should be brought, for they may resolve before it is too late to avoid them.

HIGHLANDERS LOSE HARD-FOUGHT GAME TO CARSON-NEWMAN

Hendrick and McGinley Star; Hendrick Also Sees Stars.

Final Outcome of Fracas Always in The Balance.

On Saturday night, January 22, the Highlanders ventured forth into the lowlands of Tennessee in search of conflict and at Jefferson City pitted against the Kilpatrick Clansmen from Carson Newman College. While the deafening cheers and encouraging shouts of the rooters almost raised the roof, the battle raged for forty minutes and when the smoke cleared away the Highlanders were forced to leave the battle field with victory in the hands of the Kilpatrick Clansmen.

The game was fast and hard-fought from start to finish, both teams fighting desperately for the coveted victory. Hendrick started the scoring with a pretty field goal soon after the game started, but Reese of C. N. C. offset this with three goals in rapid succession and from then on it was nip and tuck until the last second, the final outcome being always in the balance. Time and again the M. C. quintet worked the ball down the floor, by pretty passing, to shooting position and shot for the basket only to have the ball hit the low ceiling of the hall and fall into the waiting hands of the C. N. guards, who passed the ball back up the floor out of danger.

In Kelly, Reese, King, Mackbee and Campbell C. N. C. has a quintet of basketball tossers whom Coach Kilpatrick has worked into a fighting machine that ranks with the best ever turned out at that institution.

For M. C., Hendrick, McMurray and McGinley backed up later by Janowizski did fine work on the outposts while Cotton, McLaughlin, and Delozier took care of the defense in great style.

The Lineup

M. C.		C. N. C.
Hendrick 15	l.f.	Mackbee 10
McMurray 2	r.f.	Reese 14
McGinley 8	c.	King 9
Cotton	l.f.	Kelley
Delozier	r.f.	Campbell
McLaughlin 2

SHOTS FROM THE FOUL LINE

It is expected that the Athletic Asociation of C.N.C. will send us a bill for the plastering knocked off the ceiling of the basketball hall during the game on Saturday night.

Hendrick expects to offset the above with a countersuit for damages received when he collided with one of the posts that stick around on their court. John claims to have discovered a few new planets in that collision.

McMurray and McGinley came in for their usual attention from the fair sex.

The M. C. team and their friends were given a very pleasant entertainment at the Sarah Swann (girls' dormitory) after the game. Music and refreshments were freely handed out. Every one enjoyed the short stay at the Sarah Swann.

Carson Newman will play a return game here probably the second week in February.

Then, Revenge is sweet, "Nuff Sed."

Co-Eds vs. Tusculum

On Monday evening the girls' basket ball team will meet the Tusculum quintet on the local court.

Come out and give the team your loyal support! !

FEBRUARY MEETINGS TO BEGIN ON FEB. 15

Mr. Hammontree Will Direct Singing at Meetings.

Will Be Assisted by Mr. B. D. Ackley, Pianist.

Rev. William T. Bartlett, D. D., of the class of 1901, will conduct the February Meetings at Maryville College this year. Dr. Bartlett conducted the February Meetings in 1912 and again in 1916. His forceful preaching of the gospel message and his open-hearted sympathy with young people in their religious problems and perplexities have won him a permanent place in the esteem and affection of the faculty and student body. His coming this year, from evangelistic activities in the Synod of New Jersey, is being looked forward to with eager anticipation, and is being prepared for by both work and prayer.

Last year, Mr. Homer Hammontree, of the class of 1909, directed the singing throughout the twelve days of the meetings. His own singing of the gospel message, as well as his efficient leadership, was so helpful that the students and friends of the College will be glad to know that he is to be in charge of the music again this year. Many of the gospel songs that he taught the students to sing last year became prime favorites and will be used again, together with a number of new ones.

With Mr. Hammontree's assurance that his accompanist is: "I think the greatest player in America today for gospel singing", it is certain that Mr. B. D. Ackley will receive on his own account the same cordial welcome that Maryville will accord Dr. Bartlet and Mr. Hammontree. A year ago Mr. Hammontree promised to bring the "best male quartet in America" and did ise for 1921. The late Mr. Charles M. Alexander, another old Maryville student and for many years the leading evangelistic singer of the world, said to Mr. Hammontree: "Get B. D. Ackley; there's no one who can beat him."

Under the leadership of the Holy Spirit through the instrumentality of these three consecrated men the February Meetings will this year be marked by the high spiritual tone and God-given success of former years. For the forty-fifth time since Dr. Nathan Bachman conducted the meeitngs in 1877, February has been especially significent in Maryville's calendar of college events. Dr. Stevenson's Thursday morning talks and Sunday vespers sermons have for some time been preparatory to the meetings. The first service of the February Meetings will be held in connection with the chapel exercises on Tuesday morning, February 15, at 8:10 o'clock. The meetings will continue until February 26. On Sunday, February 20, Dr. Bartlett will preach at New Providence Presbyterian Church at 10:30 a. m., and in the Chapel at 6:30 p. m. On week days the morning service will be at 8:10 o'clock and the evening service at 6:30 o'clock. To all of these services the public is cordially invited.

KNOXVILLIANS DEFEATED BY M. C. GIRLS 32-8

Knoxville Y. W. C. A. Outclassed By College Girls.

Spectators Well Pleased With Playing of Local Five.

Preparing for the girls from the Knoxville Y. W. in real honest-to-goodness fashion, and scheming to attack them with all brands of basketball technique and skill possible, the Maryville Girls staged a walk-away before the astonished and well pleased spectators on last Thursday evening in the College gym.

The bloomer girls from the Knoxville Y. W. were not able to keep the Maryville lassies from deliberately confiscating the ball and confining its movements to the College end of the court. Although the weight and height, and experience of the Maryville squad was somewhat better than that of the visitors they, the Knoxville girls, displayed exceptional ability at passing the ball when it was in their possession and they were also able to show their steadiness at goal shooting from the free foul line.

Members of both teams broke loose from seemingly deadlock positions and shot goals to the satisfaction of the encouraging spectators. Many short and effective passing plays were staged in this manner also. Not a single time during the game was the ball passed by either team for the full length of the court. In an effort to save time and space one or two long distance hopefuls were shot with no gain.

The Knoxville girls were represented at the baskets by forwards Robison and Kent while the home tossers were Dawson and Bailey, later replaced by Adair and Headrick who was relieved by Parham. Miss Robison of the visitors succeeded in caging four single points and one double; Miss Kent sacked the second and last field goal made by the visitors, making a total of eight points. The playing of Miss Barton, who we are sorry to say, was compelled to leave the game on account of receiving a strained shoulder, and that of Misses Oates and Stafford was indeed commendable. Their guarding and passing kept their opponents on a hop—a lively hop.

The other players for Maryville were Enoch, Smith, Woods, Collins, Sherrod and McCall. Easily the best work at forward for the home team was done by Miss Dawson who made half of the thirty-two points scored by Maryville. Bailey and Headrick each credited themselves with two field goals while the remainder of the 32 points were made by Dawson, who proved heself to be about the fastest player of the evening. Dawson, after clinching the game for her teammates, was relieved from duty by other forwards of improving quality.

So passed the first game and incidentally the first victory of the basketball season for the M. C. girls, who are expecting to improve their present status in the coming days and blaze a trail to other victories on down the schedule.

LETTER FROM W. A. FREIDINGER

The Highland Echo is in receipt of the following letter which comes bearing the title, "A Happy Visit". We were very pleased to have Mr. Freidinger on the Hill for a week during the past month and wish to thank him for the two valuable addresses delivered at Chapel.

The beginning of it was the sudden meeting with the professor an old College friend, who so cordially took me into his heart and home. And this was just after I had found that I was free to visit my Alma Mater, my second mother, after a thirteen years absence.

Those now living on the Hill will find it hard to realize how an "old grad" rejoices in seeing growth in equipment and enlargement in courses in his old school. It is not merely ambition for size, that common American disease, but also satisfaction in knowing that the College is training more students and offering them better courses and more variety.

Another source of satisfaction was the certainty that the best of the old remains—the old time insistance on real heart-religion manifesting itself in the clean useful, kindly life.

Among the particular sources of satisfaction were the midwinter entertainment, the welcomes received from old acquaintances, calls upon town and college friends, and visits to nearby churches and—shall I say it?—the opportunity of telling about Syria, my field of endeavor.

I should like to thank the friends who sent me the golden image of liberty on Monday morning, and every friend who helped make my visit such a delightful one.

The one disappointment in an otherwise most deeply satisfying week was the absence of the President on College business. We all honor you sir, not only because of what you have made of the College, because you didn't make it, nor what you have done alone, but especially because of the most noble making and using of many an opportunity to serve God in serving His servants in preparing them for useful manhood and womanhood. We graduates and former students of the College are proud of our College and of every man and woman who has given of strength and treasure to help the College live and grow.

W. A. Freidinger.

PERSONALS

Rev. R. M. Cleveland, the Assistant Field Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions for the Southwestern District, visited the College on January 25 and addressed the students at the chapel exercises on that date.

Mr. Frank D. Geddy, the Assistant Director of the Young Peoples' Work of the Presbyterian Board of Publication and Sabbath School Work, and Mr. P. E. Green, the Secretary of Sabbath School Education in Tennessee, were welcomed visitors on the Hill last week. Mr. Geddy delivered a short address at chapel on Wednesday, January 26, and Mr. Green returned and told something of his work on Saturday.

Dr. Gillingham had charge of the Bible Study at the Young Peoples' Educational Institute for Union Presbytery which was held during the past week at the Second Presbyterian church of Knoxville.

Miss Irene Bewley gave an entertainment at Walland on Friday evening, January 21. On Tuesday evening of this week she presented a special performance of "Esmeralda" at the First Methodist Church of Knoxville given under the auspices of the Young Peoples' Missionary Society for the benefit of European Relief. Miss Bewely will repeat "Esmeralda" at the New Providence Presbyterian Church this evening for the benefit of the Maryville Public Library.

Professor Hunter will address the first session of the fifteenth annual meeting of the Tennessee Philological Association which is to be held at the University of Tennessee on February 25 and 26. His subject will be, "George Peale and the Authorship of the Reign of King Edward the Third".

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Clyde T. Murray at Maryville on January 27, a daughter who shall bear the name, Doris Wilson Murray. Mrs. Murray was Miss Olive Wilson and a member of the class of 1913. Mr. Murray is a former student of M. C. and is at present engaged in insurance business at Maryville. Pres. Dr. Rev. Prof. Father Samuel T. Wilson, D. D. LL.D., now has a new title—that of grandfather.

STAG PARTY

A stag dinner party was given Monday night at the Mary Blount Cafe and the most important thing on the program was a big beefsteak. Mr. Hill was the toastmaster of the occasion while Mr. Baxter entertained with several jokes.

The following distinguished gentlemen from the Hill were present: Joe Thompson, Knoxville; Fred Artz, Johnson City; Ivan Hill, Chicago; Charles Baxter, Birmingham; and "Slim" McGinley, Kansas City.

PROF. JONES SPEAKS ON "THE WISE ("Y'S") MAN"

In answer to the question, "What is a wise man?" many definitions were given which describe the wise man as the world sees him. Among these definitions were the following: The wise man is the man who has the ability to get riches; he is the man with an education; the man who secures pleasure; the man with great musical power; the man who has given to the world great discoveries; the man who is a successful manager of a great merchantile establishment; or the man who has the ability to invent great and useful things. An illustration was given here of receiving the daily news in paper form in mid ocean by wireless which is to say the least is a great achievement. But yet the Bible says that a man may attain all these things and be a fool.

Considering the definition given in the dictionary the wise man is the man having a clear and correct discernment of what is conducive to one's highest interests, and in one's own conduct choosing the best end and the best means for reaching such an end. Does this not fit into the Bible definition, "They that turn many to righteousness shall shine as stars forever and ever?"

All defintions of a wise man or "Y's" man—for all "Y's" men should be wise men—culminates in, "He that winneth souls is wise", or as the other version puts its, "He that is wise winneth souls."

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS ON HILL THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

President General of D. A. R. Addresses Students.

On last Thursday and Friday Maryville College was especially fortunate and distinctly honored in having as its respected guests Mrs. George Maynard Minor, President General of the National D. A. R. organization, and Mrs. Elizabeth C. B. Buel, the State Regent of the D. A. R. of Connecticut.

The chapel exercises on Friday morning were planned especially in honor of, and as a welcome to our renowned visitors. President Wilson, in introducing the ladies, recounted what great things the D. A. R. have done for M. C. The D. A. R. have established fifty scholarships at Maryville, and last year contributed altogether $1,500 to the M. C. scholarship fund. The largest part of this amount came from the State of Connecticut, of which both ladies are citizens. Mrs. Buel is herself the founder of the first permanent D. A. R. scholarship at M. C.

Mrs. Minor, in addressing the students, paid high tribute to the memory of Miss Margaret Henry, whose name shall ever be immortalized at Maryville. She then told something of the organization of which she is the President General. The D. A. R. was founded thirty years ago not only for the purpose of honoring and perpetuating the memory of our ancestors who fought in the revolution, but, in honoring them, "to make the homes and schools of our country better for the future". Mrs. Minor continued, "We have been glad to help some of you get an education and in that way help our country. The D. A. R. are very much interested in Maryville College and will continue to be interested and to aid in your splendid work." .In closing Mrs. Minor emphasized the privilege of service, and repeated the following text as an excellent motto for life, "What doth the Lord require of you but to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy Lord."

Mrs. Buel, in beginning her few remarks, declared, "The great dream of my life has come true. I have always had a great interest in Maryville College and have always wanted to visit it." She also eulogized the life and work of Miss Henry, and enumerated additional basic principles in the foundation of the D. A. R. organization. The great single purpose of the D. A. R. is "to stand for loyal American citizenship and to help counteract every faction working against our government." Mrs. Buel left this thought with her hearers—taken from General Bradford's tomb-stone at Plymouth, Mass.—"Do not basely relinquish what your fathers with difficulty attained."

The students showed their appreciation of the visit and speeches of the honored guests by rousing cheers, ending of course with a big "How-we-How".

ALPHA SIGMAS ELECT OFFICERS

The Alpha Sigma Literary Society met Saturday night, aJnuary 22, in a purely business session. There had been quite an amount of left-over business and also this meeting was the time for the quarterly election. The following officers were elected:

President - - - - Harry Pearson
Vice President - - - - Leslie Poe
Recording Secretary - Sam Franklin
Program Secretary Eugene Stanbery
Treasurer - - - Melvin Lawson
Censors, - Ralph Babylon, Emery Fritz, Porter Turner, Ralph Armstrong.
Janitor - - - Ralph Armstrong
Asst. Recording Secy. - Sam Hall
Editor - - - Bennett Montgomery

The Chilhowee Club was delightfully entertained at the House-in-the Woods on Friday evening, Jan. 21. Among the numbers on the program were a piano solo by Jeanette Hibbert, a piano duet by Misses Waller and Bassel, and readings by Misses Beeler and Sharp.

JOHN FOX PROGRAM AT BAINONIAN

True to her colors, Bainonians gave us a very interesting and instructive John Fox program on January 22nd.

The program was opened by a violin solo, by Helena Farrar, accompanied by Louise Farrar.

Barbara Higgins gave a very clever biography of John Fox, Junior, in which she pictured his life among the Kentucky hills.

"Courtin on Cutchin" was read to us by Alice McAnulty. John Fox explains to us humorously what "Settin up" is and how you "sot around like a bump on a log, not saying nothin', 'till the old folks go to bed."

Elouise Grahl and Margaret Grooms favored us with some Hawaiian selections on their guitars.

Geraldine Odell related to us vividly the life of John Fox among the Kentucky hills and how they influenced his writing. No matter where he went, he was always ready to return to the mountain folks whom he porartys so well.

"The Passing of Abraham Shivers" as a closing number was read by Beatrice Newell.

Last Week's Program

Did we enjoy the program? Just ask us and then listen. A play was scheduled for the evening, but because two of the cast were absent from town, it was postponed until next week. Instead of the play, a few of the Bainonian stars gave an unusual and clever program.

Any one who has heard Ruth Newton knows what it means when we say that she sang again delightfully for us.

Annarine Atkins gave a reading from "Rebecca of Sunny Brook Farm". We need not tell you that we would not let her go until she favored us again.

Callie Speck and Myrtle Rendon were the stars for the evening, when they gave a guitar duet and then a guitar and French harp duet. We certainly do enjoy their music.

"The Americanization of Andre Francois" was entertainingly given by Martha Robison. By our hearty applause and encoring we won her over to giving us another reading in negro dialect.

Last, but by no means least we had a mysterious lady from Mars to entertain us. Her arms were un unusually short and gestures were so peculiar, to say nothing of how she smiled, that we can only give you a partial picture and tell you in a small degree how she amused and entertained us. We only hope we may have her with us again. Callie Speck and Grace Blank were the young ladies who brought her to Maryville for the evening.

VISITOR FROM HOMS, SYRIA

When Dr. Wilson closed the chapel service on Tuesday, he was greatly surprised to find waiting for him a man, who like himself, was born in Homs, Syria. The unexpected, but welcome, visitor was Rev. Hanna Khabaz, founder and principal of the Protestant Seminary of the city of Homs. Dr. Wilson had met Mr. Khabaz during his visit to Syria in 1909, and heard much, while in Syria, regarding the great usefulness of Mr. Khabaz and the school of which he was founder and builder. As many as twenty teachers, all native Syrians, and two hundred students were gathered in the seminary. Mr. Anise Atiyeh, who graduated from Maryville in the class of 1914, was one of Mr. Khabaz's students.

The school of Homs is unique in that it has been supported entirely by native workers and native contributors. Mr. Khabaz is travelling among the Syrians in America and elsewhere collecting funds for the prosecutions of his worthy work. All the funds he has collected have been contributed by Syrians.

The mother of Mr. Khabaz knew the parents of Dr. Wilson, Rev. and Mrs. David M. Wilson, who were the first misisonaries in Homs, in 1855-1860.

JUNIOR Y. W. C. A.

Junior Y. W. C. A. was led, Sunday, January 23, by Prof. Hunter. His subject was "Heroism of the Common Place". Prof. Hunter said that there were three qualities which make against heroism. Heroes do not meet life with dissatisfaction, nor delay, nor defiance. If we make the very best of the equipment God has given to us, we will be heroes whether the world regards us as such or not. Do not put off active contact with life. Get into life NOW. But the most important hindrance to heroism is defiance. We should take as our guide one who is able and willing to be Captain of our Soul.

SPECIAL MUSICAL PROGRAM

Sunday, January 30, Miss Stella McCall led the Junior Y. W. C. A. in a very inspirational, instructive, and enjoyable meeting. A special musical program was given. Everyone enjoyed singing many of the most beautiful hymns ever written. The leader made the hymns more impressive by telling us the purpose of hymns. They are not for musical entertainment nor for a substitute for the sermon. They are to fill the service full of joyous love and thanksgiving to the Maker. They are fruits of things that have been felt and experienced by the writer. The essentials of a hymn are: It must be full of scripture and life, accepted by the church, and written simply and sincerely.

VESPER SERVICE

Dr. Stevenson brought to the surface Sunday evening in Vesper three great passages of the Bible in which are found the three great words in the Christian life.

The first of these passages is found in Matt. 11:28, and the key word is "Come". This is the first great verb in the Gospels and it extends the invitation to all that labor and are heavy laden to come. All who would find rest in Christ must "come" to the Lord.

The next great word is found in Luke 24:49—"Tarry". The command is to tarry for power from on high. Tarry with Him a little while. It is not enough that we come but we must tarry with Him. To read the Scripture, to meditate upon it, to think of Him, to learn—all of these is tarrying.

The third great word is found in Mark 16:15—"Go". It is not enough to Come, and to Tarry is not all. He bids us Come and Tarry and then Go. The final command given to the disciples was, "Go ye". The early church neglected this last commandment, and many people today have fallen into the same habit. The speaker pointing directly to some members of the audience said, "If some of you did a little more practicing and did not listen to so much preaching you would be better off."

In a conversation between Gabriel and Christ as told by Gordon, Christ said in answer to a question from Gabriel: "Gabriel I have not thought of any other plan. I am relying on my friends." Come! Tarry and learn of Christ! ! Then Go and tell others of Christ, the Saviour of the world! ! !

Student Activity Fee Unanimously Approved by Students, Faculty and Board

Annual Blanket Fee of Ten Dollars Granted by Board of Directors; Outgrowth of Movement by Students to Elevate Athletic Standard of Institution. Action Heralded as Being of Inestimable Value to M. C.

A movement recently inaugurated by the students of Mryville College has culminated during the past week in the unanimous ratification by the students, faculty, and Board of Directors of the proposal to adopt a ten dollar student activity fee per college year.

This action was the direct outgrowth of a petition drawn up by the students, in which an appeal was made to the Board of Directors to double the present athletic fee paid by each student. This petition was so unanimously endorsed by the President and faculty of the College that it was deemed the psychological time to amend the original proposal so as to cover not only athletics but all the major student activities.

On Tuesday morning at the chapel exercises the amendment was presented by President Wilson in an impressive address for the consideration of the student body. The students were unanimous in their ratification of the amendment and on Wednesday the original bill as amended was submitted to the Board of Directors at their semi-annual meeting. The Board, realizing the transcendent value of such a fee to the student activities of the Hill and to the College as a whole, were also unanimous in favor of granting the blanket fee for student activities. The apportionment of the fee and the detailed explanation of the action of the Board is given below.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S ADDRESS

In his address to the students on Tuesday morning President Wilson set forth in a very clear and forceful manner the financial condition of the College and commended highly the action of the students in inaugurating such a movement to advance the standing of our institution and its representation in competition with other schools. He explained convincingly the possibilities of attainment in athletics and in other student activities which would be (and which now will be) afforded by the funds derived from the student activity fee. One of the greatest benefits to be derived from the new fee will be the setting aside of a certain proportion to contribute to a fund which will in time be sufficient to render possible the building of an addition to the gymnasium or the grading of a first-class athletic field or both.

President Wilson, in explaining why the College has been unable to promote athletics and other student activities to any great extent in recent years, told of the tremendous increase in the running expenses of the College. The annual running expenses of the College in 1920, he said, were $101,000 as compared with $20,000, the expenses for the year 1901, when he became president. The interest from the endowment of the College falls far short of meeting the increased current expenses of the institution. Of the $800,000 endowment, only $412,000 brings in interest to the Treasurer's office at the present time. $274,000 of the $800,000 is annuity fund and $117,000 goes to student help. For every dollar which is paid into the office by the students the College must expend five in order to keep the institution running. And in addition to all this current expense there is at present the heavy burden of expense of the new $125,000 building which is now being erected. Of this $125,000, $75,000 is yet to be raised. President Wilson said that another big campaign at a very early date is absolutely imperative if the school shall continue to exist.

This revelation of the financial inadequacy of the College to meet current expenses filled the students with determination to help in the big way of paying a reasonable student activity fee and so have "everybody behind everything" conducive to the elevation of the standards of the school.

THE PETITION

The original petition plus the amendment, as submitted to the Board by the students, was as follows:

To the President of the Board of Directors of Maryville College:

We, the undersigned students of Maryville College, do respectfully petition you to increase the athletic fee to $3.00 a semester for College students and to $2.00 a term for preparatory students, to be effective September 1, 1921.

We desire this for the following reasons:

1st. The present athletic fees do not furnish a sufficient fund to allow the purchase of sufficient equipment to allow more than a very few students to participate in football, basket ball, and base ball practice, thus depriving a great majority of the students of the pleasure to be derived from these games.

2nd. The present athletic fees do not furnish sufficient funds to enable us to engage in athletic contests with the leading schools of the South, since we have not sufficient funds to bring their teams here, and they are reluctant to give us games away from home when we cannot give them return games here. This condition compels us to play games with schools of lower standing, and gives the general public the impression that we are a small and inferior school.

3rd. The present athletic fees do not furnish funds to enable us even by the strictest economy to save anything from year to year so as to provide a fund which in time would be large enough to build a first-class gymnasium and grade a first-class athletic field and build stands on same, thus depriving us of the opportunity of preparing for a better and greater athletic Maryville.

We appreciate the fact that the Board of Directors have always had in mind the keeping of college expenses at a minimum, which attitude on their part cannot but bring forth the hearty sympathy and co-operation of the student body, who owe a real debt of gratitude to the authorities of the college for keeping expenses so low in this day of high prices, but since we who must pay the increase in athletic fees feel that the school as a whole will gain much more than the increase asked in many respects, and that Maryville College cannot occupy her proper place in inter-collegiate athletics or give each student the best opportunities for physical devlopment without this increase, we hereby express our willingness to meet this additional expense, and respectfully submit this petition for your consideration.

The following amendment to the petition was unanimously adopted by the students at the Chapel exercises Tuesday morning:

THE ACTION OF THE BOARD

The resolutions as adopted by the Board of Directors were as follows:

"Resolved, 1. That the Directors of Maryville College, in chapel assembled, do hereby authorize the amending of the petition that we recently signed, so as to include a request for the enlargement of the fee by four additional dollars, making a total, for the college year, of ten dollars, the entire fee to be known as the Students' Activities Fee, the additional four dollars to be apportioned to the support of the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A., the Lyceum, the Highland Echo, and for the provision of music for the band, the orchestra, and the chorus; the first Students' Activities Fee to be collected at the opening of the College in September.

"Resolved, 1. That the Directors grant this request of the students, and hereby direct that a Students' Activties Fee of ten dollars be collected annually, beginning in September, 1921; the fee in the college department to be five dollars each semester, and the fee in the preparatory department to be four dollars in the fall term, three dollars in the winter term, and three dollars in the spring term.

"2. That the apportionment and mode of payment of the funds be as follows:

Athletics and Forensics, $6.00. One-fourth to be spent for permanent improvement of the gymnasium, swimming pool, and the athletic field, and for other athletic necessities; and three-fourths to be paid out, upon the order of the Faculty Committee on Athletics, on the budget adopted by the Joint Budget Committee as provided for by the action taken by the Athletic Board of Control and the Athletic Committees of the Directors and the Faculty on August 25, 1914; seven and one-half per cent of the entire fund, however, to be paid out for forensic expenses upon the order of the Faculty Committee on Intercollegiate Literary Contests.

Lyceum, $1.75. To be paid out on the order of the Faculty Committee on the Lyceum.

Highland Echo and Student Publicity Printing, $1.00. To be paid out on order of the Faculty Committee on Student Publications.

Y. M. C. A. or Y. W. C. A., $1.00 To be paid to the Treasurer of the Association, after approval of the budget of the Y. M. C. A. by the Advisory Committee of the Y. M. C. A., and upon approval of that of the Y. W. C. A. by the Committee on Religious Activities, upon the order of the Faculty Committee on Religious Activities.

Musical Organizations, $.25. To be paid out for supplies and other approved expenses of the band, the orchestra, and the chorus, upon the order of the Faculty Committee on Student Programs.

Auditing of Accounts. All college accounts regarding these funds are to be audited, in accordance with the by-laws of the Directors, by the regular Certified Public Accountants employed by the Directors; and all student supplementary accounts to be audited by the Faculty Auditor for Student Organizations and Activities.

"3. That the Faculty be empowered to make any further adjustments that may be deemed necessary for the efficient administration of the fund."

EXPLANATION OF ACTION

The Directors have followed closely in their apportionment the lines indicated by the students' petition and by the suggestions of those who are carrying the burdens

HIGHLANDERS CLASH WITH FIGHTING VOLS

Knoxville "Y" Court Scene of Best Game Between M. C. And U. T. in Many Years.

Troutman and Hendrick Effective in Scoring.

No special train of Maryville students accompanied the College Five to our long standing rivals home town, nor did the band go along to herald the coming of the Scrapping Highlanders, but the team was not there alone. Using the bus line and several special cars, many College fellows splashed their way to Knoxville and then on to the Central Y.M.C.A. basket ball court, which served as the battle ground where the Orange and Garnet Five fought their way to a victorious defeat.

A Victorious defeat is right. Although the U. T. squad survived the battle as victors by seven points they did not cop all of the laurels of the day. A final count of 30 to 37, in U.T.'s favor, decorated the score board. The two and one, one and two addition of the score by both sides was necessarily accompanied by some bad and good playing, but it was pleasing to note that the rival playing this time was the fairest and most evnly matched of any game staged between the Highlanders and Volunteers in many moons. The annual fray of years gone-by has usually been written into the athletic history of both schools with a more or less feeling of deep-rooted hostility,—the blame always being placed on the right one by each. But the story is different now.

Referee Cline of Knoxville called the game, and not wishing to place any discredit on his fair, firm, and decisive decisions, we feel safe in saying that it was in the men this time to do their best and still stay within the bounds of clean sportsmanship. It is true that seven personal fouls were called on the Orange and White scrappers and that six were tallied for the Highlanders, but nearly all of the so-called fouls can be accredited to the fact that the players were operating under a rather peculiar and regular feeling that "the race is close". It was close, neck and neck so to speak, for the most of the first half and the latter part of the second half during which the Highlanders drove the enemy to within a couple of notches of a tie. With the score figures of 28-30, in box car numbers, standing out in full view of spectators and players, nothing but an atmosphere of excitement and anxiety could predominate over a crowd of such loyal-to-the-core "rooters" and warriors.

Contestants and spectators were kept on edge from the time Delozier sacked Maryville's first duel tally until the referee blew his whistle for the ending of the first half. McGinley slapped the ball on its first toss to McMurray who readily returned it down court to Delozier who sacked the initial goal of the game. Campbell, not wishing to be outdone or left in the shade, soon counteracted Maryville's start by caging a field goal for U. T. McMurray shoved M. C. to the fore again by leading with his first goal. James came to U. T.'s aid this time and tied the score. A free foul shot by Troutman placed U. T. in the lead which was retained through the entire first half by a fluctuating margin. The score at end of the first half stood 23-14 with Maryville 9 hard notches yet to climb.

Maryville set the pace for the second half also, but the Volun-

Kilpatrick's Clansmen got it in the neck from the blood-thirsty Highlanders who retaliated the defeat administered to them a few days ago by the aforesaid basket ball tribe.

They (rooters, players, coach and all) came from Carson Newman living in the highest anticipation of the possible accomplishment of another scalping stunt like unto the one the Highlanders detest, especially on their own home grounds. Some folks receive a shock when the realization of their anticipation is not what they dreamed it would be—so did Carson Newman.

The Highlanders came back at the Carson Newman squad and cleaned them up to the tune of twenty-one to sixteen.

The game was hard fought from whistle to whistle, and time was called but once. C. N. scored two field goals in the first few minutes of play and kept a slight lead during the first half which ended 6-9 in their favor.

Maryville came back strong in the second period and soon had it on the visitors by four points. Desperate playing followed, during which a few unexpected good plays were made, some expected ones, and some individual "stunts" were handed out. The final windup of the whole thing being that Carson Newman left Maryville's scalp intact.

ENROLLMENT

The total number of student registered in the College Department to date for this semester is 405 as compared with 445 the total number for last semester. This term 396 have enrolled in the preparatory department as compared with 400 the total for last term.

DONAGHY—GODDARD

Mr. Charles E. Donaghy and Miss Helen Goddard were married Saturday evening, Feb. 5, at the M. E. Parsonage, Maryville, Tennessee. Rev. G. T. Francisco officiated.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. James A. Goddard of Maryville and was for several years a student in Maryville College. The groom, who is also a citizen of Maryville, is studying law in the University of Tennessee.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Donaghy on the Hill extend to them through the Echo their congratulations and best wishes.

DEATH OF FLORENCE LEONARD

A letter received from "Chet" Leonard a short time ago brought the sad news that his sister Florence had gone Home to her Father. Miss Leonard was a member of last year's Freshman class, having left school the middle of last year on account of ill health. We regret her loss because there is no one just like her to fill the void place which she has left, and in our own sorrow we extend our sympathy to those who have been bereaved of her more than we.

Distance lends enchantment—to examinations.

Speaking of examinations, it is our opinion that the missing link between the sublime and the ridiculous is the co-ed student who is always saying for effect, "I just know that I am going to flunk", and then proves that she could have had no such intuition whatsoever by making ninety-five per cent on examination.

On next Tuesday morning the forty-fifth annual series of February Meetings will begin at Maryville College. This the one event of the year for which everything else gives way completely in order that there might be nothing whatsoever to detract from the inestimable usefulness of the series to the moral life of the students. Therefore the Echo, in keeping with the spirit of the meetings, will suspend publication until February 26, when a special February Meetings Number will be issued.

A kind breeze coming from the direction of Bartlett Hall gently wafted the sound of band music out over the campus on last Monday evening until it fell with soothing effects upon the appreciative ears of many hard-studying students in the several dormitories. Which reminded us that we had not been favored by an appearance of that worthy organization in quite a while. We would certainly enjoy hearing again a Maryville College band at our basket ball games, as it has been at least six years since the old gym has reverberated with the sound of band music on the evning of a basket ball game. You may take this as a hint, suggestion, or recommendation, Band Men, because it is meant to be all of that and more too—a request!

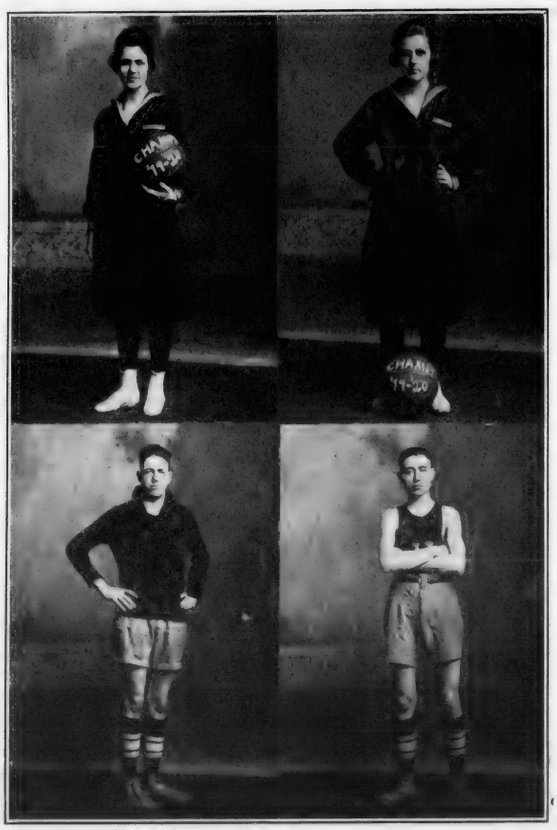
The appearance for the first time of a portion of the orchestra at the Vesper service last Sunday is heralded by all as a most valuable addition to these impressive services. It is the tendency of the students, in becoming accustomed to the routine of college life and college services, to forget the great service rendered by the music department. It is to the leaders of music, to the splendid choir, and to the newly-added orchestra, all working as a complement to the transcendent messages delivered by our beloved College Pastor, that Maryville College owes credit for her beautiful vesper service which ranks among the most impressive and most effective services of its kind in the country. We are proud of our music department and the splendid record that it is making.

A REAL ALUMNI UNDERTAKING TO BOOST THE OLD COLLEGE

A Chance to Serve Alma Mater In Large Way Suggested by Adoption of Student Activity Fee.

Some few weeks ago this column contained a timely and pointed article by an alumnus in which was set forth the idea that the alumni of Maryville College are not rendering any real organized service to the College. The Alumni Editor suggested, in a prefactory note printed with that article, that it would be a stimulating and helpful thing if a large number of alumni would contribute opinions and suggestions to a symposium on the general theme of Organized Service by the Alumni. No such articles have as yet been received. While we are waiting for them to come in, what about an editorial suggestion along this line?



Elsewhere in this issue of the Echo appears an announcement and explanation of the provision for a Student Activities Fund which involves the doubling of the annual provisions for the financing of athletics. There can be little doubt but that this means a higher athletic standing for Maryville, and a better and sounder basis for a progressive athletic policy. But it is equally true that even this is by no means a final and full solution for all the athletic problems on the Hill. There is a real need for a modern athletic field and grandstands, there is need for improved locker rooms and dressing rooms in Bartlett Hall, and there is pressing need for the enlargement of the gymnasium floor so as to provide a regulation court for indoor sports, especially basket ball.

Now may we not come to a definite word as to this last-named need? The present playing floor of Bartlett Gymnasium can be enlarged easily by removing the south wall of the building and extending the east and west walls out toward the baseball field to the distance of twice the width of the present floor, thus providing a court of regulation size.

Last year Maryville had a basket ball team that was a wonder, a team which defeated U. T., and Centre College, and the Nashville Ramblers, and which threw a scare into the Vanderbilt camp from which they have not yet recovered. But in spite of that remarkable team and its formidable record and in spite of other teams and other records almost equally to be respected, the better teams of the South are refusing us home games this year because they know about our small floor. Last Saturday night our team went over to Knoxville, and, although handicapped beyond estimation because it was their first game of the season on a regulation floor, they put up a wonderful battle and lost to Tennessee by 30 to 37. But Tennessee will not give us a return game here because of our small floor.

The oft-expressed desire of the alumni is to do something tangible and definite for the College. Is that desire strong enough and sincere enough to lead them to undertake the task of raising a fund to make possible this needed extension of the gymnasium floor? What do you say? Probably $20,000 would do the work. Certainly $25,000 would do it. The College itself is straining every resource to meet the enormously increased cost of maintaining itself without materially increasing the cost of education to the individual student. It is utterly out of the question, therefore, to expect the College to undertake this improvement with no more means than are in sight. Is it not possible that this is a real task for the alumni? What action shall we take? Let's get together through these columns and get something definite started.

Our beloved President is about to start out on another financial campaign for the College, although physicians are urging upon him rest and ease of mind. His love for the old College is carrying him against caution and reason out into the nerve strain and anxiety of another battle for funds. Not a one of us has any disposition to deny Dr. Wilson first place among those who love and serve Alma Mater, but surely, even then, he ought not to have to bear the burdens and struggles alone. How it would cheer and hearten him to know thot in a definite and determined manner the alumni are back of him! What shall we do about it?

LEGION'S FORCES ANNIHILATE LOCALS

Highlanders Are Swept Away In Whirlwind of First Half.

With Garrett tossing, throwing and some times batting the ball towards the basket, and with Moore caging fouls plus several long distance field goals, the Legionaries from Knoxville were able to cop a whirlwind basket ball game from Highlanders on Wednesday evening, February 2. The score being 34 to 29.

Whirlwind was right. Moore, Calloway, Garrett, May, and Sandberg all former high school and, later, university stars, met as one team, and putting their experience and weight into the whole thing Wednesday evening they succeeded in making a whirlwind affair of it from the outset. Despite the fact that they were counteracted by the accurate shooting of Hendrick and McMurray, it was during the latter part of the first half that Garrett caused a considerable increase in the scoring, which was not overcome by the close of that half. Twenty-one points were boxed by the Legionaries and eleven marks were recorded by the Maryville squad in the first half.

McMurray, Hendrick, McGinley, Delozier, and Cotton furnished their part of the whirlwind impetus to the game and the good part about it was that they were still going strong at the close of the contest with only five points barring them from making the whole thing a tie. McLaughlin, fresh and eager from the sidelines, entered the fray as a substitute for Delozier.

The Knoxville Legion squad saw it was time they picked up or else lose the game. Unnecessary whirlwinding began and Referee Cullis called fouls without hesitation. Hendrick took advantage of it all and placed four singles within the folds of the iron hoop. One by one the score mounted in favor of the Highlanders. The Legionaries placed Calloway and Sandberg off the list and sent Wheelock and Turner into play. This was another move in favor of the home team, which, realizing the change, "pepped up" a little and finally ran the score to within five marks of that of the Visitors', but that was all, for the honorable timekeepers, Baum and Proffitt called the game.

Despite the apparent roughness of the game it was above the average game played on the local College court. Both teams played clean, hard basket ball and deserve commendation for the demonstration of such good sportsmanship.

The line-up and scoring was as follows:

Maryville (29)		Legion (34)
McMurray, 7	f.	Garrett 12
Hendrick, 12	f.	Moore 16
McGinley, 6	c.	Calloway 2
Delozier, 4	g.	Sandberg 2
Cotton	g.	May 2

Substitutes for Maryville: McLaughlin; for Legion: Wheelock, Turner, and Mabre.

THE ENGLISH PRIZE

The Editor was kind enough to call the attention of readers of the Echo to the English Prize in a last week's editorial. You remember the terms of the competition. Hand your work to one of the three English teachers on or before April 15. Three typewritten copies are called for. Since the first statement of the rules it has been decided that any contestant who so wishes may submit two contributions, instead of one. This is not necessary, but any contestant who desires to do so may enter two productions. A few, four or five, have expressed their intention of submitting material in this competition. Please mention your intention to enter the contest to one of the English teachers soon. The prize offered is ten volumes of Kipling. Ten people must enter to make a contest.

STUDENTS' ACTIVITY FEE APPROVED

of the various student activities. In athletics they have increased the appropriation to current athletics by fifty per cent, while they have set aside one-fourth of the income of the athletic and forensic fee to provide for urgent needs of the athletic field, the pool, the gym, and the like. The percentage of the forensic fee is reduced from ten per cent, as it has been heretofore, to seven and one-half per cent, in view of the fact that the leaders of forensics think that that will be a sufficient amount. Six dollars of the ten of the fee will thus be used for athletics and forensics.

Upon recommendation of the Lyceum managers, one dollar and seventy-five cents of the fee has been apportioned to the support of the Lyceum. This amount, together with that secured from the sale of perhaps one hundred tickets to town people, will enable the managers to put on four magnificent numbers a year, numbers that will be a credit to any platform in the United States.

Since the Highland Echo editor and manager think that, on the new plan, it may be possible to publish the college paper for even less than one dollar, the Board has made it possible for the one dollar fund assigned to the Echo to be drawn upon also for the publicity printing that the students would need in case they were to join with the alumni or others in trying to secure the enlargement of the gymnasium. This would help greatly in meeting what is often an awkward expense.

The Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. will now have no fees and no drives, but all the students will be behind these organizations and share in their benefits. The budgets of the Associations will be carefully made, and, of course, will all be made for the benefit of the students. One dollar will be set aside from the fee for the support of these time-honored student activities.

Twenty-five cents is a small amount, but, if there are eight hundred students, it will amount to two hundred dollars, and this sum will meet a sore need in providing for the band, the orchestra, and the chorus, and in meeting other incidental expenses of these student organizations that serve the student body.

The Board empowered the Faculty to adjust any additional matters that may require attention in the functioning of the new fee.

The Board was unanimous in its vote in favor of the Student Activities Fee, and all the criticism of the movement was favorable. So the new plan goes into effect under very happy auspices, and with the unanimous approval of the students, the faculty, and the directors.

"SENIOR KID PARTY"

"Turn backward, turn backward, oh time in your flight, and make me a child again just for tonight." How fully these lines were realized on last Friday night, when Lamar Wilson entertained his little classmates. Each little girl and boy, dressed in their Sunday best, ruffles and bows, knickerbocker trousers, and "buster brown" collars, came bringing their pet toy with them. What a good time we had, playing "Clap in, Clap out", "Winkum", and other games, and reading stories from all kinds of nice story books. While we played, pink and white ice-cream in cones, stick candy and all-day suckers were passed. Then later on hot chocolate and cake, and rosy apples were served. Everyone of us broke our mother's command—"Don't eat too much", and "Don't stay late", but it was such a temptation especially when visits to the fountain of youth are not made everyday.

teer squad soon overtook it. The Highlanders came back strong however and never let up till the score stood 30-28. It advanced only two marks more for M. C. and seven for U. T. during the last ten minutes of play. Those last few minutes! Oh boy, but they were crowned with action. Hendrick brought the intense interest manifested to a sudden extrusion when he did one of those back hand throws and caged the old sphere for an add of two marks. McGinley performed what must have been a Kansas-Kid step and then neatly placed the ball in the hoop. Cheers greeted the shot. James of U. T. commanded silence as the ball he threw rolled through space and back-bounced through the ring for a count. Big Bill Hatcher slapped the ball a few times towards the goal but nothing happened but a laugh from the sidelines. Many other interesting and amusing things happened so that one fellow could not see all and record at the same time, so if you have not passed the image-forming stage of life picture for yourself some of the most thrilling plays that could possibly happen and you will have the movie of those last few minutes quite complete.

The line-up and scoring was as follows:

Delozier, 2	g.	Hatcher, A. H.

Forty-Fourth Series of February Meetings Reaps Large Harvest

"Victor Trio"--Dr. Bartlett, Mr. Hammontree and Mr. Ackley--lead one of "Cleanest Sweeps" in History of College; One Hundred and Eight Conversions, Three Hundred and Forty-nine Reconsecrations During Eleven Days

(By Delemo Beard)

The Rev. William T. Bartlett, D. D., of the class of '01, led the forty-fourth series of the February meetings at Maryville College this year. This is the third series of these meetings that Dr. Bartlett has conducted, and being the last it is by no means the least important, for, although miracles were performed in both of the other meetings, the miracles just performed were even greater than any that have preceded in the history of the College. The students join with Mr. Hammontree in saying that they love Maryville College more now than they have ever loved it before.

The students of Maryville College, as well as the many town people who attended the meetings, owe a debt of gratitude to all three of the men who conducted this series of meetings. Partly for convenience we shall call them "The Victor Trio", for surely no greater victories were ever won in the world,—besides the victory of Christ on the cross—than some that have just been won here on College Hill within the last two weeks, and this is due to the power of God through these three men.

The forceful preaching of the gospel message by Dr. Bartlett, and his power to feel the pulse of the young people will never be forgotten by the many who heard him; and it is safe to say that the influence of these meetings will be a constant help to every hearer throughout the days to come. His purpose to reach everyone on College Hill was fulfilled, and can anyone say, who has been attending, "I have not received an ounce of good from any of the meetings?" Who can forget the illustrations he used, and their simple but gripping application to our daily work and lives? Who can forget the story of Hazel Adams and her three dollars, and its connection with the "lad" who gave his five loaves and two fishes; and who is not more mindful of the fact that Christ can use what we have no matter how little or worthless it seems to us, to be a great blessing to some one?

Again the dog story is one that will never be forgotten, and although he may have created a desire in us to get a nice little brindle puppy, yet the paramount thought—faith in God—was clear all the way through. He made it plain that no matter if any one has become esteemed as a dog and people look at him with a scorn, as did the Jews upon the Gentiles, and call him a "Gentile dog", yet the never-failing love and mercy of Christ can save him.

Among other beautiful illustrations that he used was the story of fishing just off the shore of Mexico, the story of Chu, the Chinaman, and the story of shaking hands with Christie Matthewson. The story of his conversion is one that deserves special mention. He had planned with a friend to go 'possum hunting one night, and when all, they thought, was ready and they started to go, his friend was unable to find his dog, and, as the success of the night depended upon the dog, the hunt had to be called off. Being enthusiastic to go, he was disappointed badly, but soon settled the matter by saying that he would drop in the church and take his girl home. This he did, and took a back seat so he could get his girl as she came out, but he didn't take his girl home that night; instead, when the preacher gave the invitation he got up and went down, and was converted, and took Christ home with him instead of his girl.

Dr. Bartlett has great power in drawing pictures with words. In some of his illustrations he appears as "Bill" Bartlett, the boy; in others as "Bill" the base ball player; and in others he appears still different. One moment the audience would be laughing at his wit and sarcasm, and instantly everything would become so still that you could almost hear a fly crawling on glass, as he made the application to something that pertained to the welfare of our souls. His power to draw word pictures and bring the truth home is to be wondered at; but, further still, his power to persuade is marvellous. It does not seem possible that anyone could have resisted his invitation to come to Jesus, while such songs as, "Just as I am", "I'm coming home", and "Almost persuaded", were being so sweetly sung, and his clear determined voice was ringing out over the audience with the earnest plea, "Come!" The fact is that not many did resist.

Also the great success of the meetings depended in no small measure upon the work of Mr. Hammontree, and Mr. Ackley, the other members of "The Victor Trio". "Ham", as all the old students know him, is a wonderful song leader, as well as a soloist. His ability to teach a new song was shown in the fact that his task was done and the song was learned before one would hardly think he had time to tell them the name of the author. And the very fact that so many of his solos were called for over and over, answers this side of the question. No one will ever forget "Gethsemane", "The Land Where The Roses Never Fade", "The Prodigal Son" and "There's a Song in My Heart". It is safe to say that many of the converts were won by these and other songs.

Mr. Hammontree not only took the leading part in the music, but when the opportunity for personal work presented itself he was there to do his part. Also the success of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. meetings Sunday can be attributed to him. "Ham" is just the kind of a fellow that is always at the right place at the right time with the right thing and willing to give his service, and that is why the students of Maryville are always glad to see him come. And this is the reason that he was here for this series of meetings.

Mr. Ackley, the accompanist, simply cannot "be beat" at the piano. The touch of a master's hand was plainly evident when the first note was sounded, and became more and more evident as the meetings progressed. Mr. Ackley is not only a master at the piano, but he is the composer of some of our best songs such as, "If your heart keeps right", "I walk with the King", "I am coming home", and a number of others just as good and maybe better. He contributed in no small way to the success of the meetings. It is universally hoped that his niece will decide to come to Maryville next year!

Here's to "Bill", and Here's to "Ham", and Here's to our adopted friend, Mr. Ackley—Here's to the "Victor Trio", and Here's hoping to have them back soon again!

In addition to the inspiring solos rendered by Mr. Hammontree throughout the meetings the students were given the opportunity of hearing Mr. James Goddard, the world's second greatest Baritone singer. On Saturday evening he sang "The Golden Bells", accompanied by his sister, sneding a thrill through every soul in the audience. Also the Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday afternoon was favored by a selection from him, "My mother's prayer". It was fortunate for the College that Mr. Goddard was at home on a visit during the meetings.

The statistics of the meetings have not yet been fully worked out, but there were at least one hundred and eight who professd conversion, and three hundred and forty-nine who signed cards of reconsecration. Besides these, there were many visitors from town and elsewhere who shared largely in the blessings of the meetings. It is believed that the meetings resulted in the "cleanest sweep" in the history of the College.

Dr. Bartlett's Sermons

The passages of scripture and subjects used during the series of meetings were as follows:

Feb. 15—Morning, Acts 11:24; "He was a good man." Evening. Part of Acts 2, Revival of religion depends upon the Truth of God, the Spirit of God, and the interest of the people.

Feb. 16—Morning, John 17:15 "I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil." Evening, Matt. 15.22; "O Lord, thou Son of David; my daughter is grievously vexed with a devil." A prayer the elements of which are substitution, submissiveness, and faith.

Feb. 17—Morning, John 1:40; "One of the two which heard John speak, and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother." Subject—Personal work and religion. The four "D's" are Definition, Dynamic, Duty, and Delight. Evening, 2 Cor. 12:14; "I seek not yours but you". Because of the temporal and eternal value of your soul.

Feb. 18—Morning, John 6:1-13, The Lad, who was at the right place, who had the right thing, who had the right spirit, and who got the reward. Evening, 1 John 4; "God is love."

Feb. 19—Morning, Gen. 35:3; "And let us arise, and go up to Bethel; and I will make there an altar unto God, who answered me in the day of my distress, and was with me in the way which I went."

A RARE OPPORTUNITY

The so-called basket ball bee has become an almost extinct species in these parts, as far as intercollegiate basket ball is concerned, so that when he does buzz a feeble tune we consider it a rare opportunity to be witnesses thereof.

The boys' varsity will have no more games this year. But the co-eds will lock horns with the strong Cumberland College quintet from Williamsburg, Ky. next Monday evening, on the local court.

The girls' team will play Carson-Newman at Jefferson City tonight.

Take advantage of what may be your last opportunity to see intercollegiate basket ball this year and come to the game Monday evening! !

Remember the cost of consecration, cost of confession, cost of cleansing, and the cost of restitution, the Vision of God, and the Voice of God. Evening, Gen. 3:8; Luke 17:11-14, 1 John 3:4; Sin—the nastiest thing in the world.

Feb. 20—Morning at Presbyterian Church, John 17:3; "And this is life eternal that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." To know Christ is to be obedient, to have Love, and to be like Him. Evening, 1 John 2:28; "Little children abide in Him."

Feb. 21—Evening, Mark 5:34; "Daughter thy faith hath made thee whole."

Feb. 22—Morning, Subject The elder brother. Evening, John 19:30; "It is finished." Words of exclamation, description and declaration.

Feb. 23—Morning, Matt. 27:22; "What then shall I do with Jesus who is called Christ?" There is the personal, positive, and primary element. Evening, Eph. 2:8; "For by grace are ye saved through faith". The element of love is found in the grace of God, and it must be taken as a gift.

Feb. 24—Morning, Luke 20:18; "Whosoever falleth on this stone shall be broken to pieces, but upon whomsoever it falls he shall be ground to powder." Evening, Luke 9:59; "And he said unto another, Follow me." He had a prepared head, a prepared heart, a prepared conscience, but lacked a prepared will.

Hits Scored By Dr. Bartlett

The highest accomplishment of any life is to be good.

To be great is just to the few, but thank God, to be good is in the possibility of every life, and it is not based upon brilliancy.

Paul and Barnabas both did wrong, but who would dare say they were not good men—and they were good because they had God in them.

You can see vices and virtues but you cannot see character.

As Matthewson's fadeaway, all lives go along the same way to a certain place and then one curves this way and one that way. It is because of the inner twist that God gives; and without this twist men fail.

After all it is God in the life and soul of man that counts.

God never has denied his people. He never will.

The world needs a message and Christ brought this message.

God left us in the world that through our lives He might give something to others.

If Christ were in the world now, I believe He would be out in all the life of the world.

We cannot be Christians by the aesthetic but by the athletic.

APPRECIATION GIFTS GIVEN "VICTOR TRIO"

Students Present Appropriate Mementos to Show Gratitude To Leaders.

The last chapel service of the February Meetings was an interesting, thrilling, helpful occasion, morally, spiritually, intellectually, musically and every other way. The band played splendidly. Its leader, Mr. Harry Bannister, certainly is to be congratulated on its splendid work.

After the usual chapel service, Dr. Wilson took charge, and told us that God had sent us three good men, of whom we are all proud. He then explained to the only three who were not in the secret that the students and faculty wished to give some token of the deep love they have for these three men and the heartfelt appreciation for what they have done for the College. Accordingly on behalf of the entire College he presented Dr. Bartlett with a pocketbook containing some money with which to buy a fishing rod and a dog. Dr. Bartlett promised to think of Maryville every time he pulled out a fish and every time his dog barked. And he threatened not to come back unless M. C. beats U. T. this year. Dr. Wilson then presented Mr. Hammontree with a traveling bag to go with the trunk we gave him last year. Dr. Wilson carefully explained that it was to be used on his wedding trip, but "Ham" made no promises. He claimed that he had forgotten his carefully prepared speech, but he made another that was just as good. Its conclusion was characteristic "The world passeth away and the lust thereof, but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever.' God bless you. Thank you for the hand bag". Mr. Ackley's turn came next. He has never broken the golden chain of harmony, but he had broken his watch chain, so his was a new one to take its place. He said that he wasn't a public speaker and couldn't make a speech and that "Ham" stole the one he had so carefully prepared, and then he made such a pleasing speech of acceptance. We're all looking forward to that niece of his who is coming next year.

After that we yelled for Bartlett, Hammontree, and Ackley, gave "How we How" and sang the College song.

Then we marched out to the thrilling march played by the band —and the February Meetings of 1921 ended.

TENNIS SHARKS GET READY

Soon will be the season when the raquetteer will be in his glory, and Maryville College should get ready to show the class which was shown last year. Already U. T. has vowed a comeback and Vandy is ready to play when the time comes. We have lost big Ed Moore and Tracy Knapp, two of our last year's tennis cracks, but with John Hendrick, the star of last year's team, leading we should show even better form than last year for there is a wealth of material which only needs to be whipped into shape.

Four Maryville girls recently demonstrated the oft-reiterated statement that Maryville College can put out a better entertainment than any lyceum company, when they gave a benefit for the High School at Miss Beeler's home town. Mary Emma Armentrout played. Lola Beeler read, and Virginia and Goldie Nicely sang and read. The program was an unusually well-balanced one and was deeply appreciated by the people who heard it.

ALUMNI MOVEMENT GATHERS MOMENTUM

Mr. John E. Tracy, '01, Makes Valuable Suggestion.

Following this note we are giving the text of a very thoughtful and timely reply to the suggestion which was made in this column as to the asumption of the task of increasing the gymnasium by the alumni. May we have more suggestions from alumni so that when the commencement season arrives there may be a real basis for action. The proposal which follows in the letter from Mr. Tracy will surely find a response but we hope that the alumni who were not so fortunate as to have been athletes will be unwilling to have no part in a plan to help Alma Mater.

John E. Tracy,
Counsellor at Law
128 Broadway
New York

February 18, 1921

The Highland Echo,
Maryville, Tenn.
Gentlemen:

I have before me your issue of February 10, 1921, in which I note two interesting articles; one, the announcement of the adoption of the new student activity fee, and the other your editorial calling on the alumni for suggestions as to organized service.

I think that the alumni will all rejoice at the new policy which has been adopted in favor of enlarging the athletic and other activities of the student body, as this is a plan for which many of us were working and planning twenty years and more ago. As that is now to be listed as an accomplishment rather than a plan, we can turn next to your suggestion for organized service by the alumni.

I have long felt that we alumni were not taking as deep interest as we might in the present activities of the College, and I have already usggested to Dr. Wilson that I believe a movement should be made to revive interest in the Alumni and Undergraduate Fund which has always seemed to me an excellent idea, but which has not been actively pushed for several years past. I am hopeful that the Alumni Association will take some action along this line at their next meeting.

The movement which you suggest in your editorial, however, is one which in my mind should be met in another way than through the Alumni Association. There is no question that there is a pressing need for a larger gymnasium, and the men who most thoroughly understand that need are those men who throughout the lifetime of the College have participated in athletics as members of the various athletic teams.

I therefore suggest that a movement be started to raise the needed money by subscription from all former athletes of the college. As a working basis, I would suggest that a student committee be appointed by the athletic association with one or two alumni members who reside in Maryville; that this committee go through the file of College periodicals, which can probably be found at the Library, and pick out a list of the members of the various athletic teams in each year; that they then attempt, by examining the alumni records and by all other methods, to learn the present addresses of each former athlete, and send him a personal appeal to become a subscriber to this fund. As a former member of the foot ball and base ball teams, I shall be very glad to contribute as liberally as I can to such a fund.

If the addition is to be in the shape of an annex to the gymnasium, it might be appropriate to give to the annex the name of some distinguished athlete who has died since his graduation. Some might offer the name of Kin Takahashi, who was not only a distinguished athlete, but who also inspired the building of the gymnasium. Another suggestion would be Mort Erwin, '01, who was one of the greatest foot ball ends whom Maryville ever had, and who died in 1906, just as he was entering upon his professional career as a physician.

Yours very truly,
John E. Tracy, '01.

Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson entertained Mr. Hammontree and Mr. Ackley at the House-in-the-Woods during the February meetings. Dr. Bartlett and his mother, Dr. and Mrs. Wilson, Dr. and Mrs. McMurray, and several other members of the College faculty were entertained at supper by Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson last Monday evening.

SENIOR PARTY AT HOME OF B. L. GLASCOCK

Never did Saint Valentine see so many happy folks gathered to celebrate his birthday, as the crowd of Seniors and future Seniors who were entertained so royally at the home of Mr. B. L. Glascock on Monday night, February 14. Pep! Just plenty of it from the time Frances Hickey and Red Hayes (first couple to arrive) put in their appearance until Elsie Dawson and Jarvis Cotton, after seeing everyone safely housed for the night, parted company reluctantly at Pearsons near the wee small hours of the night.

If the Seniors of '22 want a gay, good time just remember some of the things we did.

Every contest was a hundred per cent successful because there were lots of prizes. Ray Foster has a nice, new rubber ball now because he not only found quite a few pierced hearts, but man-like depended on some of the fair sex to add the necessary number to put him over the top. And when it comes to making people say yes or no and thereby forfeit one of their original ten hearts, Myrtle Rendon has us all beat, even the best of men and others like Red, Ray and Mr. B. L.

You can't hold a good woman down!

Now in order to get everybody interested in the wedding of Miss Flower, pieces of broken hearts were matched. It always takes two to mend a broken heart, so, in the usual way, boy and girl worked together (not saying how) on the contest. Again a fair maiden was superior in the knowledge of flowers. Aileen Rutherford was the skillful one! We are all working toward a degree, Monday night it was the "Mrs." degree for each Senior prepared his matrimonial card—they are now on file.

But the best is yet to be! The heart is somewhere near the stomach, so physiologists tell us, and "Everywoman" has found this palatable way to the heart in question. What could have done the work more effectively than the vanilla and chocolate cream joined together by whipped cream touched up with a red cherry?

Time always does fly and College Hill was quite a piece from the home of festivity, so we all thanked our hosts and hostesses, for the best time ever, wished everybody a goodnight, and turned toward home. How? In the usual way—two by two.

BOARD OF TEMPERANCE PRIZE AWARDED

Misses Reva Rankin and Jessie Johnson Win in Contest.

The Board of Temperance and Moral Welfare of the Presbyterian Church has for some years been providing funds to the various church schools to be awarded the successful competitors in oratorical contests dealing with themes related to temperance and prohibition measures. Since the going into effect of the constitutional amendment prohibiting the traffic in liquor, this grant has been withdrawn from many of the former recipients, but this year the grant was made to Maryville College as usual.

The competition was staged as part of the work of the course in English known as Argumentation, English 1, which ran the first semester. Forty-nine students actually spoke in the competition. The contest was judged by the instructor in charge of the course, Professor Hunter.

On Saturday morning, February 12, the awarding of the prizes took place in the Chapel. Dr. Wilson made the presentation of the prizes, one, the first prize of fifteen dollars to Miss Reva Rankin, '23 of Athens, Tennessee; the other, the second prize of ten dollars to Miss Jessie Johnson, '21 also of Athens. Miss Rankin's oration was on the subject, The Enforcement of the Law. Miss Johnson spoke on the subject, Is the Duty of the Enemies of Alcohol Done?

It is to be regretted that the entire student body did not get to hear these speakers and the numerous others who followed close in the wake of the two accomplished Athenians who won the award.

TRIANGLE CLUB

The triangular club, composed of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania gladiolites met in Theta Epsilon hall on Monday afternoon, February 14th. The entertainment which required and attracted the attention and the services of everyone was under the wise management and solicitation of the Minarik, Alice and Holt Company.

The gladiolites were very good to have I. K. demonstrate and acquaint each one with the hot bottled theory. Although most of the facts concerning the usefulness of such a bottle have been proved by our chemists, yet, another further step was taken in the scientific world, when I. K. proved by his game of bottles theorizing how a little insignificant red hollow vessal without a cork could tell and point out the peculiar and weak traits in human character.

During the intervals of such practical games several musical selections were rendered by the gladiolite players. Following this enjoyable entertainment which preceded their adjournment, Alice and Holt added the final climax to such a happy meeting by serving some of their special dainties of domestic art.

PREPARATORY DEBATERS SELECTED

The Preparatory boys' preliminaries were held recently and sixteen fellows were chosen from the twenty-five participating. The ones chosen are: Cornelious, Hayworth, Karrick, Fraker, Maye, Friedman, Burson, Jester, Milling, Campbell, Brown, and Patrick, with the alternates, Ginnens, Moore, Gamble and Hoffman.

The first six men named will clash with Knoxville High School, one of the strongest high schools in the State.

Opponents for the other two teams have not as yet been definitely decided upon, but Coach Brittain is at work on the plans and will be able to make an announcement of the completed schedule within a few days.

Jence—What do you think about praying before an examination and then cheating?

Florence—Well, the Lord helps those who help themselves.

BAINONIANS DEBATE A VITAL QUESTION

Discuss Methods of Reforming Faculty, Dining Hall, And "Men".

Bainonians were entertained by a cleverly given debate: Resolved, that the occupation of a horse thief is more profitable than that of a college professor. All of the speakers handled the question wittily, but the Negative speakers, Ruth Parham and Elizabeth Mitchell, saved the professors from changing their positions, by convincing the crowd that the occupation of a professor is more profitable. Effie Ericson and Sallee Huffaker, the Affirmative speakers were very convincing and witty speakers for their side.

After the debate Anne Mae Holland sang a pleasing solo.

Some extemporaneous speeches were next called for. Irma Schwab was asked to reform the faculty, Reva Rankin to reform the dining hall, and Lois Hayes to reform the men.

Irma Schwab cleverly endowed some of the faculty with some such qualities as more flesh so they would be more comfortable looking in the school room, pompadours and curls, and to some she gave beauty; to others she took away such qualities as power and blushes and to one she took away a mirror.

Reva Rankin's main reform was to put small tables in the dining hall at which only four people could be seated and used the present rule that the same number of boys and of girls should be seated at each table. Where a small table was more convenient, it was put in and only two were seated at it. She also gave a table for two, back in a most obscure corner to Miss Molly Then lastly she put in a polished floor.

Lois Hayes, who was to reform the men said that she would—oh, we guess we had better not tell the boys, because it is a hint.

The Play, "Prudence Says So" Presented

At a recent meeting of the Bainonian Literary Society the Bainonian Expression students presented a playlet from "Prudence Says So" in which Connie, (Bernice West) was the interesting and attractive young daughter. She played her role wonderfully well. The invalid aunt (Annarine Atkins), the father (Ruth Greenlee) and the twins (Martha Robison and Myrtle Rendon) comprised the home. The father is called away when the son of his friend, a millionaire, comes to visit them. The family try in every manner to make a good impression and one of the twins acts as a maid to give a stylish effect. The young daughter, Connie, soon wins the admiration of the son and turns a trick on the twin who is also desirous of "giving the right effect", by telling him that her sister is the maid.

A word must be given to the son of the millionaire. Callie Speck played the role which was excellently portrayed. So well did she look her part, that we wish to tell you that even one of the matrons took her for a brother of one of the girls.

Ruth Gamble sang a negro song in which the negro mammy compared her baby to all of the things the colored people hold dear—such as watermelon and sweet potatoes. The program was closed by this much welcomed solo by Miss Gamble.

Prof. A. F. Southwick and his newly acquired wife visited in Maryville on last Friday and Saturday. They were given cheers of welcome by the students at the dining hall Friday evening.

ATHENIANS ELECT OFFICERS FOR REST OF YEAR

Young Hayes Elected to Presidency; Gives Short Inaugural Address.

At a recent meeting of the Athenian Literary Society the newly elected officers were installed into their responsible positions.

The program was short but well prepared. The first number was an inaugural address by Young Hayes. This was short but to the point. Mr. Beard gave a reading that was enjoyed by all. Then Mr. Prince and Mr. Mathews locked horns in a heated debate on the appropriate question, Resolved, That College examinations should be abolished. Mr. Prince upheld the affirmative and won the decision.

The new officers for this semester are as follows:

Young Hayes - - - President
Lee Herndon - - Vice President
Verton Queener - Recording Secy.
R. A. N. Wilson - Program Secy.
Lee Roy Middleton and Tom Vance - - - - - - Critics
Cazwell Johnstone, Sergeant-at-Arms

With Mr. Hayes and this staff of willing workers at the head of our society the future looks very promising indeed.

THETA EPSILON

On Monday night, January 31st., Theta Hall was crowded to its capacity, for it was rumored abroad that "Daddy" Knapp would be there and we knew he would talk either about Birds or Stars. Not that he does not know "oodles" of other nice things to talk about, but because he loves them most of all we believe, and because he knows so much about them. We count it a treat to hear him at any time and we hope he will come again—soon.

February 5th.

We don't know why old maids are always picked on, and poked fun at, but it seems they are. Some folks seem to think nothing could be any worse than to be one, and I rather guess that is the case if the ones we saw at Theta were fair specimens. All the camaflouge in Madame's shop did not help much, so far as looks were concerned, and poor Anne was quite distracted when she couldn't look pretty for her "Kitty". Somehow none of them seemed so glad of their freedom 'cause Irene Curtis ran off with a Sewing Machine Agent, and all of Miss Betty Barker's alias, Jessie Johnson, guests were "cattish" as could be. Some of them were rather accomplished however, as Miss Betty herself showed a fair knowledge of Jane Austin's work. "Virgie" Nicely sang, with a great deal of pathos, "Give Me All of Your Love", and, "Keep on Sewing for That Hopeless Chest." We also enjoyed a violin solo by Betty Fowler and a piano duet by Lucile Carter and Ruth White.

JUNIOR ATHENIANS

Come where there's something doing,
And where you will be treated right!
Up to the Junior Athenian Hall,
At six-thirty Saturday night.

You will take back with you to your room something worth while. The snappy debates, ludicrous readings, parliamentary drills, and the harmonious music all help to make one of the most perfect evenings that one could desire.

The meeting Saturday night was opened with prayer by President Brown, then came an animated address by the President. His speech was greatly enjoyed and Jester told us another of those good stories which tickled our funny-bone extremely. Then there was open discussion by various members of the Society, and the closing prayer by "Betty".

JUNIOR ALPHA SIGMA

The last meeting of the Junior Alpha Sigma Literary Society was just one of the many fine programs put on by that society.

The first number on the program was a speech by Mr. Patrick. Mr. Patrick spoke on the immigration question and gave his hearers no small amount of food for serious thought on that subject.

However, serious thought was not destined to long occupy the minds of the Junior Alphas, for Mr. Nichols came next on the program with several short and snappy humorous stories.

The question for the debate which followed was, Resolved: That the dog is more useful than the gun. Affirmative: Messrs. Karrick and Stone. Negative: Messrs. Walker and Huffman. The speakers handled the subject in a masterful and also humorous way, and when the members of the society left the hall they were confident that they had a deeper insight into the nature of dogs and guns than they had had before.

If you are looking for knowledge and valuable training, as well as a good time, just visit the Junior Alpha Sigma Literary Society—you will find all that you are looking for there!

Go To Class Meetings

Why is it that the class meetings of Maryville College are so poorly attended? It is beyond our power to discover the reason for this great deficiency—but the deficiency is certainly present.

Out of a class of one hundred students it usually happens that twenty or thirty have sufficient energy and interest in the affairs of the class to attend the class meetings which unfortunately have to be held at the inopportune time of twelve-ten. The business of the class has to therefore be conducted by the small percentage of the members present.

Then when these loyal few take action, and motions are carried or defeated, it very often happens that those who do not attend the meetings jump immediately to the conclusion that it was "fixed" or that a "political clique" is running the class. When such cliques do exist they are more often accidental than planned. There should certainly be a greater interest in and attendance at the business meetings of the classes in order that these disputes and differences should not exist.

The Echo is merely presenting the weakness of every class of the College in this respect, and the purpose of this editorial is an endeavor to stimulate a greater interest and feeling of responsibility in the members of each class for the business of their class.

It is said that there are some students in the College who actually do not know to what class they belong. If you are such a one, we would say of you—that you are in the same class with the man without a country, and, that if you do not wish to remain long in such a class, you had better trot down to the office "tout de suite" and find out where you stand and then Go To Your Class Meetings.

It will not seriously injure you to be a little late to luncheon once in a while—and you will be amply repaid by the success of your class and by your extended list of friends.

WEST INDIES AND N.E. COAST OF SO. AMERICA

(By Van Hunter)

(Mr. Hunter, who was for one year in the employ of the Republic Mining and Manufacturing Co. at Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, briefly sets forth a few facts here which we think will be of interest to the readers of the Echo. Mr. Hunter is a member of the Fourth Preparatory class of M. C.)

From all indications, the average American citizen is sadly misinformed regarding our next-door neighbors in the West Indies and on the Continent of South America.

WEST INDIES

Numerous islands comprise the West Indies, some poor and undeveloped, others rich in minerals, estates, etc., and possess all the luxuries that we have in our own United States and more too, in some instances. Some of the most important islands of the West Indies are as follows: The Virgin Islands, (U. S.), Martinique, (France), Grenada, (Great Britain), Barbados, (Great Brittain) Jamaica (Great Britain), Curacao (Holland), Haitii (U. S.), Trinidad (Great Britain) and St. Kitts (Great Britain). There are many others, but the above is a goodly representation of what is known as the "West Indies". When some person speaks of the "British West Indies", he refers to British possession in the West Indies and so with France, Holland and other countries. When the writer first heard of "British or Dutch West Indies", he understood it to be some huge island "somewhere" off the coast of South America. But we all live and learn, so did I. The most important industry of all the West Indian Islands is that of planting; consisting chiefly of cocoanuts, coffee, cocoa, sugar and bananas. It is without question that these Islands abound in great mineral deposits, but they lie dormant and undeveloped as yet. Some day, there will be another story to tell, and that day is not far distant.

As to the languages spoken in these West Indian Islands. In most instances, the people speak the language of their protectorate; that is: if British, they speak English; if, French, they speak French and so on, but almost universally among these people, there is a common language in use on all the islands known as "Talki-talki", consisting of English, French, Spanish, Dutch and what not. If you once get the knack of speaking Talki-talki, you can go almost anywhere and make yourself understood. Also, Spanish is spoken a great deal, mainly because of the refugees from revolutionary states in South America being scattered pellmell about the West Indies. For instance, Port of Spain, the capitol of Trinidad, just a few miles from Venezuela and a British possession too, contains far more Spanish-speaking people than English.

The harbors of the West Indian Islands present an enchanting view. For a few miles from shore, you view a solid green mass of hills and as you come closer, you begin to wonder if there is any town at all on the island. But only a mile or more away, you may get a view of a beautiful little city, with a crescent-shaped harbor, hemmed in by towering cliffs with vapor enough from the ocean to prevent a real good view. In most cases, all big boats remain out in the bay, and launches, row boats, lighters, etc., take care of passengers and freight. This is because of the fact that most of these islands have shallow harbors, and navigation is risky business to the big steamers. The natives all swarm out in little canoes or most any old thing that will float in order to see the steamer. In some places, even a holiday is declared to celebrate the arrival of some big boat, and may I say that they well deserve it when they live in such lonesomeness as surrounds those islands.

SOUTH AMERICA

Very little can the writer say regarding South America, excepting the three Guianas and Venezeula. Like any one else, I have only heard of the other countries of South America, therefore I hesitate in trying to tell what has been told to me, but not so as to what I have actually seen and lived through.

Venezuela is the largest Republic on the extreme Northeastern coast and its chief industries are cattle-raising, tanning, cocoa-planting and other forms of agriculture. Gold is also being taken out of Venezuela in large quantities. Spanish is the language spoken in Venezuela. "The mountains of Venezuela remind one of our own Western mountains", as one good American remarked to the writer while viewing them a few miles off-shore. They are very rugged and blessed with all sorts of natural beauty.

There is very little contrast to be drawn between the three Guianas: British, French, and Dutch. British Guiana, however, is the best developed of the three. These colonies are entirely tropical and their chief industries are to be found in agricultural pursuits. French Guiana is the least developed of the three, being only a great big prison for France's criminals. Indeed we know not what pity for our fellowman is until we can see and talk with these exiled Frenchmen. On an exposed spot on the French Guiana coast, surrounded by jungles and towering mountains, there is a little French village known as St. Laurent. Here the prison stands, a silent sentinel and a warning to those who would commit crime in France. After these Frenchmen are deported from France and have served their prison sentence, they are allowed the freedom of the little town of St. Laurent, but cannot leave the place, not even the outskirts of the town. Their only means of a livelihood is that of making brick. Many of the prisoners escape from time to time into Dutch Guiana and Venezuela. The mines of the Surinaamsche Bauxite Maatschappij is one hundred miles into the interior of Dutch Guiana and only fifteen miles from border of French Guiana and the prison at St. Laurent. Hence, the Company is the benefactor of quite a few escaped convicts who make their way through the jungles and to the Mines of the Surinaamsche Bauxite Mattschappij. Many of them die in their attempt to escape, but to them, life means nothing, so why not a risk? And out of one hundred and twenty-five prisoners the above Company has working for it, not one has yet been found doing that which is dishonorable. They are far more trustworthy than the common native coolie and do more work in one day than the coolie does in a week. Naturally, a French convict is a good investment when it comes to getting hard work done.

To the would-be adventurer, I would say go down to South America or anywhere else out of the States, get all the excitement possible, and there is plenty of it, then come running home and appreciate your dear old United States more than you ever could have otherwise. And after all adventuring is over, the American globe-trotter will heartily agree that the United States is the only country in which to live.

But to the person who would content him or herself with seeing South America without going through the monotonous trials of travel, the writer would recommend the following books for some real honest-to-goodness information and views of our Sister America. They are: "Tramping Thru Mexico, Honduras, and Guatemala", by Harry A. Franck; "Vagabonding Down the Andes", also by Mr. Franck; "South America of Today", by Georges Clemenceau. We all know of Mr. Clemenceau as a diplomat more than an author, but he is a peer in his ability to write as well as attending to affairs of state. "South American Republics", by Dawson; "South America, Observations and Impressions", by Bryce.

A great country is our Sister America and too, she is causing more sensations every day throughout the world for her richness and discoveries of undeveloped wealth, and in the not distant future the whole continent is going to be a real bonanza to fortune seekers as Alaska was in the days gone by.

MR. HAMMONTREE ADDRESSED Y. M. C. A.

Mr. James Goddard Sang at Sunday Afternoon Meeting.

One of the most helpful "Y" meetings of the year was that which Mr. Hammontree conducted last Sunday afternoon. In spite of the bad weather and the various other services of the day, the auditorium was filled with men and boys. Music was furnished by Mr. Hammontree, Mr. Ackley, Mr. Jim Goddard and the College quartet. This, together with Mr. Hammontree's simple, forceful address, made the meeting one that will long be remembered.

After a song by the quartet and a Scripture lesson which consisted of quoted Bible verses, Mr. Hammontree sang a very beautiful solo, "I Have Found a Friend to Guide Me, So May You". He then commenced his address by telling of pleasure at being back again in the old "Y" hall, so full of happy memories for him. He spoke on the subject of reconsecrating our lives to the service of God. He emphasized the happiness of those who have given Christ their lives. They find that they can truly say "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me". Illustrating this, the speaker told of a time when he being present at the chapel exercises of a large university, was, without warning, suddenly introduced to the audience as "Dr. Hammontree" who was to address them. As he arose, he said, his prayer was, "Lord, if you ever kept that promise, keep it now". The petition was answered, and the speech was successfully made. In closing, Mr. Hammontree pled for a complete surrender of every life, that God, according to His promise might light the way and guide the course of each.

The meeting was very fittingly concluded by Mr. Goddard's solo, "My Mother's Prayer". The beauty and appeal of this song were felt by everyone, and all felt grateful for the privilege of hearing Mr. Goddard.

COLLEGE GIRLS HEAR MR. HAMMONTREE

In Y. W. C. A. Sunday afternoon that very vital question "How may we know what the Lord wants us to do?" was answered. Christ wants all the unsaved to believe on Him. Those who are professing Christians were directed to the last half of the twenty-second chapter of Job. God's message to Christians is to lay the treasure in the dust. Whatever keeps one from being absolutely surrendered to Christ must be given up. This treasure that separates one from the Lord's blessing may be a selfish ambition, some sin, or the influence of some companion. There is no joy until this treasure is laid in the dust. Those who do surrender shall never walk in darkness and God will give them greater treasure. Their faces shall be aglow with God, their prayers heard and their vows kept. When the treasure is laid in the dust there will no longer be disgust and discouragement because of broken promises. The Lord never asks the impossible. The treasure of one's life must be given up and a complete surrender made before satisfactory Christian life may be led. After the talk an opportunity was given the girls to sever themselves from the one thing that stood in the way of the Lord. Many laid down their treasure and every girl received a blessing from the meeting.

JOINT Y.W.C.A. ADDRESS

Y.W.C.A. has been very fortunate in securing so many interesting outside speakers to talk to the girls. The central idea of Miss Tyler's talk Sunday, February 13, was "The Task of Our Lives is Where We Live". Foreign missions, home missions and work in the home towns and churches are all very essential to a complete religious life. We girls were told to keep our college aspirations high and not to let our enthusiasm wane. A college education couples with it responsibility, and we must all measure up to the highest that is in us. We were told to look ahead and plan our lives after college. We must work toward something definite. Examples were given of what can be done at home with the neglected groups that need straightening out. We learned of the tremendously worthwhile things to be done in all corners. What are we going to stand for? Are we going to dissipate our energy? How are we going to invest our lives? Miss Tyler closed her practical talk with a graphic picture of the story of the bronze statue at St. Johns, New Brunswick. Are we going to hold the ropes out to the helpless child and to the struggling man? Are we going to stand by, mere onlookers in the crowd, while the drowning child and man drift out to sea?

The cello solo by Miss Huizinga and the vocal solo by Miss Johnson were both very good musical numbers. We are glad Miss Tyler was here to enjoy a spring day in the sunny south and we are glad to have had the opportunity of enjoying such a hlepful and inspiring message.

REPORT OF Y.M.C.A. CONVENTION AT NASHVILLE

(By Forrest Brown)

Gleanings from reports of Inter-Racial Committee at State Convention:

Race is more potent than politics.

Race is the prime factor in world problems. Nations and races are becoming self-conscious.

There is an increasing unity and interdependence of life. What are you contributing? What sort of unity are we tending to? Friendliness increases the proper kind of unity.

Know a man and you will like him. View him from a distance and his faults will appear in relief.

Each race has genuine value in itself. The Anglo Saxon has not always been the predominant race.

Suspicion breeds hatred. Hatred breeds war. Beware of your attitude towards the negro.

It is not easy for two men to understand each other. It is impossible for a man to understand all about a woman. It is not easy to understand the Negro. But the negro is here to stay, and our relationships depend largely on our attitude. Difference does not mean discrimination.

Presentation of Industrial Program

By Chas. R. Towson

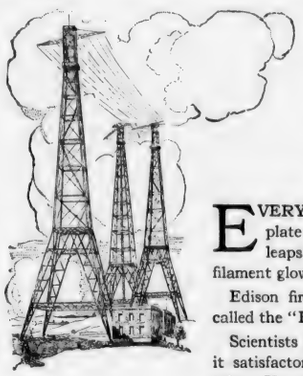
One of the strongest features of the State Convention program was the presentation of the industrial program of the Association by Chas. R. Towson of the International Committee. Mr. Towson has been one of the pioneers in this new phase of extension of Christ into industry.

The great objective of the industrial department, like that of the whole movement, is to lead men into the personal knowledge of their Saviour.

The reasons for entering the Industrial Field are that the men are there and their presence presents problems neglected by the usual agencies. Yet that mass is the most susceptible; and not only that but Industry holds the resources to meet the needs it creates.

The lines of projection into Industry are two: into the special fields such as cotton mills, lumber camps, and isolated industries; and into the city Associations where there are many men who work in the smaller and more confined occupations.

The principle of the development is to build Christian character by emphasizing laymen and specializing in work for men and boys.



Progress is shown by the fact

How is a Wireless Message Received?

EVERY incandescent lamp has a filament. Mount a metal plate on a wire in the lamp near the filament. A current leaps the space between the filament and the plate when the filament glows.

Edison first observed this phenomenon in 1883. Hence it was called the "Edison effect."

Scientists long studied the "effect" but they could not explain it satisfactorily. Now, after years of experimenting with Crookes tubes, X-ray tubes and radium, it is known that the current that leaps across is a stream of "electrons"— exceedingly minute particles negatively charged with electricity.

These electrons play an important part in wireless communication. When a wire grid is interposed between the filament and the plate and charged positively, the plate is aided in drawing electrons across; but when the grid is charged negatively it drives back the electrons. A very small charge applied to the grid, as small as that received from a feeble wireless wave, is enough to vary the electron stream.

So the grid in the tube enables a faint wireless impulse to control the very much greater amount of energy in the flow of electrons, and so radio signals too weak to be perceived by other means become perceptible by the effects that they produce. Just as the movement of a throttle controls a great locomotive in motion, so a wireless wave, by means of the grid, affects the powerful electron stream.

All this followed from studying the mysterious "Edison effect"— a purely scientific discovery.

No one can foresee what results will follow from research in pure science. Sooner or later the world must benefit practically from the discovery of new facts.

For this reason the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company are concerned as much with investigations in pure science as they are with the improvement of industrial processes and products. They, too, have studied the "Edison effect" scientifically. The result has been a new form of electron tube, known as the "pliotron", a type of X-ray tube free from the vagaries of the old tube; and the "kenetron", which is called by electrical engineers a "rectifier" because it has the property of changing an alternating into a direct current.

All these improvements followed because the Research Laboratories try to discover the "how" of things. Pure science always justifies itself.

VARSITY DROPS TWO GAMES AT KNOXVILLE

Highlanders' Invasion of Knoxville Territory Results in Surrender With Honors.

Seeing Ourselves As Others See Us.

One style and method of writing up athletic contests being read all the time soon becomes uninteresting and dry. So for that reason it seemed altogether fitting and wise to give to the readers of the "Echo" a sample, word for word, of the sport write-ups our men get when they participate in athletic contests away from home.

Not so much for comparison, but just for a "change" the following dope, from the Knoxville "Sentinel" sport section, and from the sport page of the Knoxville "Journal and Tribune", is given that you may see how others think of our basketball squad and of their playing.

"Sentinel Report of Game With U. T., Feb. 10, on "Y" Court, Knoxville, Tenn.

The Fighting Volunteers won their second engagement with the Maryville College basketters at the Y.M.C.A. last night, 32 to 17.

Tennessee's game was superior to the team-work displayed in the first contest with Maryville, while Maryville did not show the fighting spirit which characterized their playing last Saturday night.

Tennessee was leading at the end of the first half, 11 to 9. During the first seven minutes of the last half the Highlanders clung tenaciously to the Fighting Volunteers, only allowing the latter a four point lead. Maryville started a rally which threatened to tie the score, but it was of short duration.

The rally seemed to awake Tennessee, as the Fighting Volunteers experienced no difficulty in rolling up a number of counters. Both teams played a good game. Tennessee showed better team-work than in any game this season. Their defense was stronger than in the first game against Maryville, but there was room for improvement.

Maryville's passing game was at par, and for a few minutes in the last period of play, the visitors were able to carry the ball under the basket for crip shots, due to ineffectual guarding.

The lack of a good foul goal tosser handicapped the Highlanders. Troutman missed two out of six attempts at the basket from the foul line, while Hendrick was successful in only one toss out of nine attempts.

Line-up and summary:

Tennessee		Maryville
Troutman	f.	Hendrick
Campbell	f.	Cotton
Janes	c.	McGinley
Bill Hatcher	g.	DeLozier
Buck Hatcher	g.	McLaughlin

Substitutions: Tennessee—Reeder for Campbell, Wilson for Troutman, Cullis for Bill Hatcher and Johnson for Buck Hatcher.

Maryville—Janoviscky for Cotton and McCoy for McLaughlin.

"Journal and Tribune" Report of Game Played With American Legion Feb 12, in Knoxville on "Y" Court.

Experience and superior marksmanship of the Americon Legion quint proved the undoing of the Maryville College five last night and allowed the ex-service men to roll up a delicate little count of 32 to 19 against the Highlanders, who were playing the final session of their three-night stand on the local floor.

Although outclassed from the start by the legion basketmen, Maryville fought back gamely until the time-keeper's whistle caused adjournment of the fracas. For the Highlanders Hendrick was the glistening luminary. His artistry at the basket was excellent despite the fact that the Legion guards took it upon themselves to see that he did not become lonesome. For the service men, Ray Moore, the Jellico phenom and Tom Garrett, shouldered their way well into the center of the spotlight. And thereby hangs a mystery. Just why the Legion powers kept Tom in seclusion until the latter part of the first half is a much mooted question. Perhaps they figured an ace in the hole is worth five of a kind on the court. But it sufficeth to say that what it takes to negage in the delicate art of basketeering Messrs. Moore and Garrett seem to have in abundance.

The game started rather sluggishly and it was three minutes before marksmen of either quint scored a bull's eye. Turner drew first blood with a pretty crip from under the basket. The Legion forged ahead another notch when Moore caged a free try. Ray must have got his longitude and latitude doped just right for before the Highland guards discovered what was up he had dropped the spheroid through the magic circle no less than three successive times. McMurray then put Maryville on the scorebook by lifting a perfect toss from midcourt.

Legion Unchecked

Maryville, however, was never able to check the attack of the Legionnaires, who kept forging steadily to the fore. The first half ended with the count 16 to 8 against Maryville.

At the beginning of the second half Maryville came back with a furious rush. The intentions of the Highlanders were commendable but they could not sustain their attack. It was simply a question of putting up a game battle in the face of unsurpassable odds, and the Highlanders acquitted themselves creditably indeed. With Garrett and Moore running rampant and scoring bull's eyes almost at will the Legion again began to draw away. It was in the final period that Hendrick showed particularly to advantage despite some very zealous guarding on the part of the Hon. William May.

The final half developed a count of 16 to 11 and if the time-keeper had not caught Hendrick in the midst of a great scoring rally—but what's the use to speculate? Let it be said in conclusion, however, that Coach Doc Feeman had developed a mighty good crew from the material at his disposal and with another season's experience behind them this same quint bids fair to emulate some of the really good fives that Maryville had produced in past years.

The line-up and individual scoring:

Legion	position	Maryville
Turner, 2	f.	Hendrick 11
Moore, 14	f.	McMurray 6
Calloway 4	c.	McGinley 2
Garrett 10
Sandberg	g.	Delozier
		Janoviscky
May, 2	g.	McLaughlin

Referee, Cullis; Time 20:20. Substitutions: Maryville, McLaughlin for McGinley, Janoviscky for McLaughlin, McGinley for McLaughlin, McLaughlin for McMurray; Legion, Garrett for Calloway, Calloway for Garrett, Garrett for Turne.

DR. W. D. WEATHERFORD WILL BE HERE SUNDAY

Sunday will be a red letter day for Maryville, for it is the day on which a most distinguished guest will visit the College. This guest is a man who is noted as a friend of students. He has been of service to countless numbers of them, so that today his books are read and studied and his influence is felt all over the land. He is Dr. W. D. Weatherford, former Student Secretary of the South, and now president of the Southern College of Y. M. C. A., as well as the author of "Introducing Men to Christ", "Negro Life in the South", and other books.

Thanks to the fact that Dr. Weatherford has visited many of the schools of the country, and has been at the head of the Summer Conferences which have been held for many years at Blue Ridge, he is personally known to a large number of students. This is Maryville's oportunity to become re-acquainted with him. On Sunday morning, Feb. 27, Dr. Weatherford will preach at the Baptist Church. In the afternoon at 1:30 he will address a joint meeting of the Christian Associations in the Chapel, and at 4:00 o'clock, in Bartlett Hall, he will speak to a meeting of those who have decided to give their lives to Christian work. He will also hold interviews with those who desire them. Times for these interviews can be arranged by consultation with any member of the "Y" Cabinet. Don't fail to hear Dr. Weatherford!

JOKES AND JESTS

IN THE GALLERY

We were seated in the balcony
Not a soul dared speak a word,
And we poor souls fairly shimmied
At the fearful sound we heard.

All the ladies up there fainted,
Ushers turned a ghostly white,
But the poor boobs sat there chewing;
Chewing on with all their might.

Suddenly I discovered, for
Their jaws were going some,
It was just old Florence and Sully
A-chewing chewing gum.

AN EARLY TRAGEDY

Adam found Eve in tears one day.
"What's the matter, Dearest", he asked sympathetically.
"I do have the worst luck", mourned Eve. "While I was in bathing a caterpillar came along and just ruined my new fall wardrobe."

WORCERY RHYME

Mary had a little bomb,
A souvenir from Ghent,
She pulled the pin with great aplomb
And Lord knows where she went.

CROSSED LINES

Prof. Knapp—Did you ever see a lunar-bow?
Mildred Striplin—I have seen a beaux lots of times by moonlight if that is what you mean.

WHAT IS LOVE?

A little sighing,
A little crying,
Something dying,
And lots of lying.

Cotton (in logic class)—Prof. Is "brain" an abstract or concrete term?
Prof. Hunter—Decidedly concrete! More so in some cases than in others.

"Tommy" had been boasting of the way things are done across the pond.
Moss Farmer—Talking of justice being meted out quickly—an airman fell from his plane up in Kentucky and he was tried and sentenced to six months in the pen before he hit the ground.
"Tommy"—You don't say so. What was the charge?
Moss—Vagrancy—he had no visible means of support.

Shuckz—You know, I fell in love with my girl at first sight and now I wish that I had taken a second look. She is a real vegetarian. She has carrotty hair, raddish cheeks, a turnip nose, cabbage head, and corn on the ear

---

Jimmie—I saw a girl on the campus with her stockings on wrong side out.
Edgar—What did you do about it?
Jimmie—I turned the hose on her.

One thing we learn in College is never put an adjective where a semicolon will take the place of an interrogation point. Sounds real Schenectady, n'est-ce pas?

Prof. Orr—Mr. Middleton, which one of the parables do you like best?
Tex—I like the one where somebody loafs and fishes.

THE REASONS

I had a love, so pure it was,
A passionate thing of beauty.
It got the hooks,
She fell for looks,
And so I lost my cutie.

I had a friend I trusted much,
Yes, loved him as a brother.
He got the cash,
I went to smash,
I'll never trust another.

I had a rendezvous with death,
And went to find the reason.
But death was late,
I coudn't wait,
And so I'm here this season.

Oh no, I'm not a cynic,
But this I'd like to tell:
Illusions gone,
One finds that one,
Can get along quite well. —Anon.

DEVOLUTION

Fifteen hours credit,
Went off on a spree,
Got bounced in English,
So he dropped three.

Twelve hours credit,
He was going fine;
Found Math. too difficult,
Then there were nine.

Nine hours credit,
Thought he'd try some tricks
Blew up the Chem. Lab,
Then there were six.

Six hours credit,
He felt very free,
History grew boring,
Then there were three.

Three hours credit,
And an ivory dome,
Don't mix together,
So the lad went home.

JOURNALISTICALLY SPEAKING

"May I print a kiss on your lips?"
I asked,
And she nodded her sweet permission.
So we went to press, and I rather guess
We printed a full edition.

"But our edition is hardly enough",
She said with a charming pout,
So again in the press the form was placed
And we got some extras out.

A VICTIM OF PSYCHOLOGY 14

"What's the matter Jarvis, you look ill."
"I've got an awful cold."
"How did you get it?"
"Too much outside reading."

Elizabeth—Jennie do you want a corned beef sandwich?
And as Jennie received the sandwich she looked at it suspiciously and asked, "But where is the corn?"

Babylon—"I don't like these photos at all, I look like an ape."
"You should have thought of that before you had them taken" replied Mr. Webb as he went on about his work.

Mary—Why can't an Indian shimmy?
Ville—I don't know. Why?
Mary—Because his quiver is in the wrong place.

Thomas—How do you like your new gown, dear?
Thomasine—It doesn't quite come up to my anticipations.
Thomas—Yes, but they're wearing them low this year.

THE HIGHLAND DEACONS

There are five husky fellows
Upon this College Hill,
They call themselves a ball team,
We'll say they are, we will.

Knox High came a wondering
What M. C.'s five could do;
After meeting our snappy bunch,
Knox High went up the flue.

Tusculum came to Maryville
Full of confidence;
She met our five young huskies,
And then fell off the fence.

Our Quintet went a traveling
To Carson-Newman's town;
But when we saw them returning
Their colors were upside down.

The Knoxville American Legion
Was the next one on the list.
Of this we'll speak no more;
M. C. the victory missed.

Again did Carson-Newman
Try our Quintet's metal;
And when they fought with us this time,
We taught them not to meddle.

The future is full of brightness,
Fortune has opened the door;
And in the games to come
Defeat will be no more.
(Two College boys).

His arm, it slipped around her waist—
Why shouldn't it?
Her head, it dropped against his breast—
Why shouldn't it?
Her heart, it gave a tneder sigh—
Why shouldn't it?
Her hat pin stuck him in the eye—
Why shouldn't it?

FRIENDSHIP

When the last long crimson streamer
Is fading in the west,
And the soft warm sighing night wind
Comes,—lulling your thoughts to rest,—
Then you think of the only faithful,
The friend that you love the best.
And your cares drop away, and worries,
By the very thought caressed;
By a friend that can understand
And can help through every test.
Yes, a friend that is never too loving,
Nor your love ever treats as a jest.
For such,—words that express the meaning
Are too cold and trite in type;
But you take it out and light it,
The good, old, nicked, scarred, pipe.
—Anon.

Out on the campus,
No one nigh,
Moonlight soft,
So was I.
Un li'l kiss,
No one to see,
I enjoyed it,
So did she.

The Athenians seem to have a fondness for "colored" presidents. "Red" is president of the Senior section, and Brown is president of the Juniors.

A duel was fought by Knott and Shott.
Knott was shot and Shott was not.
In that case I would rather be Shott than Knott.

LOVE

It's a sort of palpitation,
Passionate reverberation,
In the vital habitation
Of the heart.

Effervescent osculation,
Inexpressible sensation,
In continuous rotation,
Forms a part.

A respectful invitation
To a very choice collation,
Lovely ride of long duration,
In your cart.

Confidential conversation,
No attempted ostentation,
Never ceasing admiration
On your part.

Passionate reciprocation,
Caramels without cessation,
Forms in your imagination
Cupid's dart.

THE DOGGONE TRUTH

I've been a good fellow
Earned all I spent;
Paid all I borrowed;
Lost all I lent.
I once loved a woman,
That came to an end;
Get a good dog boys,
He's always your friend.

COLLEGE PHILOSOPHY

Where there's a quarter there's a movie.
A little report card is a dangerous thing.
A fellow and his bashfulness are not soon parted.
There's so such word as overeat.
An ounce of permission is worth a pound of excuses.
Take care of your lesson preparation and your marks will take care of themselves.
To every young man upon this earth a rival comes soon or late.
Too many socials spoil an education.
A little sweetheart now and then is relished by the best of men.
A lesson prepared in time saves nine.
A flirt and his "honey" are soon parted.
It is easier to prepare than despair.

COLLEGE STUDENTS FORM POLICE ANTI-VICE FORCE

Champaign, Ill.—As a result of a sixty-day experiment ended today by the city of Champaign with a special force of University of Illinois students, sworn in as special officers, and detailed to investigate vice and crime in the districts surrounding community. VIRGINIA RAISES MONEY FOR GYM

The first night's canvass for the $3000,000 gym for the University of Virginia, netted $44,398 in pledges.

A law student who will hang out his shingle in June, made the following remark in writing his pledge, "You can put me down for $300; if I can't wring that much out of the cold, cruel world above a decent living within the next five years I might as well qit."—College Topics.

1st. Student—Yes, I kissed her when she wasn't looking.
2nd. Student—What did she do?
1st. Student—Refused to look at me for the rest of the evening.

"O tell me where is fancy bred?"
She asked; and, getting bolder,
She placed her little darling head
And chin upon my shoulder;
And I, with no more poetry in
My soul than in a Quaker's.
Replied, with idiotic grin
"You'll find it at the baker's."

Report of Y. M. C. A. Convention at Nashville

that no normal group of labor has ever refused admittance to the Association, and no Industry has ever been found absolutely against the program, though some refuse it admittance for obvious reasons. Wherever the work has been established the relationships between management and the employees have been improved. The Industrial Department now controls 150 buildings with a value of $6,000,000, besides receiving annually a cash gift of $5,000,000. For every dollar given by the management, labor has given more than a dollar. Child labor conditions have been improved and a certain amount of industrial conscience developed. There are two damaging influences prevalent, namely, the I. W. W. spirit and the sentiment in some colleges against agreement. The zone of agreement, however, is larger than the zone of disagreement.

The regional development has been rapid where specialists have analyzed the field and the needs. Classes in citizenship have been conducted to the advance of the foreigner as well as the industry. This is one of the most practical services. Non-equipment extension work is a recent feature, and now the tendency is to industrialize the city Association.

TOWSON'S REMARKS

These are some of Towson's pointed paragraphs:

"The old standard of Industry was production. Today it is efficiency plus humanity."

"Men were made for God, not for wages or hours with these artificial things men will never be satisfied."

"Man was made to master things."

"God breathed personality into man. Personality demands relationships; adjustments of the spirit.

"Men want fraternity—recognition."

"There can be no sustained efficiency without the character basis".

"There is unrest where Christ is not."

"Man's chief capacity is love."

"Man's second great capacity is creative work."

"He most resembles God who loving best, produces most."

It makes a man out of a fellow to give to the Lord what he wants.

You have something that's the most precious thing in the world to you and Christ wants that thing. It is you.

I'm afraid some of you pay more attention to cats than catechisms.

Love is not an attribute of God, it is God.

God can no more cease to love than He can cease to exist.

What you love determines whether you are saved or not.

To stand up and confess your wrongs before your companions takes as great a man as to face a cannon.

If you haven't seen God for a long time He's waiting for you at Bethany.

How long has it been since you heard God call you, "My child."

The end of sin is to ruin the image of God in you and to wreck your life.

Keep acting Christ long enough and it will become easy.

The oldest when they come down to die wish that they could live it over again, but here is a young man that has completed everything—Christ.

No human being in Hell has suffered more than Christ while upon earth.

No church, person, or organization in the world can settle the question, "What are you going to do with Christ?" It is personal.

Grace is the channel through which love manifests itself.

Some of you have been trying to give God something for Grace and you never get it for God gives it.

Some of you want to get an ethical hair cut, and a moral shave before you turn to God, but God never did save that kind of a man.

There never would have been murder, sad homes, and broken hearted people if men had not said "NO" to Jesus Christ.

I think the most wicked thing in all the world is the soul that says I will not have Christ to rule over me.

There is a time when Jesus Christ is going to come and there is nothing that will stop Him—righteousness will win.

Do you say you are honest, upright, high-principled, and truthful—but I say if it had not been for God you would not be.

Christ says you had better come and follow me for your knowledge carries with it a great responsibility.

When your heart says, Come and be my disciple you had better come.

In some religions you can put duty in a pocket on one side and the religion in a pocket on the other, but you can't do the Christian religion that way; they both go together.

You may be able to repeat every word in the Bible and still go to Hell.

VOLUME SIX — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, MARCH 3, 1921 — NUMBER NINETEEN

SECOND EAST TENN. HIGH SCHOOL BASKET BALL TOURNAMENT HELD

EIGHT TEAMS FROM EAST TENNESSEE COMPETE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP AND HANDSOME TROPHIES.

Knoxville High Quintet Climbs Into First Place; Lafollette Caps Second Honors.

In Athletics as in war: The Spoils go to the Victors.

The spoils in this case were a large silver quadrupled basket ball, almost actual size, supported on an ebony base. The second prize was an attractive loving cup also mounted on an ebony base.

Dr. Wilson presented the trophies to the winning teams. With a friendly warning not to catch the "swelled head" he presented Captain Dean of the Knoxville High School team with the Silver Basket Ball, which had the following engraving on it: "Champions of The East Tennessee Basket Ball Tournament".

Each individual member of the winning team was given a separate memento as a reward for his individual prowess.

Mozingo received in behalf of his fighting five the loving cup as a reward for their splendid showing in the tournament.

The officials of the tournament were: Porter H. Turner, manager, director, and general boss; John Hendrick, referee; "Tex" Middleton, timekeeper, and Searight Hicks, official score keeper.

A REVIEW OF TOURNAMENT

The first game of the tournament was staged by Knoxville High School and Porter High School. Both schools rightly boasted of a strong fast team. Now the trying time had come. True to announcement the game was called into play close to 2 o'clock, and the tournament was on.

The boys from Knoxville and Porter High went onto the court of play with a big "?" hovering over each head. Trouble was in store for both teams in the form of hard hot playing. Two teams of noted reputation were facing each other and wondering "what those guys can do". Naturally every player was nervous and excited and wondering what would really happen. Briefly, here is what did happen: Porter High drew first blood by caging a field goal, Schultz did the shooting. Knoxville High's dandruff got up in the air, and retaliation was the only way to get back at the guys from Porter High. A counter blow was given and the score was tied. Porter High clipped High School's wing again and took the lead, but not for long, for High School was still in the fight. She came to the fore again but Porter crowded her out and stayed in the lead till about the last three minutes of play during which the Knoxville boys made a whirlwind finish of the first half and had a margin on the score by two points. Score 10-8.

Coach Siler of Knoxville High and Coach Condry of Porter High evidently made use of the time between halfs by having a secret confab with their players. Improvement in shooting, guarding, and passing was marked from the very beginning of the second half. Porter High took the lead in playing and caged two more goals, incidentally their last bacon. Shanton of Knoxville High gave his teammates a starter when he landed a long distant one neatly in the folds of the iron hoop. He wound them up still more by repeating the stunt, and in order to be sure about the matter, he tossed the old sphere through space into the basket a third time. That was signal enough: thirteen points were made all told after that start, and the game ended 29 to 12 with Knoxville High winners and with Porter High eliminated.

Line-up and scores as follows:

Knoxville Hi 29	Porter Hi 12
Burns, 2	C. Marshall, 2
Dean, 7	Cunnigham, 0
Wickham, 6	Trundle, 8
Shanton, 10	Shultz, 2
Keister, 4	Cunningham, 0

SECOND ELIMINATION

Lafollette and Park City High Schools, entered the arena next, but did not keep the spectators in the air as did the first engagement. That is not saying however, that the fellows did not play hard. The work of Mozingo of Lafollette created quite a bit of excitement and interest. His shooting was fifty-fifty and his passing of the ball was very effective. C. Sharp of the same team kept pace and tallied consistantly, making 10 of the total 22. Rule and Delozier showed up best for the Park City squad. The store at the close of game stood Lafollette High 35 and Park City High 13.

Lafollette Hi, 35	Park City Hi, 13
Mozingo, 15	Rule, 8
Powell, 2	Johnson, 3
Murray, 2	Delozier, 0
H. Sharp, 2	Brooks, 2
C. Sharp, 14	Copelin, 0

THIRD ELIMINATION

This game was a little more hotly contested than the one preceding but the pep, passing and putting of the Bristol five played a real ring around Newport who could not keep the ball from walking the hoop and falling off on the wrong side into the waiting hands of a Bristol man. Newport could cop only four marks and they were singles from the free foul line by Sisk, forward. The final count was Bristol 24, Newport 4.

Newport Hi, 4	Bristol Hi, 24
Sisk, 4	Mitchell, 7
Fancher	Torbett, 7
Driskill	Anderson, 0
Rich	Maupin, 6
Sehorn	Vance, 4
Babb

FOURTH AND EVENING GAME OF SERIES

Lenoir City Hi School and T. M. I. almost duplicated the first game of the tournament. The first half ended 10 to 8 in Lenoir's favor. T. M. I. threw up a smoke screen in the second half and charged on their opponents slowly but effectively. Says the Military Five, "We will win this game", and Lenoir Hi replies, "Victory is our name". But both could not be victors, so T. M. I. held the fort: 19 to 16.

A self-coached team that has won 16 straight games is due a lot of credit. We hand it to you for that, Lenoir City Hi!

Lenoir City, 16	T. M. I., 19
Browder, 4	Kirkpatrick, 6
H. Goodwin	Higgins, 3
Burdette, 4	Martin, 6
Reeves	Tinsley, 4
G. Godwin, 8	Lee

SATURDAY'S GAMES

Knoxville Hi drew first place again and started the last lap of the elimination by contesting with the Bristol quintette. The blue and whites from Knoxville finished the first half 4 marks over the Bristol boys, who were not able to overcome the lead, which widened as the second half of the game progressed. The seemingly reckless tossing of the ball by Wickham

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR M. C. BASEBALL

Coach Feeman Issues Call to Bats, Balls and Gloves! Call Answered by Large Number.

To say that prospects are bright for one of the best baseball teams in years is saying a mouthful. Still that is not saying more than is possible to be realized, for a look over the list of men who have answered the call to bats, balls, and gloves, will show you that too much has not been said.

Some twenty or more men, a few in baseball togs and others in white collars and shirts, placed foot on the College diamond and dug up the turf in the first practice of the season. The only thing wrong with the whole affair was expressed briefly by "Doc" who said that, "Stiff white collars and honest-to-goodness baseball practice would not go together." That sounds exactly like business. A job awaits the whole squad of men. Just listen to the schedule for the season and see if you don't think it will take a strong team like old M. C. is going to have this year to meet such teams as are listed.

Heading the list, and the ones we MUST defeat, are the University of Tennessee and Vanderbilt. Next is Kentucky State, Georgetown, Ky., Oglethorpe, Furman University, Tusculum, Emory and Henry, L.M.U., King College, Carson Newman, Johnson Bible College, and probably the Knoxville Hi nine. If the Knoxville giants are played it will be the first game of the year and will take place about the eighteenth of this month. But what will interest many fans like Dr. Bartlett and Professor Brittian will be the game pulled off with the Boston Red Soxs on April 2. The game will probably be staged in Knoxville. With such a schedule to be followed it must necessarily follow that an extra strong team will be needed to meet such opponents if favorable results are to be forthcoming.

Realizing that the future holds in store many pitching duels, needed pinch hits, and home runs as well, the Maryville fellows urged on by Coach Feeman will put time and ability to the task ahead and after much grinding and labor, turn out a baseball nine which will be a credit to the College. Many letter men of last year and the year before are back to do their best to uphold the Orange and Garnet standard. These are the letter men: Davidson, Cotton, Partee (captain) F. Lowry, Hoyt Wililams, Reed Rowan, Roy McCall (manager) and Big F. McLaughlin. These men are handy with the big stick and sure shots with the horsehide. The known worth plus the skill and talent tied up in the new men reporting for try-out work will result in a corking good squad of baseball warriors. The new men reporting are: B. and R. Williams, King Dunn, C. McLaughlin, E. McCall, Sneed, McMurray, Rhohart, and others who are as yet undecided what they intend to do. But surely others will report for practice if only to give the regular players a better chance for workouts.

The above fellows would not be worth much as fielders if they did not have a man on the mound worth backing up. Who is he to be?

Well, there are four men who are now pitchers of note and who have it in them to develop more and more as the season progresses. Williams, the crack mounster of last year is here with his trusty "wing", which he is nursing and training for a few shutout games. There is also a big tall fellow with a mighty reach who has had some six or seven years experience tossing the ball across the plate. Watch him and see his metal. Rodger Wiliams, a lad of High School fame is ready to cut the corners also last among the fellows who have reported is "Big Mac" who has the speedy kind of ball which makes the Ump watch close, and the batter wonder. There may be one or two other men who have the makings of worth-while pitchers in them, but have not shown up. Show yourself man, and help make the team stronger.

Just a word to the non-playing students: Saunter out to the athletic field once in the while and let the players know that you are really interested in what they are doing. They will appreciate it and show you so by putting more, their best, into the whole affair. It takes the pep and vim out of any athlete to know that only a few of the students are backing him. Aux armes, ye students many, back up the baseball men, and help make baseball on College Hill a sport enjoyed by all.

GIRLS' QUINTET TRIMS CUMBERLAND 16 TO 13

Kentucky Five Shows Plenty Of "Pep" But Lack In Weight and Accuracy.

Our feminine basket ball visitors from Cumberland College of Kentucky were not such an easy mark after all. They played commendable basket ball from start to finish. Their passing of the ball has not been equaled on the home court in many years of recent history.

Cheering each other onward both teams continued the battle gamely to the end of each fifteen minute half; time being called only twice—not bad at all. First Maryville scored and then Cumberland. Next in order were a few fouls, which seemed well towards spelling doom for Maryville. But not so, for Dawson and Bailey caged the ball often enough to keep in advance of the visitors by first one and then two points, and finally during the last four minutes of play forged ahead by three marks.

At the close of the first half Cumberland College was one ahead, 6-5. Trouble seemed to be hovering about. A peculiar quietness held away. But not for long: Our "fifteen rahs for How-we-How" proved a spell-breaker which seemed to give our team a bracer as they stepped onto the court for the second half.

Many an eye had been attracted by the splendid passing of the ball by the Cumberland girls. The agility and swiftness of the visitors made up in a way for their missing weight which the home team had and used to effect in guarding. The goal shooting by R. (wonder if it is Ruth or Rachel) Archer was one feature of the game. Of the 13 points she made 13. And of her 13 free trials at the basket she completed 5. B. Bailey made two out of six attempts. The following tabulation will show you much:

Maryville 16		Cumberland 13
B. Bailey, 6	f.	R. Archer 13
Dawson, 10	f.	J. Ellison
Sherrod	c.	Jo Ellison
McKinley	g.	G. Archer
Smith	g.	E. Ralston
M. Bailey	g.	B. Bird

Officials: Prof. Henry, Referee; Mrs. "Doc" Feeman, timekeeper.

RECITAL

A recital will be given by the Music and Expression Departments in the chapel on Friday afternoon, March 4, at 3:30.

INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATES BEGIN ON MON.

First Intercollegiate Debate of The Year to be Held Monday Between M. C. and T. C. Girls

Victories! Victories! Victories!

Not one victory, but two Victories is what we expect on Monday night when the M. C. Girls meet the fair damsels from Tusculum in the first intercollegiate debate of the year. The question for debate is, "Resolved, That all Japanese except diplomatic and trade representatives, students in colleges and universities, and tourists, should be denied admittance to the territory of the United States."

Last year Maryville and Tusculum broke even, both teams winning one victory. In these contests Tusiulum showed that she was by no means a weak opponent. Maryville's teams are up to the usual high standard and when two of such teams meet, there is sure to be something doing. On Monday night there will be a hot time; not only at Maryville but also at Tusculum.

The affirmative team, under their Captain, Miss Edith Moore, will attack the enemy on their home stage and will prove beyond a doubt that the Japanese should be denied admittance to the territory of the United States. This team is composed of Misses Edith Moore and Ruth McCall, who helped win the victory over Tusculum last year and who still know how to play the game, and Miss Martha Robison, who will, in the coming debate, win for herself a name among the celebrities in the debating world.

The negative team will remain at Maryville and will show to the local audience the injustice of denying admittance to the Japanese. Miss Mary Mason is Captain of this team and, by her pleasing and persuasive manner, will do much to defend the Japanese against the anti-Japanese agitators. Miss Mason has, as her able colleagues, Miss Ethel DeHvaen, who could win the sympathy of any audience for the Japanese, and Miss Bernice Kimble, who won fame as a member of the 1920 debating team.

Miss Alice Renick will serve as alternate for the affirmative team, and Miss Reva Rankin, for the negative team.

Both teams are busily working on the problems and perplexities of the Japanese question and, under the efficient direction of Coach Hunter, they will undoubtedly make a record of which old M. C. will be justly proud.

The teams are preparing to do their part and it now remains for the student body to give them enthusiastic support and show appreciation for what they are doing. Whether you are a Japanese or an anti-Japanese agitator, you are certainly a Maryville College advocator, so "Everybody out for the chapel Monday night!"

M's AWARDED BASKET BALL MEN

The Athletic Board of Control met and scanned the basket ball record. A few names were checked here and there on the sheet until a total of seven were checked.

Hendrick, C. McLaughlin, McGinley, Delozier, McMurray, Janoviczky, and Cotton. All seven received their "M", the mark of the College's approval and appreciation for what each man did on the court.

As the man is proud of his letter so also the college is proud of her letter men.

Professor Hyden spent the few days' vacation at his home at Philadelphia, Tenn.

Along with the season for taking sulphur and molasses, cleaning up the tin cans in the back yard, and paying for the new spring bonnet, comes the time for the very important occupation of doping out the base ball prospects for the ensuing season. Our record for this year in football and basket ball has certainly not been very imposing and, in fact, has been decidedly below normal, so that our only hope of redemption to athletic prominence now lies in the grand old national pastime. For two days past the resounding smack of the batted ball and the other multitudinous musical sounds of the diamond sport have been heard on College Hill and it is by no means an overestimation to say that Maryville College has as good material this year for a winning team as she has ever had. The cry this year is, "Annihilate U. T.! !"

New Life For Echo

The recent action of the Board of Directors of the College in granting the Students' Activities Fee placed the Highland Echo upon a basis which will greatly increase its influence and power in advancing the interests of the College. Every student will receive the paper and the natural consequence will be the widening and strengthening of the Maryville Spirit and the tendency toward a more complete unification of the student body.

When the College Monthly was abandoned and the Highland Echo was first established in 1915, the editor, Mr. J. Charles Walker, gave as the purpose of the Echo, "a weekly paper in which the College Spirit and College activities can be expressed." He also says, "The name of the weekly is the 'Highland Echo', and may all the news of Maryville College find an echo in it."

The paper has continued to "echo" the College news now for almost six years and has proved to be a great source of satisfaction to the students as well as a valuable advertisement for the College. But undoubtedly the greatest fortune which the Echo has experienced since its establishment, is the new ruling by the Board of Directors whereby the subscription to the paper will be made one of each student's regular college requirements.

The time for the election of next year's editor is not far off, and since considerable importance is attached to this election a hasty decision should be avoided.

A word to those who are contemplating becoming candidates: If you are seeking the editorship of the Echo for the purpose of making three hours English credits "easily"—you will be sadly disappointed. Sign up for nine hours of regular English work and it will be easier for you and much better for next year's Echo! The one who will be elected is the one who desires the editorship for the reason that he or she really intends to make a success of it, and in so doing, advance the interests of the Institution.

ELECTION OF EDITOR & BUSINESS MGR. OF ECHO

Rules for Election Here Given In Detail; To Be Elected This Month.

The installation of the semester system has called for a slight revision of the language of the rules for the choice of Business Manager and Editor-in-Chief of the Echo. The rules now read:

Procedure in Choosing Editor and Business Manager

1. The editor-in-chief of the Highland Echo for the following year shall be elected during the last two weeks of March.

2. All the professors in the English department shall recommend to the Faculty members of the incoming Junior and Senior classes whom they consider capable of satisfactorily filling the position of editor-in-chief. Public notice shall be given at least one week before these lists are submitted so that any aspirants for the position may hand their names to some one of the profesors in the English department for their consideration. These lists shall be submitted to the Faculty before the fifteenth of March.

3. The Faculty shall pass upon these lists not later than the fifteenth of March, and shall place in nomination candidates for editor-in-chief. The names of these candidates shall be posted for one week in order that the students may become familiar with them.

4. The President of the Senior class shall call a meeting of all the college students in the chapel not less than one week after the names of the candidates are posted and shall give at least a week's notice of the time of this meeting. At this meeting the election of editor-in-chief shall take place. All college students shall be entitled to vot. The voting shall be by ballot, and majority of the votes cast shall be necessary for an election. If no candidate receives a majority on the first ballot the name of the candidate receiving the lowest number of votes shall be dropped. If on the second ballot no one receives a majority of the votes then cast, the name of the candidate receiving the lowest number of votes on this ballot shall be dropped and this system shall be followed until some candidate is elected. The President of the Senior class shall preside at this meeting and the Secretaries of the four college classes shall act a tellers. It shall be the duty of the Secretaries of the Junior and Senior classes to act as a committee to prepare blank ballots of uniform size and color for use in the election, and the cost of these ballots shall be met from the funds of the Echo.

5. In the choice of a Business Manager the following system shall be followed:—The Presidents of the four college classes shall elect two representatives, one from the outgoing Senior class and one from the Junior class to meet with two representatives appointed by the Faculty to judge the merits of the material submitted and the recommendations offered by candidates for business manager, and to examine the candidates in any way they may desire. They shall then select a business manager for the following school year, subject to the approval of the Faculty. This committee shall be appointed not later than the fifteenth of March. The representative of the Senior class shall act as chairman and shall give public notice of the time when the business manager is to be selected at least one week before such selection, so that candidats may have opportunity to make formal application and to secure proper recommendations. As in the case of the election of editor, the business manager shall be chosen during the last two weeks of March.

6. In case of a vacancy occurring in either of these offices during the school year, the vacancy shall immediately be filled in accordance with the system above outlined.

Any members of the present Sophomore and Junior Classes who desire to be nominated to the faculty for the editor-ship should notify one of the English professors before Thursday, March 10.

Miss Marguerite Alexander, a former student of M. C., was in Maryville last week-end.

Mr. J. Morgan Cox, now in the Western Theological Seminary, will soon re-enter Maryville College and will graduate with the class of '21. He is allowed to do this because of the College's special ruling regarding ex-service men.

The usual February snap social, which was held last Saturday evening, was well attended and very much enjoyed.

SPECIAL SERVICE FOR NEW CONVERTS

Dr. Stevenson in the first Vesper service after the February Meetings talked especially to the new converts and to those that have reconsecrated their lives to Jesus Christ. He used Matt. 10:16-33 for the Scripture lesson, and this is especially valuable to new converts.

First, he emphasized the duty of joining some church, not any special church, but some church of your choice, and he says, "I insist upon you making this choice."

Further, it is your duty to confess Christ by uniting with the Church. The Church is a divinely appointed organization by God for the evangelization of the world. Should you not unite with such an organization?

Besides the fact that it is your duty comes the question "When?" To neglect the performance of a plain duty is a poor way to grow better. For your own sake, for the influence you will have on others, and for the sake of the Gospel make this step at the earliest possible moment.

Miss Hale suffered rather severe burns to her face and hand in an accident on last Saturday. She will probably be confined to her room for several days.

Mr. Franklin VanKeuren of Harriman visited on the Hill Tuesday of this week. Mr. VanKeuren was a visitor of M. C. in former years.

APPALACHIAN INTER-COLLEGIATE ATHLETIC CONFERENCE FORMED

Eight Colleges of This Section Represented at Conference.

Representatives of eight colleges in East Tennesse and Southwestern Virginia met at the Atkin Hotel, Knoxville, Tenn., Saturday, February 26, and formed the Appalachian Intercollegiate Athletic conference for the promotion of athletics of all kinds.

Maryville, Tusculum, Emory and Henry, Hiwassee, King, Carson-Newman, Milligan and East Tennessee Normal sent members of their faculties to the conference which adopted a constitution and by-laws setting forth the purposes, aims and regulations of the new organization.

Prof. E. S. Hathaway, of Tusculum, was chosen chairman of the meeting, and Thomas B. Fullerton, of Emory and Henry, secretary.

The conference will have entire control of the three major intercollegiate sports, football, basket ball and baseball, and will each spring hold a track and field meet and tennis tournament at one of the schools.

The general aims and purposes of the conference are to keep down professionalism among the schools; to discourage paid summer baseball; to raise the standards of all branches of sport; to serve as a clearing house for disputes between schools, and to form some basis for selecting champions among the several schools.

For some time there has been a deep-felt need for such an organization. Attempts have been made on previous occasions to form one, but each time the efforts have come to naught. Failure to have such a conference has resulted in the magnifying of petty differences between some of the schools, until the point was reached where it became imperative to form a conference.

Control of athletics will be vested in an executive committee composed of one faculty member from every school in the conference. This committee will hold at least two meetings a year.

It will decide all questions of eligibility as to players, will decide all questions that may arise between members, and will pass upon and sanction schedules.

The session was a harmonious one, with every representative realizing that now is the time to form the conference. Some matters were left for further consideration, such as the scholarship question and the exact rating that a student must have in his classes in order to compete in intercollegiate sport.

The greatest innovation of the meeting was the decision to make track and tennis "go". Schools in this section have been sadly deficient along this line in past years and not much attention has been paid this sport, although in larger institutions it is on a par with other athletics.

The track and field meet and the tennis tournament to be held at the same time, will alternate from one school to the other, and will mean participation of more students in athletics.

Representatives of the following schools were present:

Maryville College—Prof. F. L. Proffitt, athletic director.

Tusculum College—Prof. E. S. Hathaway, and Dean A. C. Holt.

Emory and Henry College—Thos. B. Fullerton.

Milligan College—Dean W. D. Ford.

Hiwassee College—Dean Callahan.

Carson-Newman College—President O. E. Sams and Coach Kilpatrick.

King College—President Tilden Scherer.

East Tennessee Normal—Prof. D. S. Burleson. —Journal & Tribune

HIGHLANDERESSES ROMPS OVER C.-N.

Carson-Newman Stages Strong Come-back in Second Period; Final Score 22 to 19.

(By Miss Ethel Fanson)

At two o'clock Saturday afternoon, February 26th. the Maryville College girls' basket ball team gathered in front of the Library. A few minutes later one might have seen them being tucked away in a seven passenger car, together with bags, coats, sweaters, basket ball and other necessary paraphernalia. Fifteen minutes sufficed for putting each of the nine individuals into the proper niche and for the necessary readjustments. At 2:15 the driver sounded the horn and they were off. The day was clear, the air crisp without being cutting, and the well-loaded car sped along the Knoxville pike.

Just two hours after the blowing of the horn, as they left the Maryville campus, the car drew up to the entrance of the Sarah Swan Home, one of the girls' dormitories at Carson-Newman. As the Maryville girls stepped from the car, they were met by a delegation of Carson-Newman girls who escorted them into the dormitory and proceeded to make them "at home." A little later, supper was announced and the two girls dormitories of Carson-Newman divided the honors of serving the guests between them, each claiming the privilege of entertaining half the party.

At 6:30 p. m. everyone was again packed into the car and the team was taken down town to the hall where Carson-Newman's basket ball games are played. The crowd entered amidst the cheers of Carson-Newman for Maryville. The Maryville girls looked at the long narrow court with no out-of-bounds on one side, and wondered what the outcome of the game would be. But they did not have time to wonder long for the game began promptly.

From the time the referee first blew the whistle, the Maryville girls were into the fight and before the spectators fairly realized that the game had begun Blanche Bailey tossed the ball into the basket. Again and again she did, seldom missing a shot. And Elsie Dawson did likewise. Foul goals or field, it made no difference to them, all went into the basket just the same. During the first half, the game was played mostly around Maryville's goal. When, by chance, the ball did wander down into Carson-Newman's territory, the Maryville guards immediately guarded and prevented the Carson-Newman forwards from even having a chance at a basket. And the Maryville center? Well, she wasn't asleep, she was everywhere at once assisting the ball down the field. Then, suddenly, before anyone was aware of it the "time up" whistle blew, with the score 18 to 5 in Maryville's favor.

With the beginning of the second half, Carson-Newman shifted her players, who "came back" with a good, stiff, determined offensive, and almost redeemed their low score of the first half. Again and again they threw goals and the excellent work of their guards prevented the M. C. forwards from shooting goals as easily as in the first half. The crowd of spectators cheered lustily as their score came closer and closer to Maryville's. It must be said that Carson-Newman supports her team loyally. But all things have an end and a baskest ball game is no exception. The "time up" whistle blew a second time and the final score stood 22 to 19 in Maryville's favor.

Disney and Moser starred for Carson-Newman, and as for Maryville's stars, she has an "all-star" team.

The trip back was as fine as the trip up but the party was more hilarious. They sang joyfully all the songs they knew and sighed because they knew no more with which to celebrate so glorious a victory. A little drizzle of rain which netted Hi School 10 points, while the hard steady playing of Dean and Burns tipped the balance also. Shanton and Keister came in with a dual to their credit. Final score 29-19.

HI SCHOOL BASKET BALL TOURNAMENT

WHO PLAYS HIGH SCHOOL?

That was what T.M.I. and Lafolette wanted to know. They found out. Lafollette decided that they would. So, disregarding T.M.I.'s desire, they played a baffling circle around the Military men and attacked them from all sides with startling effect. T.M.I. was thrown on the defensive all the game, but Lafollette, led by Mozingo and Murray, played an offensive game and scalped the enemy by a count of 35 to 15.

DECISIVE GAME OF TOURNAMENT BETWEEN KNOXVILLE AND LAFOLLETTE

With the coveted goal in view the two teams played as they had never played before. Tension was great on both sides. Determination to win was in every player's mind and actions. The battle raged with the onlooking spectators about evenly divided. The outcome was a question indeed. Both could not win, so one did, and here is partly how it came about: Shanton and Mozingo were spotted players and as a result they were watched like a miser watches his money. But Knoxville's line was not weak in all other places. This was proved by the splendid work of Dean and Keister who worked like trogans with the rest of the fellows. The Knoxville boys made 18 points each half; Lafollette made 10 and 7 marks. Eleven fouls were called on Knoxville and nine on Lafollette, but only seven free foul goals were shot. The line-up and scoring was:

Knoxvile, 38	Lafollette, 17
Dean, 14	Mozingo, 5
Burns, 4	Powell, 4
Wickham, 4	Murray, 6
Shanton, 4	Sharp, C. 2

With only a brief stop in Knoxville, the crowd reached the Maryville campus at 11:05 p. m. having made the trip and won the victory in a little less than nine hours.

The line-up and individual scoring were as follows:

DEBATING CONTESTS COME BEFORE FOOTLIGHTS ON STAGE OF COLLEGE ACTIVITIES

NEG. TEAM REGISTERS VICTORY OVER T. C.

Tusculum Co-Eds Succumb to Misses Kimble, DeHaven, and Mason at Maryville.

On Monday evening the cornetists with martial music sounded the challenge of war. The contest was waged over the question of Japanese exclusion. Those who came from Tusculum were Miss Nita Gahagan, Miss Anna Lee Rhea, and Miss Antoinette Hill. These able and excellent debaters were confronted by three of our brilliant and scholarly girls, Miss Bernice Kimble, Miss Ethel DeHaven, and Miss Mary Mason. Miss Gahagan in her calm and forceful way, and well equipped with charts, convinced the audience that the Japanese immigrants were a menace since they could not be assimilated. Miss Bernice Kimble with force and determination showed that such a stringent policy as the locking of our doors toward Japan was unnecessary since the Japanese immigrants can be successfully Americanized. Miss Rhea by means of her well worded and logical arguments proved that the Gentleman's Agreement between U. S. and Japan had failed. Miss DeHaven established the fact that the policy of exclusion was unjust because of the present position of Japan. Miss Hill in her measured and thorough speech brought out the fact that the

MARYVILLE GIRLS LOSE AT TUSCULUM

Maryville Representatives Were Gallant Fighters, But Still More Gallant Losers.

No one will be particularly interested in reading a detailed account of the give and take of argument in the late lamented debate at Tusculum Collge, Monday night. Let it be said here once for all that it was a real debate. No Maryville team ever made a more gallant effort than did the three girls who carried the battle to Tusculum on behalf of the Orange and Garnet.

Highest praise is due to every member of the team. Miss Ruth McCall, always a very effective opening speaker, was never more effective than in the first speech of this debate. Anyone who believes it is easy to make the first move in an intercollegiate debate—well just ask Miss McCall or anyone else who has ever tried it. Miss Martha Robison had a particularly vital and essential part of the affirmative proof as her assignment and when she had concluded, a stranger would have judged that she was a Tusculum star, not one of the hated enemy, from the applause in which the audience forgot itself and rendered tribute to her really wonderful presentation of argument. Miss (Captain) Edith Moore is one of the most logical and lucid speakers

MEN'S TEAM TO MEET CARSON-NEWMAN

Former Rival Institutions In Debate Will Clash in First Contest in Several Years.

The second debate of the 1921 season will occur Monday night at 7:30. The propositions to be discussed in this debate is: The United States and Great Britain should form a formal defensive alliance.

This is the first time in several years that these two colleges, who used to be great rivals in debate, have come together in such a contest. There are to be only two men on each team. Our colors are to be borne by two capable and well-rounded organizations. The affirmative team goes to Carson and Newman and consists of Ralph Armstrong who served as an alternate on one of last year's teams, and Young Hayes, captain, who represented the College in debate four years ago. Floyd Corry is alternate of this team.

The negative team remains here and consists of Verton Queener who was a member of last year's Prep team and Oscar Stanton, captain, who is debating for the fourth time for Maryville College. Clyde Wilson is the negative alternate.

This will be a hotly contested debate. The two "Reds" as captains and their capable colleagues bid fair to secure two very juicy and savory portions of bacon for M. C. next Monday night.

PRES. S. T. WILSON'S "FOURTEEN POINTS"

Dr. Wilson Gives Y. M. C. A. "Fourteen Points" Regarding The Road to God.

In 1918, near the close of the World War, President Woodrow Wilson gave to the world his famous "Fourteen Points". In 1921, after the February Meetings in Maryville College, President Samuel T. Wilson presented before the Y. M. C. A. another collection of "Fourteen Points" which, in importance to the people for whom they were prepared, far outranked the first memorable document. The boys who attended the "Y" meeting last Sunday afternoon will never wholly forget the Fourteen Points which Dr. Wilson laid down. Dealing as they did with the road along which everyone must begin to journey when he becomes a follower of Christ, these principles were an inspiration both to new and to older Christians. Following are the "Fourteen Points" as given by Dr. Wilson:

1. The road which we are taking is one that it is fatal to leave.
2. The road is perfectly safe if we stay on it.
3. It is a road that challenges our very best manhood.
4. The road is one where our enemies turn out to be our allies.
5. Every man must travel this road for himself.
6. This road is one in which there is no compromise allowed.
7. The hardest thing in very often the best thing.
8. The road upon which we have entered is accurately charted.
9. On this road there is many a

COLLEGE AGAIN HAS EXCELLENT GLEE CLUB

Will Give Concert Here During Month of May; Ray Foster Elected Student Manager.

For the past two years the Glee Club has given a concert toward the close of the College year. These concerts have been greatly enjoyed by the College and the people of the town and have been considered among the best events of the College year. This year will be no exception. The Glee Club and the College as well are fortunate in having in Miss Gregg such a competent leader and one who takes an active interest in part singing on the Hill.

The men of the club are working now on their concert which will be given about the first of May. The club will also make two or more trips this year. The itinerary dates have not been definitely arranged as yet, but are being considered by Professor Hunter, the Graduate Manager, and Ray Foster, the Student Manager. According to Mr. Foster the main trip will include four of the larger towns of East Tennessee and the other trips will be short trips to nearby towns. The main trip will be during the last week in April.

Besides the valuable training it affords the men of the College, the Glee Club is one of the best mediums for showing the kind of a school we have and some good things are expected of the club this year.

Miss Jessie Johnson and Mr. Stanley Lange were appointed at noon today by the president of the four college classes to confer with the two faculty representatives in the selection of a business manager for next year's ECHO.

ALUMNI ALMOST UNANIMOUS IN VOICING DESIRE FOR ACTION

A recent letter sent to the members of the Alumni Association has brought replies from literally every point of the compass. These letters bear testimony to the abiding loyalty of the sons and daughters of Maryville and indicate that love for the College suffers no diminishment with the passing years after school days are over. These letters express too the eager interest of former graduates in the present work and plans and problems of Maryville. The writers are evidently interested to see some stirrings of life in the Alumni Association and some of them promise suggestions as to what they would like to see the Association undertake, while they all express interest and a willingness to cooperate in any way to make the Association more vital and active.

One graduate has asked to have the word passed along that the true Maryville spirit is a guarantee of success, for he says "Wherever I see an old student of Maryville with the true Maryville Spirit I see one who is doing well." Another whose business takes him from city to city says he would like to have a roster of the students of the College to carry with him so that he might, as opportunity offered itself, look them up in their home towns because he feels that all of them are in a way his friends. Many of them send greetings to friends still on the Hill and in town, and perhaps the best way the one whose pleasure it has been to receive all these letters, can pass on the greeting is simply to say thru the Echo, from everybody to everybody, you are most cordially greeted and wished well.

But some of the letters have brought news of the death of some from among our number, which, while not surprising among so large a number, causes our sympathy to go out to the bereaved ones. One letter was returned unopened, simply bearing the official stamp of the Post Office "Unclaimed—Deceased", which suggested the pathetic picture of a home broken up entirely and a family scattered. Another letter was written by the wife of a faithful minister who graduated in 1881. In the letter we found this clipping from a local paper: Rev. James Davis Crumley was born in Sullivan County, East Tennessee in 1854; he passed away at the Silver Cross Hospital, Joliet, Ill., the 30th of October, 1920. The account of his life there given closes thus: "He was a good minister of Jesus Christ, a Biblical preacher, a faithful and efficient pastor; kind and true in every relationship of life." The letter contained also a brief record taken from his Diary as follows: "In 1877, the first of January left my home in Grainger County and entered College at Maryville, Blount County, Tennessee. About the first of February made a profession of religion. On January 26, 1878 united with the Baptist Church of Maryville. Graduated at Maryville College May 26, 1881. On August 13, 1881 was licensed to preach by the Maryville Baptist Church." His wife adds that to the end of his life he was a loyal son of Maryville and often spoke of the College and of the men who were his classmates and friends here. So there is loyalty to the College and faithfulness to duty to the last. And Maryville has the right to be proud of her sons even as her sons are proud of their Alma Mater.

HITTING THE HORSEHIDE

The sifter has been working hard and fast the last few days and it seems as though there is a fairly good line drawn between the good, better, and best of the diamond trotters.

In different terms, the practice of last week has resulted in the exposing and deposing of some of the would-be college leaguers, but, however, "where there is life there is hope", and for that reason none of the try-outs could really call themselves real honest-to-goodness sports if they dropped the practice stuff and say, "No use". Stick to it fellows and cop a place on the big nine. There are going to be some hot games for the second nine, and too, you will have things in your favor next year. Fame and position of worth in the eye of self are not reached in a few weeks' time. The guy who plods and sticks is worthy of praise as well as the fellow who seems to jump into place "tout de suite."

Fielding, infield and outfield, is taking good form to the eye of the onlooker, and it will not be long before Coach can say what must be done.

Nominated For Editorship

The following persons have been nominated by the faculty for the editorship of next year's HIGHLAND ECHO: Janet Ensign, Lina Hodges, Stanley Lange, William Magill, Ruth McCall, Charles Sharp, Tom Vance, and Nannette Walker.

The election will take place in the Chapel next Friday evening, March 18, immediately after supper. Only the students of the college department are entitled to vote in this election.

"Y" MEMBERS ENDORSE ALUMNI MOVEMENT AND PLEDGE SUPPORT

Recent editorials and agitation in the ECHO concerning the need of a new gym at Maryville bring to mind some of the old struggles at the time that Bartlett Hall was first built.

The present Athletic Association was formed in 1890. Athletics except for football and baseball were almost a negligible quantity. The Christian Association felt the need of quarters also. This feeling grew among the students till on March 23rd, 1894, at a mass meeting of the students in the Chapel, Kin Takahashi was elected Chairman of the movement to secure funds for the proposed building. Robert Jones, now a professor in the Preparatory Department here, read a paper on the needs and advantages. The Faculty were petitioned to release Professor S. T. Wilson for the purpose of canvassing for funds. Four hundred dollars were subscribed in that first meeting. Faculty subscriptions soon brought the amount up to $1100.

The Second Meeting was called in April 18th, 1895. At that time it was decided to call the proposed building Bartlett Hall in honor of the former President of the institution and his brother. The Committee was then known as the Bartlett Hall Building Association.

During the summer following, students made brick on the campus to the amount of 300,000. Farmers in the vicinity furnished the wood for the kilns. Publicity followed and spread over the entire country. Kin went North, seeking funds with much success. "FINAL DAYS", the College monthly, carried a great deal of writing on the new hall, the Thanksgiving issue being almost entirely devoted to the project. Mrs. McCormick of Chicago gave the largest gift of $2500.

In 1896, the foundations of the present Bartlett Hall were laid. By 1897, the building was erected and enclosed, largely through student initiative. The gymnasium part was opened for use in 1896. A gymnastic celebration took place at the formal opening. Field day events were also a regular part of the program of these days, Maryville being the only college in the section that encouraged such activities.

In 1899, the Association was incorporated, and thus the Maryville Y.M.C.A. was one of the first Student Associations in the South to own its own building. The Y.W.C. A. gave a gift of $40.98 toward the new furnishings.

Later reverses and cost of upkeep, caused the Association to relinquish hold of the building in 1911. Certain reservations were made so that the Association retained possession over certain rooms, the College making necessary repairs on the gymnasium and basement.

Now, no one will deny that Maryville has outgrown the present gym, and is in need of larger quarters. A first class athletic field is a second necessity. When these are obtained, the boys' side of the house will balance the girls' side.

The suggestion of Mr. Tracy is a most timely one. Certainly the Alumni have here a real task, one which would not only unite them and stimulate Maryville's growth, but unite the students is the com-

Baseball "Spotters" Watch Maryville Men

Maryville College has not fallen short at all when it comes to exposing the baseball talent which many of her national sport followers possess.

In the past and in the present, baseball men from Old M. C. have commanded attention of the best critics as to the brand of ball they play. As a direct result of the splendid showing of many of the men, they receive recognition in the form of offers for a place higher up. Can you not recall the players of last year who made a creditable showing for themselves? Although they did not play as members of the Big League, the league in which they did play was made big by their being there. If you could only take a glance into the future by a few years, you would probably see some Maryville men advancing towards the pinnacle of baseball fame.

When we hear of such offers as the one pitched to Davidson, backstop of last year, and a letter man of four seasons, by the Johnson City pennant winners of last year for whom Davidson caught, and when we hear also that the Danville Club of the Piedmont League are after the Maryville crack backstop also, we must admit that College Hill is the dwelling place at present of baseball worthies. We wish our friend Davy luck, although there are a few more moons before the league seekers can cop him or any other of Feeman's baseball men of ever-increasing fame. The place in yonder big league is for the man who can. Let's show 'em Maryville's men CAN. —R. S. B.

CAMPUS NOTES

Mr. Charles Sharp was operated upon for appendicitis at a Knoxville hospital on Monday of this week. He will probably be out of school for five weeks, and during his absence the work on the 1921 Chilhowean will be under the supervision of Mr. Owen Henderson and Miss Nannette Walker.

We regret to hear that Mr. Herrick Arnold is yet very sick at his home in Cleveland, Tenn. We wish for him a speedy recovery so that he may return to Maryville at an early date.

Miss Emily Louise Gleason, who graduated from the preparatory department of M. C. in 1919, visited on the Hill last week-end.

Mrs. W. S. Jones, formerly Miss Kathrina Barber, and a student of M. C. during the year '18-'19, visited friends at the College last week end. Mrs. Jones' home is in Hartland, W. Va.

Prof. A. F. Southwick made a very interesting and impressive address at the chapel service Saturday morning upon the subject of "Cigarettes".

Rev. J. P. Cotton gave a short, helpful talk at the chapel service on Saturday morning.

"Slim" McGinley, Joe Thompson, and "Kitty" Hill enjoyed a hike to Gold Creek on the other side of the Chilhowees last week-end.

Miss Bernice Jones gave an account of the meeting of the National Student Volunteer Council which she recently attended at New York City, before the Student Volunteer Organization of the University of Tennessee last Monday afternoon.

Misses Esther Jarrold and Ruth Greenlee spent last week-end with friends in Johnson City, Tenn., and Bristol, Va.

Misses Mary Emma Armentrout, Lola Beeler, and Virginia and Goldie Nicely staged an entertainment at Gibbs High School, near Knoxville on last Saturday evening.

Mr. Willis C. McClenaghan, well known on the Hill, has gone to Princeton, N. J., where he and his bride will make their home.

THETA EPSILONS HAVE "OLD TIME" PROGRAM

On Saturday night last, Theta enjoyed one of those rare programs which those who knew the society in the days of its youth, remember as the usual rule of programs.

The program follows:

Piano solo—To a Wild Rose - - - - Ruth McMurray

Reading—The Spell of Yukon - - - - - Susan Carson

Vocal Solo—Take Me Back Again To Babyland - Jewell Stephens

Reading—From Mark Twain - - - Nelle Hamilton

Piano Duet - - Ruth and Carolyn White

Reading—My Mother - - - - - - - Jessie Johnson

Extemporaneous Debate—Resolved, That it is worse when going down stairs in the dark to think you have reached the bottom step when you haven't, than to think that you haven't when you have.

The affirmative side was upheld by Miss Manie Witherspoon and the negative was defended by Janet Ensign.

Needless to say each of the artists were recalled by a violent applause and the second number was enjoyed no less than the first. Why is it when we have so much talent that we hear so little from the blessed ones?

Play up! Let's have some more of the old time programs, old things are becoming new this spring, and it will not only help you, if "practice makes perfect" as they say it does, but will do the others of the society a world of good.

BAINONIAN

All the girls turned back to dollbaby and pig-tail days when Mother Goose visited Bainonian Hall, bringing with her Tom Thumb, Mother Hubbard, and her dog, Tom the piper's son, Mistress Mary, Old King Cole and his fiddlers, little Miss Muffet, Simple Simon, little Boy Blue and the old woman who lived in a shoe, whose children sang "Come Slide Down My Cellar Door."

Callie Speck and Charlotte Allen sang the Story Book Ball which all of Mother Goose's children attended.

The program was so interesting and well-given that never for a moment did one fail to realize that it was the same Mother Goose in whom she formerly delighted.

JUNIOR ATHENIANS

What do you do with your Saturday nights?
Come up where you are always treated right!
Line up with the Junior Athenian Crew,
Where you have some fun and learn something too.

The Junior Athenians had a good old-fashioned spelling match Saturady night with Mr. Lee Moore carrying away the honors, and Mr. Finley McBride second.

The meeting was then turned into a business meeting, at which matters of importance were discussed. It is indeed very gratifying to note that eleven of the Junior Athenians made the Preparatory Debating Team.

The closing prayer was offered by Mr. Keene.

ALUMNI NOTES

Professor H. E. Orr '12, the recently elected Corresponding Secretary of the Alumni Association has circulated to all the alumni a very newsy and valuable letter. This letter has gone out the past week and should do much to stimulate a feeling of responsibility and comradeship among the alumni.

D. H. Briggs, '19 who is teaching in the High School at Hot Springs, North Carolina writes an enthusiastic account of his work. His Basketball team has a fine chance at the State Championship, he informs us. Has won ten out of fourteen games.

Among those admitted to the practice of law in the recent State Bar Examinations we note the name of Charles E. Dawson, '15.

Rev. R. S. Carson '14 was on the Hill recently enroute from Nebraska, where he has held a pastorate, to Durham, North Carolina, where he is entering upon a promising new work.

The Bulletin of the Saginaw (Michigan) Chamber of Commerce contains an article on Boy Scouting by Orton L. Duggan '12, who has recently taken up work in that city as Scout Executive. The Bulletin speaks very flatteringly of the spirit with whch Mr. Duggan comes to this work. Mr. Duggan has served as scoutmaster for over six years and for more than a year of that time has been Field Scout Executive in the North Shore District of the city of Chicago.

Rev. F. L. Miller '12 writes from Antwerp that he is in the army to stay. He has gone into service as Chaplain with a Field Artillery regiment and is to be stationed on Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Adams report the arrival of a daughter, who has been given the name, Elizabeth Faller. Mr. Adams is a member of the Class of 1916.

Mrs. Norman Claypool, nee Vera Hall, a member of the class of '10, is visiting her parents in Maryville while her husband is overseeing the moving of their goods to Pittsburg where they will make their home.

Miss Christine Alexander '13 who went to Egypt in '16 as a teacher, and who has since taught in Turkey and Roumnaia, recently arrived at New York for a visit to this country. She is at present visiting Mrs. Lois Alexander Ritzman at Durham, N. H.

Miss Genevieve Tetedoux '20, who is teaching in Cameron High School, Cameron, W. Va., reports that she is planning to attend the Commencement Exercises of M. C. this year.

Miss Helen Brown, '19, is teaching at Mannington, W. Va.

present agreement was insufficient, merely a secret treaty and contrary to the Monroe Doctrine.

Miss Mason in her emphatic and characteristic way pled, that because of economical and military reasons the existing conditions between America and Japan should not be destroyed by drastic and disastrous measures. Throughout all the rebuttals but perhaps especially in those of Miss Gahagan, Miss Kimble, and Miss Mason, rapid and conclusive arguments were presented and efficient destruction of opponent points employed. Unanswerable questions and fiery challenges were frequently flung. The audience and debaters wish to thank the chairman, Professor Brittain for the promptness with which he gave the decision of the judges. Maryville College was honored by the presence of the distinguished men who acted as judges:

Hon. Charles Hays Brown, Knoxville; Prof. R. S. Radford, The University of Tennessee; Prof. Dudley Tanner, Hariman City Schools.

After the debate a pleasant social was enjoyed by the Forensic League and its friends in the Domestic Science Rooms.

MARYVILLE GIRLS LOSE DEBATE AT TUSCULUM

Maryville student generation has ever produced. Her work in closing the constructive argument for her team was clear, precise, masterly. In rebuttal the work of our team was most excellent.

But you are wonderng about the decision, and you are saying in the vernacular of Rastus, "How come?" During the passing of all this splendid array of ability on the part of our team the Tusculum team was not exactly what one would call asleep. Especially was this true of Captain Mildred Hoffman who, by the bye, once wore a Maryville uniform. Miss Hoffman opened the debate and closed it for her team and it was, in the opinion of the writer, her dramatic and compelling appeal to the large-heartedness and Christian chivalry of America to be above race prejudice and discriminatory dealings, which captured the decision. To her stellar work all praise is due.

Hark ye further! Our team was simply wonderful in defeat. You never saw anything like it! They went through a whole hour of a reception with ease and grace and freedom from any sign of chagrin or disappointment. If a college ever had reason to be proud of a team we are it. Miss Robison, who had gone through the nerve-wracking strain of two hours of debate was called on to read to the company, and she read, read in spite of the fact that she and her teammates had just experienced one of the bitterest disappointments of their college careers. Oh, they were gallant fighters, but still more gallant losers.

And one word more. This Tusculum crowd is there when it comes to loyalty. They certainly back their teams. All next day they talked debate in class room and out. They're that way in athletics too. Let's get back of our teams, debate teams, and the crowd of fellows who are getting ready for the approaching baseball season. There's nothing like a united college spirit.

mon enterprise. It is a task that will challenge the best efforts, and is therefore a worthy goal.

The annex might well be named after Kin Takahashi, the man who organized the first football team Maryville ever had, the man who was always in the midst of the religious activities of the College. It is also fitting that the annex should be named after Kin since he was the moving spirit that built Bartlett Hall. He spent his life in the service of the College he loved, and when it was over, he laid down his life back in old Japan.

The Young Men's Christian Association of Maryville is back of the movement heart and soul for whatever part they can play in the advance for a bigger gymnasium. Certainly, if the students of 1895 could build Bartlett, the alumni of the first two decades of the 20th Century ought to be able to build an annex and athletic field compatible with Maryville's standing. They can count on the Students for their share of loyalty and cooperation. Let's do something now!

FIRST AFTERNOON "LYCEUM NUMBER" GIVEN

On last Friday afternoon in Voorhees Chapel occurred one of the best attended and most entertaining afternoon recitals in the history of the College. The program consisted of piano solos by Miss Ruth McMurray, Miss Marion Whittle, Miss Virgie Lee Stribling, Miss Grace Major and Miss Elizabeth Whitlock. The ladies quartet composed of Misses Millicent Codding, Bernice Kimble, Jessie Johnson and Ruth Gamble also contributed to the musical part of the program.

The readers for the afternoon were Miss Helen Horton, Miss Jewell Stevens and Miss Susan Carson. The variety in the program and the talent and training evinced in rendering the different numbers were highly appreciated by the audience and we are looking forward eagerly to another afternoon "lyceum number".

MONTHLY MEETING OF CHEMISTRY CLUB

The Chemistry Club held its monthly meeting on Tuesday evening March 1st. A very interesting program was given which consisted entirely of local talent. The meeting was full of pep from start to finish.

Mr. Minarik gave an eloquent address on "Chemical Warfare", in which he showed the progress of the New Chemical Age. Miss Charlotte Messler followed up Mr. Minarik's address with a fluent discourse on "The Progress in the Chemistry of Steel Making and the Frame Work for Automobiles", telling of the miraculous Herculean feats that have been accomplished along this line.

Last but far from least was Miss Carrie Nelson's charming treatise on the "Utilization of the Waste Products of Wood". In which she told of the nmerous discoveries by chemists which had saved vast sums of money and the resources of our nation.

This was one of the most splendid programs of the year, and showed the result of much study and research on the part of the participants.

The following men were visitors at chapel last Thursday morning: Rev. R. Payton Taylor, Birmingham, Alabama, father of Donald Taylor of the Sophomore class; Rev. Jarvis P. Cotton, Synodical Superintendent for the State of Alabama, living at Birmingham, Ala., father of Jarvis Cotton of the Senior class; Rev. R. A. N. Wilson, Sr. of Batesville, Mississippi, father of R. A. N. Wilson, Jr., of the Sophomore class; and Rev. Marion V. P. Yeaman, D. D., of Mt. Sterling, Ky.

A lovesick youth should take a comb and brush with him when he calls on his girl. They make parting easier.

"Y" FELLOWS TAKE TRIP TO LOOK ROCK

For the benefit of those who missed the "Y" trip to Look Rock, I will try to give some idea of what happened during this delightful day in the mountains.

We left Carnegie at 7:30, George Howell setting a pace which was kept up, with a few exceptions, throughout the twenty-two miles. We stopped several times for water; but our first rest was not taken until we rested in the shade of Montvale Hotel. Here we changed tires and shifted the pack before beginning the ascent up to Look Rock.

With an hour left before hash time we hiked to the last spring up the mountain before we halted. It was an ideal place for such an occasion and in about two minutes the frying pan began to call for the bacon. Just outside the suburbs of Montvale we were lucky to find some fresh fruit, (hen fruit) which followed the bacon to the table via the frying pan route. We had three of the best cooks between Montvale and Look Rock with us, and in less time than the fastest, eleven hungry hikers had stayed starvation.

With every one eager to get up to old Look Rock we soon "broke up camp" and by one o'clock we were all stretched out on the big rock.—The smoke of forest fire prevented our seeing as far as we would have liked, but nothing could prevent that feeling of awe that comes over one as he stands on these rocks high above the valley.

An inventory at Look Rock of the condition of the bunch showed that some one had worn a blister on his foot. I have forgotten just who it was, but while Dave Noble sang, as a substitute for an anesthetic, first aid treatment was given.

It is a little early for mountain flowers; but a few budding arbutus set every body on the lookout for one in bloom. Not until we were skirting the foot of the mountain, on our way back did we find the arbutus in bloom.

Everybody was in a good humor all the time, and jokes and stories kept us in high spirits all day.

Yes, we got ashes in the eggs, we wore blisters on our feet, we drank too much water at the five mile post, but we had a great time, every minute of the trip.

We arrived on the Hill about five thirty, tired, but happy, with our memories full of every sort of pleasant hiking experience.

For you who missed this fine outing we are sorry; but be on the lookout for another "Y" hike is coming soon. Don't let the year go by without taking a trip to the mountains.

JR. Y. W. C. A.

Those who didn't go to Y. W. last Sunday certainly missed a treat. Dorothy Dickerson explained the first commandment to us. Have you any idol that you put before God?

A number of other girls told us what some of their idols are—clothes, money, popularity and reputation. Do any of these things interfere with your woshiping God as you should?

To add to the program Millicent Codding sang very sweetly, "I have a Cottage in God's Garden."

"The Place to Trade"

PROF. KNAPP LEADS SENIOR Y. W. C. A.

After the opening songs and a cornet solo beautifully rendered by Miss Dolly Enoch, Professor Knapp took charge of the meeting and gave an inspiring and helpful address. His theme was "Three Essentials to Worth-While Achievement", these essentials being ideals, purposes, and convictions. By way of introduction he asked what made a man or woman a dynamic influence. He showed that a great deal had been accomplished in the world by means of wealth and that learning or knowledge brought many distinctions, but that after all it is manhood and womanhood by which we are measured. Then he took up the three essentials—ideals, purposes, convictions— separately, giving illustrations of famous people who had been guided by each or all.

He made the last point, that of conviction, strongest and showed that it was more than a purpose. He said, "Purpose springs from ambition, conviction is rooted in conscience." He used the famous Swede singer, Jenny Lind, as an illustration of the three essentials and told of the wonderful work she had done for the poor children of Sweden. She was able to do it because she had an ideal, which was to sing like the birds, a purpose to serve humanity, and a conviction to help her own people.

In conclusion Professor Knapp showed that the ideal for humanity is the supreme teacher who said "Follow me."

MARYVILLE AGAIN BREAKS EVEN IN INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATE; TUSCULUM NEXT ON DOCKET

AFF. TEAM LOSE AT JEFFERSON CITY

After Two Hours' Delay a Pitched Forensic Battle Was Waged.

Seldom indeed has a Maryville team put up a stronger fight than our affirmative team gave the Carson-Newman people on Monday evening. The audience was held spell-bound by the steady, clear cut argument of Ralph Armstrong and the relentless logic of Young Hayes. And it was not exactly an easy audience to hold, for it had had more than an hour of waiting. Two judges were on hand promptly enough, but the third was to come to Morristown by train and the rest of the way by a Ford that should be retired. The anxious manager correctly guessed that a flat tire was causing the delay, and all waited on. Finally it was agreed to debate before the two judges present, and at 8:30 the debaters marched out and possessed the big leather chairs. The weary audience, which had been beguiling the time with the efforts of a xylophone artist, straightened up, and there was no relaxing of the tension till the decision was announced.

How such a decision as at last came was reached is not for the writer to explain. He does not know.

All the speakers did well, and it was a contest to delight a true lover of forensic strife. Maryville has every reason to be proud of her team. Armstrong acquitted himself like a veteran and Hayes struck terror into the hearts of the C.-N supporters. After the debate, eulogistic comment for both men came from people that seemed competent to know wherof they spoke; both constructive and rebuttal speeches were praised, but it was the smashing rebuttal with which Hayes closed the argument that was especially admired.

Armstrong has a great future in store as a debater; Hayes made a strong impression by reason of his voice, personality and platform manner; and both showed strong conviction, together with a thorough grasp of the subject.

It was late when the debate was over, but the lights were kept on a while and the boys were given a very pleasant reception in the Sarah Swann Hall. They were gallant losers and each was the center of a friendly group until matron dispersed all with a warning bell.

Our debaters came back home disappointed, but having made some good friends, and having fought a good fight.

STANTON AND QUEENER VANQUISH RIVALS

Maryville Negative Team Overwhelms Carson-Newman on Home Forum.

You've heard about the slaughter of the innocents away back in the days of King Herod. Well we don't wish to imply that the Carson and Newman men who debated here Monday night were innocents—that is, they may have been innocent but, —oh, well what we do mean to say is that "Red" Stanton and Verton Queener utterly out-Heroded Herod in the thoroughness and rapacity with which they went after these same Carson and Newmanites.

Logic and pep, and teamwork, and skill in defense,—all the qualities which go to win debates, they had in abundance. Mr. Queener's constructive speech started well and steadily increased in force and convincingness until the end. His work in rebuttal was clear and to the point. This young man, although a Freshman, is already a skilled debater and will certainly be a wonder as other debate seasons come on. All the force and enthusiasm and consistent effort of a great debate career was present in Oscar Stanton's work Monday night. It has seldom been our fortune to see such debating as this firey-topped captain of ours exhibited in this his last intercollegiate appearance. From his first word until the last his audience was with him heart and soul. We shall certainly miss him next year, for in addition to his invaluable individual work as a debater he has served two years as president of the Forensic League.

Messrs. Carr and McCaleb, the Carson and Newman standard bearers deserve more mention than our space permits. Both are pleasing and convincing speakers, foemen worthy of our steel. The Judges, Judge Heiskell of Knoxville, Dr. Thackston of U. T., and Dean Robb of Athens, voted unanimously for Maryville.

WILL LOCK HORNS WITH TUSCULUM MON.

Debate Season of College Department Closes With This Contest.

The debate season of the College Department closes next Monday night when our men and the men of Tusculum College meet in a discussion of the proposition: The form of government of the United States should be so modified as to provide for a system of responsible executive government.

Tusculum is out after revenge this year and is bending every effort to defeat Maryville. It goes without saying that that feat will not be without some opposition on the part of our debaters. This should be a warm contest. Both of the men originally chosen to lead our teams have been forced out of the fray. Herrick Arnold has had to drop out due to the complications following on an attack of tonsilitis. Charles Sharp is only just now recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

But in spite of the loss of these two valuable men the teams have gone on working manfully in preparation for the debate. The affirmative team goes to Tusculum and consists of David King, Delemo Beard and Thomas Vance. This team is sure to give a most excellent account of itself. King was a member of last year's Prep team which won at Tusculum and Vance who is acting captain of his team, was last year a member of the team which defeated Lincoln Memorial here. Mr. Beard, the alternate who has taken Mr. Arnold's place is working splendidly.

The negative team which remains at home is composed of Roy Buffatt, Arthur Nace, and Bennett Montgomery. None of these men has had college debate experience but they are rapidly rounding into major league form and will give the Tusculum crowd a real fight. Their spirit in the face of the loss of their captain, Mr. Sharp has been fine. If ever two Maryville teams athletic or forensic, deserved loyal support and encouragement these are the two. Everybody out Monday night.

DEMISE OF S. ROLAND WILLIAMS, ALUMNUS

Dr. Wilson is in receipt of a letter telling of the death of Mr. Samuel Roland Williams, a member of the class of 1912, at Birmingham, Ala., February 25. The report tells that he died as a result of an operation for an abcess of the pancreas.

After his graduation Mr. Williams went to Marshall, N. C., where he was for several years Principal of the Marshall High School. At the time of his death he was the Principal of the Elmore County High School at Eclectic, Ala. Mr. Williams was a strong, influential man and was a power in the communities in which he worked.

Mr. Oscar Stanton of the Senior Class was for a time under the instruction of Mr. Wililams at Marshall, N. C., and was persuaded by him to come to Maryville College.

Mr. Williams leaves a widow whom he married in December, 1919.

"Y" HEARS MISSIONARY ADDRESS

John David Speaks Upon Persia

A missionary address in which all the information came first-hand was the program of the Y.M.C.A. meeting last Sunday afternoon. John David, the leader of the meeting, was born and reared in Persia, and so is well qualified to give actual facts concerning that country. Mr. David's father was a missionary to the Persian people, and finally lost his life while offering them the Gospel. At present Mr. David is chairman of the Friendly Relations Committee of the Y. M. C. A.

The speaker first described the location and condition of Persia, which is now dominated by the Mohammedans.

An account was given of one of the wars against the Christians, in which many of the latter were given their choice of accepting Mohammedism or dying. Needless to say, the captives refused to deny Christ—and perished. In conclusion Mr. David urged that we, who have the religion of Christ and know its value, do all in our power to take it and send it to others.

CLAIRE McMURRAY LEADS PEPPY Y. Y. C. A. MEETING

Bernice Jones Elected President

On Sunday afternoon some very practical and important problems were discussed in Y. W. C. A. Some of the campus problems brought up were: How to improve girls' athletics; how to destroy clique spirit and substitute the forming of more friends; the part traditions play in college life; how to raise standards of honor. The spirit of the meeting was one of love for Maryville and came out of a desire to better Maryville. If there was any knocking done it was constructive, not destructive. All the girls showed their interest by speaking out and many good suggestions were given.

Elizabeth Moore played a piano solo.

The report concerning the election of new officers was heard:

President - - - - Bernice Jones
Vice President - - Stella McCall
Secretary - - - - - Helen Deal
Treasurer - - - Julia Anderson
U. R. - - - Nannette Walker

Mae Boyer when it comes to reading. She gave two excellent readings, the latter because she could not possibly get away until she read again.

NEXT LYCEUM

RALPH PARLETTE COMING MARCH 24TH.

The next number of the Lyceum will be given in the chapel Thursday evening, March 24 at 8 o'clock. It will be a lecture by Mr. Ralph Parlette and his subject will be "The University of Hard Knocks"

Mr. Parlette is so well known to the American public that it is hardly necessary to tell who he is. Sufficient to say is that he began lecturing seventeen years ago and has had as many as ten return engagements in some of the towns in which he has spoken.

Mr. Parlette is not an entertainer, yet there is no man on the platform more entertaining. He is not a funny man, yet the audience laughs every little while—and cries. He is not an orator, yet he sways audiences with the supreme power of oratory. He is a master-painter of the commonplace truth.

An evening spent with him will be both entertaining and instructive.

FORMER M. C. STUDENT WINS GRAND PRIZE

Mr. Elmer Brown of Maryville, who graduated from the preparatory department of M. C. in 1917, recently won very high honors at the Iowa State College at Ames. At the Annual Little International Stock Show recently held at that institution he copped the grand championship and received the silver loving cup which is the highest award given out at that Show. Mr. Brown has received a considerable amount of publicity in the farm journals of the North as result of his recent success. Last year Mr. Brown recived the second prize at the Little International Stock Show.

SECOND RECITAL

The second in a series of recitals by the Music and Expression Departments will be given Friday afternoon, March 18, at 3:15, in Voorhees Chapel. The play, "When Silence Was Golden", will be presented by Miss Bewley's class in dramatization at this recital.

PLAY TO BE GIVEN ON FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Evey one is looking forward to the next "afternoon lyceum" which is to be in the chapel Friday of this week. The expression department will give a play as its part of the program—a very clever, interesting play which is guaranteed to entertain. In it is a rector, a book agent, a borrowing woman, an old lady, the charming Baker family—on the whole a surprisingly good cast. You cannot afford to miss it.

MARYVILLE GIRLS STAGE NOVEL PLAY AT THETA

"Old Maids Club" Presented Feauring Well-Known Town Girls.

Election of Officers.

The thrill of expectancy which had been felt in Theta circles for many days, due no doubt, to the particularly striking and impressive poster that occupied half the space of the bulletin board and the unusually loud and turbulent sounds that floated through the windows of Theta Hall to afternoon tennis players—this thrill, young people (a million apologies, Dr. Stevnson) reached its culmination on Saturday night when one of the largest crowds of Theta Epsilon history assembled in the hall to witness the presentation of "The Old Maid's Club" by the town members of the society.

Extemporaneous Program At Athenian Saturday; Everyone Takes Part.

E. F. Martin Presides.

The Athenian Literary Society met Saturday night as usual. Although the attendance was affected by the coming of Spring, baseball talk, and love, there still were a few present to carry on the society work. The meeting was presided over by Edgar F. Martin.

The program was purely extemporaneous. Every one took an active part. Therein lies the success of the meeting. When a band of fellows come to a meeting to take part in an extemporaneous program, and when each and every one takes part, —that is what Solomon the wise man would call ideal.

The question for debate was,

BAINONIAN

Don't forget St. Patrick! Bainonian, heeded; so it will take a small imagination to guess that such a very, very good Irish program was presented celebrating St. Patrick's Day.

An Irish love song sung by Mary Elizabeth Clements and Myrtle Rendon, accompanied on the violin by Charlotte Messler opened the program effectively.

Grace Kern explained in a pleasing manner, how St. Patrick chased out the snakes from Ireland with his magic silver bell.

Here's to Anna Mae Holland, who gave such a delightful piano solo. You may guess we did not dare let her go from the hall until she gave another.

Mike and Pat could not be possibly forgotten so eight girls gave a joke on them. When we tell you they were "good", we mean more than the ordinary word "good" conveys.

The Literary Number of the Highland Echo, of which we made mention some few weeks ago, will be published either on the last Thursday of April or on the first Thursday of May. We are hoping that many literary sharks will "kick in" with breezy articles for that edition.

The examinations for the preparatory department classes cover Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. It is a cause of great joy to the old members of the college department at this time to heave a sign of spring fever origin and think of the burdensome winter term exams from which they are being spared this year for the first time. However, on second thought, a shiver runs up and down their spinal columns as they come to realize that the June finals are fast approaching. In other words there is cause to be glad and cause to be otherwise.

* * * *

Remember the meeting of the students of the college department in Voorhees Chapel, Friday evening immediately after supper, for the purpose of electing an editor-in-chief for next year's Highland Echo. Any one of the eight nominees for the editorship, we are confident, would make a very capable and efficient editor, but it is important that all the college students be present at the election in order that the one elected may truly represent the majority of the total membership of the college department.

Last year M. C. staged the first May Day performance in many years, and it was quite an attractive fete indeed. But because it was so hastily planned and carried out it was far inferior to what it should have been. Why not make this one of the big events of the year and begin now in order to have ample time in which to prepare and produce something really first class? A May Day performance when properly gotten up is one of the most attractive of all forms of entertainment.

Miss Bewley's class in dramatization will give an entertainment at the Friendsville High School on Friday evening of this week. One of the plays which they will give at Friendsville will be given at the afternoon recital in the Chapel Friday afternoon.

CAMPUS NOTES

Mr. Harry F. Comer, State Student Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. made a very interesting address at the chapel service on last Friday morning.

Dean Reece of Carson-Newman College was a guest at the chapel exercises on Tuesday morning. He spent Tuesday in examining the principles of administration and methods of instruction employed in our institution.

Miss Alice Clemens has been confined to her home with sickness during a part of this week.

At a reception given by Mrs. Joe Bittle on last Thursday afternoon, Miss Mildred Striplin and Miss Susan Carson read several attractive selections. Those present at the reception spoke in very complimentary terms of the reading of these two young artists.

Dr. Howell M. Evans of Pennsylvania, and Principal Tener of the Friendsville Academy were visitors on the Hill Tuesday.

Several of the M. C. faculty members will attend the second annual meeting of the Association of Colleges of Tennessee at the University of Tennessee this week. The session will begin this P. M. and last until noon Saturday. Dr. Barnes is the chairman of the Visitation Committee of this meeting.

The Executive and Building Committees of the College met on Tuesday morning of this week.

Miss Bernice Kimble has had her mother as her guest during this week.

Mr. Harold Huddleston of Bauxite, Ark., a former resident of Maryville and student of the College, visited in Maryville during the first of this week.

Mr. John Hendrick sustained a sprained ankle while engaging in the strenuous game of leap-frog one day this week.

At a meeting of the basket ball fellows on last Thursday, Jean McMurray was elected captain for next year's varsity.

JUNIOR ATHENIAN

There was an unusually good time in the Junior Athenian hall Saturday night. After the opening prayer by President Brown, the challenge that was returned by the Junior Alpha Sigmas, was discussed and Messrs. Cornelious, Friedman and McBride, captain, were elected by the society to debate with them at some future date.

There came then an extemporaneous debate: Resolved, That a city boy is more green on going to the country than a country boy is on going to the city.

The affirmative was upheld by Messrs. Friedman and Jester, while the negative was supported by Messrs. Campbell and McBride.

After a long, windy combat in which the habits and dispositions of the respective parties were brought out, the affirmative won.

Mr. Curtis was sworn in and is now a full-fledged Athenian. (Atta time Curt!)

Next came the election of officers for the Spring term. The following men were elected: President, Hayworth; Vice President, Campbell; Recording Secretary, Lee Moore; Program Secretary, Foster; Critics, Jester and Cornelious.

CHINA RELIEF STAMPS

We often raise a fuss because we can not have everything we want to eat. But were you ever really hungry, doing without food for days, with no hope of your hunger being satisfied. There are thousands of such in China today. Buy stamps! Three cents saves a life for a day.

ANOTHER SUGGESTION BY ALUMNI MEMBER

The following is an exerp from a letter received by Dr. Wilson from J. T. Reagan, '80, of New Albine, Iowa:

I trust your February Meetings were better than usual this year. I received a copy of "The Highland Echo" some two weeks since. I surely did enjoy it. After devouring it, I sent it home. The Students' Activities Fund was discussed at some length. The money the stube enough to supply the demand. The question arose as to how to get more money. The thought has come to me, after studying over the matter, why not ask the alumnae and alumni (there must be several hundred of us) to pay into this fund, at the opening of College next September, $10 or more each. That would give you a working fund at once while the students would be paying in in installments.

Many of the graduates, of course, have passed away. But possibly their families, if any are left would be glad to respond instead of their parents. This is a simple suggestion.

PAPA LIED

A little boy was once overheard saying to his pet rabbit:

"How much is seven time seven?"

There being no response from the rabbit, the boy said:

"How much is four times four?"

Still there was no response.

"Now I'll give you an easy one: "How much is two times two?"

Still the rabbit refused to respond.

"Well", said the boy, "I knew father was fibbing when he said rabbits are the greatest multipliers in the world!"

Fan: Well, what did you say?
Flo: I asked him if he thought it wise to let a fortune float around unattached.

Porke—How do you punctuate this sentence: 'And beautiful Mary came around the corner'?
Beane—I don't know; how?
Porke—Make a dash after Mary and enclose her in parenthesis.

Fresh: How easy it is to have some Junior work 'em out.

Soph (to Fresh sitting on a sign-post)—Hey, Fresh, what are you sitting up there for?
Fresh—Well, sir, the instructor said I was to write a composition on a sign-post, so I'm doing it.

She—The man I marry must be a hero, brave, daring, and gallant; he must have enough to support me comfortably; must have a country home and above all, be honest.
He—That's very good, but this is love—not a department store.

Fresh—Why do they have knots on the ocean instead of miles?
Soph—Well, you see they couldn't have the ocean tide if there were no knots.

"Is it Hendrick or Hendricks?"
"Singular, yes, sir."

A COLLEGE BOY'S FATE

Before I came to Maryville
I knew of girls but little;
To me they seemed a foolish thing,
Flirty, flighty and fickle.

But since I've come to Maryville
Girls have been more essential,
Their coming into my lonely life
Has been most providential.

I walked about on College Hill
Where damsels do abound;
I thought it quite a waste, for them
To take up so much ground.

One day as I was sauntering,
I saw a form approaching,
The thrill of love came into me,
Upon my heart encroaching.

Before me was a damsel fair,
With wonderful eyes of blue;
Upon her head was golden hair.
This damsel fair was YOU.

From that day forth forevermore,
My heart is bound to thine,
O dearest darling of my heart,
Wilt thou please be mine?

LISTEN GIRLS

A British detective says that ninty percent of the runaway husbands he has been required to stalk in seventeen years of detecting had blue eyes. You may take this for what it is worth, but it does not necessarily mean that because a man's pupils happen to be surrounded by a disk of brown or gray it is perfectly safe to keep his supper waiting.

"If 32 is the freezing point, what is the squeezing point?"
'Two in the shade, you boob."

Maryville Girls Stage Novel Play at Theta

Stormy applause greeted the arrival of the cast. Then a hush fell over the audience as the curtains parted disclosing the club room of the O. M. C. of Maryville College and Luella Primrose therein gracefully occupying the president's chair. Flaming placards on the club-room wall contained three printed words conveying three ideas closely associated with one another in the spinster mind—Love, Matrimony, Heaven.

The club members arrived on time, primly conscious of the cork-screw perfection of their curls, carrying handbags, knitting, the inevitable cat and other accessories dear to the spinster heart. Two MEN, newspaper reporters perhaps, drifted in to become the immediate victims of unsought and evidently undesired popularity. The hostilities begun thereupon continued throughout the meeting. Time and time again the tactful and ever resourceful president warded off a crisis by suggesting that the secretary pass the gum drops. Dora Doolittle occupied the coveted chair beside Mr. James, upon whose heart she tried a melting process with sunny smiles, and scalding tears. A detailed account of the proceedings of the meeting can be obtained from the efficient secretary Sally Brown. We must mention however, the report on the eligibility of certain Maryville College men and the chances of success with respect to same, the much applauded and wept over vocal solos rendered by Lucretia Dewitt and the heated discussion of the merits of the matrimonial bureau of The Highland Echo.

Quite a sensation was created by the entrance of a stranger—somebody's country cousin evidently—who sought membership in the club. Sad to relate—her unwillingness to add the word "obey" to her vocabulary excludes her forever from this society of single-wretchedness.

The climax of the evening was rendered when Mr. James announced that he had in his possession two magic berries guaranteed to restore the lost youth and beauty of the eaters thereof. Suella and Dora were the recipients of said berries and were transformd in a twinkling into the incarnation of youth and beauty respectively. The two "catches" present succumbed forthwith and immediately to their charms and the fortunate two with their newly-acquired male possessions made a hasty and happy exit amid the sighs and cries of disappointment from the less fortunate untransformed majority. Some people do have all the luck!

"Resolved: That the United States should build at least four battleships each year. The affirmative was upheld by "Buck" Ellis and "Ici" Crawford—two men who have the unusual debating talent of searching a question to its very foundations. It remained for "Ran" Wilson and "Check" Minarik to uphold the negative. The streams of the Niagara were never so voluminous, and the Amazon never flowed water faster than these two presented argument.

The question was so well debated on both sides that the decision of the judges was not taken. Then came the rendition of a vocal solo given by Edgar Martin. He moved the house by his singing. Bismark, must have heard of Mr. Corry when he said, that an orator can sway the people just like a summer's breeze sways the early wheat, for when he gave us that talk he was so convincing that he could have gotten anything from us.

Let every Athenian be on time next Saturday night. We have but fifty chairs, so come early to avoid the rush. If you have a girl in town reconcile her with a date on Friday night. If she can't be reconciled with the Friday night call, then get a girl on the Hill. She will not want to go to the movie Saturday evening.

ANOTHER SUGGESTION FOR AN IDEAL EXAM

1. Name two countries that fought in the Spanish-American war.
2. What was the nationality of Bismark, the great German statesman?
3. How old was Methuselah on his one hundredth birthday?
4. How long did the thirty year's war last?

VOLUME SIX — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, MARCH 25, 1921 — NUMBER TWENTY-TWO

MARYVILLE WILL PLAY RED SOX

Games Scheduled With U. T. For This Week Called Off.

The games which were to have been played between Maryville and U. T. this week were called off on account of wet grounds. Negotiations are now under way to schedule two games with the Volunteers for next week in order that the Highlanders may get in trim before they meet the Boston Red Sox on April 2.

When a College team plays the big leaguers it is time to sit up and take notice. Therefore notice of the most attentive kind should be given to that game on April 2, with the Boston Red Sox. The game will be played at Knoxville, Tenn. on the baseball diamond of Caswell Park. A pleasant trip is in store for every student who can possibly arrange to go. The trip is not all: there is a possibility of the Highlanders giving our Boston friends another Tea-Party.

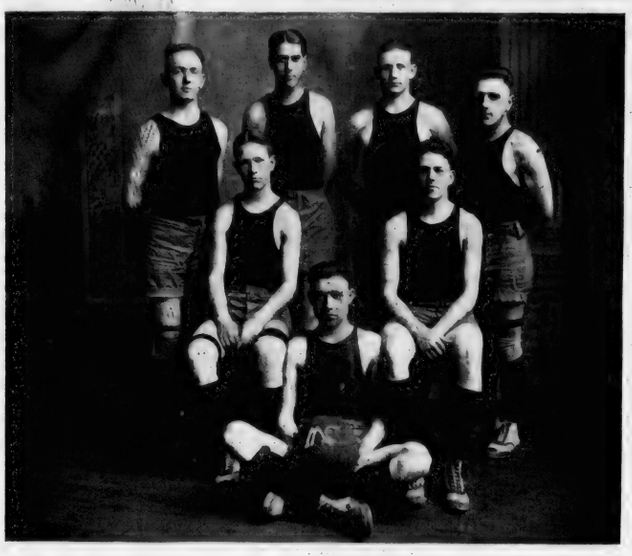
Let this soak in too, ye baseball fans: Reliable Rumor has it that M. C. has been given a chance to play the New York Giants right here on our own field. Is not that a flattering offer? Should such a chance as that be missed? There seems to be a hesitation as to just what should be done. I move and also second the motion that we show a true sportsman-like spirit and accept this kindly offer—if it be such—and cordially welcome our Giant friends to our Hill. The financial and other compensations for the College that would necessarily accompany such a game should by no means be considered lightly. It would be a great thing for the College, the Students, and the Giants. Let 'em come.

"FIRE ESCAPER'S ASSOCIATION" HOLD THEIR FIRST MEETING IN 1921

Dr. Gillingham Gives a Very Helpful and Useful Message.

What truly was one of the most helpful and inspiring messages given in the Ministerial Association for the school year 1920-21 was that of Dr. Gillingham when he spoke upon the subject of the "Seven Qualifications for Christian Service."

Taking Gideon of the Old Testament and Paul of the New he characterized not only the true ideals but the way in which the believer should live in order to do actual service for his Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.



The seven points that Dr. Gillingham gave to those who desire to do this service are:

1. A deep conviction in his own need of God.
2. An exercised heart.
3. No confidence in the flesh.
4. Peace with God.
5. Worship.
6. Obedience in small things.
7. Power for ALL things.

Though some have thought that this organization be dead, yet were they to take a survey of the extension work, their opinion would be somewhat changed, because work is being carried on at Alcoa, Battle Branch and Plainfield, and jail meetings and some open-air meetings have been held.

DOUBLE VICTORY OVER TUSCULUM COLLEGE BRINGS SUCCESSFUL COLLEGE DEBATING SEASON TO CLOSE

FOUR VICTORIES, TWO DEFEATS

Percentage for Season is .667; Six Members of Team Will Graduate.

When an athletic season is over then comes the publishing of averages, the general review of the fortunes of the season. For those who care there may be some interest in such a summary of our intercollegiate debate season.

The season has consisted of three dual debates or six contests. The first of these debates was the girls' debate against Tusculum College girls on March 7. A week later, March 14, our boys debated Carson and Newman. March 21, saw the close of the season in the boys' debate against Tusculum. The record follows:

Three straight on the home floor is the record for the season which was completed Monday night.

This debate was one of the gamest fights against odds that Maryville debating has ever known. It was only a scant two weeks before the date of the debate that Charles Sharp, the captain of our team was stricken down with appendicitis, and because of this a readjustment of the team was necessary. The facts for this account of the debate at Tusculum are vouched for by the head of our Department of Mathematics who saw the battle and ought to be writing this article. Tusculum had a very strong team, one of the strongest they have turned out in years. Buchanan and Justis are men of experience on former Tusculum teams and Shanks, the third man, was a member of Lincoln Memorial's team of last year.

Against this team our men made a most effective stand. Their work in constructive argument was well presented and in rebuttal they were even more effective. All three men, Beard, King and Vance, acquitted themselves remarkably well in re-

NEW Y. W. OFFICERS INSTALLED SUN. P. M

Impressive Candle Service Used in Installation.

Last Sunday evening quite a large portion of the Vesper audience remained in their seats at the close of that service, in order to be present at the installation of both the Junior and Senior Y. W. C. A. cabinets. The meeting was opened by the hymn, "Take My Life and Let It Be", followed by the prayer by Dr. Wilson.

The dim light in the chapel, the soft music of the harp, the white dresses of the girls and the candle service made a very impressive scene and one to be remembered not alone by those who watched it, but more especially by those who took part.

The old officers, with their candles so nearly burned out, came forward in turn, to be met by the girls taking their places, holding new and unlighted candles. When, with the flickering flame of the old candles, they lit the new ones, each retiring cabinet member made a few remarks which were inspirational, helpful and full of the true Y. W. C. A. spirit. These remarks conveyed not only the idea of the pleasurable side of Y. W. service, but also showed that responsibility and hard work lie before those who are taking up the work, if the Maryville College Y. W. C. A. is to grow during the coming year.

The audience was dismissed with a few appropriate words by Dr. Stevenson.

PROF. HALL LEADS SONG SERVICE AT Y. M.

Many of The Old Favorite Songs Are Enjoyed.

The fellows who decided to forego the pleasures of a walk last Sunday afternoon until they had attended the Y. M. C. A. service were given ample reasons for congratulating themselves upon their choice. The meeting was a "sing" led by Prof. E. W. Hall, a former teacher of music in the College. He was ably assisted by George Howell at the piano.

After the Scripture lesson had been read Professor Hall called for suggestions for songs. There were not slow in coming. Nearly everyone had a favorite hymn which he wished to hear—though it might range from one of the old-fashioned sacred songs of our fathers and mothers to the modern compositions which have been introduced during the February meetings. Books containing both kinds were at hand, and the leader was ready for any of them at a moment's notice. Between the hymns Professor Hall often paused to comment upon the thought which they expressed or to draw a helpful lesson from them. In one of these brief discussions he presented the idea of rhythm, which was not only through all of nature, but should be felt in the life of man as well. He showed how the balance, the swing to and from a state, the period of action and then of rest, which characterizes music may also be expressed in a well-rounded and useful life.

The hour allotted for the meeting passed so quickly that, at its close, most of the audience gathered with Professor Hall around the piano for more songs. When the group finally dispersed, it was the general opinion that "sings" should come more often in the future.

ALUMNUS RECOMMENDS THAT $60,000 BE RAISED TO MEET PRESENT CRISIS IN M. C. ATHLETICS

A few weeks ago these columns contained a very interesting letter from Mr. Tracy of New York City, in regard to the much discussed alumni movement. Mr. Tracy is an alumnus and former athlete of the College. He suggested an admirable plan whereby the necessary funds for building an addition to the gymnasium may be raised. The present writer is of the opinion that Mr. Tracy's plan is an excellent one if the financial campaign is to extend over a period of several years. However, I do not think that such a plan would be practicable as a basis for early action. Within five years time, it might be possible to raise $25,000 among the former athletes of the College. But in view of the general financial depression and unstable economic condition of the whole country at this time, it seems a dangerous undertaking to try to raise $25,000 among so small a number of people as the former athletes of the College. We must be reasonably sure of our ground in this matter, for if we should begin something in behalf of Maryville College and fail, it should have been far better for the College had we never made the venture. Whatever we bgien, we must finish at all costs.

If we but know the facts in regard to the financial crisis of the College at this time, I believe that the path of our duty as alumni is clear. This crisis is more apparent to those of us who live in Maryville than to the hosts that are scattered abroad. It is an utter impossibility for the College to assume additional financial obligations for some time to come. Dr. Wilson will soon leave for the North to raise $75,000 to complete the Thaw Memorial building. God only knows the nerve racking strain of an ordeal like this. This money must be raised in a short time. But in the face of all this, the College is facing an additional need which must be speedily met, or within a few years, we shall hear of a Maryville College or Maryville Seminary for girls. We believe that the girls would lament a calamity like this as bitterly as would the boys. I believe that I voice the sentiments of all former students, and indeed the present student body, when I say that we all want Alma Mater to continue as a co-educational institution. I doubt seriously whether many old students have thought that this posture of affairs on College Hill really obtains.

What is the principal cause for this shifting, within the last few years, from a preponderance in boys to a decided majority of girls? It is simply that a special attraction has been added for the girls, while one of the inducements to the boys has suffered a reversal. In recent years, the Domestic Science Department has come into prominence, and this has attracted a larger number of girls to the Hill. On the other hand, we have so outgrown our gymnasium that many of those who would have been among our best students and best athletes have entered other institutions where gymnasium facilities are more adequate and where athletics are accorded their proper place among student activities. It has already been suggested in a former alumni article in these columns, that the most urgent need of the College just now is better gymnasium facilities. The present writer is of the opinion that the need for an athletic field is just as urgent as that for a more adequate gymnasium. Although Maryville College has turned out championship teams in years gone by, we have never had an athletic field that is becoming of an institution with Maryville's athletic prestige. There can be no question that athletics do not have a proper place among the student activities of the College. And the only reason for this is, that the College does not have the necessary funds with which to provide adequate facilities. Here is a real opportunity for a timely service to the College on the part of every former athlete and old student.

It will cost about $30,000 to build the addition to the gymnasium and adequately equip it. The cost of making the athletic field will be at least $20,000. In addition to this, it will be necessary to raise $10,000 with which to endow sufficiently our new additions to the College. We cannot add something, the maintenance of which will be an additional expense to the College. Dr. Wilson will testify himself that the College cannot possibly assume additional obligations. The interest on $10,000 at six per cent is $600 per year. This will pay insurance, repair and general maintenance of the gymnasium and leave a reasonable margin for the care of the Athletic field.

According to Mr. Tracy's suggestion the former athletes of the College should raise $25,000 for the gymnasium. On this basis $60,000 would be too small an amount for all of the alumni and old students to raise. And yet, if we can raise $60,000 in time to meet the emergency that the College is facing just now, I think we shall have accomplished a task that is worthy of our ability. I believe that our financial campaign should extend over a period of three years. If possible, we should raise the amount for the gymnasium within twelve months from the time we begin our organized movement. It will require a longer time to build the addition to the gymnasium than to grade the athletic field.

We might set a higher goal than $60,000 but we should necessarily have to extend the time in proportion. Personally, I am convinced that we should render a more valuable service to the College if we raised a small amount of money within a short time, than we should render if we raised a larger amount of money for future improvements. I do not mean that our aspirations for future conquests in behalf of the old College should be stifled, but I do believe that our chief concern now should be to meet the PRESENT crisis of the College and let the future take care of itself. If we should decide at the alumni banquet that the raising of $60,000 among all the former athletes, the alumni and the old students of the College within three years time, is too small an undertaking, it will be entirely satisfactory with the writer, that we set our goal higher. But it seems that in the face of the general financial status of the country just now, this would be a most commendable and heroic accomplishment for the sons and daughters of Maryville College.

In conclusion, it seems to me that the thing for us to do now is to discuss every conceivable plan for our project and have a definite, workable plan to present at the alumni banquet on Commencement day. We should know just what kind of building we intend to erect and have an architect's estimate of the cost. We should have some definite conception about the grading of the athletic field and the building of the grandstands, etc. And, last of all, we should have a definite plan worked out for raising the $60,000.

What do you say gang? Would you like to see Maryville put on the map? Do we want to clean up the South in athletics? If so, let us have a reunion next June and organize our forces for a concerted movement in behalf of the old College that gave us our training for the big athletic game of life.

SECOND AFTERNOON LYCEUM GREAT SUCCESS

Impromptu (Schubert) - Nell Baker
Spinning Wheel - Carolyn White
Prelude (Greig)
Rigandon (Greig) - Grace Majure

Then the Maryville players presented a little one-act comedy "When Silence was Golden". The cast included:

Aunt Rachel - - - Anna Sharp
Mrs. Baker - - - Myrtle Rendon
Mr. Baker - - - - - David Noble
Edith Baker - - - Susan Carson
Christine Baker - - Goldie Nicely
Marian Baker - - - Bernice West
The Book Agent - - Martha Robison
Mrs. Smith (the gossip) - - - - - - - Mildred Striplin
Mrs. Flanders - - - Martha Robison
Thelma Aranette Flanders - - - - - - Annarine Atkins
The Rector - - - Robert Perry
Mrs. Lawson - - - Annarine Atkins
The Census Taker - - Robert Perry

A great many have expressed the wish that the next afternoon lyceum will be sometime very soon.

MARYVILLE PLAYERS AT FRIENDSVILLE

Friday night the Maryville Players presented a very creditable entertainment at Friendsville in the school house where Mr. Jason Deyton and Miss Cerena Polk, both of '20, teach. Thanks to their tireless efforts and splendid advertising the house was packed—every seat was taken and many were standing.

The program consisted of three one-act plays, and two readings:

"1750 and 1921" - - - Miss Mildred Striplin and Miss Susan Carson
"In Days of Old"
Grandma - - - Annarine Atkins
Grandchildren, Myrtle Rendon, Bernice West, Goldie Nicely, David Noble
"The Call of the Yukon" (reading) - - - - - Susan Carson
"Dan Cupid and a Cadillac" (monologue) - - - - Susan Carson
"When Silence Was Golden" - The Maryville Players

The expression department has established a precedent which should not be broken. Other schools are anxious to give the players an evening. This is a splendid advertisement for the College, good training for the players, and a decided compliment to their coach—Miss Irene Bewley.

Mr. Oliver R. Williamson, publisher of the Continent was on the Hill Wednesday afternoon.

LESLIE POE IS INTER-COLLEGIATE ORATOR

Three men contested for the honor of representing Maryville in the Tennessee Forensic League Oratorical Contest, which is to be held at Carson and Newman College on April 1. This preliminary contest was held Tuesday night. The contestants were Henry Cox, August Johnston, and Leslie Poe. Mr. Poe was chosen to be our orator at Carson and Newman. He will be pitted against orators from Carson and Newman, Lincoln Memorial, Milligan and Tusculum in this contest.

Mr. Poe made a very strong showing in the tryout and should be a worthy contender for the League prize on April Fool Day.

DOWNEY—JOHNSON

A wedding of considerable interest to the students on the Hill was that of Miss Licia Johnson, of the class of 1920, to Mr. Ed Downey, which was solemnized at Graysville, Tenn., on the sixteenth day of this month. The officiating minister of the wedding was Dr. Richard W. Lewis, father of the Misses Mary Kate, Agnes, and Dixie Lewis. Mr. and Mrs. Downey left immediately for a few weeks' trip to Florida, after which they will return to Sale Creek, Tenn., where they will make their home.

The Echo extends the congratulations of the faculty and students of M. C. to Mr. and Mrs. Downey.

Frank James Industrial School Has Prospered; Growth in Quality and Quantity of Work of Classes

Every Maryvillian is familiar with the name of Fred Hope. The students will not soon forget the big black-haired fellow who was with us two years ago and told us of that wonderful bit of work going on down on the east coast of Africa. Well, we have got a letter from him telling how he found things when he got back on the job. We are expecting to help him some this year. Every year Maryville sends him something. In '17 we sent him $40.00, in '18 $200.00, in '19 $365.00, and last year we raised a check for $400.00. Here is his letter:—

American Presbyterian Mission,
Elat, Ebolowa, Cameroun, Africa,
January 2nd.

To The Faculty and Students of Maryville College:

Dear Friends:

The Frank James Industrial School has prospered during the last two years. The net profit since I came back this time has been over twelve thousand dollars. That does not sound like very much to you people in these days but to a fellow out here in the "Bush" it looks good for several things that we want to get for the school.

CARPENTER CLASS

The class has had all the work that it was possible to do; in fact it was not able to do near all the work that was offered. Since the last report they have put up two new dwelling houses, one of seven and one of eight rooms, a new dormitory, a school house for the French school, a dry shed for the plant, have rebuilt a large part of the boys' town at the plant, and built a town for the evangelists to accommodate 125 families. Furniture has been made for the new dwellings and quite a number of new pieces have been made for the other stations. More ivory work has been done than ever before. We have kept four or five men on that work all the time.

TAILOR CLASS

Thousands of Garments Made

During the epidemic of influenza the class lost its best tailor. This is a severe loss. He was one of the best men the school has graduated. His loss is felt not only because of his ability as a tailor but also because of his strong character and Christian manhood.

The class has been crowded with work the whole year. The number of pairs of pants made this year has been 794, shirts 698, dresses 597, coats 40, and clothes such as the natives wear, both men and women, wer turned out by the hundreds, no account being kept of the number.

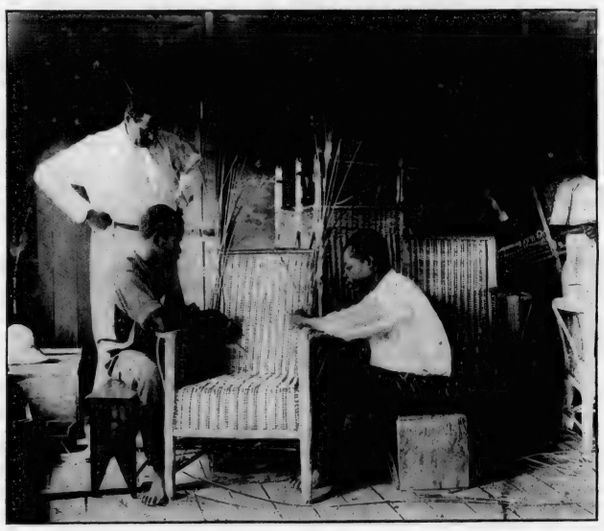
FURNITURE CLASS

The work of the class has grown both in quantity and quality of the work turned out. Great improvement has been made in the furniture. We have not been able to fill near all the orders.

Some of the furniture has gone to France, orders have come from as far up the coast as Dakar and there has been one order from Southern Nigeria for 100 chairs and a dozen tables.

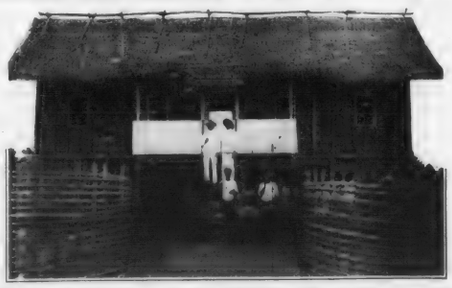
BLACKSMITH CLASS

Mending a Jack Knife or an Automobile



The class has surely justified its existence. It has been invaluable in its services to the mission in the repair work that the class has done. During the war times old things had to be made to answer, for the new could not be had. The class has done a great deal of all kinds of repair work, from putting a new blade in an old jack knife to rebuilding automobiles and a steam engine. One of the valuable things was keeping the bicycles, Smith Pushers and motorcycles in repair for the misisonaries, thus making a great saving of the missionaries' time.

Saved from German Junk



When the Germans fled from here they destroyed or wrecked all their bicycles, motorcycles, autos and auto trucks. Some they wrecked with sledges and some with dynamite. After wrecking the autos and auto trucks, they burned them. The French officers considered this only junk and allowed the mission to take it as scrap iron. Out of the junk the school has an automobile and an auto truck that they were able to make or assemble from these wrecks. Also an auto engine was turned into a steam engine and when connected with our engine was able to run the shaft that had on it a planer, a boring machine, a shingle mill, a grinder and a large lathe.

The night schools have been going all the time. We have a native of French Congo who teaches French. Classes for the workmen are conducted in Bulu. The wives of the workmen also those of apprentices, who have not been in school before, go to school in the afternoons. All are required to attend the regular services of the First Church. Morning prayers are held every day, one of the missionaries conducts a course of Bible study and a native minister gives his entire time to the school.

Your friend,
Fred Hope.

EDITOR'S NOTE—This editorial was cut out by the censor, but after consultation with President Wilson I run it and take the responsibility for it on myself.

The double victory over Tusculum last Monday evening brought the college debating season to a very successful ending. Now that the time for summarizing the college debating season has come, we wish to give especial credit to the one to whom credit is very justly due. In no small degree do the men who represented Maryville in these debates deserve the praise and congratulations of the student body, but the one who merits highest commendation and gratitude from us is Prof. E. R. Hunter. Not only has Professor Hunter coached the teams both individually and collectively, but he has had charge of the management of the debates to a certain extent, and has written accounts for the Echo of four of the contests held. For this issue of the Echo he has written a digest of the entire college forensic season, and for this and the preceeding articles we are sincerely grateful to him.

We are confident that we voice the opinion of each and every student of the College in saying that we are proud of our forensic teams and more especially of our Forensic Coach.

The New Editor

At a meeting of the College students in Voorhees Chapel on last Friday evening, Mr. Charles N. Sharp was elected editor-in-chief for the seventh volumn of the Highland Echo. We rejoice that the position was given to such a capable and energetic man as is Mr. Sharp and we are confident that he will perform the task better than the present editor has done.

In your selection we feel sure that you have chosen one who will give everybody and every organization of the College a square deal, and one who will work for the good of the Highland Echo and Maryville College rather than for personal benefit. We congratulate Mr. Sahrp on the honor bestowed upon him and wish for him every success in making the seventh volumn of the Echo the best of the whole seven volumns.

There is an abundance of hard work attached to the editorship of this paper, but it is the opinion of the present editor that the pleasure derived and the value received more than offset any disagreeableness which may be involved in the work.

Students! You have elected Mr. Sharp to the responsible position of editor of your representative paper, now it is up to you to stand back of him and give him every support during the school year 1921-22.

OPEN FORUM

TO THE HIGHLAND ECHO

In any kind of a democratic organization where the authority rests in its individual members it is customary, before electing officers to carry out the will of the members, to have some sort of a nomination of these officers and let the nominee's qualifications be known to every member of the organization. Without this arrangement the individual member is unqualified to conscienciously delegate his portion of the authority to the nominee in question, and is thus forced to vote blindly. Under the latter condition the voter is governed more by prejudice, petty whims, or the influence of others, perhaps less scrupulous than himself, than by sound reason and an honest effort to better himself and his fellow members.

Since the above principle is almost universally practiced why not apply it to the election of student officers to carry on student activities?

In a school as large as Maryville College it is impossible for each student to become intimately acquainted with all others. Therefore when an important office is to be filled the qualifications of those under consideration for the office should be made known to the student body. Perhaps the best way of accomplishing this is publicity through the college paper.

Upon the quality of a college paper rests largely the reputation of the student body among the outside world. Then, next to the alumni, the school publication is the best advertisment for the institution.

The most important office left to the choice of Maryville College students is that of Editor-in-Chief for The Highland Echo. Fortunately the position has been filled by competent persons, and the students are to be congratulated upon their choice for the next year. Upon the approach of the above election the writer was accosted by no small number of students inquiring in regard to the nominees and their respective qualifications. In nearly every case I found that the student was either almost totally lacking in knowledge of the candidates or had been erroneously informed by underhanded agencies. Some of the information thus circulated was amusing and some ridiculous and entirely misleading. Then would it not be better to set forth the true facts regarding the candidates through the columns of the Highland Echo than to allow the students to be misled through ignorance of the facts, through petty politics, or through underhanded intriogue?

STUDENT VOLUNTEERS HEAR MR. CHANG

Tells of Conditions in His Native Land—China.

The Student Volunteer Band had an unusual opportunity last Thursday of hearing one of their own number, a native, tell simply the needs of China. Mr. Chang comes from the Northern part of China and his message summarized the history of Christianity in that part of China in which he lives, showing us wherein lies the failure of Taoism, Buddhism, and Confucianism. Also he gave us reasons why Catholicism fail and why Protestism has succeeded in ministering to his own people. The only real enemy that Christianity has in China is Mohammedism which is striving with every effort to overcome Christianity. Their watchword in spreading their propaganda is "Kill the Christians", while that of the Christians is "Love". Christianity also has a hope, whereas Mohammedism has none. Christianity has a vital influence in a man's life, where Mohammedism has only a deadening influence, hiding the souls of people in a code of morals in which there lies no real incentive of adopting these morals. In Christianity we have Christ, the Man, the Diety, the Saviour upon whom we may and should rely. Such was the message of Mr. Chang told simply and with broken language, but with a fervor that portrayed to us his sincerity. We are fortunate in having Mr. Chang in our band and the message the foreign students have are first hand messages from lands of need and because of that, we are the more impressed with the magnitude of our task.

S. V. B. MEETING OF MARCH 10, 1921

Miss Mary Tippitt led the meeting by giving us a summary of one of the chapters in the "Foreign Missionary", by Brown.

The relation of the missionary to the Board is fourfold. In the first place the missionary must be friendly toward the Board. The Board provides committees, conferences with older missionaries as an aid to all missionaries. Secretaries are also sent to the fields. One of the main grievances between the missionary and the Board is the distribution of funds. We may say that the spirit of the missionary must be fraternal and not formal.

The missionary must be frank with the Board. The missionary must write frankly all his communications with the Board. The missionary must also be loyal to the Board. The missionary must guard against unjust criticism because disloyalty to the Board will react on him. Fourthly and lastly the missionary must be magnanimous because the possibilities of friction are numerous.

The missionary must be closely connected with his home church which can be done by letters, reports and talks while on furlough. It is always best that the dark as well as the bright side be given. Since the missionary does not have access to a pulpit unless invited, the pastor should plan all his work so that the congregation is intelligently informed of missionary work.

There's changes in the sea,
There's changes in that blue-eyed girl

Maryville, Affirmative vs. Tusculum, Negative at Tusculum. Maryville won.

Tusculum, Affirmative vs. Maryville, Negative at Maryville. Maryville won.

The record for the season for Maryville then is four victories and two defeats, or a percentage of .667.

One new departure at least has come into our debate practice this year in the matter of keeping Negative teams at home and sending Affirmative teams abroad. In theory at least this provides for a more equitable division of the technical advantages in debate. Our experience for the season does not seem to run counter to this theory.

The season has witnessed the development of some very promising new debaters. Also it is to mark the passing out of some extremely valuable ones. We are to lose by graduation six members of this year's teams: Messrs. Beard, Hayes, and Stanton and Misses Mason, Moore and Robison. Eleven members of our teams or just half of the twenty-two, had had no previous interscholastic experience. Three members of last year's preparatory teams made places on the college teams this year.

Next year is another year and another story but a general word may not be amiss as to plans for the future. Undoubtedly our girls will go out to get Tusculum again. Either in dual or in triangle the boys will surley meet the Tusculumites. It is earnestly hoped that we may get a debate with Wake Forest or Centre, or some such college, which we have not met before. Next season will call forth the best debate ability on the Hill. It is to be hoped that many new debaters may enroll next fall but, even without any new recruits, we have the material in our midst now to insure us another winning season.

THIRD DEBATE AT HOME ENDS IN THIRD VICTORY

Sharp's place, took it most capably and loyally. His splendid plucky service cannot be praised too highly. Not only was our team handicapped thus by the loss of its captain but it was a team composed altogether of men who had never debated in intercollegiate debate before, and they met a team composed of men two of whom had had debating experience. The thing that the writer would like to emphasize is that not once did these men suggest quitting nor even talk of losing. They were not many hours ago, green debaters, but surely now in view of their loyalty, their fighting spirit, their splendid victory, they deserve to be styled veterans.

They worked together admirably. Roy Buffat, who opened the negative argument, makes a very pleasing appearance and carries a strong weight of conviction as he presents argument. Buffat told the judges that our government doesn't need changing and they took him at his word and decided to leave it as it is. This young fellow is a Sophomore so we can count on two years more of debating from him.

Arthur Nace was our second speaker. His speech was strong evidence of diligent and thorough study of his subject. In his first year out for debate Mr. Nace has made a name for himself. His work as captain of his team after Mr. Sharp's removal, was efficient and tireless. We have already spoken of the fine work of Bennett Montgomery our third speaker. Montgomery has pep and thinks quickly, both of which qualities are invaluable in debate. Nace and Montgomery are both Freshman,—three years more and who can beat them!

It was a close debate. Tusculum's men, Mr. Warren Broyles, Mr. Edward Day, and Mr. George Zornow made a fine team. Mr. Broyles is a forceful speaker and is very quick to take advantage of a situation in debate. His rebuttal speech was particularly good.

One of the judges voted for Tusculum and two for Maryville. The judges were Principal Evans and Professor Smyth of Knoxville High School and President Giffin of Knoxville College.

MARYVILLE AFFIRMATIVE WINS AT TUSCULUM

buttal. The debate was a grand battle and when Captain Vance began to speak in the final rebuttal speech of the debate the decision was apparently a matter of a toss-up. Those who heard Vance debate a year ago know he was good but if they have not heard him since last year they have no idea how good he is today. Whatever it took to pull the decision across to the Maryville side of the platform, Long Tom had it and used it in that last eight minutes.

Remember, if you will, that these men who won for us away from home were proposing a radical and sweeping change against the arguments of practiced and tried debaters who had a powerful appeal to the pride and patriotism of the audience and yet they won. Beard is bidding farewell to college forensics and this last effort of his was indeed a creditable one. King is a remarkably clear and incisive manipulator of refutation and he was at his best Monday night. And Vance, well, so the story goes, was simply unbeatable.

The men all testify to the good sportsmanship of Tusculum students and faculty who treated them most hospitably and were fair and square in every respect.

What Is Air Pressure?

THE air is composed of molecules. They constantly bombard you from all sides. A thousand taps by a thousand knuckles will close a barn door. The taps as a whole constitute a push. So the constant bombardment of the air molecules constitutes a push. At sea-level the air molecules push against every square inch of you with a total pressure of nearly fifteen pounds.

Pressure, then, is merely a matter of bombarding molecules.

When you boil water you make its molecules fly off. The water molecules collide with the air molecules. It takes a higher temperature to boil water at sea-level than on Pike's Peak. Why? Because there are more bombarding molecules at sea-level—more pressure.

Take away all the air pressure and you have a perfect vacuum. A perfect vacuum has never been created. In the best vacuum obtainable there are still over two billion molecules of air per cubic centimeter, or about as many as there are people on the whole earth.

Heat a substance in a vacuum and you may discover properties not revealed under ordinary pressure. A new field for scientific exploration is opened.

Into this field the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company have penetrated. Thus one of the chemists in the Research Laboratories studied the disintegration of heated metals in highly exhausted bulbs. What happened to the glowing filament of a lamp, for example? The glass blackened. But why? He discovered that the metal distilled in the vacuum depositing on the glass.

This was research in pure science — research in what may be called the chemistry and physics of high vacua. It was undertaken to answer a question. It ended in the discovery of a method of filling lamp bulbs with an inert gas under pressure so that the filament would not evaporate so readily. Thus the efficient gas-filled lamp of today grew out of a purely scientific inquiry.

So, unforeseen, practical benefits often result when research is broadly applied.

BRILLIANT CEREMONY DOUBLE WEDDING

Morgan-Nave; Adair-Abbey

Last Saturday evening at nine o'clock at the home of Mrs. Lucile McAbbey and Mrs. Margaret W. Nave, Miss Gladys Nave was married to Mr. F. A. Morgan, Jr., of "No Man's Land", and Miss Ruth Abbey became the bride of Mr. T. Adair, also of "No Man's Land".

The parlors were transformed into a bridal bower of beauty with its wealth of greenery (?) forming a rich background into which the soft colors of old rose and gold were introduced.

While the guests were assembled, a beautiful musical program was given. Miss Elizabeth Moore presided at the piano and rendered as a prelude the wedding march by Hollings, after which Miss Millicent Codding's lovely voice was heard in "I Love You Truly".

The strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March announced the Bridal Party.

First to enter was the flower girl, Rose Wooten, a dainty little Miss who wore a frock of pussy-willow taffeta and carried a Marie Antoinette basket filled with rose petals which she scattered in the pathway of the bridal party.

Miss Brownie Alexander, Miss Abbey's maid of honor, entered with Mr. Kincaid, best man to Mr. Adair.

Next came Miss Betty Faller, maid of honor to Miss Nave, with Mr. S. Kelly as best man to Mr. Morgan.

Then followed a pretty succession of bride's maids.

Misses Catherine Sibila, Louise Gollmar, Ethel Shuart and Anna Mae King.

A hush fell upon the audience as the brides entered—Miss Abbey leaning on the arm of her father, Mr. P. C. Abbey, and Miss Nave leaning on the ample arm of her mother, Mrs. Margaret W. Nave.

Mr. L. Gray acted very well the part of father to Mr. Morgan—with Mr. Perkins as Mr. Morgan's mother.

V. Tweet made a most charming and matronly mother to Mr. Adair.

The grooms met the bridal party at the altar where the sweet young daughters were given into the keeping of the men whom they have chosen as their life partners.

The soft melody of the piano in some appealing love songs sounded throughout the ceremony performed by Dr. W. W. Johnston, using the double ring service.

After the ceremony the bridal party was entertained by an informal reception. On leaving, the party formed a grand march and left for a tour of Baldwin and Pearsons—accompanied by Lohengrin's bridal chorus and the cheers and good wishes of their hosts of friends.

On the return of the party to Memorial, all voted that it had been a most successful, happy and entertaining wedding from "Aunt Dollie, the old negro mammy to Little Wild Rose the flower girl.

SENIORS SHOW THEIR COLORS

St. Patrick's Day Gaily Celebrated at House-in-The-Woods.

What true American doesn't love Ireland and the Irish? Certainly the Seniors do, and to let St. Patrick's Day, or any other perfectly good holiday, pass unhonored and uncelebrated would be a crime undreamed of in Senior philosophy. So they, together with several other loyal admirers of the Irish, assembled at The-House-in-the Woods on the evening of March 17. Yes, began to assemble even before Dr. Stevenson expected them, for there is nothing slow about the Irish.

But no sooner had these Seniors entered the magic portals of the House-in-the-Woods than a strange thing happened. Instead of the familiar crowd usually found at these gatherings, there appeared a bewildering assembly composed of Judy Cassidy, Tiney Malone, Billy Magraw, and numerous other good Irish folk whom we had never met. Each was labeled with a name pinned to his or her back, and each true to scholarly habits, was equipped for taking notes; you may think it an easy matter to read every one else's label and at the same time protect your own from curious eyes, but it isn't easy at all, unless you learn the secret of just how the trick is done. For the secret, apply to Marian Krespach, for she learned how and was duly rewarded for her skill with a prize.

All persons desiring to learn the unique accomplishment of tearing lifelike forms of animals from paper should apply to Grace. The paper pig she made was so lifelike that anyone could have known what it was meant for without being told, which, we regretfully admit, could not be said of all those produced by the rest of us.

Then it was proved that Seniors can support the color green just as loyally as Freshmen. In a contest we proved how much we knew about the many uses of the word. Addie Fine and Mr. Richards combined the wisdom of a librarian and of a Theological student, so of course they won the prize.

But when refreshments were brought around, all those taking part were equal in promptness and thoroughness. They were not just "ordinary" refreshments; they were "feature" refreshments, and the unanimous verdict was that the refreshment committee is "an all-star cast."

Even after all appetites were satisfied, no one seemed anxious to make the first motion to adjourn. It was left for Dr. Stevenson, with his customary tact, to suggest that the hour was late and the road home was long. So the moon shone brightly all along the homeward way, and all went home feeling that they had done their duty to the Irish and full justice to themselves.

REPORT OF NATIONAL STUDENT VOLUN-

Second Annual Meeting Held at New York City, February 25 to 27.

The second annual meeting of the Student Volunteer Council was held at Wallace Lodge, Yonkers, New York, February 25-27. The purpose of this Student Council is to give each Volunteer an actve part in sharing the responsibilities of the movement, to review the work of the past year, and to exchange suggestions and criticisms with the Headquarters Staff in order that the work of the Movement as a whole may be carried on in a more effective way.

The Council members, two from each State Union, met at Headquarters in New York City about noon Friday. We were divided into groups according to our denominations, and, after visiting our respective Foreign Mission Boards and joining with them in their noon prayer service, we had lunch and reassembled at the Volunteer Headquarters.

By five o'clock all were out at Yonkers and the first session was held at five-thirty. At this session Mr. J. C. Robbins, Chairman of the Executive Committee, gave a very impressive opening talk in which he emphasized the importance of the individual Volunteer as the unit of the movement. He also emphasized the great need of the World for God.

Friday night after dinner we met in the parlor of Wallace Lodge for a social hour, the principal feature of which was to "get acquainted".

All of Saturday was spent in the discussion of the various phases of the work of the Movement. These discussions were led by T. S. Sharp, Executive Secretary, J. Lovell Murray, Educational Secretary, Burton St. John and Miss Vernon Holliday, Candidate Secretaries, and W. P. McCullock, Business Secretary. Needless to say these discussions meant as much to the students taking part in them as they did to the Headquarters Staff.

On Sunday morning Mr. Robert P. Wilder told us of so many marvelous instances of answered prayer in his recent work in raising the deficit of the Movement's budget and especially in his work among the students of Southern Europe, while organizing the World's Student Christian Federation. He told us how by holding up the living Christ before these students he had been able to break into some almost success or its faliure.

The thing that was emphasized most of all throughout the entire Council meeting was the responsibilities of the individual Volunteer. Are we doing anything right now, or are we waiting until after we have sailed to begin our work? We must realize that the Movement is OUR Movement and we as individuals are directly responsibile for its success or its filure.

The last session was held Saturday night and was one of the most impressive of all. Four or five of the students gave short personal experiences which brought to us more clearly still our individual responsibility and the great need of more definite intercessory prayer in the lives of us all.

Mrs. G. T. Tootell (formerly Miss Anna Kidder) of the class of 1911, who has been visiting her parents in South Knoxville while on furlough from the mission field, left Tuesday of this week for Elizabeth, N. J., where she will be joined by her husband, Dr. Tootell, who has just completed a special course in surgery at Harvard University. After a few days visit at Elizabeth they will go to Dr. Tootell's home in Chicago for a brief stay and then proceed across continent to San Francisco from which place they will sail on April 20th. Dr. and Mrs. Tootell have been engaged in mission work at Changteh, Hunan, China, for the past five years and after a furlough of a year and a half they are eager to get back to their work. Mrs. Tootell expects to take up kindergarden work as an additional phase of her work upon her return to the mission field.

B. L. S. CAST PRESENT "PRIDE & PREJUDICE"

Officers Are Elected; Irma Schwab is Made President.

Bainonian hall was over crowded when "Pride and Prejudice", a cutting from that famous book by the same name, was presented by the following cast of characters:

Mr. Bennet - - Margaret McKinney
Mrs. Bennet - - - Jeanette Hibbert
Their daughters:
Jane - - - - Alice McAnulty
Elizabeth - - - - Sarah Lackey
Lydia - - - Virginia Witherington
Mr. Collins, a young minister - - - - - - - Elizabeth Hudson
Mr. Bingley, a wealthy neighbor - - - - - - Laura Stevens
Mr. Darcy, friend of Bingley - - - - - - - Mary Tedford
Lady Catherine DeBourg - - - - - - Aileen Rutherford
Maids: Helen Deal, Martha Benn, Dorothy Stivers

The stage had an unusually attractive setting with its fireplace, rocking chairs, mantel adorned with apple blossoms and candles, couch covered by many hued cushions, and an electric reading lamp which gave just the right glow over all.

The father and mother were amusing in their roles which were excellently played. The mother was one of those typical doting mothers who wished to have all of her daughters married happily and who rebuked her husband for having no regard for her feelings. In turn he told her that she was mistaken for he had heard her mention her nerves with consideration for twenty years. A feud ensued when the mother wished Elizabeth to marry Reverend Collins and the father remarked that from that day forward she would be a stranger to one of her parents.

Reverend Collins, one of the most intersting of the cast, was played so very, very well. He was the systematic reverend who first asked permission of her mother to propose to Elizabeth and began his proposal by giving her the following reasons for the "undertaking he was about to explain": that every young minister should set the example for his parish; next, it would cause him much happiness; lastly, it was by the advice of his patroness. After these reasons, he stated he wished to marry her. When she began to object he would say, "One moment—" and then bring on another reason. After delaying her by "one moment" as much as he possibly could, she rejected him. Undaunted he replied, "you are considerably stirred up, I will come later and expect a more favorable answer. Meanwhile I shall leave you to yourself to think it over."

A dapper, young gentleman, dressed so very tastily, alias Mr. Darcy, was the hero of the hour. Ask Bainonians if they ever saw a better looking man than he strolling over our campus. In his proposal he began thus, "My feelings for you have taken possession of me against my will, against my reason, and almost against my character." Elizbeth gave her reasons, whereupon he answered, "Pardon me for having taken up so much of your time."

Lady Catherine DeBourg came to Miss Elizabeth to object to her marriage to her nephew Mr. Bennet , with very effective words. Between stamps of her parasol and feet she frequently put in the words, "Believe me this will never do!"

The cast of characters played their parts wonderfully well and so added another very well-given play to the Bainonian list.

After the play, officers were elected for the coming term. They are as follows:

President - - - - Irma Schwab
Vice President - - Blanche Bailey
Secretary - - Grace Sydenstricker
Program Secretary - Myrtle Rendon
Music Critic - Marguerite Sullinger
Literary Critic - - - Sara Lackey
Censor - - - Margaret McKinney
Editor - - - - - Mary Tedford
Sergeant-at-Arms - - Helen Morrow

ALPHA SIGMAS DISCUSS VITAL SUBJECTS

Prof. Knapp and Miss Fanson Will Address Next Meeting.

The meeting Saturday night was one of the best of the year. The program was full of pep from start to finish, and one in which at least half the members present took part. Speeches were made on numerous subjects. Program was as follows:

Speeches:

"What Next" - - - - Sam Hall
"The Three Basic Principles in Choosing Your Better Half" - - - - - - - Henry Cox
"What I Would Do If I Were Miss Molly" - Eugene Stanbery
"Social Life at M. C." - - - - - Samuel E. Peters
"An Ideal Man" - Stanley Lange
"What is An Education" - - - - - - - - L. T. Kennedy
Poem (original) - - - Leslie Poe

A contest was held between Bill Cox and "Ikey" Huskey to see who could tell the most unbelievable "true" story. Bill was unanimously awarded "the dog".

As the concluding number of this splendid exhibit of literary talent, Mr. John Daniels gave a vivid description of life in a Persian School Room.

The following officers were elected for the final session of the year.

President - - - - J. Morgan Cox
Vice President - - - Isaac Huskey
Corresponding Sec. - Geo. Leslie Poe
Recording Secretary - William Cox
Ass't. Rec. Sec. - - L. T. Kennedy
Editor - - - Eugene W. Stanbery
Censors - Sam Franklin, Jr., Sam Hall, Sam Peters
Sergeant-at-Arms - - John Daniels
Janitor - - - - Othello Armstrong

As we said before, we are about to reiterate, the program was excellent, but if you want to enjoy a real treat come out Saturday night and hear Professor Knapp and Miss Fanson discuss two very interesting topics.

JUNIOR ATHENIANS

The Junior Athenians were delightfully entertained last Saturday night by some of the best talent in the society. The first shot off the bat was a reading "The Kentucky Horse Trader", by Cornelious and the way he read it was worth walking miles to hear. We wouldn't have missed it for a barrel of moonshine (either kind). Next came an instructive lecture, by Jester on how to blow a candle out, which was indeed, very amusing.

A story from "Little Women" by Hydenburk proved to us beyond a doubt that he knew a lot about women, so we hope to soon get some information from him so that we may solve some of our own problems.

We all held our breath when Hayworth was called for a reading. He launched into an oration which caused our blood to tingle, our eyes to swim, and our feet to burn. If he had continued any longer than he did, we would have all been dead.

The newly elected officers were sworn in for the Spring term by Ex-President Brown, so let us all show our true Athenian colors and back up these men, and make this term the best one of the year.

ATHENIANS HAVE INTERESTING PROGRAM

Increase in Attendance and Membership.

The pep which the Athenians showed in handling the extemporaneous program of Saturday, March 11, aroused interest to the extent that there was an increase in attendance of eleven and an increase in membership of one. President "Red" Hayes called this meeting to order, Mr. "Ici" Crawford took the critic's chair. The program was exceptionally good. It was opened by a musical number rendered by the Athenian quartet, then Mr. Jody gave a reading which stirred the emotion of the audience, because of his wonderful ability as a reader. Then followed the heated argument. The question was, Resolved, That the United States should adopt a policy of political isolation. The affirmative was upheld by Messrs. Corry, Wilson and Dilworth, and the negative, by Messrs. Matthews, Timberlain, and Ellis. Good argument was given on both sides, but the judges were led to give their decision in favor of the affirmative. Mr. Timberlain was then accepted as a member of the society, and in him we expect to find a loyal, and successful worker.

Athenians, you are missing something by not attending, and supporting your society. So show your colors by coming to the meeting, and bringing a friend with you!

CAMPUS NOTES

Mr. Andrew Richards, '18, spent last Thursday and Friday visiting his Alma Mater. Mr. Richards will graduate from the Princeton Theological Seminary this year, and was on his way to Chattanooga to be ordained into the ministry when he dropped into Maryville last week. The Seniors welcomed him to their party at the House-in-the-Woods last Thursday evening.

At a meeting of the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday of this week Mr. Forrest Brown was elected President and Mr. Roy S. Buffat was elected Secretary of the "Y" for the coming year.

Mrs. McMurray and several girls of the Home Economics Department assisted in the program of the Home Improvement Day for Blount County, which was held in Maryville on Wednesday of this week. Mrs McMurray made an address at the Court House in the morning on "The Results of Home Improvement"

The following members of the faculty attended the meeting of the Tennessee College Association at the University of Tennessee last week: President Wilson, Dean Earnes, Dr. Gillingham, Dr. McMurray, Mrs. McMurray, Professor Orr, and Pofessor Hyden.

Pofessor Orr and family moved from where they were living on the Niles Ferry Road to 406 Indiana Avenue, on Wednesday of this week. The house which they are now living was formerly occupied by Dr. Gillingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jones of Huntsville, Ala., visited in Maryville a few days last week.

Mr. Fred Cagle, president of last year's Senior class, now with the Homer K. James Auditing Co. of Knoxville, was a visitor on the Hill last Friday.

Mr. Herrick Arnold, who has been at his home in Cleveland, Tenn. for several weeks on account of sickness, returned to Maryville last Saturday afternoon. We rejoice with our Associate Editor in his seemingly complete recovery.

The samples from the Colgate Co. which were distributed among the students Saturday morning, were very neat, appropriate, and useful. It is evident that the Colgate Co. believes very strongly in advertising.

JOKES AND JESTS

John: "Saw paw, I can't get these arithmetic problems. Mr. Moore said something about getting the least common denominator."

Paw: "Great Scott! Ain't they got that thing yet? They was trying to get it even when I was a boy."

Hazel: "Weren't Colgate's sweet to give us these little boxes?"

McCall: "Gee! I've got enough shaving soap to last for a month."

Hazel: "Is that so? Why, Will says his won't last but for one time."

McCall: "He must have stiffer whiskers than mine, doesn't he?"

Hazel: "He has—oh, I mean I don't know."

Cabbages are much more useful and reliable than any rose, but the sight of them is apt to produce somewhat different emotions.

Mrs. Professor—Horace, do you know that you haven't give me a kiss in a week?

Absent-minded Professor— Dear, dear. Now I wonder who it is I've been kissing.

Is not to kiss amiss,
But to kiss the miss you ought to miss,
And to miss the miss you ought to kiss,
Is to kiss a miss amiss. —Tar Baby

Just before the service the minister was called into the vestibule by a young couple who asked that he marry them. He answered he had not time but that if they would wait until after the sermon he would be glad to accommodate them. Accordingly, just before the benediction, he announced:

"Will those who wish to be married today please come forward?"

A concert is to be given at Voorhees Chapel, Friday night, March 25, at 8 o'clock by Axel Skovgaard, the great Danish Violinist assisted by Alice McClung Skovgaard and Pearl Witherbee. It was a piece of good fortune to Maryville lovers of good music that there occurred in the itinerary of Skovgaard's tour, a break, and it was made possible for him to come to Maryville. This eminent artist needs no introduction, he having filled more than a thousand six hundred engagements from coast to coast. Skovgaard has had a wonderful career having begun at the age of five to study the violin, he has appeared before crowned heads many times. His violin which is a Stradivarius, is valued at $13,000 and Skovgaard carries $50,00 insurance on his left hand. Skovgaard is very ably assisted by Madame Skovgaard pianist, and Miss Witherbee, vocalist, both artists themselves.

This extraordinary musical treat can be had for only 75c.

VOLUME SIX — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, MARCH 31, 1921 — NUMBER TWENTY-THREE

PLANS FOR ATHLETIC FIELD AND ENLARGED GYM RAPIDLY TAKING SHAPE

Directors of College and Executive Committee of Alumni Association Endorse Movement.

Any who have believed that the articles referring to the proposal that the alumni and former students of Maryville should undertake the task of providing a permanent athletic field and an enlarged gymnasium were so much hot air and that the Echo was running them to fill space will perhaps believe that such conjectures are false when they read the material which follows.

DIRECTORS AND ALUMNI ENDORSE PLAN

The Executive Committee of the Alumni Association at its meeting this week voted unanimously to recommend to the Association at its next regular meeting that a campaign be launched among the Alumni and former students of the College looking towards the enlargement and the complete equipment of the Gymnasium and the provision of an adequate Athletic field. The preliminary organization for such a campaign is to be completed before Commencement so that if the plan is approved the campaign may begin at once. Thus it is hoped that the actual work of improvement may be commenced with the shortest possible delay.

It was the sense of the Committe that a sum of $50,000 would be required to make the improvements that are imperatively needed to put athletics on a footing commensurate with the size and standing of the College. The importance and value of this will be plain to every former student and the Committee felt that the sons and daughters of Maryville would be glad of the opportunity to perform a handsome and very needed service to the College and to the students of the present and the future.

The movement has the hearty approval of the Executive Committee of the Directors of the College as is witnessed by a resolution passed at their recent meeting, wherein they said: "The Executive Committee have learned with satisfaction of a movement among the Alumni and former students of the College looking towards the enlargement and the complete equipment of the Gymnasium and the provision of an adequate Athletic field. The Committee take pleasure in giving this movement their hearty endorsement." This means that the Directors, altho unable to make contribution towards the movement from the College treasury, are concious of the critical need and anxious to see the plan go forward. It will be a great and worthy achievement for the former students of Maryville. It will benefit an untold number of students, and it will do more than any other single thing perhaps to insure the continued growth of the College.

AT LEAST ONE FORMER MARYVILLIAN IS ENTHUSIASTIC

March 22nd, 1921

Mr. H. E. Orr, Cor. Sec.,
Maryville College Alumni Asso.,
Maryville, Tenn.
Dear Sir:

I am indeed glad to learn that the College feels that some big things must be done for athletics at Maryville and that at last a movement is on the way to get something done about it.

It is impossible to properly and adequately express even an estimate of what far reaching benefit and value added equipment, an enlarged Gym and a suitable field will be to students of the College.

It ought not be necessary, in this day and time, to furnish any loyal alumni, ex-student or friend of Maryville College any reason or argument for supporting vigorously any such movement. The need is imperative and urgent. That is enough for true friends of Maryville.

All that is necessary, I think, is the formation of a committee to determine upon just what is wanted; make out a budget and formulate a program to get it done, and then, just do it.

I believe everybody will promptly and cheerfully do whatever part of the program for getting it done is assigned to them, from the payment of such assessment as may be determined upon by way of contributions to the giving of a day or more of personal labor on the grading and finishing of the field, if a "field day" is made a part of the program.

In any event, rely and call upon me for whatever you consider my share, at any time.

Thank you for calling the matter to my attention. If there is any way at all I can help in the work, don't hesitate, but hurry up and call upon me.

Yours, full of enthusiasm for Maryville,

K. E. Steinmetz.

BALDWIN GIRL RECEIVES PAINFUL BURNS

Miss Lillian Munsey, of West Virginia, sustained painful burns last Saturday evening, when a can of Sterno heat, which she and several of her friends were using in cooking, was upset and the contents precipitated on the floor, the flames catching her dress.

The accident occured in a room on the third floor of Baldwin Hall and it was only due to the coolness and rapid work on the part of some of the girls present in the room that Miss Munsey escaped with her life and the building was saved from burning. Miss Flora Strong also received minor burns to one of her arms during the mix-up.

Miss Munsey is said to be convalescing very nicely.

Good manners are made up of petty sacrifices.—Emerson.

EARLY MORNING SERVICE ON BALDWIN LAWN

Sunday morning dawned bright and clear giving perfect weather for the joint Y. M. and Y. W. Sunrise Easter Service on Baldwin lawn. Quite a number of students rose early for this service, and shortly after six it was opened with the singing of some of the Easter hymns. The opening prayer was made by Dr. Wilson. Alberta Frow read the resurrection story as taken from John's Gospel. In their effective readings, Martha May Boyer and Bernice West gave the application of the Easter lesson. Special music was furnished by the double quartet, and also by Mr. Moore and Mr. Bannister who played a cornet duet. As Dr. Stevnson closed the service with the benediction each one felt that something had been added to the appreciation and meaning of the day.

CAPT. KILPATRICK HELD PRISONER

Being Held to Force America to Recognize New Russian Government.

Captain Emmet Kilpatrick, who graduated from M. C. in 1915, and who was once reported killed by the bolshevists, has recently been sentenced to twenty years hard labor by the soviet government on a charge of condemning a Russian communist in America.

The reason for the sentencing of Captain Kilpatrick, according to a report received from Solomon Conna, a former prisoner of the bolshevists at Moscow who has been released, is that the soviet government wishes to hold him as a club in forcing America to recognize the new Russian government.

At the outbreak of the war Captain Kilpatrick was superintendent of public schools at Uniontown, Ala. He volunteered and served in France during the war. After the armistice he entered the Red Cross work and has been held since as a hostage. Every effort has been made by his relaitves and friends to obtain his release. His brothers, Dr. G. C. Kilpatrick, of Mobile, and Mr. R. H. Kilpatrick, of Hattiesburg, Miss., have written to the new secretary of state urging that immediate action be taken to demand the release of the prisoner.

KNOXVILLE HIGH ROUTED 13 TO 5

Coach Siler Has Promising Team.

Boston Red Sox April 2; New York Giants, April 7.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, batteries for today's game will be Mitchell, catcher, and Crudgington, pitcher, for the vistors; for Maryville, Rodger Williams pitcher and Baxter Williams catcher—Play ball." Oh boy, but it sounded like old times sure when the honorable "Ump" sounded forth the above long dormant baseball cry, which is sounded before the beginning of games to the enlightenment of some and the awakening of others. The season of America's leading sport has opened in many places and College Hill is no exception.

The first official game of the season was played on the home grounds March the 29th., and it was to the tune of 13 to 5 that our boys defeated Coach Siler's Knoxville High Game Rooster. Those young ones of the nearby city of Knoxville put up a good showing against Feeman's line-up, and they evidently intend trying their best at becoming baseball champions as well as basketball heroes. We sure wish the plucky fellows the best o' luck.

As to the game in question. There is no doubt but that the whole affair was full of interest and excitement for both players and grandstand (?) roosters. For the first time many saw a game of College baseball and it was a fairly good game at that for the first game of the season. It was more for a "chance" to show the wares of both teams than anything else. Of course the outcome was easily foreseen, but not until a task confronts a team as well as an individual will any earnest efforts be put forth. Efforts is right for at least thirteen fruitless

Y. W. C. A. BANQUET WELL ATTENDED

Martha Robison is Toastmistress; Mrs. Stevenson Gives Toast.

The first banquet of the Y.W.C.A., held Monday night, was a great success. We were met by the receiving committee at the head of the stairs and immediately felt the influence of the spirit of friendliness and fun with which the air was heavily charged.

Merely to mention the menu is sufficient to fill all with envy who were not present.

Veal Birds Baked Bananas
Asparagus tips on Rosettes
Parker House Rolls Olives Butter
Tomato Salad Cheese Dreams
Ice Cream Crushed Fruit
Coffee
Nuts Mints

Miss Martha Robison was an ideal toastmistress and the toasts were perfect. Who does not like to hear Miss Hazel Bevan, Miss Bernice Jones, Miss Clemmie Henry, or Mrs. Stevenson talk? Besides being fortunate enough to hear four such interesting toasts as these, we also heard two very entertaining readings one by Miss Mildred Striplin, and the other by Miss Martha Mae Boyer. We had such an enjoyable time that we are already looking forward to the next banquet.

FRENCH PLAYS WILL BE SOMETHING NEW

Guaranteed to Make You Laugh Whether You Understand French or Not.

Had the writer of Ecclesiastes been allowed to attend Maryville College in 1921, he could not have said "there is nothing new under the sun", for new things are happening there all the time—but the newest and most unprecedented of them all is the French play, or rather plays (there are two of them) to be presented in the chapel next Monday night. Both of these plays are comedies by eminent French writers—comedies so funny that you are bound to laugh whether you understand a word of French or not. Both are love stories, with splendid costumes and attractive scenery, and both guarantee many a good laugh.

These plays are "La Poudre aux Yeux" and "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" by Moliere.

"La Pondre aux Yeux" or "Powder in the Eyes" or "The Bluffers" centers about two families, the Ratenois and the Malinyears. The Ratenois are very ambitious that their son Frederick make a brilliant marriage while the Malinyears are equally ambitious for their daughter Emmeline. Now Frederick and Emmeline are desperately in love, but according to French customs the parents must arrange the match. Consequently, his father and mother call, the one ostensibly to consult Dr. Malingear in regard to his health, the other to rent rooms (apartments) of Madame Malinyear.

Being favorable impressed they call a little later and formally ask that Emmeline may marry Frederick. Each family supposes the other to be much wealthier and better cultured, and each tries to live up to what it thinks the other is expecting—until Uncle Robert shows them—well come and see what happened to Frederick and Emmeline.

RALPH PARLETTE IS HEARD IN LECTURE

Most Valuable Number of Lyceum Is Lecture on "The University of Hard Knocks".

Will we ever forget him, with his little jar?

In what was probably the most interesting, and entertaining and certainly the most valuable number of Lyceum, he came to us on last Friday evening with his well known lecture, "The University of Hard Knocks".

Our work here in college, he says, is merely a preparation for that University of Bumps from which most of us never graduate. He told us first of the "Needful Bumps", and who will ever forget the "coffee pot" and the lesson it carried with it? Who did not think of his own numerous "coffee pot" experiences, every one of which bore a lesson, which sometimes we learned, and sometimes we didn't?

Then the "Needless Bumps". The bumps that we didn't have to have, but which we brought on ourselves needlessly. They are not the "bumps that bump us, but those we bump ourselves". The "something for nothing" bumps that are so unnecessary, but Oh! so frequent with many of us.

We have all tried to get "something for nothing". In various ways, "we have been selected" and then—we have been bumped. But still we go on, (the most of us) ever trying to get something for nothing and always getting bumps,—needless bumps, for we knew better but would not learn.

And then Chapter Three! Who needs to be reminded of the lesson in chapter three? The little jar of beans and nuts will ever hold in our minds the lesson on how to get to the top and stay there. Revolutions can't put us there; other people can't help us there. WE MUST GROW!

More power to you Ralph Parlette! Many have profited from your message; many more will be helped by it, and among them the students of Maryville College.

For the first time since April 1, 1913, when Maryville played the New York Giants at Chilhowee Park, Knoxville, the Highland base ball team will this year meet a major league club. This will be one of the biggest evnts of the whole school year and you will certainly always regret it if you do not take advantage of the half holiday Saturday and witness the contest between Maryvile College and the Boston Red Sox. Maryville College students will be admitted for fifty-five cents.

At a meeting on last Friday of the committee elected for choosing a business manager for next year's Echo, Mr. Porter Turner was unanimously chosen. We congratulate Mr. Turner upon being selected for this position.

The number on the circulation list of the Echo will be greatly increased next year due to the adoption of the student blanket fee, but to offset this additional burden on the business manager will be the absence of the task of soliciting subscriptions from the students.

Mr. Robert W. Adams, '19, of the Knoxville Journal and Tribune reporting staff, was in Maryville Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

The 1921 Chilhowean selling campaign is now on in full blast. The annuals this year will cost four dollars each.

"A WEEK SPENT IN DARK TOWN"

Comedy Makes Big Hit At Theta Epsilon.

To those who were present in Theta hall Saturday evening, the expression "A Week In Dark Town", brings very vivid and pleasurable memories. This comedy was presented by a number of the Thetas who entered into the spirit of the production in a very realistic manner. All who witnessed the performance can testify that it was a stimulus to one laugh upon another.

As this was "A Week In Dark Town", it began most logically with Monday, since Monday is merely another term for "Wash day". The expectations of the audience were fully realized when it was found that the manager was featuring Bernice Kimble and Loal Smith as two colored ladies busy at the weekly wash and discussing over the back fence the topic of Mirandy's costume at her recent wedding.

In the second scene the same households were presented as they appear on Tuesday, industriously ironing, when who should step in but a book agent. From the method of her procedure one would almost believe that Janet Ensign who took this part, had had experience in this line of work, so truly did she portray the persistence used by such a character. However, it was of no avail, for these ladies were too busy in their preparation for a good time at a camp-meeting on Wednesday and Thursday to think of ordering a book.

Friday was speaking day at school. Everyone was impressed with the fact that Maude Gentry, in the role of teacher must have been a very close observer of the ways of school ma'ams, so effectively did she greet the parents and conduct the excellent program which the children had prepared for the occasion.

At Uncle Joe's on Saturday, all Darktown gathered for the big dance of the season, wearing their most gorgeous apparel and best smile. The schoolma'am anounced the beginning of the old fashioned square dance, and while at first many appeared timid it wasn't long before the spirit of the music had overcome them, and everyone was responding to the call of the banjo.

The final scene consisted in the Sunday morning church service and Nell Hamilton as the parson preached a sermon which without doubt will have its effect in the moral conditions of Darktown for all time. The quartet which was made up of Margaret Houston, Millicent Codding, Bernice Kimble and Virginia Nicely, added much to the service. All will remember their rendering of "Swing Low Sweet Chariot" as the end of "A Week in Darktown", and as the close of one of the most enjoyable programs of the year.

BAINONIAN

The program was introduced by Marian Krespach. She talked about songs and what they represented. Then to our surprise the songs she had mentioned came in and interpreted themselves. Poor Butterfly came first. This was a very vivid interpretation. She was followed by Memories. The stage was arranged to represent a garden, where two memory children came to play and brighten the dreams of a tired old man. The scene changed so suddenly here that the tired old man hardly had time to wake up and leave before the curtains parted again.

Shades of the Orient! It was Dardanella! She was all we had ever imagined and more. But we must go on to the next act. The scene had gone back to the garden where we found Mr. and Mrs. Silver Threads Among the Gold. When the last notes died away the dear old couple were as good lovers as ever.

Act six came bringing a dark eyed maiden in Mexican costume. La Paloma sung in Spanish to guitar accompaniment called for an encore, but the next act came on, in the form of The Rosary. A slim pale nun counted her beads slowly while the music lasted, and left, silently.

The last act was a Negro character sketch. 'Lizy, Aunt Murry, Jim and Rastus sang and 'Lizy played her guitar. Then 'Lizy and Aunt Murry sang while Jim and Rastus jigged.

After the guests from Japan, Memoryland, Hindustan, Mexico, the convent, and Alabama, had gone, a business meeting was held. New officers were installed and Miss Alberta Frow took the oath of membership.

JUNIOR ATHENIANS

The Junior Athenians met Saturday night with the new officers in charge, President Hayworth, presiding. After the opening prayer Messrs. Noble and Keen favored us with a duet, "Ivory Palaces", on the violin and xylophone, which they played for an encore. This indeed filled our hearts with gratification, and we hope to hear from these gentlemen again soon.

Then "Shimmy" Brown held us spell-bound with a reading "Where The Flag is Full of Stars". If you want to hear a real, sure 'nuff heart rending, soul-refreshing reading, let Shimmy do it for you.

Next came a cleverly handled debate: Resolved, That immigration to the United States should be prohibited for three years. Cornelious and McBride fearlessly upheld the affirmative, while Friedman and Lee Moore gallantly defended the negative. After much shooting of hot air, and gas, the affirmative won.

President Hayworth's installation address was full of vigor, pep, and common sense, and we feel sure that we have selected the right man to fill the President's chair for this term.

ALPHA SIGMA

The first meeting of the Spring session was marked by an increase in attendance, a fine society spirit, and a first class program.

Professor Knapp gave a very interesting discussion of "The Baconian Theory", in which he fully discussed the authorship of Shakespeare's plays.

Miss Fanson took as her subject, "The Evolution of the Chemistry of Coal Tar."

These addresses were highly interesting and were greatly enjoyed.

The program was concluded by a breezy string of "yarns" told by Mr. Stanley Lange.

ones were made. Nine are laid at the door of M. C.'s team and the rest before our visitors.

Splendid showing was made by the whole team, and their condition as a working baseball nine is very commendable considering the time spent in putting out a so well balanced machine. Rowan in his new position at second base surprised the old line of College fans by proving himself a worthy guardian of the second pillow and surrounding territory. There is "fit in" Cotton, who handles all pills which happen to venture near the initial bag. He is fast whipping into a regular first string first sacker.

There is "Big" McLaughlin who seems to be rather handy with the big stick stuff. Three hits out of four times up gave the big center fielder a booming start which we hope will continue throughout the entire season. Partee covered third as an offensive as well as defensive player. To start the season with a three sacker and to cause the initial score of the present season speaks well for sir Partee, keep the good work up. Sneed and McCall (shorty) are fighting gamely for a place at short, but unfortunately for them only one person can be on the diamond as regular, but that makes the race more worth while and gives "Dee" a better opportunity to place his men. Our friend outfielders Davidson and Roy McCall are not to be forgotten in their distant positions for they plodded the beaten path of service and watchfulness the entire game, so carefully did they do it that the Knoxvillians didn't or couldn't put the old horsehide out to them. So much for seven of our worthy fielders, in and out. There are three others. The Williams battery comes first. R. Williams stepped from the Hi School mound of pitching to a College mound in first class style and order. He has a well regulated and uniform delivery minus all balky, uncertain, hesitating catches, which make a pitcher look as though he was uncertain of his ground. R. Williams, and Smith too, acquitted themselves well as hurlers of the old ball. We know that fellow Smith from what he did last year and we are expecting even better this year, and we will get it. But where does that Myers the second come in? Right now and all the rest of the time, for woe be unto that team which does not have a lively, wideawake, catching, throwing catcher for it has as well as lost before the game starts. Not so with Maryville for the man behind the bat proves to be no other than B. Williams, who is playing the role of a College backstopper with credit. As a whole the nine is strong and well balanced and has a splendid chance to make a clean sweep of the entire College scheduled games.

TWO GAMES; TWO BIG TEAMS

April the second is the date: Saturday afternoon to be more specific, is the time M. C. plays the well known players called the Boston Red Sox Nine. Now is the time for all ably, loyal students to come to the aid of their College baseball team. And by going, by cheering, by boosting in every way possible, by instilling the team with a winning spirit and by exemplyfing said spirit in self. No, we don't expect everybody to be there in person, but it is only fair to expect at least the good wishes of every student in the rousing send off the team and rooters are going to be given on departure. Send 'em forth to scalp the Red Sox, victory is not impossible.

But you may be better interested in things which are to take place closer home. There is one at least which you will fall for and that is a game on next Thursday, April7 on the baseball field at Alcoa. This game will be played between Maryville College and the New York Giants. The games previously played will have put M. C. in very good shape by that time so that the Giants can at least look for a warm reception on the diamond as well as off of it. The road to Alcoa is a short ways to go, the road to Alcoa

FRENCH PLAYS MONDAY NIGHT; SOMETHING NEW

"Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" or "A Country Gentleman" so pleased Louis XIV that he asked to see it a second time. Since then it has been unusually popular in France and in other countries as well.

Mr. Jourdain, the country gentleman, is a commoner who has inherited wealth together with a violent dislike for the honest work by which his father accumulated that wealth. He is anxious to rise on the social scale and for this purpose surrounds himself with teachers of philosophy, music, dancing and fencing. He is the ready dupe of women of fashion and needy courtiers who borrow his money and make him a laughing stock. His wife has a great deal of good sense and sees the folly of her husband's efforts, but she cannot stop him.

Now, she has a daughter, Lucile, who is loved by Cleonte, but her father plans for her to marry a title, and since with all his fine qualities Cleonte has no title and desires none, Mr. Jourdain refuses to give his consent to the match. Cleonte then outwits him by pretending to be the Son of the Grand Turk. Mr. Jourdain is immensely flattered that a personage of such high rank should seek to be his son-in-law and gives his consent immediately.

Oh—they are great plays and you cannot afford to miss them. Among the cast are Bernice West and Annarine Atkins—famous in Every Woman, Roy Buffatt, the debater, Samuel Peters, class orator, Francis Hickey another orator, Edith Moore, Aleen Rutherford, and a number of others equally talented.

Just remember—Monday night—April 4, 1921, College chapel—The French plays. Make your dates early—buy your tickets, and come.

EASTER BANQUET

Twelve girls were made happy when "Bunny" slipped invitations into their hands inviting them to room 404 Pearsons on Saturday evening from 8:20 to 9:20.

The appointed time found them being delightfully entertained by three charming hostesses, Misses Reed, Hatchett and Baker. Each found her partner for the evening by putting a chicken into an egg (speaking in terms of paper and scissors).

With Miss Reed leading they followed to room 412 and on opening the door saw a room lighted by pink candles and decorated with Easter lilies, and last but not least the long table with (read the menu) greeted their eyes.

The search for places at the banquet table then ensued, each guest finding her plate by the beautiful "bunny" place cards.

The bounteous menu consisted of: brown bread, baked chicken, ham sandwiches, mixed pickles, deviled eggs, jelly, fruit salad, sour pickles, ice tea, candy, ice cream, devil-food cake and angel-food cake.

Toastmistress Mason expressed the sentiments of the occasion by her original and impromptu toast:

"Here's to Laura, Beulah and Nelle,
For this banquet we've all enjoyed well.
To say we enjoyed it, expresses it mildly,
We should say we enjoyed it wildly".

After forty-five "rahs" divided, equally between "Banquet", "We thank you", and "Good Night" they departed because it was almost time for the lights to go out.

Those present were: Mary Mason, Lillis Huffman, Geraldine Rousseau, Lillian Brandon, Martha Benn, Lois Hayes, Margaret Fisher, Emma Culpepper, Elizabeth McCord, Lina Hodges, Margaret McKinney, Laura Stevens, Laura Reed, Nelle Baker, Beulah Hatchett.

Miss Mildred Hoffman, a former student of M. C., wil graduate this year from Tusculum College and states that she expects to attend the commencement exercises at Maryville also.

Silk Shirt Squad and the Modern Spenders Will Do Well to See "Vanity"

Theme of Great Drama to Be Presented Here Soon, Is Modern Sin of Extravagance—Has Vital and Timely Message.

Clifton P. Mallory, who heads the Mallory Players Company, is meeting with phenomenal success this season in his lyceum offering of the powerful play "Vanity."

"Vanity" is given with artistic stage settings and Mr. Mallory has chosen a cast of especial dramatic abilities to properly present this great drama. The theme of "Vanity" is the modern sin of extravagance. It has all the elements of the great play—sentiment, drama, and plenty of humor, and the story is pure, sweet and wholesome. "Vanity" presents a vital message. It is typically a lyceum play, written for lyceum audiences, and will prove to be a real event for this community.

MARYVILLIANS SEE HIGHLANDERS ON ARENA OF BIG LEAGUE BASEBALL

HUNDREDS OF MARYVILLIANS AND KNOXVILLIANS WITNESS GAME; DAVIDSON'S HOMER SAVES THE DAY; SCORE 14 TO 1.

Once more the Knoxville Augusta 11:30 choo-choo was detained one hour so as to give hundreds of Maryville College students time to make necessary recitations and preparations before embarking to Knoxville, the Rome of East Tennessee.

Students and faculty all took Knoxville by storm. Some on trucks, some in machines, and some on foot. Music rent the air. Cheers for the College of the Highlanders were sounded forth, and they served as a sufficient forerunner for the advancing College warriors going forth to meet a known superior foe. But it mattered not. The true loyal, never-give-up spirit of the Highlanders lasts through storm and sunshine. Players and supporters were by no means doubtful of the outcome, but they went forth to fight a Victorious losing battle. Victorious though lost is right, for to make a score on the Boston Red Sox speaks well for the College nine.

Taking the players from the home plate to the pitchers' box, then to first on around to third, and then from left to right field we will see in position a team of college youths standing in opposition to a team of grizzled experienced baseball veterans. Look again and you will see these same Collegians, - pitcher, catcher, infielder and outfielder striving hard to stem the tide of a merry-go-round progress of the Red Sox.

Speaking of the infield playing let it be said that it would be just about as easy to pick a hot iron from a moving surface as it would be to snag a "hot one" shot from a bat of one of the Red Sox sluggers. Ask Partee or Cotton and they will say that those balls which harassed their territory had whiskers on 'em.

It is true that the score might have been cut considerably but what does it matter now so long as Davidson, our left fielder, succeeded in meeting the old horsehide on the nose and placing it down the left whitewash line for a circuit journey? That he did, at a time when Maryville was just getting herself under cintrol. The seventh. Oh you lucky seventh, was an inning during which the rapidly clouding faces of the nearly four hundred Maryville rooters were made bright and shining like the sunlit sky after a storm. Davy's homer did it. Maryville was nearly well satisfied to know that she had scored on the Boston Red Sox baseball aggregation. So did the many hundreds of spectators speak up and say, "Well done, Maryville."

The Maryville players were: Lowry at short; Feeman, Cotton and Dunn, Partee, covered the bases in order as given; the "B.R.H." Williams battery, discharged well; Roy McCall and Rowan watched the balls fly over the rightfield fence; Big "Mac" pulled 'em down in center field like a big leaguer, and Davidson held the fort in left.—And the score was 14 to 1 in favor of the Red Sox.

NEW Y. M. C. A. OFFICERS INSTALLED

President Forrest Brown Presents Plans of Association For Coming Year.

At Bartlett Hall on last Sunday afternoon, in a simple but very inspiring service, the officers of the Y. M. C. A. for the year 1921-22 were installed. The retiring president, George Howell, spoke briefly of the work of the past year, and in yielding his office to his successor he made special mention of the fidelity of the men who had helped bring the work thus far.

The new president, Forrest Brown, in taking over the responsibilities of this office outlined in a general way the plans and purposes of the Y.M.C.A. for the coming year. The new plan purposes to continue the present course in the study of the "Race Problems" now being taught by Dr. McMurray. At the opening of the school next fall a systematic study of the Bible is to be taken up in the various Sunday Schools. Preparatory to the February Meetings a course in "Personal Evangelism" will be given, followed after the meetings with a study of the "Fundamentals of Christianity". The spring months are to be devoted to Mission Study. The plan not only includes provision for the spiritual life but also provides for the mental and physical life in the form of conferences, contests, hikes and the like. There is not to be a greater number of meetings, but those that are held will be more intensive than heretofore.

Short talks were made by the

MARYVILLE NINE TROUNCES JOHNSON BIBLE COLLEGE 14-7

A Game Replete With Home-Runs And Errors Ends in Second Victory on Home Grounds.

Trucks have not only solved the problem of commercial transportation but of passenger transportation as well. The Johnson Bible College base ball nine trucked into Maryville and unloaded near Bartlett Hall previous to the preparation for the game which was to prove too much for the "Plodding Preachers".
